Dissolve Baroda? Business owner says move overlooks "critical realities"

The potential dissolution of the Village of Baroda is drawing scrutiny from local officials and business leaders as the village seeks legal guidance on a citizen-led petition to disincorporate and be absorbed into Baroda Township.

The Baroda Village Council voted Monday to request a written legal opinion regarding the validity of the petition, whose signatures were verified by the Baroda Township Clerk's office. That verification triggered the formation of a special commission to study the issue. The commission is scheduled to meet March 12.

Supporters of dissolution have suggested the move could bring tax relief and a smaller government structure. However, a growing number of area residents are questioning the move, wondering where the push came from and whether any benefits would outweigh potential downsides.

In a statement, Greg Borr, co-owner of TJ's Baroda Tap, said some proponents have painted "a rosy picture of immediate tax relief and 'smaller government,'" but argued those claims "overlook critical realities," including the potential loss of local control over services and the costs of shifting infrastructure and public safety responsibilities.

"Promising sweeping savings without a full, independent analysis of long-term impacts is misleading at best and risks leaving residents and local businesses like mine facing higher costs or reduced services down the road,"

He also questioned the motives behind the effort, citing what he described as "apparent conflicts of interest among some individuals driving or benefiting from this petition." Borr said, "When those advocating for dissolution stand to gain personally while the broader community bears the risk, transparency is essential."

In addition, Borr expressed concern about the financial impact of the review process itself. "These are our hard-earned tax dollars being used to study a proposal that, at this stage, appears driven more by a small group's agenda than by clear community consensus," he said.

Village officials have not taken a formal position on dissolution but say the legal review will determine whether the petition complies with state law before any next steps are considered. Any decision to dissolve the village would require further action following the commission's work.

Southwest Michigan lawmaker seeking repeal of Michigan's new cannabis tax

State Senator Jonathan Lindsey has introduced legislation to repeal Michigan's new cannabis tax, just months after it was approved by the Legislature.

Lindsey, a Republican who represents all of Cass County and part of Berrien County, says the 24% tax "represents an unnecessary growth of government." He says it will "lead to widespread job losses across the state, which are already being reported" and that lawmakers simply need better discipline to keep the budget down.

Lindsey's office says bipartisan Senate Bill 810 comes as cannabis businesses across Michigan report closures, financial strain, and layoffs due to the impact of the tax, which came out of late-night and last-minute budget negotiations in October of 2025. The tax was approved to raise money for road repairs.

Among those supporting Lindsey's bill to drop the tax is the Michigan Cannabis Industry Association. Director Robin Schneider says the "24% wholesale tax is destroying an industry that employed 47,000 Michiganders and generates hundreds of millions in annual tax revenue." She urged lawmakers to repeal the tax "before more businesses close and more Michiganders lose their jobs."

Sturgis Bank announces key expansion hire with former Market One exec

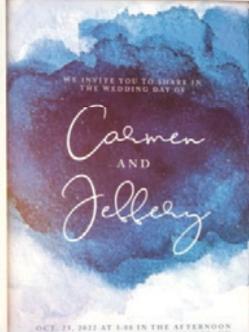

Sturgis Bank has appointed Zach Morris as Assistant Vice President of Business Development for Van Buren County, the bank announced Tuesday.

According to the announcement, Morris brings more than 20 years of experience supporting business growth across Michigan. He most recently served as Executive Director of Market One, an economic and community development organization serving Cass and Van Buren counties. During his tenure, the organization reported an economic impact of $2.26 million and supported the creation of 1,300 jobs.

Stephanie Timmer, Senior Vice President and Community President for Van Buren County, said Morris will play a key role in the bank's continued regional expansion.

"I'm excited for this opportunity," said Morris. "In my previous role, I worked closely with the team at Sturgis Bank and witnessed firsthand the expertise, integrity, and dedication they demonstrate in serving their clients each day."

Morris holds a Bachelor of Arts in Business Professional Studies from Davenport University and is a graduate of the University of Oklahoma

MDOT completing plans for reconstruction of Main Street in St. Joseph next year

The Michigan Department of Transportation has almost completed its plan for the reconstruction of Main Street in St. Joseph in 2027.

