City of St. Joseph to hold community open houses on paid parking as leaders plan changes to the program

St. Joseph City Commissioners have been updated on possible changes that could be coming to the paid parking program downtown.

Paid parking debuted on the west side of Main Street last May, prompting vocal opposition from some residents and many in the business community. The program was suspended in June due to ADA compliance issues, and commissioners were expected to revisit the matter in the new year.

Speaking to commissioners Monday, Community Development Director Kelly Ewalt said the parking subgroup has been meeting to discuss changes. Nothing is final, but the group has some recommendations.

"If parking comes back, it will be vastly different," Ewalt said. "We're looking at possibly just on-street parking in the highest demand areas. There'll be free parking on both sides of Main Street, and there will be some paid parking east of Main Street. So we're going to kind of even things out. Again, I say this is potentially what's going to happen. It's very scaled back."

Ewalt said the city will hold community open houses on parking in the new year, two for businesses and two for residents.

The dates for those open houses have not yet been set, but Ewalt said they will likely be in February. City commissioners could officially receive some recommendations the same month.

St. Joseph advances Harbor Shores residential, commercial develop on the north side of the river

St. Joseph City Commissioners have approved a brownfield plan for a development being pursued by Harbor Shores at Upton Drive and Whitwam Drive, on the north side of the St. Joseph River.

Speaking to commissioners on Monday, Berrien County Community Development Director Dan Fette said the multi-phase plan would develop the property into housing and other amenities, including a hotel, restaurants, and a marina. He said Harbor Shores is seeking tax increment financing for the parcels, which would enable it to recoup some of the investment by capturing growth in the land's taxable value.

Fette said when finished, the development will include 127 townhomes, 27 courtyard homes, 20 loft condos, 24 apartments in one building, and 38 villas. Some of the units will be income restricted.

"Twenty of the townhomes will be restricted for rent to families earning at or below 120% of the area median income for the next 10 years."

The brownfield capture will be for 25 years, ending in 2052. The Berrien County Brownfield Authority has already approved the plan, and with Monday's commission vote, the city of St. Joseph has now concurred.

www.MailMaxOnline.com

Fette said ground on the development will be broken this year, infrastructure work will go on all year, construction on housing should start in 2027, and that construction will continue in phases through 2036.

WNIT TV to debut new series on House of David in April

Coming soon to WNIT television in South Bend will be a new series all about the House of David in Benton Harbor.

House of David Museum Director Chris Siriano tells us the new show has just received its final approvals and will go into production next month. It'll be an 8-part, weekly series.

"It'll be a bit of a talk show," Siriano said. "It will bring in lots of different scholars and people affecting this story. And then on PBS during these series, we'll also show little segments of some of the movies that we've made."

Siriano says he and Rob Byrd of Moondog Productions developed the program to showcase some of the House of David's history in Benton Harbor.

"The House of David is a fascinating piece of Michigan and American history, based on the fact that it was so unique. It was based out of Benton Harbor, Michigan, where this religious colony, a millennial-type faith, was founded in 1903...They were a communal colony. They were vegetarian. They were celibate. But they had a fascinating twist to their story, had like a pre-Disneyland type amusement park that had millions, tens of millions of visitors from basically 1905 until they closed in early '74."

And Siriano says the House of David will always be well known for its long-haired, bearded baseball players."

"White guys that played in the Negro Leagues back when the Black guys couldn't play in the Majors because they were Black. House of David couldn't play in the Majors because they wouldn't shave or cut their hair. So it's a really, really cool part of early baseball history, and it's fascinating for everybody around the world."

Siriano says there's a lot of ground the series could cover, and he's now organizing scholars from all over the country to be a part of the new series.

Siriano doesn't yet have a title for the program but thinks it could simply be called "The House of David." The series is slated to debut on WNIT in April.

Nearly $300 Million Won at Four Winds Casinos in 2025

If you've ever bought a dollar in a slot machine and wondered, "Does anyone really win?" – here's your answer.

