Rotary Club supports kids and community in Uganda

The St. Joseph-Benton Harbor Rotary Club Foundation and the Rotary District 6360 Foundation have once again made a difference for people living in rural Uganda with the donation of $4,500 for students.

St. Joseph Rotarian Prudy Barrett Nelson started the Welfare Organization for Orphans and Vulnerable Children in the town of Kihihi about 12 years ago to get children out of ineffective schools and into private schools. She says the funds recently donated by the Rotary will help ensure those students receive their education, even in poor weather.

Kihihi in Uganda is an extremely poor rural area. Because of the lack of good schools, the kids go to boarding schools out of the area. When home for break, they gather at the Rotary-sponsored office for fun, educational, and inspirational activities. Some of the activities focus on building self-esteem, trust, and leadership skills, as well as opportunities to just be kids and have a good time. As the organization has an office but no place for the kids, guardians, and community groups to gather when the sun is intense or raining, many activities must be rescheduled or cancelled because of the weather.

Nelson says, "When the kids get together, there are almost 40 of them. There's no place for them to gather if it's raining or if the sun is really intense, which it often is. So this created a tented outdoor classroom or gathering area."

The St. Joseph-Benton Harbor Rotary awarded the organization $3,200, while the Rotary District Foundation awarded $1,300 for the purchase of three large tents, 200 chairs, and a small PA system. Nelson says not only does this help the kids learn, but it gives them a space for celebrations. These will allow activities to continue

Hold Onto the Wonder

There is a specific kind of magic that hits St. Joe when the temperature drops. If you have any familiarity with our charming little town, you know exactly what I'm talking about. There's a special feeling you get when you turn the corner toward the lake and see the trees transform the bluff into a beacon of light.

As 2026 arrives, that sense of familiarity feels more important than ever.

If you've spent any time downtown recently, you've likely heard the buzz. We are getting ready for some significant and exciting changes coming to St. Joe. With the Marquette development and the Main Street light.

construction project slated to kick off in the next year or so, our downtown is poised for transformation.

I won't sugarcoat it: big projects bring big feelings. There is naturally some anticipation about the logistics of it all. However, this is a unique invitation. It's an opportunity for us to lean in and rally our community. These projects represent a city that isn't just resting on its laurels but is actively investing in its future. They are the signs of a community that wants to be vibrant for decades to come.

The anticipation of change can feel daunting. That is why, during this holiday season, I've found myself leaning heavily into our traditions.

Our December events, like "Light Up the Bluff" and the Reindeer Parade, were not just fun photo ops. They are the anchors that hold us steady while we plan for the future. When we gather to watch the lights illuminate the bluff, or when families line the streets surrounding by pups leading Santa into the city, we are reminding ourselves of the history and the community spirit that undergird this city. Those traditions prove that while the buildings might change, the heartbeat of St. Joe remains exactly the same.

We are going to need that community spirit in the coming years. We will need to come together to support our local merchants who are the backbone of our downtown. We will need to extend a little extra grace to our neighbors and visitors as we navigate new societal rhythms.

But here is the good news: embracing the future is a lot easier when you have something to look forward to. 2026 is shaping up to be incredible!

In St. Joe, we use these quieter seasons for connection. We know that the interim period before and during major construction begins is the time to solidify the bonds that make our downtown thrive. It's about more than just maintaining the status quo; it's about intentionally showing up for one another. Whether it's choosing to grab your morning coffee at a local spot or meeting a friend for dinner on a Tuesday night, those small actions are the building blocks of our resilience.

As we look toward the logistical shifts over the next few years, we are not just preparing for new asphalt and architecture; we are preparing to prove that St. Joe's identity is found in its people. We are a community that chooses to see "new" as "better," and "change" as a way to honor the legacy of those who built this town before us.

Just because the holidays wrap up doesn't mean we need to go into hibernation. We are already gearing up for the 2026 Chili Tour, which is pretty much the perfect remedy for a Michigan January. We have a limited number of Winter Beer Fest tickets left for January 31st, and the Ice Fest will be here before we know it!

These events are invitations. They are an excuse to put on your coat, come downtown, and be part of the story. Whether you're walking down the bricks today or imagining the downtown of tomorrow, you're part of what makes St. Joe special.

So, let's embrace the buzz. Come for the excitement of what's next, stay for the nostalgia, and enjoy the season.

