Nye's Apple Barn proposal moves forward

The St. Joseph Township Board of Trustees has approved the latest proposal for use of the former Nye's Apple Barn property at 3151 Niles Road.

At the board's regular meeting on Monday, the vote was four to three each on John Nye's requests for a special use and a Planned Unit Development designation, meaning the project now moves forward. He's proposed a fast-food establishment, two three-story apartment buildings with a total of 48 units, a gas station, and a commercial welcome center for the currently vacant site near I-94.

The board's vote came after multiple previous attempts to receive permission to develop the site were rejected. Nye told us he's glad things are now proceeding.

"I think what we propose here for the township will bring a lot of good, a lot of jobs, a place for people to live that are so needed," Nye said.

The board's approval was contingent on several conditions. They include that a traffic light be installed near a newly re-routed Dozer Drive and that trees separating the Nye's property from the adjacent neighborhood be replaced when damaged.

Township Supervisor Roger Seely told us Nye now only faces routine approvals, like site plan reviews.

"It's a good thing for our township," Seely said. "It's the housing that we need, and we need to move forward with that. So we're going to be able to move forward with everything."

Trustee Tom Milnikel told us that, given the location of this development and its inclusion of a welcome center, the site could become a showcase for the community.

"It presents to the visitors a variety of diversity of good things that are in this area, character of the area," Milnikel said.

Milnikel also noted Nye is not seeking any public money for this development.

Volunteering is at the Heart of Impact in our Communities

Across Southwest Michigan, nonprofits, schools, and community partners rely on volunteers to help meet critical needs. These needs range from fighting hunger to supporting families during the holidays. At United Way of Southwest Michigan, Volunteer United exists to make those connections easier by bringing together organizations with needs and teams of volunteers ready to help. I'd like to tell you about one of those teams: Gast Manufacturing of Benton Harbor.

In 2025, 115 Gast employees volunteered, representing more than 43 percent of the company's workforce. Their involvement shows what is possible when companies are supported in giving back and when volunteers are connected to opportunities that align with real community needs.

Gast Manufacturing is a business unit of IDEX Corporation, and through that relationship, employee volunteer efforts are often strengthened by additional support from the IDEX Foundation. This model allows local teams like Gast to combine hands-on service with philanthropic investment, increasing their overall impact in the communities where employees live and work.

Through Volunteer United partnerships, Gast employees helped address food insecurity, one of the region's most pressing challenges. Volunteers participated in six Mobile Food Pantry distributions, with an average of 17 employees serving at each event. Together, those efforts helped provide food to 3,008 individuals, including 1,266 children, 626 seniors, and 157 veterans. In addition to volunteer support, the IDEX Foundation donated $30,000 to Feeding America West Michigan, extending the impact even further.

Health and lifesaving efforts were another focus. Gast hosted four workplace blood drives, collecting 53 whole blood units and 42 double red units. These donations directly support hospitals and patients across the region and demonstrate how coordinated volunteer opportunities can make a meaningful difference close to home.

Gast's commitment also includes long-standing participation in United Way volunteer initiatives. In 2025, the company marked its 15th year participating in Rake a Difference, one of United Way of Southwest Michigan's signature volunteer efforts. Through Rake a Difference, teams of volunteers support older adults, people with disabilities, and neighbors in need by completing outdoor and seasonal projects that help individuals safely remain in their homes. That same year, 50 Gast employees took part.

Teams also joined Rock the Boat, a United Way event that brings volunteers together in a creative and team-focused way. Gast employees built and raced boats in support of United Way's work, showing that volunteering can strengthen both community connections and workplace relationships.

Volunteer United opportunities reach employees at every stage of their careers. Gast interns volunteered alongside their mentors during a community service project at Eden Springs Historical Park, reinforcing that service is not only encouraged but modeled and shared across generations of employees.

Gast employees also responded to immediate community needs throughout the year. Through the IDEX Food Challenge, the Salvation Army received 1,391 pounds of non-perishable foods in addition to a $15,000 donation from the IDEX Foundation. Employees donated 39 turkey certificates to support families during Thanksgiving and helped ensure families at the Emergency Shelter were cared for during the holiday season. When a long-time Toys for Tots volunteer passed away, Gast employees stepped in to help collect donations from local businesses, ensuring the program continued without interruption.

