TN Promise Dares You To Dream Big

TN Promise provides every high school senior in the state the opportunity to attend a local community or technical college tuition free with mentor support. Students apply during their senior year, attend two mandatory meetings and complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA) to remain eligible for the scholarship. They also work with a volunteer mentor. Volunteer mentors provide the guidance and encouragement students often need to be successful. The time commitment is small, only about one hour per month, but the impact is significant. New volunteers are needed every year and interested individuals can find more information at www.tnachieves.org.

TN Promise is one initiative of Gov. Haslam's Drive to 55. To ensure Tennessee can attract new business and the best jobs for our residents we must provide potential employers with a workforce that can meet their demand. TN Promise provides more educational opportunities for all Tennessee students by ensuring that tuition is no longer a burden and that each student will have the support needed to access and complete higher education. More students entering the post-secondary pipeline and earning degrees will strengthen the state's workforce and make Tennessee competitive in today's global economy.

DECADES OF GREAT ENTERTAINMENT

There is no better place to enjoy the variety of entertainment and displays of agricultural products than a county fair, especially the Lincoln County Fair, one of the most decorated and recognized fairs in Tennessee.

“Over 100,000 people come to the fair here each year to enjoy the livestock, 4-H and agricultural exhibits, handicrafts, art, commercial displays and the family-friendly entertainment,” said Jimmy Carter, president of the fair’s Board of Directors. “We’ve got one of the best fairs in the state, and it’s all without any taxpayer funds from the county or city.”

The fair, approaching its 112th year, has three times been crowned the state’s Champion of Champions Fair, a distinction given by the Tennessee Association of Fairs.

“This is a result of many hours of hard work and dedication by a board of volunteers committed to sharing their enthusiasm for our community, for agriculture and for family fun,” said Carter. “It is also due to a great community of people who love to come to the fair. Without all of you who enjoy the fun, food, exhibits and entertainment, there would be no fair.”

Known for its harness racing as well as such events as the demolition derby, truck and tractor pull, draft horse and mule shows, just to name a few, the fair keeps people coming back.

“We are a true county fair where people who don’t live on farms can learn about agriculture, where hundreds of local children can participate in 4-H and compete on the local and state levels,” he continued, noting that 80 percent of the income generated by gate admission fees is put back into the production of the fair, including paying premiums and/or prize money. Much of the remaining 20 percent, coupled with loan proceeds and matching state Department of Agriculture grants, have funded approximately $370,000 in improvements at the fairgrounds over the last five years,” states Carter.

“Corporate sponsorship donations from local businesses help cover costs of advertising, catalog, hiring entertainment and many other expenses that are necessary to start up the fair each year,” said Carter.

“Putting together the fair is a major production,” he said. “And it takes everyone pulling together, from the local groups to the businesses and industries, to make it a success.”

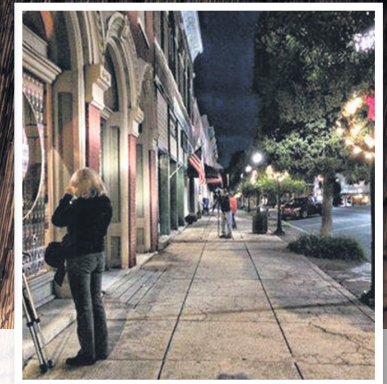

Situated on 33 acres near the heart of Fayetteville, the Lincoln County Fairgrounds is actually owned privately by stockholders, who do not receive dividends except for a season pass each year to the fair. In its 100-plus-year history, it’s survived many adversities, from the Great Depression, World War II and other challenges.

“While the Lincoln County Fair board supports economic growth in Lincoln County, we also want to continue to support the deep-rooted traditions that make this county a great place to live,” he added.

THE HOST OF CHRISTMAS PAST

A NORMAN ROCKWELL CHRISTMAS

In 1991 a group of citizens began brainstorming to begin a local festival to promote Fayetteville Lincoln County and the downtown area. A Christmas themed festival was decided upon and Host of Christmas Past was born.