Players at the area's Four Winds Casinos walked away with a staggering $296 million in jackpots during 2025, according to figures released this week by the Pokagon Band of Potawatomi, which owns and operates the casinos. That total includes thousands of payouts large and small – and a surprising number of truly big wins.

Across all Four Winds locations, there were:

- 18 jackpots topping $95,000
- 14 jackpots over $100,000
- Five jackpots exceeding $200,000
- Two jackpots of $300,000 or more

Many of the biggest winners were from Southwest Michigan and Northern Indiana – including several from Berrien County communities. New Buffalo & South Bend lead the way.

The largest share of jackpot money was won at Four Winds New Buffalo, where players collected more than $117 million from nearly 50,000 jackpots in 2025. Among the standout wins:

- $296,997 on a Blackjack Bonus Spin Xtreme game by a guest from Bridgman
- $150,000 on Mississippi Stud by a player from Wisconsin
- Several six-figure slot jackpots won by visitors from Michigan, Indiana, Illinois, and beyond

While MoodyOnTheMarket doesn't typically track casino wins, Four Winds is one of Berrien County's largest employers, ranking among the county's top five. The casinos draw visitors from across the Midwest, helping fuel hotel stays, restaurant traffic, and tourism spending throughout Southwest Michigan.

Embracing Independence: The Role of Safe Bathrooms in Aging in Place

As populations grow older, the concept of aging in place has gained prominence as a preferred approach for many seniors. This strategy involves remaining in one's familiar home environment while adapting it to meet evolving needs, rather than relocating to specialized facilities. It promotes autonomy, emotional well-being, and cost-effectiveness, allowing individuals to maintain their routines and connections. However, successful aging in place requires proactive modifications to the living space, with particular attention to high-risk areas. Among these, the bathroom stands out as a critical zone where safety enhancements can significantly reduce accidents and support long-term independence.

Bathrooms present unique hazards for older adults due to their combination of water, hard surfaces, and frequent use for personal care activities. Slippery floors from splashes or condensation can lead to falls, which are a leading cause of injury in this demographic. Narrow spaces, low toilets, and unstable fixtures exacerbate these risks, potentially resulting in fractures, head trauma, or other serious complications that could necessitate hospitalization or a shift away from independent living. Statistics indicate that a substantial portion of home-related injuries among seniors occur in bathrooms, underscoring the need for targeted interventions.

Implementing safety features in the bathroom can transform it from a potential danger zone to a secure haven. Grab bars strategically placed near toilets, showers, and tubs provide sturdy support for balance and mobility, helping users navigate without strain. Non-slip mats or textured flooring materials minimize the likelihood of slips on wet surfaces, while raised toilet seats accommodate those with limited joint flexibility. Walk-in showers or bathtubs with built-in seating eliminate the need to step over high edges, reducing fall risks during entry and exit. Adequate lighting, including motion-activated options, ensures visibility at all times, particularly during nighttime visits when disorientation is more common.

Beyond physical adaptations, incorporating universal design principles enhances usability for all ages. Lever-style faucets replace traditional knobs for easier operation with arthritic hands, and adjustable showerheads allow for seated bathing. These modifications not only address immediate safety concerns but also future-proof the space against progressive mobility challenges. By investing in such upgrades, homeowners can avoid costly emergency interventions and preserve their quality of life.

The broader implications of a safe bathroom extend to overall health and psychological benefits. When seniors feel confident in their ability to perform daily hygiene tasks without assistance, it fosters a sense of self-reliance and dignity. This confidence can encourage physical activity and social engagement, countering isolation often associated with aging. Moreover, family members gain peace of mind knowing that preventive measures are in place, potentially delaying or eliminating the need for external care services.