Gast Manufacturing is one example of how Volunteer United works alongside companies and community partners to turn willingness into impact. By identifying needs, coordinating opportunities, and removing barriers to service, Volunteer United helps teams show up where they are needed most.

Organizations and individuals interested in making a difference can explore volunteer opportunities or post a need at volunteer.uwsm.org. The website is free for agencies and volunteers, and opportunities range from one-day projects to ongoing engagement, thanks to the De Groot Family Foundation. Together, through Volunteer United, teams like Gast Manufacturing are helping build a stronger and more connected Southwest Michigan.

Greater Bridgman CGA Annual Meeting - February 26th!

Each year we get the opportunity to pause and reflect on our accomplishments from the prior year - like many of us, sometimes we don't see or realize the impact that we've had until we do so. I knew our Greater Bridgman Area Chamber & Growth Alliance (Greater Bridgman CGA) Director Nancy Kiernan has been killing it, but it wasn't until we actually wrote everything down for her Annual Report that it really clicked how much she's been able to get done.

The Greater Bridgman CGA will host its Annual Meeting on Thursday, February 26, 2026, at 5:30 p.m. at Haymarket Taproom. The event will celebrate the organization's accomplishments in 2025, outline priorities for 2026, and bring together business leaders, partners, and community members for an evening of connection, reflection, and shared vision.

Continuing to build on the momentum established in 2024, 2025 was a year defined by collaboration and investment in our community. The Greater Bridgman CGA provided support for local entrepreneurs and workforce development by providing technical assistance in business planning, site selection, loan packaging, and incentive consulting. Over the past year, Greater Bridgman CGA helped secure more than $2 million in grants that were used to leverage an additional $2 million in private capital funds for key development projects.

"As we close out 2025, we are proud to reflect on a year that strengthened our economy, enhanced our quality of life, and built lasting momentum for the future," said Nancy Kiernan, Director of the Greater Bridgman CGA. "The progress we've made reflects Bridgman's continued appeal as a place to invest, build, and dream."

Tapping into Bridgman's community spirit the Greater Bridgman CGA hosted and supporting numerous events that brought

people together. Those included the Celebrate Bridgman Street Dance, "Salute the Troops Playground" Fundraiser, and Holiday Village. Comprised of 16 local business and community leaders from the City of Bridgman and Lake Charter Township who serve as the official Board of Directors, the Greater Bridgman CGA also maintains a strong regional and statewide presence through participation in economic development, housing, tourism, and chamber leadership conferences and events.

Looking ahead to 2026, the organization will focus on advancing additional small business and housing developments currently in the pipeline. "Together, we've built an incredible foundation—and the best is yet to come," Kiernan noted.

Some of the overall 2025 Highlights include:

- $1.5 million MDOT Grant for reconstruction of Willard and Mathieu Streets, supporting $800,000 in private investment by Industrial Fabrication.

- $150,000 raised for the Salute the Troops Playground, including a $50,000 AEP grant and $50,000 from the Schalton Foundation.

- Support for new and expanding businesses such as Ace Hardware, Beachside Salt and Soul, Rising Kites Coffee Shop, Petals by Classic, and Corewell Health's Walk-In Clinic.

- Awarding three scholarships to Bridgman High School students, including the new Classic Catering Culinary Arts Scholarship.

- Successfully relaunched the Celebrate Bridgman Street Dance with over 1,300 in attendance.

- Placemaking projects such as Michigan Logos Attraction Signage, Salute the Troops Playground, and Bridgman Courtyard – Phase II.

Event Details:

- Date: Thursday, February 26, 2026

- Time: 5:30 p.m.

- Location: Haymarket Taproom

- Cost: $25 per person (includes dinner; cash bar available)

Please RSVP by February 23 at tinyurl.com/BCGA25Annual.

For questions, contact Nancy Kiernan at nkiernan@bridgmancga.org or 269-285-2152.