In keeping with the annual Christmas Open House tradition, The Flower House began twenty five years prior, the date of the 2nd weekend in November was set. Since then, more businesses and organizations have participated, making this truly a community event. While the downtown area is still the center of activities, other areas of the community have seen the benefit from participating. An estimated 18,000 people attend each year.

The festival continues to become a Norman Rockwell painting through an array of music, food, exhibits, shopping, candlelight and the old fashion spirit of Christmas.

Join us in celebrating the 24th Anniversary of Fayetteville...

Host of Christmas Past on November 11th, 12th with Limited Events on the 13th!

Don't miss a fun-filled weekend where Snow is guaranteed to fall in historic downtown Fayetteville, Tennessee. Begin your visit on Friday afternoon to our beautiful Downtown all decorated for the holiday season. Friday evening following the Annual Lighting of the Christmas Tree at 5:00 pm, enjoy live music from the Bandstand on the Courthouse Lawn and stroll the square as many businesses will be open late.

If you are part of a not for profit organization and would like to get involved by hosting an event or as a vendor, please contact the FLC Chamber 931.433.1234 or Fayetteville Main Street (931) 433-7006.

Lincoln County, Tennessee was created by an act of the state legislature in 1809 from part of the original Bedford County and named for the Revolutionary War hero, Gen. Benjamin Lincoln. This region came from lands ceded by the Cherokee and Chickasaw nations some years earlier. These historic tribes and others had used the area as hunting grounds for the fur trade. Centuries earlier, large permanent populations of early, middle and late woodlands people occupied what is now Lincoln County; and village sites, graves, and artifacts, as well as a number of mounds offer ample evidence of their presence. In the first decades of the county's history, settlers pouring into the region cleared the river and creek bottoms of vast seas of cane and felled the great forests on the hills and ridges. Among these pioneers was the renowned David Crockett. Surplus produce, chiefly in the form of whiskey and lard, was shipped down the Elk River on flatboats into the Tennessee, the Ohio and, finally, the Mississippi Rivers to markets in Natchez of New Orleans.

By the mid nineteenth century, Lincoln County was a prosperous agricultural section, producing a variety of grains and some cotton. The limestone of this ancient sea bed made for splendid pastures, and the county was noted for its fine livestock. Commercial distilling was also a significant industry, and the distinctive Lincoln County process for sour mash whiskey provided another valuable export. Several turnpikes, a railroad connection and the remarkable Stone Bridge over the Elk made access to Huntsville, Nashville and more distant markets possible.

This period of prosperity came to a rapid end with the advent of the Civil War. Both Confederate and Federal armies stripped the county for food, livestock and fodder. From 1863 until the conclusion of the war, Lincoln County was occupied by the Federal Army, and the once prosperous agricultural economic base was devastated. Within a few decades the county recovered and, again, its prosperity was based on diversified farming, livestock production and a few local industries. Among the latter were lumber milling, textiles, flour and grist mills and distilling. From the early decades of the twentieth century, Lincoln County was noted for its splendid herds of dairy cattle and for the sale and export of mules to the deep south. Mechanization of agriculture after World War II and the loss of large creameries transformed the landscape and the county's agricultural base, as well as its demographics. Today, much of what was once cleared and cultivated land is either in permanent pasture for beef cattle or in woodlands. Lincoln County leads the state in beef production, and with the re-introduction of whitetail deer and the wild turkey is a hunter's paradise.

Shortly after the first county court met, plans for a county seat were made. The state had mandated the town be planned around a central courthouse square. On one hundred acres obtained from the area's first settler, Ezekiel Norris, the town was platted and lots sold in 1810. From its inception Fayetteville has been the county's governmental and economics center. In its first decade, Fayetteville entered regional history where Gen. Andrew Jackson mobilized an army across the Elk at Camp Blount for his campaign against the Creek nation. The young Sam Houston, hero of Horseshoe Bend, was among those who mustered here. In honor of a young Fayetteville attorney who fell in that battle, the state of Alabama named its capitol city.

