A Look Within....

FLORENCE—In conjunction with the 50th Anniversary Celebration of the Kennedy-Douglass Center for the Arts, the special exhibit A Look Within: Hiram & KD at the Turn of the Century opens January 18 and continues through March 5. This exhibition showcases the life of Reverend Hiram Kennedy Douglass through an assortment of items from the Florence Arts and Museums' Hiram Kennedy Douglass Collection.

While known throughout his life as Reverend Douglass, the Florence Arts & Museums staff knows him affectionately as "Hiram." Organized by guest curator, Luke Grissom, and with graphics designed by Grace Ann Griffin, the exhibit follows Hiram's life chronologically, from his youth in Florence to his early career in the ministry. His generous bequest established the Kennedy-Douglass Center for the Arts out of his own family home—the home that now offers this intimate glimpse into his early life. The public is invited to attend the opening reception from 2-4pm on Sunday, January 18.

Hiram, 50 Years Later...

EARLY LIFE

Hiram Kennedy Douglass was born on August 21, 1893, in Centre Star, Alabama, to Mary Sue Brooks Douglass and James Josephus Douglass. Hiram attended the college training program at State Normal School of Florence (what is now UNA) from 1900-1912. After graduating, he pursued a degree in Business Administration at Columbia University in New York City from 1913-1915. While working at White Door Settlement House in New York City, Hiram realized that a business career was not what he wanted in the long term; instead, he wanted one that directly helped those in need.

MINISTRY

This reorientation drew him to explore a career in ministry through the Episcopal Church, despite his Methodist background. Hiram left Columbia in 1916 to pursue a degree at the University of the South in Sewanee, Tennessee. He received his Bachelor of Arts from Sewanee in 1919 and later earned his graduate degree at Oxford University in England that same year. Hiram returned to the United States in 1921 and was ordained as a priest on June 29th, 1922, at St. Luke's Church in Atlanta, Georgia.

In 1926, Hiram was appointed as rector of The Church of the Messiah in Detroit, Michigan, where he served until 1929. He returned to the south in 1929 to work as Chaplain of the Convent of St. Anne in Memphis, Tennessee. Hiram retired from the ministry in 1937 due to medical reasons and came home to Florence where he remained an active member of the community.

AFTERWARD

Upon his death in 1975, Hiram Kennedy Douglass donated his home, property, and many of his personal belongings, for use as a public cultural space. In 1976, the City of Florence took ownership of the home and property to make it a place to appreciate the arts. The Kennedy-Douglass Center for the Arts first opened its doors in 1976. It now includes three historic houses dedicated to the promotion and celebration of the arts.

KD Art Center is located at 217 E. Tuscaloosa St. Call 256-760-6379 for more information.

THREADING THE PAST: Vintage Quilts from the Glenn Rikard Collection

F L O R E N C E - A n exhibition entitled, Threading the Past: Vintage Quilts from the Glenn Rikard Collection will run concurrent with the Hiram exhibit through March 5. The collection features select 1850s-1940s quilts from the noted Tuscaloosa collector and quilt enthusiast.

The reception for Rikard is also planned for 2-4pm on January 18 at the KD Art Center.

Inspired by the beautiful and intricate patterns made and quilted by his own family, Rikard began collecting quilts, patterns, and fabric by other artisans. His collection now numbers more than 150 quilts.

This exhibit highlights traditional quilt patterns and techniques, including an example of "Redwork, which was popularized in the 1870s.

Both exhibits coincide with the Kennedy Douglass Center's 50th anniversary. Admission is free. The K-D Art Center is located at 217 E. Tuscaloosa St. in Florence. Call 256-760-6379 for more information.

Briefing Congress;
Kidding... Right?

The recent arrest of Venezuelan President Nicolás Maduro and his wife, Cilia Adela Flores de Maduro, escaping from their own bedroom early morning on January 3 took us all by surprise. Maybe it shouldn't have.

