"Cares of the past are behind,
nowhere to go but I'll find
just where the trail will wind,
Drifting along with the tumbling tumbleweeds"

"Tumbling Tumbleweeds" is among the Top 100 Western songs of all times, as listed by the Western Writers of America. The beloved work was written by Bob Nolan during the 1930's when he was working as a caddy in Los Angeles. He might have been missing the wide open spaces as he artistically put his thoughts and feelings down on paper. Canadian-born and raised in Nevada, Bob answered a newspaper ad for "a yodeler for an old-time act, to travel, preferably a tenor". Leonard Slye (later Roy Rogers) had placed the notice in the Los Angeles Herald Examiner for his band The Rocky Mountaineers. He hired Nolan on the spot but the drifter was not ready to settle down. He returned to the band again in 1934, and along with Slye, became a founding member of the Sons of Pioneers. Their early radio show broadcasts included Nolan's tunes, "There's a Roundup in the Sky", "Cool Water", "One More Ride" and others. A few years later when Leonard Slye took the name Roy Rogers and left the group, Nolan reluctantly became the front man for the singing group. They became staples in Roy's movies, with Bob cast in numerous speaking roles. During this period, Columbia Pictures offered the tall good-looking Nolan his own cowboy film series, but he declined. In 1949, he retired from show business for a life in semi-seclusion as a songwriter with his wife Clara. They had met in '42 at the Columbia Drugstore, corner of Sunset and Gower near Columbia Studio lot. Clara had come to Hollywood to find stardom, but she found Bob instead and employment behind the drugstore counter. Bob and the Pioneers frequently ate there and Bob had penned many of his songs there. During his career, Bob Nolan composed more than 200 songs and appeared in over 100 movies. He passed away in 1980 in California.

Recently, I spent an unforgettable afternoon chasing a tumbleweed...Tumbleweed Smith that is. Bob Lewis (his real name) is the noted owner of "the largest collection of oral history in the United States". He makes a semi-annual visit to Sulphur Springs in search of interesting people and places, and boy did he find them this time! ..a Viet Nam Veteran, a member of the ZZ Top family, Mike and Carol Scott of the picturesque Dike Store, also a new dealer in antiques and curiosities, also Eddie Trapp...and Assistant D.A. Clay Harrison who is a Veteran, author, journalist, songwriter, musician and Cross-Fit competitor. Tumbleweed also spent a good bit of time exploring the Sulphur Springs downtown district on the heels of City Manager Marc Maxwell. More than once, he remarked "wow!" as one after another feature of Celebration City was brought to light. He called out "Big Spring hasn't got anything like this!" as he pulled out for points west.

"I'll keep rolling along, deep in my heart is a song, here on the range I belong,
drifting along with the tumbling tumbleweeds".

Til next week, I'll watch for you at the corral gate!

ANOTHER MOVIE FROM BIG SPRING

Tumbleweed Smith

Tumbleweed Smith

Big Spring has made some movie history. The city has produced two movie stars: Jean Porter, who was popular in the 1940s and Betty Buckley, who had a career in movies and television.

The opening scenes of Midnight Cowboy, starring Jon Voight (his first movie) and Dustin Hoffman (his second movie), were filmed in Big Spring. Jon Voight was a popular figure around town and the moviemakers dropped a lot of cash in local stores.

Hangar 18, a movie about a spacecraft crashing to earth, was also filmed in Big Spring and starred Gary Collins, Robert Vaughn and James Hampton. A bunch of local 25-year olds made a movie in the 90's about reincarnation titled Hell is Texas. You can buy a DVD copy on Amazon for three dollars.

The latest movie from Big Spring is titled Project Mone't. It is about the enthusiasm of youth (applies to the filmmakers, both in their 30's) and the power of art (applies to the girl who is the subject of the movie.) Desiree Mone't Ripple was born into a fractured family and was physically and sexually abused. She became homeless at age 14 and stayed in school for one reason; she could get food. She worked hard and graduated from Brewer High School in White Settlement at the age of 16. Within a few years she had left a bad marriage, had two kids and lived in a pickup. Suddenly things began to change. "When my daughter got sick, I was angry at God for the horrible life I was living," she says. "I told him if he would spare my child's life I would give him mine." She moved to Big Spring and enrolled in welding classes at Howard College. One night she had a dream that gave her explicit instructions on how to create a metal sculpture. Using scraps of metal from junkyards and dumps, she carefully fused the pieces together, each one representing a terrible incident in her life. When the work was finished, she felt a great sense of relief. She decided to tell her story in hopes it would help someone who was having difficulties. She put a notice on facebook asking for a videographer to record her story and put it on the social network.

James Fite and Brandon Johnson, two Big Spring young men with aspirations of doing action movies, contacted Desi and interviewed her for 5 hours. Both men decided her story deserved more than just a video of an interview on facebook. They spent a year making the movie at their own expense. It premiered a couple of weeks ago to a packed house. When the movie ended, there was stunned silence. The music, narration, interview and images of Desi making the sculpture formed a moving documentary. Project Mone't is a story that is told well. Desi now has a good job, a boyfriend, lives in a real home with her two children, and has an education and a bright future as an artist. At the premiere, Desi was dressed in a formal gown and looked like a movie star. She couldn't believe the attention she was getting. The lobby had a display of some of her artwork. Before the film started, she broke down in tears and told a friend, "Not too long ago I was homeless, getting food from a dumpster."

The movie has been submitted for entry in 43 film festivals.