The courthouse square remains viable and attractive. A number of well-preserved commercial buildings attest to the significance it once held in the nineteenth to mid twentieth centuries as the county's economic hub. It still boasts such essential businesses as hardware, drug, clothing, jewelry, and book stores, as well as gifts and antique stores and offices of real estate and law firms. As of old, there are restaurants, pool halls and a theatre.

The Lincoln County Fair whose roots can be traced to the antebellum period, persists, celebrating the county's agricultural heritage and its pride in harness racing. A noteworthy, privately maintained county museum preserves physical evidence of "Old Lincoln's" history. In its bicentennial year, the citizens of this county have good reason for celebrating their heritage.

Stone Bridge Memorial Park

The Old Stone Bridge stood for 108 years across the Elk River. The bridge, which was such an important part of Lincoln County, is now remembered with a replica and city park named in its honor located diagonally across the intersection from its original location. With a walking trail and benches around the water, this is a wonderful place to take a stroll and enjoy the evening.

Camp Blount Historical Park

This park celebrates the must of the TN Volunteers with General Andrew Jackson before they left to defeat the Creek Indians at the Battle of Horseshoe Bend. Rich in Frontier and Civil War History, Lincoln County is the home of numerous historical landmarks such as Camp Blount, one of the few historic sites in Tennessee associated with the War of 1812.

Lincoln County Attracts New Industries, Creates More Jobs

By Kristin Luna

Major companies like Frito-Lay, Franke Foodservice Systems, C&S Plastics, Copperweld, Gregory Manufacturing and Genesco have long been big players in the Fayetteville business community, but that hasn't kept a large number of residents from traveling to Northern Alabama—or beyond—for employment opportunities nevertheless. The Fayetteville-Lincoln County Industrial Development Board (FLCIDB) vies to keep more of the talent local by bringing in new industries and providing them with space in which to thrive.

“The number one goal is to create job opportunities in the community,” says Elaine Middleton, executive director for the board, adding that more than 4,000 residents commute out of the county each day, many of them to the Huntsville area.

Since making this a priority in 2012, the FLCIDB has seen three industries expand and one existing industry acquire assets, Middleton says. It was also announced in January that two global companies will move their operations to Fayetteville.

“We are excited that Nippon Steel has decided to locate its first U.S. plant here in Tennessee,” Randy Boyd, Tennessee Department of Economic and Community Development Commissioner, said in a statement. “It is great to have Nippon Steel joining Team Tennessee and I want to thank them for creating valuable jobs in Lincoln County.”

The metal substrate manufacturer, a major subsidiary of Nippon Steel & Simitomo Metal Corporation, will invest $5.7 million and create 65 new jobs. Less than 10 days after this announcement, Toledo Molding & Die, Inc. unveiled plans to build a new manufacturing facility in Fayetteville, too. A global, full-service supplier of interior and air and fluid management systems for the automotive industry, TMD plans to invest $20 million and create 250 new jobs. “Tennessee’s rural communities are the heart of our state in so many ways, and we’re building on our work to create a measured, thoughtful approach to supporting economic development in our rural areas,” Governor Bill Haslam said in a statement. “We appreciate TMD for providing new opportunities for so many hardworking Tennesseans and bringing us one step closer toward our goal to make Tennessee the No. 1 location in the Southeast for high quality jobs.”

The city’s trio of industrial parks—Bullington Industrial Park, Runway Center Industrial Park and Fayetteville-Lincoln County Industrial Park—has made it an attractive place for such companies to take up residence. Nippon Steel’s 62,000-square-foot space and TMD’s 126,000-square-foot manufacturing facility will both occupy the newest of the three, Fayetteville-Lincoln County Industrial Park. The addition of these companies to the local economic landscape was welcome news in the wake of Daikin’s announcement last year that it would be moving all of its U.S. operations to Houston—taking with it roughly 1,800 jobs.

“We’re working to offset that as much as possible. Our hope is that we can get many of the other companies here to replace [those jobs],” Middleton says, explaining that the board will continue to focus on existing industries rather than solely bringing new ones in. “It’s easier to build upon what you already have. The new industries are fabulous, but the bulk of job creation in your community comes within your existing industry.”

