City of St. Joseph gathering feedback during paid parking information sessions

Starting Tuesday, the city of St. Joseph is hosting a series of public information sessions on its planned return for the downtown paid parking program for 2026.

Last May, the city launched the paid parking program but paused it following weeks of community criticism and concerns regarding Americans with Disabilities Act compliance at pay stations. The pause was initiated by city officials and then formalized by the city commission. Restarting the program will require a vote by the city commission.

To help raise awareness about the city's proposed return to paid parking, officials have schedule four "listening sessions" to be held at City Hall. Two of the meetings are intended for business owners and two for residents. Communications Director Kayla Griffith said members of the city's parking subgroup will be available to gather comments and answer questions.

Griffith said the meetings will follow an open house format, with information stations to explain pricing, hours and the proposed scope of paid parking for the coming year.

City officials are increasing outreach after what Griffith described as a rocky rollout of paid parking last year. She said the city received feedback from residents who felt they did not have enough opportunity to learn about the program before the commission voted on it.

Griffith said city leaders have met with more than 50 business owners since paid parking was paused in June. She said officials have also reviewed community feedback shared on social media during the off-season.

A focus of the sessions will be how revenue from the program would be used. Griffith said 80% of the revenue would remain in the downtown area for infrastructure and other improvements.

Separate meetings are being held for business owners and residents to better address the different perspectives and concerns of each group, Griffith said.

Fall in Love with the Freeze at Ice Fest

Remember July? I have this very present memory of standing on State Street during the Mike Yore Memorial Car Show, feeling wrapped up in a heavy, wet blanket of humidity; drenched just walking to my car. I remember our collective groan as the thermometer spiked, and how we traded stories about our desperate quests for shade. We practically begged for a breeze, a literal cold snap—anything to break the fever of summer heat. Well, friends, be careful what you wish for.

These past few weeks have felt, shall we say, oppressive. Between the horizontal snow, the wind that seems to bite right through your heaviest coat, and the kind of ice that turns a simple walk to the mailbox into a skating lesson, Mother Nature has delivered winter in spades. It's easy to look out the window at the white-out conditions and feel a little overwhelmed. It's easy to hunker down and wait for April.

But here's a better idea: Let's lean into it.

Instead of fighting the frost, let's celebrate it. From February 6-8, St. Joe Today is hosting the annual Ice Fest, and I'm telling you, there is no better way to shake off the winter blues than by embracing it. If we can survive the sweltering heat of July, we can certainly thrive in an icy February.

As you wander through downtown next weekend, the streets will become an outdoor gallery. These sculptures will capture the spirit of the season in a way that makes the cold feel like a guest of honor rather than an intruder.

We've got a packed schedule designed to keep your spirits high. You can find all the details at stjoetoday.com/icefest, but here is how to plan your weekend:

All Weekend Long

- Scavenger Hunt: Kick off the fun at the Welcome Center. Grab a map and see if you can find all the hidden frosty treasures around town.

Friday, February 6:

- 5:00p-8:00p: Watch the Professional Individual Carving (sponsored by Caffe Tosi). There is something transformative about watching a 300-pound block of ice transform into a work of art with a chainsaw and a chisel.

- 7:00p: Don't miss the Fire & Ice Tower. It's the ultimate elemental showdown—a massive fire burning inside a tower of ice. It's the perfect metaphor for our community: keeping that warm spark alive even when the temperature drops.

Saturday, February 7:

- 7:30a-4:00p: The carving continues with Professional Team & Individual competitions.

- 11:00a-4:00p: Ice Interactives. This isn't just a "look but don't touch" event. Check out the Frozen Fish Toss, Tic-Tac-Toe, Hockey Mini Golf, and a Hole-In-One challenge. You can even sit on the Ice Throne!

- 1:00p, 2:30p, & 4:00p: Catch the Magic Tour featuring John Dudley at the corner of State & Pleasant and the Silver Beach Center.

- 4:30p-6:00p: Ice Wars! Sponsored by Visit Southwest Michigan, this is a high-energy, head-to-head battle where carvers have just 15 minutes to impress. You get to help crown the winner.

Sunday, February 8:

Stroll through downtown at your own pace to view all the completed sculptures on the final day of this magical weekend.

I get it—it's cold. But there's a specific kind of joy found in a St. Joe winter that you just can't get during those humid summer months. There's the crunch of fresh snow under your boots and the perfect excuse to duck into our local shops for a hot coffee.