We hope you'll plan to join us at this and other events around Southwest Michigan! Learn more by visiting smrchamber.com and BridgmanCGA.org.

Understanding Furnace Heat Exchangers: Function and Hidden Dangers

In the heart of many homes during chilly winters, the furnace operates as a silent guardian of warmth. At its core lies the heat exchanger, a critical component that ensures efficient heating while separating combustion byproducts from the air we breathe. This metal chamber plays a pivotal role in modern forced-air heating systems, transforming fuel into comfortable indoor temperatures without compromising safety—when functioning properly.

The heat exchanger's design is ingeniously simple yet effective. Typically constructed from steel or aluminized steel in residential furnaces, it resembles a series of tubes or clamshell-shaped plates. The process begins when the furnace's burner ignites natural gas, propane, or oil, generating intense flames and hot combustion gases. These gases flow through the interior of the heat exchanger, heating its metal walls to temperatures often exceeding 500 degrees Fahrenheit.

Meanwhile, the furnace's blower draws in cool air from the home through return vents. This air passes over the exterior surfaces of the hot heat exchanger, absorbing thermal energy via conduction. The warmed air then circulates through ducts to rooms, raising ambient temperatures. Exhaust gases, now cooled, exit via a flue or vent pipe, carrying away harmful byproducts like carbon monoxide, nitrogen oxides, and water vapor. This separation is key: the heat exchanger acts as a barrier, preventing toxic fumes from mixing with household air.

Efficiency varies by furnace type. Older models might achieve 80% efficiency, meaning 20% of heat escapes with exhaust. High-efficiency condensing furnaces, however, feature secondary heat exchangers that capture additional warmth from condensing water vapor, boosting efficiency to over 90%. These units often use corrosion-resistant materials like stainless steel to handle acidic condensate.

Despite their robustness, heat exchangers are not invincible. Over time, thermal stress from repeated heating and cooling cycles can cause metal fatigue, leading to cracks or holes. Corrosion from moisture or acidic gases accelerates degradation, especially in poorly maintained systems. A compromised heat exchanger poses severe safety risks, primarily through carbon monoxide leakage.

Carbon monoxide, an odorless, colorless gas produced during incomplete combustion, is a silent killer. If a crack allows it to escape into the airflow, it can infiltrate living spaces, causing symptoms ranging from headaches and dizziness to unconsciousness and death. According to health authorities, hundreds of fatalities occur annually from such exposures in homes. Beyond immediate poisoning, leaks can reduce furnace efficiency, increase energy bills, and even create fire hazards if gases ignite improperly.

Signs of trouble include soot buildup around vents, unusual odors, frequent pilot light outages, or yellow burner flames instead of blue. Homeowners might notice uneven heating or higher humidity levels, as breaches can introduce combustion moisture indoors.

Prevention is essential. Annual professional inspections, including camera probes into the heat exchanger, can detect issues early. Replacing air filters regularly reduces strain on the system, while ensuring proper ventilation minimizes corrosion. If a crack is found, immediate shutdown and repair—or full furnace replacement—are non-negotiable, as patching is unreliable and often prohibited by codes.

In an era of energy-conscious living, understanding the heat exchanger underscores the balance between comfort and caution. Regular maintenance not only extends equipment life but safeguards families from unseen threats lurking in the warmth of home.

Monday's meeting and an afternoon workshop included a large turnout residents of the adjacent Highwood Estates neighborhood opposed to the project. They voiced their concerns about its potential effects on traffic, crime, noise, and general safety. Trustee Ed Meny agreed that the proposed development would negatively impact the character of the neighborhood and voted accordingly. He told us after the meeting he disagreed with the majority's opinion but respects it.

"One of the things I love about local government is that everybody can express their opinion, and however the vote comes out, it comes out," Meny said. "So I'm not particularly pleased with it, but it's fine."

The plan approved by trustees is similar to a plan they rejected back in November, but one difference is that the Nye's Apple Barn itself will now be preserved and operated as a market for locally produced fruits and vegetables by Nye's niece, Lori Nye. She said in addition to selling produce, she'll use the barn to sell farm-raised meats, cheeses, local baked goods, organic options, and possibly, as a coffee shop.