Pending government approval, construction of an 80,000-square-foot spec building in the Fayetteville-Lincoln County Industrial Park is also on the docket, which will allow Lincoln County “to participate in opportunities to attract new industries through the community,” Middleton says.

“Eighty-five percent of the folks looking for [space] are looking for existing buildings,” she says. “A lot of these companies are trying to find a building that may not be the perfect fit but something they can retrofit in a short amount of time to get their business either started or relocated and up and operational.”

in having such spaces available for companies to lease has kept it ahead of the curve and that Lincoln County has been lucky to have government with the mindset: “you’ve got to have inventory to market.”

“We’re really fortunate to have the existing industries that we do,” she concludes. “We go above and beyond to ensure that we capture any opportunities they may have for growth. My hope is that, in 10 years, our industrial parks that we currently own are completely full with new or expanded industries and that we’re searching for land.”

ACADEMIC EXCELLENCE

The area schools have a tradition of academic excellence. Our students score well above state average on Stanford Achievement tests and rank consistently near the top of the sixteen systems in the South Central District.

The curriculum and instructional programs are designed to meet the diverse needs of the students. A variety of extracurricular activities complement the academic offerings. Superior athletic and band programs involve a majority of students, with both programs ranking consistently first or second in the district.

Upon entering kindergarten, a child must be 5 years old on or before September 30 of the current school term. A pupil who attended an approved kindergarten in another state during the preceding year shall be enrolled in the first grade in Tennessee provided he is six years of age by December 31 of the current year.

LINCOLN COUNTY SCHOOLS

The Lincoln County School System offers the best in small town, rural community educational experiences. Located in Southern Middle Tennessee, our system is operated with the strong student performance standards in mind. High academic standards, strong community ties, spirited sports programs, and a sincere desire to help each student in our system to reach their full potential makes the Lincoln County School System one of the best in Tennessee.

FAYETTEVILLE CITY SCHOOLS

With a commitment to excellence, the Fayetteville City Schools will provide the best education for each student by providing advancement in technology, highly qualified instructors, and a safe learning environment.

Destruction of some City records and School Board minutes leaves the exact establishment date of the system unknown. City records indicate that the city system originated from a private academy, which was established in the early 1800's on the old Robert E. Lee campus. Records indicate, however, that the system as we know it probably became operational in 1910.

The Fayetteville City System has ranked among the top 10 systems in the state based on achievement and value added gains test results for many years. Clearly, expectations for employees and students are very high. A committed, dedicated staff recognizes the powerful correlation between time-on-task and high academic achievement, and the system's leaders recognize the powerful correlation between a low pupil-teacher ratio and high academic achievement.

VOCATIONAL & CONTINUING EDUCATION

There are two State Area Vocational-Technical Schools within driving distance of Fayetteville. One is located in Shelbyville, Tennessee (26 miles) and the other is in Pulaski, Tennessee (30 miles). These schools provide opportunities for area post high school youths to acquire further technical skills. In addition, these facilities offer supplementary job training programs for those workers interested in acquiring new skills or improving their technical ability for upgrading themselves in their present job.

Course schedules are available upon request from the schools.

Continuing Education courses are offered by the Lincoln County Department of Education, Motlow Community College and the State Area Vocational-Technical Schools.

Fayetteville, Lincoln County and surrounding areas will pass into this next century with the capability of a more highly skilled trained work force and a higher quality of life as a result of the Don Sundquist Center For Advanced Technology, which is located behind Motlow State Community College on Winchester Highway.

Riverside Christian Academy...Learning, Serving, & Leading

Riverside Christian Academy has been making a difference in the lives of children and families in our community for the past 16 years. Students at RCA receive a quality education that is focused on learning rather than testing. RCA's curriculum is based on state and national standards, but the way those standards are reached is up to the teachers and administration; this model allows teachers to help students learn in ways that help them excel. The quality of education at Riverside is evidenced by standardized test scores; RCA's senior class has outpaced local, state, and national averages on the ACT college readiness test for the past eight years in a row. The academic progress is only one part of the RCA story since 2001. We challenge our students to be "ALL IN" and serve God with all their heart, soul, mind, and strength. The word of God, character, and responsibility are taught daily in chapel and all classes. We believe Biblical worldview shaping is critically important for the next generation of leaders in our country, community, and churches, which is the fundamental reason behind our integration of God's word in every aspect of school life. We teach our students to love and glorify God in everything they do, in the classroom, on the field or court, and in the community. Christian education is an investment in a child's mind and heart. We invite you to visit us on the web at www.rcaknights.org or call us at 931-438-4722. Our staff is ready to work with your family to provide a faith-based education in a loving, Christian environment.