Ice Fest is a shift in perspective. We don't have to wait for the thaw to have a good time. We're Michiganders—we're built for this. We complained about the heat, we survived the ground blizzard, and now it's time to enjoy the payoff.

So, grab your heaviest mittens and meet us downtown. Let's show winter that we're not just enduring it—we're throwing a party in its honor.

What The Heck Is a Heat Pump?

As winter temperatures drop and summer heat rises, many homeowners are looking for efficient ways to keep their houses comfortable year-round. One technology gaining popularity is the heat pump. Unlike traditional furnaces or air conditioners that generate heat or cold, heat pumps move heat from one place to another, making them remarkably efficient.

At its core, a heat pump works like a refrigerator in reverse. A refrigerator takes heat out of its interior and releases it outside. A heat pump can do both: extract heat from the outside air to warm the home in winter, or pull heat from inside the home and release it outdoors in summer. This dual capability makes it a complete heating and cooling system in one unit.

The basic components include an outdoor unit with a compressor and a coil, an indoor unit with another coil, refrigerant that circulates between them, and an expansion valve. The refrigerant is the key player—it changes between liquid and gas states to absorb and release heat.

In heating mode during cold weather, the outdoor coil acts as an evaporator. Even when it feels chilly outside, the air still contains some heat energy. The refrigerant, in a low-pressure liquid state, absorbs this heat as it evaporates into a gas inside the outdoor coil. The compressor then squeezes this gas, raising its temperature significantly. This hot gas travels to the indoor coil, where it condenses back into a liquid, releasing its heat into the home's air. A fan blows this warmed air through ducts or directly into rooms. The refrigerant, now cooler, returns outside through the expansion valve, dropping in pressure and temperature to repeat the cycle.

In cooling mode, the process reverses. The indoor coil becomes the evaporator, absorbing heat from indoor air as the refrigerant evaporates. The compressor sends the hot gas outside, where it condenses in the outdoor coil, releasing heat to the exterior air. This is essentially how a standard air conditioner operates, but the heat pump can switch directions easily.

Modern heat pumps include advanced features like variable-speed compressors that adjust output to match the home's needs, improving comfort and efficiency. Some models work effectively down to very low temperatures, thanks to improved refrigerants and designs.

What makes heat pumps so appealing is their efficiency. Instead of creating heat, they move it. For every unit of electricity used to run the compressor, a heat pump can deliver two to four units of heat energy—often expressed as a coefficient of performance (COP) of 2 to 4. Traditional electric resistance heaters have a COP of 1, meaning they deliver exactly what they consume.

Heat pumps also reduce energy bills and carbon emissions compared to fossil fuel systems, especially when powered by cleaner electricity. They eliminate the need for separate furnace and air conditioning units, saving space and potentially installation costs.

While upfront costs can be higher than conventional systems, incentives, rebates, and long-term savings often make them worthwhile. Proper sizing and professional installation are crucial for best performance.

As energy efficiency becomes a priority, heat pumps offer a smart, versatile solution for home comfort in most climates.

Glen & Shelly Head

Glen: When Brady Cohen and his team at The Inn at Harbor Shores faced the task of remodeling Plank's Tavern on the Water, they created a temporary speakeasy and unique dining experience on the second floor of the Inn. Slip 800 Speakeasy & Restaurant offers a refined yet relaxed escape—an intimate nod to Prohibition-era lounges where atmosphere mattered as much as what was on the plate or in the glass.

"We needed to continue providing dining for our hotel guests and regulars who enjoy Planks," Cohen explained. "People are shocked when they come in and see what we've done—creating a space to relax and truly take in the moment."

Our server, Adam, shared that many guests stop in simply for the artistically crafted cocktails and appetizers while connecting with friends—or someone special. Dim lighting and the warm glow of low table lamps create a romantic, laid-back atmosphere that encourages you to linger.

At Adam's suggestion, we started with the Bougie Little Piggies—a wagyu hot dog wrapped in wontons and deep-fried to a golden crunch. Think egg roll crispiness with the nostalgic flavor of a corn dog. The wagyu shines with less salt and great texture, paired with two aioli sauces—one mustard-forward, the other tomato-based. Try both, then double-dip. Trust me.

The Smuggler's Deviled Eggs arrive in unforgettable fashion: four ceramic hands cradling eggs filled with a silky-smooth yolk mixture, topped with chives, tobiko caviar and trout roe. The salty pop and subtle notes of the sea elevate this classic. I've got to "hand" it to the kitchen on this one.