Happy New Year, Everyone! Can't wait to see you downtown in 2026.

Seasons Greetings!!!
Welcome 2026

Hello MailMaxers!!! I hope everyone is enjoying the magical season thus far. It's been a while since I last wrote and I am excited to tell you about some great holiday beverages to celebrate your holiday plans and the New Year!

Holiday "Spirits"
I have written before about Cutwater Spirits and this past year has been an INCREDIBLE growth year for them. To refresh your memory, I will give you a little background.

Cutwater Spirits originated, and is based out of San Diego, California. They are known for their meticulously distilled and award-winning portfolio of spirits including whiskeys, vodka, gin, rums, tequilas and liqueurs and incorporate them into their canned cocktail (ready to drink) lineup. They have several options to shop and are known to constantly innovate. Most of you are probably familiar with the Margarita line up that has been a hit over the last couple of years. For the holiday season I have a couple of favorites to recommend you bring to your next get together!

White Russian: Who doesn't love a white Russian during the holidays? This 12% ABV canned cocktail is made with Cutwater vodka and coffee cream liqueur. I love this over ice, and it is perfectly balanced as all ingredients are perfectly measured for the perfect cocktail.

Peppermint White Russian: This year's new "flavored White Russian" is the peppermint white Russian. Also coming in at 12% ABV the same ingredients as the white Russian with a delicious peppermint flavoring, wonderful for the holidays!

Lemon Drop Martini: Now we get into the martini game! This one has been a huge hit ever since its launch and is one of the most sought after in the market. "Featuring our award-winning vodka and notes of bright lemon. Enjoy in a chilled martini glass with a lemon twist or straight from our can." (www.cutwaterspirits.com) ABV 11%.

Espresso Martini: I feel like this is one of the most popular martinis being asked for in the industry. It's not always the easiest to perfect. Cutwater does a fantastic job with this classic martini. Made with Cutwater vodka, coffee cream liqueur, and cold brew coffee. Coming in at 13%
I hope you and yours are having a lovely holiday season and have a fantastic 2026!
As always, please enjoy responsibly!

Names That Play the Games
– Part Deux

As I write this, the college football bowl season is still young. I've watched as much of the early going as I could, and am so excited for more, my mind reeling at how many more amazingly vapid things the announcers and color commentators and sideline reporters will say!

Just yesterday, someone said – remember, this is describing a tackle football game – that "It's gotten really physical out there." And another individual who clearly should not have been given a microphone said, "On the sideline the coach told the offense he wants them to throw some passes in the air." I guess as opposed to throwing passes at the other team's super-cute cheerleaders.

Anyway, this column brings you more interesting "sounds of the season" – another heaping helping of interesting names from the college football teams that populate our rich bowl game landscape:

Let me clarify right off that this column's headline – sadly -- does not contain an interesting college football name. . .there isn't a player, as far as I can determine, named Part Deux. Yet.

Jacksonville State has quarterbacks named Caden, Cade and Kadyn – and scouts say it's almost magical how they play in perfect cadencadekady-nce! (Last names, for you detail-oriented types, are, in order, Creel, Cunningham and Mitchell.)

Kennesaw State defensive back Five Hamilton, is, as you can well imagine, one of. . .wait for it. . .four children.

This is kind of too easy – Southern Methodist University has a 316-pound lineman 316 named King Large. NOT a nickname. . .it's his actual birth name.

Western Michigan University has a defensive lineman named Popeye Williams. Is this his real birth name? It's actually his real PRE-birth name! – his mom saw him flexing his muscles in a pre-natal ultrasound, giving birth to his nickname before giving birth to him.

The University of Connecticut can boast of having the most members of this year's All-Sounds Like A Faculty Of Distinguished Hogwarts Professors Team:

Linebacker Lewenski Ydore;
Defensive back Axavier Bridges-Brooks;
Defensive back Kolubah Pewee, Jr.;
Long snapper Tashi Crofut;
Defensive back Kylish Hicks.

This Floria International University tight end has GOT to be nicknamed "Pepper" right?: he's Justin Cayenne.

These UConn defensive backs have an ongoing debate with each other: one says Diondre (Glover) and one says Diandre (Harris).

At 6'4, and 240 pounds, Cal tight end Mason Mini isn't.

These guys have names that make me think they are the second child in their families?: Missouri State quarterback Deuce Bailey and University of Pittsburgh wide receiver Deuce Spann.