The agency plans a full rebuild for the road between Elm Street and the Blossomland Bridge, and it's been meeting with the public, the city of St. Joseph, and Berrien County for more than a year to prepare. MDOT's Nick Schirripa tells us that input has been critical as engineers put together a plan, noting this is a once-in-a-generation kind of project.

"This is an opportunity for us not just to go in and replace pavement, but to make this road what the community wants to see," Schirripa said. "So that's a big deal for us and we're excited to do it."

Schirripa says the response from the public as MDOT sought input has been "amazing" and "incredibly helpful," noting Berrien County has also provided important insight into the final design.

"And this goes right down to sidewalk locations and where we have crosswalks and where you can and can't turn left off of Main Street. Really, really detailed, level things. And that's one of those conversations with the county that ultimately led to a potential change in, where we can and can't turn left there because they wanted access to the jail from a certain road... and it made a difference in their workflow."

Schirripa says it would be impossible to please everyone all the time with a project of this scope, but MDOT wants the road to be what people need.

In addition to a new Main Street, the project will result in two-way traffic on both Court and Ship Street, the installation of wayfinding signs, new lights, seating, and new landscaping, and as well as safer routes for pedestrians.

While the project will create a major disruption of traffic next year, Schirripa says the construction schedule is intended to reduce headaches for drivers and residents as much as possible.

Windows and doors demand careful examination. Inspecting frames for cracked caulking or weatherstripping allows replacement of worn seals to improve energy efficiency and block drafts. Cleaning glass panes and screens removes winter grime while revealing any tears or damage needing repair. These steps not only brighten interiors but also contribute to lower utility costs as temperatures rise.

Shifting indoors, HVAC systems benefit from spring servicing. Replacing air filters, cleaning vents, and scheduling professional tune-ups prepare cooling units for heavy summer use while removing dust and allergens accumulated over winter. Checking for moisture in basements or crawl spaces helps identify potential mold or water intrusion early. Testing sump pumps ensures they operate correctly before rainy periods arrive.

Deep cleaning refreshes living areas after months of closed windows and heating use. Washing walls, ceilings, and baseboards eliminates dust buildup. Shampooing carpets or scrubbing hard floors restores surfaces, while decluttering spaces creates a sense of renewal. Safety checks include replacing batteries in smoke and carbon monoxide detectors and verifying fire extinguishers remain in good condition.

Additional tasks round out preparations. Power-washing exterior surfaces like siding, decks, and walkways removes mildew and dirt for a fresh appearance. Inspecting foundations for cracks or settling addresses minor issues before they worsen. Flushing water heaters and cleaning dryer vents reduces energy waste and fire hazards.

Completing these spring preparations fosters a comfortable, efficient home ready for warmer weather and outdoor enjoyment. Proactive maintenance minimizes unexpected repairs, promotes family well-being, and extends the lifespan of key home components. With consistent effort each season, homeowners create a welcoming environment that withstands changing conditions year after year.

Rejoice?

Have you ever had to do a double take when witnessing something unexpected and profound? "Did I really hear what I think you said?" "Did that just happen?"

The Bible is full of moments like that.

"We rejoice confidently on the basis of our hope for the glory of God" (Romans 5:2). I can get behind this type of rejoicing. I like this. This sounds great. Hope in the glory of God. This is positive.

But he isn't done yet. "Not only this, but we also rejoice confidently in our sufferings" (Romans 5:3). I didn't expect him to say that. Why is that in there? That doesn't make sense. Who in their right mind would rejoice in suffering? Aren't I supposed to bemoan it, complain about it, revolt against it?

God should give me a pill to relieve the pain like everyone else does. But He doesn't.

We can rejoice in our sufferings because we know that suffering produces patient endurance, and patient endurance produces tested character, and tested character produces hope. And hope will not put us to shame, because God's love has been poured out into our hearts through the Holy Spirit, who was given to us (Romans 5:3-5).

All of you who have gone through something painful and came out on the other side can look back and see how this passage is true. Some of the most difficult seasons of life can produce a wealth of blessings.