The two were indicted by a Florida grand jury in March 2020, and again in the southern district of New York on narco-terrorist, cocaine, and various weapons charges. He was the recognized president since 2013, but most concede Cilia was the brains of the couple. Both were equally responsible for the illicit dealings as well the second part of the most striking example of economic self-sabotage in recent world history. Socialist president Hugo Chávez gave way to Nicolás Maduro, as Venezuela was dismantled its well-oiled energy-based economy.

There has been an unusual focus on Latin and South America since Donald Trump came back into office last year.

And several Democrats in the house and senate have made a point to criticize him for

Investing at the TOP

FLORENCE—Did you miss the opportunity to invest when the market bottomed in April 2025? That was a good opportunity to invest in stocks whose prices were down significantly. Now, most stocks are back up to previous levels or higher. But not all those stocks that were down in April or are up today - are considered good investments.

Yes, you can make money in the market by investing in stocks when they are down - but you can also make money in stocks when they are up. The secret is knowing which ones are

Editorial Discretion

Dear Editor,

Your letters to the editor continue to be a source of amusement to me. But I remain bewildered as to why you print the majority of them in this column and not as political ads.

There are a few honest letters by locals, even some political opinions on local issues. But many letters appear to be political propaganda written by people from other states or from various "advocates," organizations, and social justice warriors which have a number of themes in common.

For those who have trouble distinguishing them the themes which these letters push are pretty consistent and can include:

- 1) Orange Man is bad,
- 2) Republicans are bad,
- 3) Christians are bad,
- 4) Conservatives are bad,
- 5) Majority is bad,

... We have so many Trojan horses residing in our country today, designed to undermine and destroy our Constitutional Republic . . .

6) People who are better off than other people are bad,

7) Alabama is bad,

8) A has the right to B and taxpayers should pay,

9) When C says D, it offends us and you should stop C, etc.

One can often tell these letters are part of a campaign of political indoctrination by doing a brief online search of news sources and finding multiple sources which show waves of similar or same wording on a given subject. Also flurries of similar opinions from the same people or organizations. At this point they are far less amusing, even becoming annoying.

Heaven forbid that you should

Mastering The Flesh

Mark 14:38 "Watch ye and pray, lest ye enter into temptation. The spirit truly is ready, but the flesh is weak." After salvation, the war starts between two natures, and the battle for control of the flesh begins. Paul had troubles his whole saved life and admitted: Romans 7:20-21 "Now if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but sin that dwelleth in me. I find then a law, that, when I would do good, evil is present with me." 1 Corinthians 9:27 "But I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection: lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway." Paul wasn't perfect; Philippians 3:13-14 "Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Paul concludes: 2 Timothy 4:7-8 "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."

It is a spiritual battle with the flesh, for the saved, that is only won by staying on your knees in prayer and in the word of God as much as you can! With God's word, Spirit, strength, power and blessing, the victory is possible. I haven't arrived yet, but we must keep trying. It becomes difficult to put the old man to bed. At the translation or death, the victory will come then: 1 Corinthians 15:26 "The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death." Where there's no sin, there's no death. Revelation 21:4 "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain: for the former things are passed away." That's heaven, MAKE SURE you're going!

SIGNS OF THE PAST

JACKSON MILITARY ROAD - JACKSON CROSSING

The Military Road was built from 1816 to 1820 as a pioneer settlement shortcut from Nashville to the Southwest Territories /New Orleans, proceeding through the Shoals. A ferry crossed the River here in the vicinity of York Bluff settlement, connecting to the upstream bank of Cypress Creek on the opposite shore.

This passage formed the original linkage between Coldwater town (Tuscumbia) and the new town of Florence (surveyed 1818 by Cypress Land Company). This roadway and ferry crossing became the initial hub of the Shoals area. The ferry here operated for some years and was then relocated to the vicinity of the present railroad bridge by the 1820s. Railroad service was constructed between the two river banks in the 1830s; was washed out by floods & replaced in 1840.

Sheffield formed later, incorporated in 1885.

exert stronger editorial discretion and stop printing them. But I'd suggest you recognize them as being advertisements and start billing the senders your usual rates for classified ads. ### Letters Are From Where?