While this 305-pound Illinois defensive lineman doesn't rough opponents up, they better make no mistake – he IS after them! He's Gentle Hunt.

This Appalachian State running back wonders why he's always the last one invited to team parties. Well, duh, it's because he's Max Guest.

I hope App State wide receiver Bryce Gee's teammates have nicknamed him "Whiz."

The olfactory emanations from App State's offensive line balance out when Gabe Funk lines up next to Will Flowers.

University of Southern California players can always turn to these defensive tackle teammates when they need moolah quickly: Cash Jacobsen, Kash Amos, and Keeshawn Silver.

USC defensive back James Johnson and punter Sam Johnson always get just a little bit unnerved when they notice they're being followed by their teammate – defensive back Chasen Johnson.

uninterrupted, even on those days when the sun is intense or during monsoon season.

"I will say they had their big Christmas party yesterday and there must have been 150 people there and they used it and it was awesome."

The local Rotary previously helped set up a freshwater system in rural Ugandan communities, and Nelson says while she's done work all over Africa, Uganda has a special place in her heart.

"I've worked all over Africa and the East and Asia and all over the world, but Uganda just really tore at my heartstrings. I also made some great connections there. I was working with awesome people that shared my passion!"

Get ready for the 'Gig Economy' with new LMC courses

Lake Michigan College will soon have a new program centered on the gig economy.

The LMC Board of Trustees approved its creation this week. Vice President of Academic Affairs, Ken Flowers, tells us the new offering will be part of the business program.

"The Gig Economy is a certificate as part of our Associate of Applied Business program," Flowers said. "So we're seeing a lot of people come in who get a job and work selling something—selling something online. It's taking all these different experiences they have and helping them build a business from them."

The Gig Economy Program will offer coursework in business management, marketing, customer service, sales, and professionalism. Flowers says it's all about responding to current economic trends.

"Get some short-term skills that they can learn how to do sales better, do marketing better, or just kind of build confidence in their ability to grow their own selves. It's almost like an entrepreneurial type of degree."

36% of U.S. workers participate in gig work, and that's expected to hit 51% in 2027.

The new certificate is aimed at students interested in freelance or contract roles, working adults making a transition,

Building Immune Resilience:
A Science-Based Approach

A well-functioning immune system depends on a combination of adequate nutrition, antioxidant protection, and lifestyle choices that minimize inflammation. Among the most well-studied supports for immune health are vitamin D, N-acetylcysteine (NAC), intravenous (IV) vitamin C, zinc, and the avoidance of excessive dietary sugar. Together, these factors help regulate immune responses, reduce oxidative stress, and improve the body's ability to prevent illness and recover more efficiently.

Vitamin D plays a foundational role in immune regulation. Immune cells such as macrophages, dendritic cells, and T lymphocytes express vitamin D receptors, allowing vitamin D to directly influence immune signaling. Adequate vitamin D levels enhance innate immune defenses by supporting antimicrobial peptide production while also helping regulate adaptive immunity to prevent excessive inflammation. Low vitamin D status has been associated with increased susceptibility to respiratory infections and impaired immune balance, highlighting its importance for both prevention and long-term immune resilience.

N-acetylcysteine (NAC) supports immune health primarily through its role as a precursor to glutathione, the body's most important intracellular antioxidant. Glutathione helps neutralize reactive oxygen species generated during infection and inflammation, protecting immune cells from oxidative damage. NAC also has mucolytic properties that may support respiratory health and has been shown to help regulate inflammatory cytokines. By restoring antioxidant capacity, NAC supports immune cells' ability to function efficiently during periods of increased oxidative stress.

Vitamin C is another critical immune-supportive nutrient, particularly when administered intravenously. IV vitamin C bypasses intestinal absorption limits, allowing for significantly higher plasma concentrations than oral dosing. At these levels, vitamin C acts as a powerful antioxidant, supports white blood cell activity, enhances chemotaxis and phagocytosis, and helps regenerate other antioxidants such as glutathione. During infection or physiological stress, vitamin C requirements increase substantially, and IV delivery can rapidly restore depleted levels to support immune defense and recovery.

Zinc is essential for both innate and adaptive immunity. It supports the development and function of neutrophils, natural killer cells, and T lymphocytes, while also helping maintain the integrity of mucosal barriers that serve as the body's first line of defense. Zinc deficiency has been associated with impaired immune responses and increased infection risk. Adequate zinc intake supports immune cell communication and helps regulate inflammatory signaling.