In essence, aging in place thrives on thoughtful home adaptations, and prioritizing bathroom safety is a cornerstone of this philosophy. Simple yet effective changes can empower older adults to live comfortably and securely in their own spaces. As awareness grows, more individuals are recognizing that a well-designed bathroom is not a luxury but a necessity for sustainable independence. Encouraging these modifications early can pave the way for healthier, more fulfilling later years, ensuring that home remains a sanctuary rather than a source of worry.

Pet Lover

The Pet Corner

I'm sure we've all watched the commercials on TV that ask for our donations to the ASPCA and other organizations that benefit animals. At the holidays especially, they seemed to run about every other commercial break, showing us the saddest, most needy-looking dogs and cats, they could find. It leaves any animal-lover wishing they were a billionaire, able to care for all of them. Most of us aren't anywhere near that rich, but the one thing we can do is to support our own local shelters and rescues. Whether we donate money, supplies, or our time, it all makes a huge difference in how our community works to save and find new homes for the pets who need them. Not that the larger organizations don't require support; they do. But in donating locally, we can see the immediate effect our contributions have when animals that otherwise might live on the streets are given food and shelter and helped to eventually find new homes.

Donating doesn't even have to cost money. Whenever there is a Buy One, Get One Free offer for pet food, it's easy when picking up for your own pet to donate the free items. No donation is ever too small. Truly. And you can't put a price on donating an hour to walk a dog or pet some kittens. Many folks who aren't able to own a pet find volunteering at a shelter a satisfying way to still interact with animals.

The good news is that many adoptions—including Wayne the Guinea Pig— took place over the holidays and are ongoing. There are always more animals to take their place, but every animal that is adopted opens up a space for another one that needs help.

Here's an event coming up in February to put on the calendar. Friends of Berrien County Animal Services and Bids for Barks will sponsor an indoor rummage sale to benefit animals of Berrien County on February 6 and 7. They are collecting for the rummage now, and items may be dropped off at 2511 W. Marquette Woods Rd. (the warehouse behind the Stevensville Burger King) from 7 am to 10 pm. They will take everything but ask for NO CLOTHING. Now is the chance to clean out the clutter and donate to them. Remember, one person's junk is another's treasure!

We are still in the thick of winter, so here are a few reminders on keeping pets safe during the coldest months. Outside pets always need access to fresh water and warm, dry shelter that keeps them out of the wind. When the temperatures do drop into the single digits, it's best to bring cats and dogs inside. Although, the husky we once had hated coming inside, much preferred to stay out in the cold, and loved chasing her frozen water dish around on the snow at midnight. With temperatures fluctuating the way they have, ice on any lake, pond, stream, or river is bound to be unstable. Please, please don't let your pet be the one on the news that has to be rescued from the freezing water. Wiping off paws after a walk on snowy days not only keeps the floor clean, it prevents dogs from ingesting the salt used on the roads and walkways. And always, always wipe up any anti-freeze spills. A few minutes of care can spare pets a serious illness.

A New Day and a New Chance

You sit in a stale courtroom, waiting for the judge to render the verdict. The evidence has been presented. You are the defendant, and you know you are guilty. By the looks on the jury's faces, they know you are guilty as well. You have hurt another person, and it is time for justice. Someone must pay. If only you could go back and change time. Undo what you did. Unsay what you said.

Is there something in your past that you would want to erase? It may or may not be worthy of a courtroom appearance, but you have it. We all regret past behaviors. Maybe the temptation still plagues you. If you could go back and undo the past, maybe today would be different.

While God doesn't undo the past, He does act in accordance with His justice. God erased the record of our debt brought against us by His legal demands. This record stood against us, but He took it away by nailing it to the cross (Colossians 2:14).

Something had to be done. There was a legal demand that had to be met. Upholding the law requires that when someone breaks the law, there is a penalty. Until the penalty is paid in full, there is a debt. That legal debt here in America may include jail or prison time, community service, probation, financial penalties, and the like.

If we are the offended party in a crime, we cry out for justice to be done and for someone to pay.