Sepic to serve as Interim Berrien County Administrator

Retired Prosecutor Michael Sepic has been appointed as the Interim Berrien County Administrator.

The Berrien County Board of Commissioners recently approved the recommendation as now-former County Administrator Brian Dissette left for a role in Ottawa County.

Committee chair Bob Harrison tells us Sepic's name was mentioned to him several times as he sought out potential interim candidates.

"I met with members of the executive committee, talked through the alternatives, and then his name, given his experience and skills when he was served as a prosecutor, he rose to the top of the list," Harrison said.

Harrison says Sepic has the background to do the job.

"He's retired from the county, knows the county well, knows some of the financial systems that we use, as well as the key players, key leaders within the county. And he's very familiar with a number of the members of the county board."

Harrison says all those things checked the boxed commissioners had established. He says Sepic, who still lives in Stevensville, is willing and able to help.

"He was very eager. He's very appreciative of his service for Berrien County when he was a full-time employee, and he just sees this as a great opportunity to give back those years of service. So I'm very excited to have someone with that level of interest and desire to help the county during the transition of administrators. Consider next week at their meeting."

Harrison is planning to submit a resolution to the board of commissioners next week to hire a search firm for a permanent administrator.

"It won't be quick, and we're looking forward to having a degree of interest from not only locally but around the state in the position."

Harrison expects the process to take two to four months.

Sepic served as the Berrien County Prosecutor from 2013 to 2020. He was also an assistant prosecuting attorney for the county from 1988 to 2013. Outgoing County Administrator Brian Dissette tells us he has immense respect for Sepic, and the board couldn't have chosen a better interim administrator.

Hotel in South Haven listed on National Register of Historic Places

The Historic Hotel Nichols in South Haven is now listed in the National Register of Historic Places.

The Michigan State Historic Preservation Office says the Nichols has now officially been deemed worthy of preservation for its historical significance, opening the way for new grant opportunities and attracting new visitors.

Scott Whiteford and his family have owned the hotel at 201 Center Street since 2017. He tells us the property began in 1874 as a blacksmith and wagon shop, expanding over the years and adding a hotel in 1884. The buildings merged into the Nichols Hotel in 1925, and to this day, it still hosts travelers.

Whiteford says with the hotel now officially listed on the National Register of Historic Places, he's been able to secure a state grant to restore the facade, which now looks exactly as it did 100 years ago.

Whiteford calls the Nichols a "cool piece of the community" that he hopes will stay in business for another 100 years.

The Roots of Super Bowl Rooting

If you're anything like me, you fervently hope the Seattle Seahawks win Super Bowl 60.

A Seahawks victory will spare me from watching gauzy reflections on the New England Patriots' nauseating run of championships (which would undoubtedly include interviews with their former head coach Bill Belichick, whose catatonic demeanor always made Dick Cheney look like SpongeBob SquarePants).

Nevertheless, in the spirit of fair-mindedness, I'll consider how to take a balanced look at which team to root for.

For starters, I asked my kids for their opinions. No. 2 son is rooting for Seattle, because, and I quote, "Pats fans are insufferable." Mind you, he lives and is raising my two impressionable grandchildren on Cape Cod, Mass! I believe he's trying to inculcate Patriots hatred - let's call it Pate-tred - into them. To which I say, "YESSSSS!"

No. 1 son shared this take: "A few weeks ago I commented that I'm expecting (Seahawks quarterback Sam) Darnold to fold under pressure, but he's been solid. Seattle defense is outstanding and the offense can score enough."

Pretty analytical and learned response, right? Now can you see why it took me 23 cumulative Fantasy Football seasons to finally win a championship? I'm up against competition like No. 1, who employs intellect to build winning teams! Whereas I make mostly emotional decisions, usually based on whether guys wear the jerseys of teams that I like. Yep, as Jerry Seinfeld once said, I'm basically rooting for laundry!

Anyway, this input plus a few other factoids unearthed during my pre-LX research has led me to this pre-LX rooting decision: I CANNOT - NO WAY! - ROOT FOR THE PATRIOTS!