Finally, avoiding excessive sugar intake is an important yet often overlooked aspect of immune support. High sugar consumption can impair immune function by reducing white blood cell activity, increasing systemic inflammation, and contributing to insulin resistance. Acute spikes in blood glucose have been shown to decrease neutrophil function for hours after intake, temporarily weakening immune defenses.

In combination, vitamin D, NAC, IV vitamin C, zinc, and sugar avoidance work synergistically to support immune regulation, antioxidant defense, and inflammation control. These strategies strengthen the body's natural ability to protect against illness and promote long-term immune resilience. We invite you to explore our supplement and vitamin options in the office and experience an immune-boosting IV infusion, featuring vitamin C and additional supportive nutrients, in our massage chair this cold and flu season.

Present Pillars helps 372 young shoppers to a happier holiday via ‘Shop With A Pillar’

Present Pillars hosted its 4th Annual ‘Shop with a Pillar’ holiday shopping experience bringing joy, mentorship, and meaningful support to 372 local youth over the course of five impactful days at Walmart in Benton Harbor.

Shop with a Pillar pairs volunteer mentors—known as “Pillars”—with local youth for a special holiday shopping trip. Through one-on-one mentorship, encouragement, and guidance, the event not only helps families meet holiday needs but also fosters lasting relationships and positive role models during a critical time of year. This year’s event was made possible by the dedication of 53 volunteers who stepped up to serve, mentor, and uplift youth throughout the week. Together, they helped create an atmosphere of care, dignity, and celebration—demonstrating the power of community collaboration in action.

“Every young person in our community deserves moments that make them feel supported, valued, and inspired,” said James Gunter, Co-Founder & Executive Director of Present Pillars Foundation. “Shop with a Pillar is our way of showing that the adults around them—their Pillars—are here to lift them up and walk beside them. These experiences shape confidence, spark hope, and remind our youth that they matter.”

“Indiana Michigan Power is honored to have helped to make this event possible,” Mona Livingston, Customer Services Manager at Indiana Michigan Power, said. “Our partnership with Present Pillars reflects our commitment to uplifting young people and strengthening families in Southwest Michigan.”

Through the generous support of Indiana Michigan Power, Communities in Schools, Honor Credit Union, The Home Depot and Horizon Bank, Shop with a Pillar provides relief to families facing financial hardship, strengthens mentorship relationships, and fosters a positive holiday atmosphere for youth who may otherwise go without. Many local schools and youth organizations contribute by identifying students who will benefit most from the program.

Christmas is for You

“For me!?” You have seen this reaction, or even said it yourself, when a gift was given. The facial expression said it all. It was joyful surprise. It is sometimes followed by an unspoken thank you. The surprise took all words away.

I wonder if the shepherds in the fields thought the same when the announcement from the angels came: “Do not be afraid. For behold, I bring you good news of great joy, which will be for all people: Today in the town of David, a Savior was born for you. He is Christ the Lord. And this will be a sign for you: You will find a baby wrapped in swaddling cloths and lying in a manger” (Luke 2:10–12). The only response recorded was their action—to go and see the child.

“Wow, for me!?” This gift that is given for all people is also for you.

We don’t understand it unless we know how much we need it. The great surprise is that we don’t deserve it.

Naughty or nice? Which list do you think you would be on? Think about it. If someone really were to watch your every move from this past year, what would it reveal?

www.MailMaxOnline.com
Most of these events from the past year were not accidents or slip-ups. If we are honest, they were deliberate and hurtful.

If naughty is the verdict, then we don’t even deserve coal. We’ve earned hell.

But that’s not what you get. “Do not be afraid,” the angel said. You get Jesus. When you receive a gift that you know you don’t deserve, the surprise is even greater. The Savior was born for you. The one lying in a manger is a sign for you.

Jesus didn’t come for robins, horses, chickens, cats, dogs, deer, or squirrels. He came for you. He didn’t become some furry, four-legged creature. He became a person. He took on your humanity so he could be for you.

Jesus wasn’t only born for you; he lived for you. Every thought, word, and deed he did was for you. Jesus’ flawless obedience was for you. Jesus’ perfection was for you.

His death and resurrection were for you. God’s forgiveness is for you. God’s mercy is for you. God’s grace is for you. God’s love is for you. Christmas is for you.