The Sea Trout was perched atop bok choy, mushrooms, and radishes which were swimming in a lemongrass curry broth that was savory with a hint of sweetness. The vegetables were still firm, but not crunchy and were delicious on their own. Sea Trout looks like Salmon and flakes off with a fork like salmon but is milder in flavor. The trout was finished with a subtle wasabi glaze, adding an Asian flair that rounded out the dish beautifully. I could easily get "hooked" on this dish.

We ended with a perfectly prepared rare Filet Mignon—both tender and flavorful. I cut it effortlessly with a butter knife, as Shelly refused to give up the steak knife. I'm not usually a fan of sauces with beef, yet my fork kept dragging each bite through the beurre blanc sauce. The filet was served with smashed fingerling potatoes and rainbow carrots, coated in butter and parmesan.

Speakeasies are supposed to be secret, but word is out. "We're seeing lots of locals for dinner," Cohen noted, "and we also offer excellent brunch and lunch menus."

Once Planks Tavern reopens, Slip 800 will quietly fade into history—so don't miss this memorable dining experience while it's here.

Shelly: Next time, I'm not even opening the menu—the Mama's Mob Meatballs speak to this Italian girl.

More Floors...More Choices

Marriage is a social institution that is thousands of years old. Marriage has undergone changes over the years, but plenty of people are still tying the knot and hosting amazing wedding celebrations.

A total of 2,065,905 marriages were recorded in the United States in 2022. Statistics Canada indicates 98,355 registered marriages took place in 2020. Prospective brides and grooms may be inclined to host more simplified and streamlined weddings in order to save money and time. Finding ways to streamline a wedding is not necessarily that challenging.

- Keep the ceremony short. While this may not always be an option for couples who are having a traditional religious ceremony that is beholden to the rules of the faith, some couples can opt for a shortened ceremony that is more direct and to the point. A streamlined ceremony can stick strictly to the exchange of vows, rather than including readings, musical interludes, candle lighting ceremonies, and more. Couples who want religious ceremonies can speak with their officiants to see how they can stick to tradition, but keep the ceremony more succinct.

- Communicate roles for the wedding party. Having designated people to handle a variety of tasks at the wedding fosters efficiency and can save time by moving things along. It also allows for smooth transitions during parts of the ceremony. For example, the maid of honor traditionally holds the bride's bouquet during the ceremony. But other bridesmaids can be enlisted to hold items or fix the bride's train or veil as well.

- Select one venue. Holding the wedding ceremony and reception in the same place cuts down on travel time and logistical issues for both the guests and those involved in the wedding. It also reduces necessary costs for transportation.

- Choose a nearby location. Asking guests and vendors to travel great distances can add time to the wedding festivities. Selecting a centrally located ceremony site and reception hall will streamline many of the steps people would have to take to attend. It also might remove the need to arrange overnight accommodations for the wedding.

- Hire a wedding coordinator. A professional planner and coordinator will keep the wedding moving along on time and ensure a smooth process. This professional can remain emotionally neutral, solve problems and ensure that everyone is in the right place.

Streamlining a wedding and making it more efficient can save time and money.

Dave Says
It's Still a Mountain of Debt

Dear Dave,
My wife and I own three commercial properties. They are all leased out long-term. Currently, we owe about $400,000 each on two of the buildings, and a little over $500,000 on the other. The only other debt we have is our home mortgage, and we should have that paid off in two or three years. I know you hate debt, but how do you feel about owing on commercial properties that are consistently making good money?

Dear Dean,
From what you've told me, it doesn't sound like you two need to shift into panic mode and start selling everything in sight. But I do 100% believe you and your wife should sit down together, and formulate a sensible plan that will enable you to systematically work your way out from under all that debt.

I own several commercial buildings. And guess what? I don't owe a dime on any of them. Never have. So, based on that—and the other principles I teach—I can't tell you

I think it's okay to have debt on commercial buildings. I believe the best plan for building wealth is to become completely debt-free.

If I were in your situation, Dean, I'd focus my energy on getting my home paid off first. Then, I'd take a look at the commercial properties and begin working the debt snowball on them. Start with throwing as much money as you can at the smallest debt, while making minimum payments on the other two. When you get the first one paid off, roll that amount over—along with every penny you can scrape together—and attack the second largest one. Continue following these steps until you've paid off all your commercial property.

In your case, it might take several years to get this accomplished. I mean, no matter what these properties bring in, we're still talking about well over a million dollars in debt. And debt equals risk. If you have a bunch of equity in one you don't particularly like, you might consider selling it and throwing the cash at the other two. But whatever the timeline, I'd develop a serious game plan to get rid of this debt as fast as possible.