Dear Editor,

Most newspapers across America aren't worth reading any more. Their liberal bias has crossed the line for many people. I have always read your letters because I wanted to be informed on local issues. But lately I've noticed they don't even come from our community.

The recent letter, 'Death in the 21st Century,' was probably the last for me. It is a critical piece designed to make readers feel condemned and ashamed in a general bashing of modern technology versus humanitarian compassion. Then, I noticed it was from someone in Karachi, Pakistan. Pakistan is designated as a Muslim terrorist country by the United States. Why would someone from Pakistan be complaining to people in The Shoals, Alabama about having central heat and letting people die? Why would this paper be printing a letter from someone in Pakistan?

I think we have enough propaganda fed to us in the crazy times we are living. We have so many Trojan horses residing in our country today, designed to undermine and destroy our Constitutional Republic. Do we really need to print an obviously propagandized letter from a terrorist country? I don't trust much anymore, but this makes me ask 'why'?

Rising Living Costs in Alabama: Why More Working Families Are Falling Behind

B. Grant
McNutt
Managing Attorney

Even Full-Time Paychecks Aren't Stretching Like They Used To

Across Alabama, we are seeing a troubling trend: more families are working full-time, doing what they are supposed to do, and still falling behind financially.

This is not about reckless spending or poor decisions. It is about rising living costs that are quietly overwhelming household budgets — groceries, insurance, medical bills, and transportation — all increasing faster than wages for many people in our region.

At the Bond & Botes Law Offices, we speak every day with hardworking individuals and families who feel blindsided by how quickly things have changed. Many are shocked by how fast manageable financial stress can turn into missed payments, maxed-out credit cards, or collection calls.

The Cost of Living Is Rising Faster Than Paychecks

While inflation has cooled somewhat nationally, Alabama continues to feel its effects more sharply than many other states. These increases hit especially hard in households where there is little room for error in the monthly budget.

Grocery Prices Are Still a Monthly Strain

Families routinely tell us they are spending hundreds more per month on groceries than they did just a few years ago. Even modest price increases add up quickly when you are feeding a household.

Insurance Premiums Keep Climbing

Auto and Homeowners insurance rates across Alabama have increased significantly, particularly in storm-prone areas. Many families are paying more for coverage while receiving no additional benefit — another unavoidable monthly expense.

Transportation Costs Are Non-Negotiable

In much of Alabama, having a reliable vehicle is not optional. Rising auto loan payments, repair costs, and fuel expenses place enormous pressure on household finances.

Alabama State Bar requires the following: "No representation is made that the quality of legal services to be performed is greater than the quality of legal services performed by other lawyers."

Medicare Minute

Signing up for Medicare Part 1

The most common way to qualify for Medicare is when you are turning 65. You will have a specific time period, set by Medicare, to enroll in Part A and Part B Medicare. This is known as the Initial Enrollment Period (IEP).

If you are qualifying for Medicare by turning 65 you will have a 7 month window to enroll in Medicare. This window is based off of the month you turn 65. It starts 3 months prior to the month you turn 65 and extends 3 months past the month you turn 65. For example, if you are turning 65 in September your IEP begins in June and extends all the way through the month of December. If you are eligible, you may not have to pay a premium for Part A, but Part B will have a premium.

For those electing to sign up for Part B after their IEP a late-enrollment penalty may be assessed. This penalty can last as long as you have Part B and there may be a gap in your health coverage. However, one exception to this rule is being employed and having coverage through your company's group health plan. If this applies to you check with your benefit coordinator, Medicare or contact our office.

In most cases, if you are already drawing your Social Security or Railroad Retirement Board benefits you should automatically be signed up for Part A and Part B. If you are not drawing your Social Security or RRB benefits and want to sign up for Medicare you can do so by signing up online at ssa.gov, visit your local Social Security office or give our office a call and we can help direct you.

If you have questions regarding any aspect of Medicare or Medicare health plans feel free call us at Alabama Health Guidance (256-648-5710), stop by our office at 885 Florence Blvd (Four Lane Shopping Center) or email me at ikey@alabamahealthguidance.com. Alabama Health Guidance is an independent insurance agency and is not affiliated with Medicare or any other government agency.