Our regrets and misdeeds create a need for justice. The record will always show those misdeeds until legal demands are met.

God doesn't sweep those deeds under the rug and say, "It's okay; it doesn't matter. I'll just look past it this time." Instead, the legal demands have been met. God took the record that stood against us, with all its weight of justice, and nailed it to the cross. Between that record and the cross stood His Son, Jesus. He bore the penalty and the legal demands. He paid the price. He did the time. He served in your place.

There is no more record against you.

Today, then, is a new day. Since you have been given a clean record, you can make a new and better choice. You don't have to be a slave to your regret. Instead, you can choose a different way to live. Serve Jesus with this new day.

Instead of going back and changing the past, what change will you enact today?

Prayer: Lord Jesus, your action in taking on the debt of my past regrets is profound. Give me the courage to make new and better choices—to love You and to love others. Amen.

A Fond Farrell-well!

Perhaps you already know this, but the guys you have to “thank” for my weekly drivel are Mail-Max honchos Glen Head and Doug Farrell.

But as of the beginning of 2026, you can now only kvetch to Head if you don’t like what I write – Doug has retired! Congratulations Doug!

Little-known fact about Doug: He could, if he were a real formal-type guy, go by “R. Douglas Farrell.” Whatever the R. stands for, it certainly enables him to confirm to people, “Yes, I R. Douglas Farrell.”

I’ll miss the lively e-mail banter Doug maintained with me through the years, as I submitted dopey columns with equally dopey “cover notes” – his replies frequently had me LOL’ing. Herewith are a few examples:

Around 2006, Doug and his co-editor Glen had launched a new golf product (keep reading – I’ll come back to this). That July, the weather outside was frightfully hot where I lived in western NY, and where Doug lived, in Michigan, leading to this email exchange:

Me: “Hi Guys -- Hope you’re finding ways to stay cool out there? It’s sweltering here. And doesn’t the phrase “Sweltering Buffalo” conjure up a wonderful image?”

Doug: “Sweltering Buffalo sounds better than our Schwetty Balls.”

(Yes, Schwetty Balls was the actual aforementioned golf product!)

Revealing his Chinese Zodiac birth animal one February:

Doug: “Me=Ox... and I have to admit that’s very fitting.”

Me: “Doug, if I mention you’re an Ox in a column, I promise, it’ll be in the ‘Farrell is as strong as..’ vein (not the “dumb as..” angle).”

Head: “It’s more like “Farrell is as stubborn as....”

January 2021

Me: “I made the mistake of reading some news, and it sounds like the new covid variants are way more transmissible, meaning more distancing and isolation are a good thing. When I passed this on to the wife, she blanched and literally ran and poured herself a big glass of wine. . .and it’s only 9:43 am.”

Doug: “At least she didn’t go get a gun.”

May 2022

Me: “With this column, I hope to cement my reputation as your leading birdbrain columnist!”

Doug: “Now that Glen is writing more articles for us, he’s going to give you a run for that title.”

When I once addressed my cover note to “Doug and Glen”:

Doug: “When I first read my name, I thought you had seen me with my shirt off.”

Jan 2025

Me, before a big NFL playoff game: “I’m struggling to decide exactly which Bills garments to wear today to ensure victory over those dang Chiefs. If only I could remember what I wore on November 17th!!!, when the Bills knocked ‘em off!!!”

Doug: “You might want to try this (and he pasted in a picture of an, ahem, doughy, shirtless, body-painted Bills fan).

When delivering one of my College Bowl game names” columns; “Say, do any members of the Farrell or Head clans have majestic names that might someday be included in one of these columns?”

Doug: “Glen has several nicknames for me. None that I would deem majestic.”

Well, Doug, in closing, as you ride off into the sunset of retirement, remember: You live right on the eastern shore of Lake Michigan. . .RIDE A HORSE THAT CAN SWIM!