Besides, consider these compelling reasons to root for the Seahawks!:

- I can root for Seattle if only because the people who first established the town were led by a Hoosier, like me. He was Arthur Denny, born in 1822 in Washington County, Indiana. (People there still can't figure why anyone would leave a place with thriving hotspots like Farabee and Smedley).

Seattle trivia: Denny's party arrived at the site of the future Seattle on November 13, 1851. A memoir by Denny's daughter says it was gloomy and rainy, and "the prospect for comfort was so poor that the women sat down on a log on the beach and wept bitter tears of discouragement." Arthur's brother David, who'd arrived a couple weeks earlier to start a cabin, buoyed everyone's spirits by saying - this is supposedly true, now - "I wish you hadn't come."

- I can root for Seattle because Seattle is a bird-loving place, and I don't mean just Seahawks. When we visited No. 4 last September, we ate at a waterside fish 'n' chips place. We dined at a picnic table al fresco, where swarms of gulls tried cadging food from other diners (we sat well away from that scrum). A sign on the dock shared this amusing advice: "Don't be afraid of overfeeding gulls. They're dainty eaters!" Which is so NOT SO, right?!

Ultimately, while I wish harm to no one, I hope this for Patriots fans who attend the Super Bowl: It's being played in Santa Clara, California, right next to San Francisco Bay; so when it ends, I wish for Pats fans to sit on logs on the beach and weep bitter tears of discouragement.

Cozy up to these romantic films this Valentine's Day

A number of people feel that nothing beats a quiet evening in with the one you love on Valentine's Day. Watching a romantic film together can be a way to cap the night off.

There are plenty of films that focus on Valentine's Day or have a larger romantic theme. Such movies are ideal for date nights and the ultimate date night: Valentine's Day.

- "Valentine's Day" (2010): This aptly titled film takes place on – you guessed it – February 14th. It has a who's who cast of well-known actors like Jennifer Garner, Shirley MaLaine and Bradley Cooper. Various storylines intersect among the characters as Los Angeles residents work their way through the highs and lows of love on Valentine's Day.

- "Kate & Leopold" (2001): While rom-com fans are used to seeing Meg Ryan teamed up with Tom Hanks, in this tale she's paired with Hugh Jackman. Jackman is a duke from 1876 who inadvertently finds himself traveling through time to modern-day New York City, where he meets a plucky advertising executive. The two clash before they discover feelings for each other.

- "The Princess Bride" (1987): This movie has withstood the test of time. It has a little bit of everything: swordfights, revenge, a giant, and, of course, a heartwarming love story at its core.

- "The Wedding Singer" (1998): Despite coming out in the 1990s, this film brings on all the campy 1980's nostalgia, including a hit soundtrack of favorite songs from that decade. Although not everyone is a fan of Adam Sandler's comedic antics, this movie is less slapstick and more heartfelt. It's one of a few where Sandler has paired with Drew Barrymore in the lead roles. Check out "50 First Dates" if you want a fun Sandler-Barrymore double feature.

- "Love, Simon" (2018): In this movie, Simon, a high school student, hasn't yet come out to his friends and family, but has been exploring a budding romance with an anonymous boy online. The big reveal of that boy's identity is a moment of anticipation.

- "Pride and Prejudice" (2005): Jane Austen's classic novel has undergone many interpretations on the silver screen. The 2005 version starring Keira Knightley and Matthew Macfadyen as Elizabeth and Darcy is a fan favorite. With its beautiful tableaux and enchanting soundtrack, viewers can't help but root for this unlikely couple.

- "Always Be My Maybe" (2019): This Netflix original movie has Ali Wong and Randall Park playing former childhood best friends with some unfinished business. When they are reunited as adults on different paths, will they find a connection? Keanu Reeves has a guest cameo.

- "Chocolat" (2000): A mysterious French woman and her young daughter open a chocolate shop in a remote place where villagers are afraid of change. Her confections seemingly have magical powers to fix the ills of people, if only the shopkeeper can lure the stubborn to give them a taste. Johnny Depp stars as a love interest.