My Motlow. My Future.

Motlow State Community College is a public, multi-campus college in southern middle Tennessee offering certificates, associate degrees, and flexible learning pathways. For over 45 years, Motlow has proven to be a student-centered institution that promotes academic excellence as well as personal and professional growth.

The original campus is located in Moore County on 187 acres of land donated by the late Senator Reagor Motlow and family. In addition to the Moore County campus, the College boasts three learning centers in Fayetteville, McMinnville and Smyrna. The College serves over 540,000 citizens in Motlow's 11-county service area including: Bedford, Cannon, Coffee, DeKalb, Franklin, Lincoln, Moore, Rutherford, Van Buren, Warren and White.

The wide range of quality academic programs offered at Motlow results from the steady expansion of degree programs to provide alternatives for changing educational needs. In addition to general education courses, students may choose from two-year degree programs in over forty disciplines.

Motlow's highly ranked, accredited nursing program has consistently exceeded National Council Licensure Examination (NCLEX) pass rates at both the national and state levels. Other programs of national merit include the Education program, which was recently named one of the Top 50 Community College Education Programs in the country, and the Business program which recently earned reaccreditation from the Association for Collegiate Business Schools and Programs.

The College has partnered with other in-state universities allowing rural citizens to obtain four-year degrees while staying close to home. The 2+2 program in Elementary Education (K-6) in partnership with Tennessee Technological University allows students to earn a Bachelor of Science degree in elementary education in Motlow classrooms. The Management and Human Relations (MHR) program through Trevecca Nazarene University enables working adults to earn a bachelor's degree in 13 months by attending class one night a week at the Moore County campus. In addition, the 2+2 program in Criminal Justice Administration takes advantage of Motlow's partnership with Tennessee State University where students attend classes at Motlow's Moore county campus to work towards a bachelor's degree.

Motlow provides area high school students the opportunity to get a jump start on college courses with dual/joint enrollment. The Adult

College Express (ACE), a fast-track degree program designed for busy adults, leads to the Associate of Science in General Studies and the Associate of Applied Science in Early Childhood Education.

The quality, flexibility and variety of programs offered at Motlow meet the needs of students whether they are still in high school, recent high school graduates, returning to complete a degree, or seeking higher education for the first time as an adult student. Motlow College changes lives with faculty and staff that are committed to the success of students.

A Word From City Mayor Jon Law

As the Mayor of the City of Fayetteville, I warmly welcome and thank you for stopping to visit our small but vibrant community. We pride ourselves in welcoming guests and hope that your time with us is fun, educational, and meaningful. Our town square is one of the most beautiful in the South and offers visitors and residents alike a wonderful combination of architecture, history, and an opportunity to shop at a diverse mix of locally owned businesses and restaurants.

I am not a native of Fayetteville but my life here for the past 34 years has been filled with experiences that can only be fulfilled in an environment of "small town USA". The family values, the close knit relationships based on neighbors helping neighbors, and the belief that a community is only as good as the people that live, work, and give back for the good of one another. We are truly Tennessee "Volunteers"!

Whether you are just passing through, relocating, or visiting friends or family, Fayetteville offers you an experience steeped in southern culture and history, but focused on the future with plans to meet the fiscal, educational, and quality of life needs of our citizens. We hope that you enjoy your time in Fayetteville and hope that you will come back to visit or stay with us in the future.

~ Jon Law

A Word From County Mayor Bill Newman

I am Bill Newman, the mayor of this wonderful county in southern middle Tennessee. Our county is 570 square miles of southern hospitality, from our viable, attractive historic downtown square to our scenic country side, you will be amazed at what Lincoln County has to offer.