“For me?!?” Yes, for you. We can never hear this enough. Christians do a lot to celebrate Jesus on Christmas, and rightly so. But why did Jesus come in the first place? For you.

How does the gift of Jesus outlast the gifts long forgotten from years past?

Prayer: Dear Father, you give me your best. You give me your one and only Son to be my Savior. He came for me. Give me the faith to savor this Christmas gift every day. Amen.

Comparing Apples to Apples: How to Evaluate HVAC Quotes Fairly

Homeowners face significant decisions when upgrading heating, ventilation, and air conditioning systems, especially with rising energy costs and environmental concerns. Gathering multiple quotes from contractors is common, but proposals often differ in ways that make direct comparisons difficult. Without aligning details, homeowners risk choosing based on incomplete information, leading to poor installations or higher long-term expenses.

To achieve true “apples to apples” comparisons, standardize requests across all contractors. Provide the same information about home size, current system, and desired features such as smart controls or zoned heating and cooling. Require detailed descriptions of the scope of work, such as what is and is not included in the price. This approach highlights differences in equipment, miscellaneous parts, accessories, permits, and removal of old units.

Equipment specifications play a key role in variations. Efficiency ratings matter greatly: for air conditioners, compare Seasonal Energy Efficiency Ratio (SEER) values, where higher numbers like 18 reduce energy use compared to lower ones like 13. For furnaces, examine Annual Fuel Utilization Efficiency (AFUE). Energy Star models may offer rebates and better performance. Also consider compressor types—variable-speed options provide better comfort and quieter operation than single-stage units.

Installation quality affects system performance as much as the equipment itself. Proper sizing through load calculations ensures efficiency; oversized systems waste energy, while undersized ones struggle. Ask about procedures like duct sealing, refrigerant handling, and code compliance. Thorough quotes include these steps, while lower ones may exclude them, resulting in future issues.

Warranties and ongoing support add another layer. Manufacturer coverage is standard, but labor warranties and maintenance plans vary. Plans with regular tune-ups can extend equipment life significantly and prevent breakdowns.

Contractor credentials deserve scrutiny. Confirm licenses, insurance, and industry certifications. Review feedback from similar projects and watch for warning signs like rushed decisions or unusually low bids that suggest shortcuts.

HVAC upgrades represent a long-term investment. Focus on overall value—efficiency, durability, and reliability—rather than initial cost alone. Current incentives for high-efficiency systems make careful comparisons even more beneficial. By ensuring quotes match in scope and quality, homeowners secure comfortable, efficient homes without unnecessary risks or regrets.

Dave Says
Rewards, Responsibility and Teachable Moments

Dear Dave,

Our son is a freshman in high school, and he has the opportunity to take a school-sponsored, week-long trip next year with the rest of his class. The student fee is $500. Over the past couple of years, he has started making money mowing lawns and doing odd jobs around the neighborhood. We’ve always taught him that money comes from work, and he has always been very focused on being smart with the money he earns. Do you think we should cover the entire $500, or should he have to contribute something?

Patrice

Dear Patrice,

When it came to making these kinds of decisions at our house, my wife and I would always take a look at a few things. Is the kid behaving? Are they getting good grades? You know, just basic things that can reasonably be expected from most teenagers. Most of the time, if they were living like well-behaved, responsible young people, we’d pay for things like this as a reward.

But, there’s a good argument to be made for a kid having some skin in the game at that age, too. If you and your husband can pay for it without causing yourselves any financial stress—and your son is fulfilling his responsibilities at school and at home—there’s nothing wrong with you paying the fee. Then, here’s an idea. If you want to make this a teachable moment, another learning experience, you could require him to work, and save up his own spending money for the trip.

I’m glad you and your husband are thinking of your teenage son as an adult in training. I know you love him, but it’s also a parent’s job to teach their children what they need to know for that moment when you send them off to college, trade school or even their own apartment and their first real, full-time job. Trust me, you don’t have to be a finance professor to teach your child how to save money and wisely manage their finances.

Patrice, I’m so impressed with the young man you’re raising. To have that kind of drive and maturity at his age is a testimony to him, and to how well you and your husband have taught and guided him throughout the years. I have no doubt your son will be well-prepared to take on the world one day.

In the meantime, I hope he has lots of fun on his upcoming trip!

— Dave