- "Notting Hill" (1999): If Meg Ryan is the queen of rom-coms, Hugh Grant may be the king. In this movie, an unassuming British book shop owner gets cast into the limelight when a famous American actress played by Julia Roberts hides in the stacks and eventually becomes more than just a customer.

8 unique Valentine's Day gift ideas

Gift-giving is a key component of Valentine's Day celebrations every February 14. Valentine's Day is a mere month-and-a-half after the holiday season, so ideas for more thoughtful gifts may be in short supply. Let these Valentine's day gift ideas serve as inspiration.

1. Custom painted portrait: Many local artists paint beautiful portraits from photographs. Find an image you like and have it made into an even more impressive work of art.

2. Doll likeness: The well known Funko POP! brand known for its pop culture figurines enables customers to create likenesses of themselves or loved ones. You can have custom dolls made in your sweetheart's likeness.

3. Preserved roses: While fresh roses may only last a few days to a week, preserved or "eternity" roses are treated and specially packaged so they can endure and serve as lasting, welcome reminders of Valentine's Day love.

4. Journal or scrapbook: A decorative scrapbook or journal enables your special someone to keep track of moments spent together and key milestones.

5. First date map: Gift a framed picture of a map marked with the specific location of your first date, whether it was a restaurant, park or museum.

6. Birthstone jewelry: Jewelry is a popular gift on Valentine's Day. Make gifts even more special by finding pieces that include your special someone's birthstone. The American Gem Society offers a handy chart at www.americangemsociety.org/birthstones/.

7. Experiential gifts: Experiential gifts may be just what is needed this Valentine's Day. Some options include a couple's cooking class, tickets to a sports game or concert, a vacation to a romantic locale, or a day or night out on the town.

8. Prepare a favorite recipe: Learn what your loved one enjoys eating the most and then recreate the recipe as a thoughtful gift and dinner at home.

This Valentine's Day, people can consider these unique thoughtful gift ideas.

Names Stick

Words and names become part of us after repeated use. Think about a nickname you or someone else you know had. My grandpa called my "JB" when I was only a few years old and it continued for decades. Although my name is Joshua or Josh, many of my close friends still know me as JB. It stuck.

Jacob is common name today. Jacob was a man in the Bible given that name because he was grabbing onto the heel of his older brother when he was born. (The Hebrew word of "heel" sounds like Jacob). Already from birth, his name was associated with his actions. Treachery filled his life, both done by him and done to him. His actions defined who he was as he lived up to the name his parents gave him. It stuck.

God didn't want Jacob to be stuck with treachery. After an event of Jacob wrestling with God, God gave him a new name, Israel. God gave him a new name because he wrestled with God and overcame. This name would be Israel's new defining character.

What defines you? What names do people call you or what names do you call yourself? Lazy. Sloppy. Mess. Imperfect. Fat. Dirty. Poor. Awkward. Some names come from our own doing, and some come from what people impose on us. These do not define who we are.

Or do you feel the pressure to live up to everyone's expectations? Perfect. Beautiful. Happy. Successful. Put together. Lovely. Kind. We put these expectations on ourselves, or others heave them on our shoulders and they become the burden. We must hide from anything that will define us otherwise or we will lose what feel we must be.

God calls us something different. "But you are a chosen people, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, the people who are God's own possession, so that you may proclaim the praises of him who called you out of darkness into his marvelous light" (1 Peter 2:9).

You are chosen. You are royalty. You are pure. You are God's special treasure. He does not say this to overlook failings or faults. Instead, he makes you into something new.

These are not titles given to us because we must live up to expectations. They are all because Jesus has finished everything. Because Jesus was chosen to be your savior, you are chosen. Because Jesus left the royal court of heaven to live on earth, he made you into royalty. Because Jesus behaved perfectly, you receive his perfection and so are perfect. Because of Jesus, God's treasured child, you also become God's treasured child.

Don't let other names, qualities, or past actions define you. God's names, titles and actions define you. It sticks.

Apply this: Keep track of everything people say about you or everything you say about yourself in a day. Replace it with what God says about you.

Prayer: Jesus, I call you by that name because you are my Savior. That is who you are. So, you call me chosen, holy, treasured, and your own. Help me see life in light of what you say about me. Amen.