— Dave

Interesting people: A conversation with PostBoy Executive Chef James Galbraith

Earning one of the highest honors in the culinary industry, Benton Harbor's own James Galbraith, chef and owner of PostBoy in New Buffalo, has been named a 2026 James Beard Award semifinalist in the Best Chef: Great Lakes category.

Following the initial announcement, Moody on the Market spoke with Galbraith about the recognition, the restaurant, and his thoughts on what sets PostBoy apart, earning recognition in a field that's as competitive as it is delectable.

"The James Beard Award is something that every chef aspires to be nominated for," said Galbraith. "It feels pretty surreal. I've been in a kitchen for over 20 years, so it's something I've looked up to for quite a while."

The James Beard Awards are widely regarded as among the most prestigious accolades in American food and hospitality, often compared to the Oscars of the culinary world.

Galbraith said he was initially unsure how his name landed on the semifinalist list. PostBoy's public relations team had submitted the restaurant for consideration as Best New Restaurant, but when semifinalists were announced, Galbraith was named individually as a Best Chef candidate.

"That part is still kind of a mystery," he said. "But it's a cool mystery."

Since opening in New Buffalo, PostBoy has developed a reputation for blending global flavors with Midwest comfort food in a way Galbraith describes as approachable rather than intimidating. He said the restaurant's philosophy centers on reimagining familiar dishes through international influences, while keeping them accessible to a wide range of diners.

"How can we take Midwest food and throw it into a different country and put a spin on it?" Galbraith said, pointing to early menu items that reworked classic flavors into unexpected formats.

"We had this gnocchi dish, which was super good. But it was gnocchi -- it's a potato pasta. And there was a cheddar Mornay (sauce) and there was a citrus cream on the bottom with bacon and chives. So it had everything that a loaded baked potato would have. It was just kind of given in a different way," said Galbraith.

www.MailMaxOnline.com
"So if somebody came in and looked at the menu and was a little bit intimidated or confused, the service staff could say, 'You're a meat and potatoes person? This gnocchi is essentially a loaded baked potato just served on a different platform.' So that's pretty much the ethos of PostBoy. It's just like, how do we spin Midwest food into a global way?"

PostBoy operates in a highly seasonal market, where New Buffalo's year-round population of roughly 1,700 swells to tens of thousands during the summer. Galbraith said that reality shaped both the restaurant's concept and menu design, balancing creativity with broad appeal.

On peak summer days, PostBoy serves as many as 1,400 guests. Galbraith said maintaining scratch cooking at that scale has been a priority for him and his team, many of whom come from Michelin-star and fine-dining backgrounds.

"We make our own pasta, our own sourdough, our own cheeses — basically everything from scratch," he said. "It's a fine balance, but it's what keeps us engaged as cooks."

Beyond daily service, PostBoy also hosts "Abandon Ship" dinners every other month, inviting nationally recognized chefs from across the country to collaborate on prix fixe menus. Galbraith said the events help keep the staff creatively challenged while drawing culinary attention to Southwest Michigan.

Finalists for the 2026 James Beard Awards are expected to be announced in March, with winners named at an awards ceremony in June. Galbraith said regardless of the outcome, the restaurant plans to stay the course.

"The work we've done already got us this nomination," he said. "If it's not broken, don't fix it. We're just going to keep cooking."

Galbraith emphasized that the recognition reflects the collective effort of PostBoy's entire staff.

"This isn't just about me," he said. "It's the hard work of everyone in the restaurant. They all deserve this recognition."

He added that he hopes the nomination helps bring broader attention to New Buffalo and the region.

"It would be great to get Southwest Michigan on the map," Galbraith said. "It's kind of cool that they're looking at small towns and showing that great restaurants don't only exist in big cities."

Join us for These Upcoming Celebrations!

While we've been battling the snow and cold that hasn't stopped many of our members from putting the final touches on their upcoming celebrations. Two of which are in the next week, and both provide an opportunity for you to join.

First up is Gym Rat Performance and Wellness Open House and Ribbon Cutting Celebration on Tuesday, February 3rd, at 4500 Red Arrow Highway, Unit I, Stevensville. The Open House will take place from 11:00 AM to 3:00 p.m., with the official Ribbon Cutting scheduled for 12:00 p.m.