ASK THE ATTORNEY

POA v. LIVING WILL v. LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

Thomas
McCutcheon

Ask the Attorney is sponsored by local attorneys, McCutcheon & Hamner, PC, as a service to the residents of NW Alabama.

When it comes to planning for the future, understanding the differences between a Power of Attorney (POA), a Living Will, and a Last Will and Testament is helpful. These legal documents help ensure a person's wishes are carried out in the case of incapacity or death but serve different purposes.

A Power of Attorney (POA) is a legal document that grants another person the authority to act on a person's behalf. You can have a general POA for anything that a person could do if they were present or a specific POA for a specific financial or legal matter. A Durable POA can be used if a person becomes incapacitated as long as it was done and signed while they were competent. This allows a person to act on another's behalf if they become incapacitated due to illness or injury.

A POA expires upon death. The agent can no longer make financial or medical decisions once a person passes away. That's when a Will takes over.

In between competency and death, a Living Will can be very helpful. These are also known as an Advance Healthcare Directive, and it outlines a person's medical treatment preferences in case they become incapacitated or are unable to communicate their wishes. The purpose of this document is to make known if a person wants life-sustaining treatments (ventilators or feeding tubes, etc.) and their wishes regarding pain management and further instructions on resuscitation. This document is used in situations where a person is terminally ill and unable to communicate and to prevent or provide medical intervention.

A Living Will does not handle financial or legal matters. It cannot be used to distribute assets or name a Personal Representative for the person's estate.

A Last Will and Testament (Will) is a legal document that details how a person's assets will be distributed after death. A Will is used to manage how assets are to be distributed after death. It also appoints the person to follow those instructions as to debts, assets, and the distribution thereof. There is a frequent misconception that the person appointed or named in the Will as the Personal Representative has some authority before the maker of the Will dies. They don't.

Insurance Insights

"Below is a State Farm® Simple Insights® article about "How to remove snow from the roof" is provided by State Farm agent Rebecca Stutts Hovater.

How to remove snow from the roof

Written by State Farm® Editorial Team

Snow on the roof may look pretty, but too much can potentially cause structural damage.

Heavy snow on a roof can cause multiple issues and can lead to costly damage. Usually the weight of ordinary snow is 3.59 pounds per cubic foot. Wet snow, however, is much heavier and poses a greater risk for roof damage. A few factors that go into snow-induced structural failures include:

- A roof's shape
- A roof's slope
- A roof's construction
- History of maintenance
- The roof's exposure to wind
- Type of snow that has accumulated
- Signs of roof pressure

Recognizing the signs of roof pressure and the risk of damage is important. New snow and old snow combined can easily exceed load capacity. Melting snow many times refreezes. As it melts, excess snow can also create ice dam damage and may ruin your home's interior under the eave line. While most roofs are built to withstand more than that, your roof may be under too much pressure if you see these signs:

- Visible sagging along the roofline
- Cracks in the ceiling or on the walls
- Popping or creaking noises
- Difficult-to-open doors and windows
- Roof snow removal

Once you have recognized that snow pressure is a problem, you should safely remove as much of it as possible. Keep the following in mind:

Hire a professional. A person who does this work regularly should know the best techniques and likely be insured.

Never work alone. Always have someone with you in case you slip or have an emergency.

Clear the area. The ladder up to your roof should be positioned on solid ground. Also, make sure the rungs are clear of ice and snow before you climb.

Secure yourself. If possible, use a strap or belt to anchor yourself to something strong, like a chimney.

Avoid shingle damage. Stay away from picks, hammers or other sharp tools to clear snow and ice.

Roof snow removal tools

There are various methods and tools to remove snow from your roof. Some of the typical tools used are rope, wire, an avalanche system or a shovel. The method will depend on how much snow there is on the roof, and what type of snow it is. If you have a one-story or flat-roofed house, invest in a snow rake. These long-handled tools with plastic blades can help you gently pull snow from the edge of the roofline.