But one of the great surprises from God's Word is hiding at the end of the verses quoted: "God's love has been poured out into our hearts by the Holy Spirit." God, You would really do that for me, knowing who I am and what I have done? You desire me so much that You pour out Your love into my heart.

Love received from God thrills the mind and heart when you know how much you don't deserve it, and yet you receive it. He loves me so much that He sent His Spirit to comfort me in my suffering.

He is a God who knows what suffering is like. If He showed me His greatest love by enduring the pain of the cross, then I can rejoice in my suffering and in what He will produce in me on the other side.

What does rejoicing do to your perspective on pain?

Prayer: Lord, produce in me a life defined not by my suffering, but by Yours. Your suffering produced my life and my hope that this too shall pass. Comfort my heart when I feel pain so I can trust in You. Amen.

HUGE Pharaoh,
THE King ... a Top Chef?

If thinking of Egypt brings to mind temples and pyramids and tombs and mummies and hieroglyphs, then the tour of Egypt I took is the tour for you. Every single day, we saw temples and pyramids and tombs and mummies and hieroglyphs. (There's a joke about the acronym of our tour company, Overseas Adventure Travel – OAT stands for "Oh, Another Temple.")

It may be difficult for me to make this column particularly coherent. Okay, har-de-har-har, yes, that describes all of my columns. But seeing so much amazing antiquity day after day was a little overwhelming; one starts to get the order of things mixed up – I saw that, but when did I see it? I call this days-lexia.

Nevertheless, I will try to fulfill my solemn duty to relate some what we saw and learned (keep in mind I have a penchant for the, ummm, un-solemn).

One day we drove to the site of ancient Memphis, to visit an open-air museum featuring a monumental statue of the Pharaoh Ramses II, aka Ramses The Great. It's colossal, 36-ish feet tall, although we could only imagine what it looks like upright. It was uncovered in 1820, in pieces, and the feet and base were particularly wrecked, so it's lying on its back, reposing in a shelter built around it.

Seeing this depiction of a Pharaoh in Memphis, I found my mind wandering to the musical "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat," wherein the Pharaoh – i.e, the King – is portrayed in the style of that other Memphis "King" – Elvis Presley. If only they could find a 36-foot tall Elvis impersonator to play the part!

Our next stop was Saqqara, where we saw the first pyramid. To clarify, not merely the first pyramid seen on our tour – THE first pyramid EVER built in Egypt.

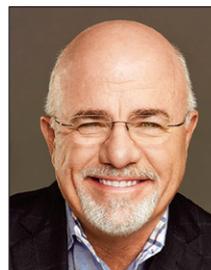

Another first for us – it was the first time my wife and I had to assess whether we were, or were not, too claustrophobic to go inside an ancient Egyptian edifice. We opted for "were not," and walked in. I thought it wasn't very confining at all, although multiple attempts to record video of my wife's courage were met with nervous, steely stares and that thing people do with their hands to block a camera lens.

Full disclosure: The sequence of events of our tour will now be atomized into whatever random non-sequential experiences pop into my head. For example:

One evening a family in Cairo hosted us for dinner in their home. Our hostesses were Mina and Monica, identical twins, who live with their mother, Mary. And yes, in delightful alignment with their matching initials, their food was MMM good!

It was a very pleasant visit, sharing a bit about our day-to-day lives. One topic that came up was their travel experiences. Well, actually, in their cases, travel inexperience – they've never been outside of Egypt.

However, Mina and Monica are deep in the throes of planning a trip to Italy, and they are super excited. I'm not sure if this is part of their preparation for the adventure, but how else could one explain this unexpected item on the sideboard in their dining room? – a quartet of coasters bearing the likeness of a famous Italian: Chef Boyardee.

When It Comes to Investing, Knowledge and Wisdom Dispel Fear

Dear Dave,

I'm 50 years old, and through a series of bad life decisions, I have nothing set aside for retirement. Now that I'm finally in a better place financially, I'm getting to the age where people say to invest conservatively. Because of this, I'm afraid to invest in anything aggressive, and that makes me feel like I'll never be able to have a decent retirement. I've put aside $20,000 in a savings account so far. Any advice you have would be appreciated.