Owned and operated by James Morris, PT, DPT, CSCS, a St. Joseph native and 2013 graduate of St. Joseph High School. A former multi-sport athlete, Morris holds multiple degrees from Grand Valley State University, including a Doctorate of Physical Therapy, and is a Certified Strength and Conditioning Specialist. He also earned his EXOS Performance Specialist designation while working with EXOS, gaining experience alongside active NFL players and combine prospects.

Drawing on his background with elite athletes, James brings the same level of expertise and attention to every patient, whether they are recovering from surgery, returning to weekend activities, or beginning a fitness journey. Gym Rat Performance and Wellness is a physical therapy clinic and personal training studio designed to support all physical health needs, guided by the belief that everyone is an athlete, even if the only sport they play is the game of life. With a focus on healthspan over lifespan, the clinic empowers individuals to move better, find joy in fitness, and pursue a lifestyle aligned with their unique goals and abilities.

They are currently accepting new physical therapy patients and is in-network with Medicare, Blue Cross Blue Shield, and Aetna, with self-pay options also available to ensure flexible and accessible care for the community.

As part of the Ribbon Cutting celebration, attendees can participate in a fun Par 3 Challenge. Guests will have one attempt to land a golf ball on the green, and those who succeed will receive a complimentary Gym Rat T-shirt.

For more information, contact Gym Rat Performance and Wellness in Stevensville at www.gymratpw.com.

Next up is Present Pillars Grand Opening and Big Game Party at their brand new location at 315 E Main St. Benton Harbor on Sunday February 8th! The Grand Opening celebration will kick off at 4:30 p.m. with the watch party starting at 5:45 p.m.

Executive Director James Gunter has a fun night planned as it marks the official launch of a space built to strengthen fathers, families, and the broader community. The public is welcome to join and enjoy the biggest game of the year all while helping kick off a new chapter for men's mental, physical, and financial health in Benton Harbor.

Tickets are $10 each and includes: The Big Game live on big screens; food and refreshments; tours of The Pillar Center; music, fellowship, and community vibes; an opportunity to support fatherhood, family stability, and community wellness.

Stop by and enjoy the game, cheer on their mission, and celebrate presence, purpose, and progress! Bring a friend, wear your team's colors and be ready to have fun and connect!

All proceeds support programs and initiatives at The Pillar Center, focusing on building stronger men, stronger families, and a stronger community. You can purchase tickets here: <https://presentpillars.org/events/>

We hope you'll plan to join us at these and other events around Southwest Michigan! Learn more about these and other upcoming events by visiting smrchamber.com.

Christians Are Coachable

"You are coachable. You, I can work with." Would someone say that about you?

It seemed he thought too highly of himself, but life taught him something about humility. Many Christians point to a character in the Bible named Joseph to show how God can work through hardships. Joseph's forgiveness of his brothers, who treated him terribly, is to be emulated. But Joseph's beginning doesn't appear so rosy.

He started life with privilege. He was among the youngest of his siblings and considered the favorite child. His dad was well off and lavished Joseph with gifts and praise.

Joseph flaunted his privilege in front of his family and paid the price. One day he told his brothers about a couple of dreams he had in which everyone was bowing down to him. Isn't this the dream of all the youngest in the family? The older siblings are bigger, stronger, and further along in life, so they appear more successful. The younger siblings are always playing catch-up. Joseph may have liked the idea of not only catching up but surpassing his older brothers in greatness. Joseph was arrogant and boastful.

Until one day God humbled Joseph. Actually, it was not just an event on one day, but a series of events over the period of a few years. From a death plot against him, to slavery under a foreign master, to being falsely imprisoned and forgotten, God humbled Joseph (Genesis 30-50).

This is something God does on a regular basis. Here's another account written down a little over a thousand years after Joseph: On that day you will not be put to shame for all the wrongs you have done to me, because I will remove from this city those who rejoice in their pride. Never again will you be haughty on my holy hill. But I will leave within you the meek and humble, who trust in the name of the Lord. The remnant of Israel will do no wrong; they will speak no lies, nor will deceit be found in their mouths. They will eat and lie down and no one will make them afraid (Zephaniah 3:11-13).

In our influencer culture, it is easy to be tempted by the idea of greatness as success, and success as greatness. With God, some success is found in weakness. Weakness leads to a need for help. Those who boast in their own success don't need help. They are just fine on their own. But often the arrogant are attempting to cover for some weakness.

The strongest people I know are often those who are humble and coachable. Are you willing to learn from your hardships a greater dependence on God? He is a refuge for you. He watches over you and protects you. He is not a terror, but a compassionate Savior. God will root out your pride and replace it with a gentle and helpful spirit. Christ's humble work for you on the cross is his proof that your greatness comes through his suffering.