Regular maintenance of your roof also help reduce the risk of damage from ice and snow. Many roofing contractors have the proper harnesses, tools and footwear to do most jobs safely.

If you have questions about your home insurance coverage, be sure to contact your State Farm® agent.

Where is the Nativity?

Dear Editor,

This past Christmas, I watched my four grandchildren's excitement over the Christmas holiday, and like any grandparent I enjoyed seeing them open presents, eating candy, family fun, and soaking up all the festivities, but I wanted to be sure they understood the true meaning of Christmas.

They all are taken to Church every week, but it seemed to me they hadn't associated the "Christmas season with the Christmas story" the birth of Christ. So, I wanted to get them all together and read the account of the birth of Jesus from Luke chapter 2.

But my youngest granddaughter just turned four years old, so I decided that it might be over her head. And I set out to purchase a book for children that told the Christmas story in a format that would be easier for children to understand. To my amazement, it was very hard to find something other than Santa Claus, elves, reindeer, or toys.

Walmart only had ONE nativity themed book that was for babies. The dollar store didn't have ANY nativity themed books, I checked at Target, and I finally found ONE pretty good nativity themed book for children at Ollie's in Florence. Now, I know I could have found what I was looking for on-line, or at Books-A-Million, or an equivalent bookstore that carries an array of topics in books. But the major retailers that most people go to are overwhelmingly neglecting the Christian community. I would like to think that the stores I went to were just simply out of stock - but I doubt it.

It really concerns me that our society is purposefully removing any Christian media from the fingertips of people and for their children. Are they trying to indoctrinate our children with false beliefs? God forbid! Those Christian books are and always have been good sales. So why are the shelves bare of Christian themed books, especially for children? I'm not asking for an extremely large number of Christian literature and books, just our fair share to be made available.

Our voice needs to be heard in the corporate offices of companies like Walmart, Target, Dollar Store, and Ollie's to lodge the complaint that the Christian community is being overlooked, and, I might add, that is a very large number of people, and customers.

Commentary

his lack of decisive action against Maduro as the 45th U.S. President and again in this term.

Despite some of the world's richest natural resources, oil production in Venezuela has dropped by 70% since 2000. Natural gas output has slipped by 50% in that general time span as well - all through corruption and incompetence. Falling oil output raised prices, and the resulting economic collapse further widened criminal networks and fueled mass migration out of the country.

Western firms, such as ExxonMobil and Royal Dutch Shell, were forced out, effectively replaced by those beholden to Russia and China. This gradually expanded foreign influence and political maneuverability of adversaries like Russia, China, Cuba, and Iran and undermined U.S. energy security.

In recent months, the Trump administration gave the Maduros every opportunity to walk away from the people he has so abused and the country he has so decimated: take whatever and go wherever. They ignored it, instead bolstering their defense fortresses and significantly adding to security numbers.

Once again, many may not appreciate the way Donald Trump conducts business on behalf of the United States, but we all must respect the fact that he does what he says he is going to do.

We heard the howling from all the weekend talking heads, and other left-leaders that the President illegally sidestepped Congress on his plans. All said, "They should have been briefed."

That position alone shows the ignorance and stupidity of whomever regurgitated it.

We all know by now the many Democrats in Congress would love nothing more than to see a clandestine operation like that fail miserably and cost dozens if not hundreds of U.S. lives, if it would make Donald Trump look bad. They would pray for it.

And as such, as treasonous as it would be, they would willingly tip off any contacts in the region beforehand if they could. And don't act appalled that I could say such a thing. We all know it.

Trump may be a bombastic loudmouth, who likes to hear himself talk, but he's not stupid.

A media member at that Saturday morning press conference asked him if he should have briefed Congress beforehand. The look on his face said it all, and for once he kept his comments about stupid questions to himself.

He knew that the socialist leaners in Congress and their mainstream media pals would leak such a nervy attempt.

CNBC's opening sentence online after the stock market closed on Monday, January 5 said it all... "Stocks rose on Monday even after the US attack on Venezuela and capture of leader Nicolas Maduro as crude oil prices, saw gains and investors bet the action would not lead to bigger geopolitical conflicts that upset markets." (Emphasis mine.)