Jack

Dear Jack,

First of all, you're not at the age where you need to be investing conservatively. I don't know where you heard this or who told you it was a good idea, but they're wrong. You're only 50. I'm not investing conservatively, and I'm 63. I'm investing in good, growth stock mutual funds that are growing like weeds. And you should be too.

Listen, I'm not saying you need to shift into panic mode. But you do need to get moving on this retirement thing today. It's great that you've started saving money, but I'd be pretty nervous if all I had to my name at age 50 was $20,000. At this point, you should have something like $250,000.

You mentioned being afraid to invest more aggressively. I've learned over the years there are two situations where fear can be a positive thing. The first is being afraid of things we don't understand. One day when I was 12, my dad told me to move the car. I didn't understand you weren't supposed to stomp the gas pedal all the way to the floor. That little episode scared us both silly, and I spun almost all the gravel out of our driveway. Now, with years of practice and understanding, I'm a better driver. Being behind the wheel doesn't scare me at all.

The other positive type of fear is being afraid of things that can legitimately hurt us – like standing in the middle of the highway. If you do this, you should be afraid an 18-wheeler will come flying down the road and turn you into a pancake.

But when you're afraid of something just because you don't know how to do it – like you are with investing – you can dispel that fear with knowledge and wisdom. That's why I want you to find a good investment professional. I'm talking about someone with the heart of a teacher, who will help you learn the ins and outs of investing and take away the fear you feel. If you do this, your confidence, and your knowledge, will begin to grow. Once that happens, you'll start to feel comfortable pouring into good retirement investments.

Get to it, Jack. You can make this happen!

– Dave

2026 Business Recognition Award Winners - Part 2!

Continuing to spotlight our winners from the 2026 Business Recognition Breakfast Annual Meeting & Award Ceremony presented by Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, Corewell Health, Honor Credit Union, and The Batalis Agency - Farm Bureau Insurance.

Today we're shifting to our Economic Impact and Non-Profit Excellence winners - both of which are incredibly aligned on creating a community that is healthy and building on the ecosystems that make us 'Stronger Together'.

ECONOMIC IMPACT AWARD: COREWELL HEALTH

In 2025, Corewell Health in Southwest Michigan made a significant and lasting contribution to the region's economic vitality by investing $55 million in healthcare access, workforce development, community partnerships, and local infrastructure. As one of the region's largest employers and most trusted institutions, Corewell Health played a critical role in keeping jobs, healthcare dollars, and essential services rooted in Southwest Michigan.

Corewell Health expanded access to care through new and enhanced sites of service, including the opening of a cardiology clinic in Watervliet and the launch of a mobile health clinic designed to reach rural and underserved communities. These investments created new employment opportunities, supported local vendors, and reduced the need for residents to seek care outside the region, helping retain local economic activity.

Workforce development was a cornerstone of Corewell Health's impact in 2025. The organization invested close to $1 million to expand medical assistant and student nurse apprenticeship programs, strengthen partnerships with local schools and colleges, and support paid youth internships that introduced young people to healthcare careers. These efforts built a strong local talent pipeline, addressed critical workforce needs, and created pathways to stable, family-sustaining employment.

Beyond its own operations, Corewell Health served as a catalyst for community growth through partnerships with nonprofits, municipalities, and community organizations. Through grants and sponsorships from the Corewell Health Foundation Southwest Michigan, the organization invested nearly half a million dollars in food access, mental health services, grief support, transportation, and preventive care initiatives that strengthened local organizations and communities.

Together, these efforts demonstrate Corewell Health's role as an anchor institution committed to advancing both the health and economic prosperity of Southwest Michigan.

NON-PROFIT EXCELLENCE AWARD: MEALS ON WHEELS OF SOUTHWEST MICHIGAN

Meals on Wheels of Southwest Michigan serves older and vulnerable adult residents across Berrien and Van Buren counties by delivering nutritious meals that reduce hunger and social isolation. Providing more than 11,000 meals each month through home-delivered and congregate programs, the organization supports health, independence, and dignity for those most at risk of nutrition insecurity. As community needs evolve, Meals on Wheels of Southwest Michigan continues to innovate—most recently launching medically appropriate meals to better support seniors facing chronic health conditions and geographic isolation.