Where do you need the most coaching? Who can you ask to help you?

Prayer: Great God, why do I take so long to learn humility? Help me find security in you so I can grow. When I am secure, then I can learn honestly from you. Amen.

Mo'lympics Coverage!

Winter Olympics host town Cortina d'Ampezzo is known as "The Pearl of the Dolomites," and will take all the hoopla in stride because it's been "ready for my close-up" many times before: It hosted the 1956 Winter Olympics, the first Olympics to be televised worldwide; and portions of "The Pink Panther" (the first and best one) and "The Spy Who Loved Me" (James Bond, the Roger Moore version) were filmed there. (Author's note:

it's a good thing Cortina is a very lovely town, because it had to match the, uhhhh, pulchritudinous Claudia Cardinale AND Capucine in "Panther," and Lynn-Holly Johnson in "Spy" - no small feat!)

Today we continue with more pulchritudinous tidbits about the pulchritudinous U.S. athletes who we hope will be taking Cortina calls from medal podiums:

Julie Letai calls her sport - short track speedskating - a combination of two others: "demolition derby and NASCAR."

Figure skater Isabeau Levito is named after a character that Michelle Pfeiffer played in a 1985 film called "Ladyhawke." In the movie, Isabeau is cursed to live as a hawk during the daytime. She's a person only at night. But that's when her lover, played by Rutger Hauer, is cursed to be a wolf! Oy! Matthew Broderick also stars in the film as a thief called "The Mouse." He can't hang with the couple at any time of day, seein's how he'd always have to hide from one carnivore or another. Double oy!

I love the movie reviews guides published over the years by Leonard Maltin. He liked Ladyhawke - three out of four stars. But I did get a laugh from reading the whole review: "Overlong but generally entertaining medieval fantasy. Hauer and Pfeiffer are perfectly cast as hero and heroine; but Broderick's manner and dialogue seem better suited to a Woody Allen movie!"

Figure skater Ilia Malinin figures to do well in Cortina. He's got tons of nifty moves, but his signature stunt is called "Raspberry Twist." It's called this because his last name, in Russian, means "raspberry."

The entire American women's hockey team loves that, in tough situations, Kelly Pannek doesn't (her last name).

Corinne Stoddard and Kristen Santos-Griswold are short-track speedskaters who share a lot in common - including a joint Instagram account called "@fastbutunstable." Which I think refers to how the races play out, but let's face it, a sport that's a combo of demolition derby and NASCAR attracts competitors who might be a little, y'know, (the name of Corinne and Kristin's Instagram account), right?

Ben Richardson, a member of the men's curling team, is also a cellist, and a graduate of the Cleveland Institute of Music. He did not pick up the sport in school; the Cleveland Institute of Music fields zero athletic teams. Making Ben Richardson the most successful athlete in the history of the Cleveland Institute of Music. Also, his teammates appreciate that, when things get tense, Ben can always cello them out.

Speedskater Jordan Stolz has a curious section in his bio, revealing that his sister, Hannah, "pursued speedskating until age 16." Then it continues: "Hannah now competes and wins competitions in bird taxidermy." Which is a hotly contested pursuit, of course, but one which I think you'd agree is pretty much the absolute, complete, and in all ways polar opposite of (the name of Corinne and Kristin's Instagram account).

PUBLIC NOTICE

CITY OF BRIDGMAN

CHANGE OF CITY COUNCIL MEETING DATES

Please take notice that beginning February 1, 2026, the City of Bridgman City Council will hold its regular meetings on the second Monday of each month rather than the first Monday.

All meetings will continue to begin at 6:00 p.m. and will be held at Bridgman City Hall, 9765 Maple Street, Bridgman, Michigan, unless otherwise posted.

Request for Proposals (RFP) – Parks and Recreation Project

The City of Bridgman Parks and Recreation Department is accepting Requests for Proposals (RFPs) for an upcoming Parks and Recreation project.

Qualified professional firms are invited to submit proposals. The RFP document includes a detailed project description, scope of work, submission requirements, and key dates.

Proposals must be submitted in accordance with the instructions outlined in the RFP and received by the stated deadline. Late or incomplete submissions may not be considered.

Questions regarding this RFP or requests for additional information should be directed to the Parks and Recreation Director, Sara Pendergast as outlined in the RFP document. The City of Bridgman appreciates all interest and looks forward to reviewing all proposals.

Additional information is available online at www.Bridgman.org.