Regardless, it all came down to the fact this was not a standard 'military' operation that required congressional approval. It was a law enforcement action, on a grand scale of which the world took notice. Delta Force was only involved because of the nature in apprehending such a highly guarded international fugitive.

This military action overseas was a much more complicated effort that would be comparable to US Marshals capturing a wanted criminal in Memphis or Birmingham.

This is a large-scale version what happened with Manuel Noriega of Panama 36 years ago... to the day. Maduro was a fugitive from justice, just on a much larger and more visible scale.

Traditionally, under the quasi definition of "international law," there has typically been immunity for heads of state. However, the world understands that Maduro lost the last Venezuelan election in 2024 and refused to give up power.

So, the world also understands he now is not a legitimate head of state.

The fugitive aspect was observed by the first Trump administration, the Biden/Harris administration, and again with the current Trump administration.

Biden even put a $50 million bounty on his head, but he then did nothing to arrange for his capture.

Several have pointed out that this is fundamentally also a Monroe Doctrine issue, that we are taking care of our own backyard, not risking any further vulnerable openings.

This daring extraction could have gone sideways at many points, especially if there was a leak. Instead, this incredible operation went off without a hitch. It played it out like a James Bond movie on a grander scale in a fraction of the time, without an individual hero. No American deaths, only seven wounded, five of which were back on the job as the work week started. Unfortunately, at least 70 deaths occurred for the other side during the extraction, dozens of which were Cuban guards.

That too should confirm a red flag issue.

The particulars must be settled regarding oil, natural gas, minerals, and US industrial assets that were seized decades ago without our consent and/or full payment. All those will have to be addressed.

All the war monger, oil-for-blood, anti-green rhetoric aside, this event appears more strategic than anything. This will benefit the Venezuelan people and their economy tremendously - and they know it. Weekend long celebrations in many of the predominantly Venezuelan communities in Florida demonstrated that fact.

The western hemisphere is much safer and so are US economic and security interests. Such would NOT have been the case had Congress been briefed.

DAVE Says

by DAVE RAMSEY

DON'T JEOPARDIZE YOUR JOURNEY TO FREEDOM

Dear Dave,

My wife and I are on Baby Step 2 of your plan. Right now, we're almost finished paying off the last of our non-mortgage debt, which includes unpaid taxes from previous years and some old credit card bills. We're in a much better place financially than we used to be, and I'd like to start putting a little money aside for a vacation and a couple of other fun things down the road. My wife disagrees with this idea. She wants to stick to your plan 100% and finishing paying off the debt, then move on to fleshing out our fully-funded emergency fund. I think we make enough money to do both. What do you think?

Jackson

Dear Jackson,
In general, it's okay to save up for things like vacations and other fun stuff. In fact, it's what I recommend, rather than creating debt by piling things like that onto credit cards. But your idea isn't what I teach when it comes to getting out of debt and gaining control of your finances. So, I can't tell you I think it's a good idea.

The reason people are successful following my plan is because I teach common sense and discipline, combined with an uncompromising, scorched-earth kind of intensity. You have unpaid taxes, not to mention credit card debt, still hanging over your heads. And you're talking about planning vacations and buying toys? I'm sorry, man. That's just plain irresponsible. Why would you want to take a chance on jeopardizing—or even slowing down—your journey to get out of debt, save money and achieve financial peace?

There's a process here, Jackson. And millions of people all over the country can tell you, from experience, that it works. There's an idea, a concept behind what I teach. And when you plug into it, and stay plugged in, you're going to start moving in a positive direction faster than you ever thought possible.

Behaviors have to change. The more dramatically they change, the better the results and the faster you fix things. But if you don't dive in head-first, if you try to cut corners here and there, you're going to mess things up. Think about it. You two have already saved a beginner emergency fund, and you're so close to being completely debt-free except for your home.

I'm begging you, man. Keep on keeping on just a little longer. I promise you it will be worth it!

— Dave