We are a very diversified county with agriculture being our largest industry. Lincoln County is one of the top producers of fine cattle in the state. Our agriculture sales include soybeans, corn, hay, wheat, cotton, nursery products, poultry and vegetables. We are fortunate to be home to manufacturers of bimetallic wire, automotive parts, snack foods, stainless steel kitchen equipment, fiberglass swimming pools, wood pallets and yes, two distilleries are local employers of our dedicated work force.

The Lincoln County Fair, is one of the most decorated and recognized fairs in Tennessee. There is no better place to enjoy the variety of entertainment and displays of agricultural products than our county fair. We are the only county fair in Tennessee that has harness racing.

Education is important to our residents. Lincoln County is home to a college and technology center. Our three school systems (2 public, 1 private Christian) have great traditions of excellence in the classroom and on the playing field;

Lincoln County is the home to numerous historical landmarks. Camp Blount is one of the few historic sites in Tennessee associated with the War of 1812. History is one of our best subjects, right there next to hospitality.

Our town square is a destination for those that love antiques and good food. The Lincoln County Courthouse sits in the middle of the Square and I would like for you to come and visit me. Whether it's for a day or the rest of your life, Lincoln County will find a place in your heart.

LEADERSHIP LINCOLN

P.O. Box 515 | Fayetteville, TN | 931-433-1234 | www.leadershiplincolntn.com

What Is Leadership Lincoln?

Leadership Lincoln is a personal development program designed to motivate participants to develop leadership qualities for addressing community needs.

Leadership Lincoln began in 1987. The program has produced leaders who are actively involved in community organizations, local government and civic groups, all working toward improving the quality of life for our county. Developing leaders is a key ingredient to the continued progress of Lincoln County.

What Is Leadership Lincoln's Purpose?

- To identify and develop potential leaders in business, government and the community and help prepare them for greater involvement in county affairs.
- To provide these leaders with a practical, clear and simple understanding of opportunities and problems facing Lincoln County.
- To enhance communication between future leaders and existing leadership, and improve networking among the participants.
- To increase participation and commitment in our community by meeting and exchanging ideas.

What Does Leadership Lincoln's Involve?

Leadership Lincoln consists of a day and a half retreat and eight one-day seminars, plus a class project. All areas of the program are designed to present a wide range of options and perspectives that encourage thoughtful discussion through lectures, panel presentation and a variety of group activities. This process enables the participants to become visionary leaders in the community. Class participants are required to attend the opening two day retreat, at least seven of the eight one-day seminars and participate in the class project to graduate from the program. Also, included in the graduation requirements are several out of class assignments such as attending local government meetings and board of education meetings. Graduates of the class receive 1.5 CEUs from Motlow University.

Who Can Participate?

Anyone with interest in our community is welcome to apply. Participants are selected on their own merits and should meet the following criteria:

- Desire for personal growth
- Commitment to qualify leadership in community activities
- Desire to improve the quality of life in our community
- Eagerness to learn about the challenges facing Lincoln County
- The participant must live or work in Lincoln County

Leadership Lincoln will provide you with meaningful personal interaction and a learning experience for yourself and Lincoln County.

THE CHAMBER STUDENT ADVISORY BOARD

The Chamber Student Advisory Board was formed in 1996 as a way to strengthen the Chamber’s relationship with the schools while developing the students’ interest, involvement and leadership in their community. The board consists of approximately twelve high school students that meet monthly. The meetings are held every third Thursday of the month. Meetings will deal with group agenda and upcoming events, but may also feature guest speakers who are familiar with different programs in Fayetteville and Lincoln County. The student board will also be asked to serve as a built-in “staff” by helping at different functions throughout the year; thereby familiarizing them with different programs and leadership opportunities in Fayetteville and Lincoln County. Student Board Members may be asked to volunteer at the Chamber from time to time in order to assist with the workload.

The board members will work on a point system throughout the year. Points for different activities will be awarded based upon participation. The board members with the most points at the end of the year will be rewarded with a $500 leadership scholarship.
