Abused kittens continue recovery

Two five week old kittens that were rescued from being repetitively thrown against a dumpster and dunked in water are continuing their recovery process in a foster home.

On May 24, the Maryland State Police in Princess Anne MD responded to an alleged animal cruelty call. A woman reported two juveniles for

ery. It is unclear whether the kittens will have permanent damage from the abuse. Edgar is having eye issues and it is possible he will be blind. Brown reported that both kittens are starting to come out of their shell and are playing with each other.

"My goal as Edgar and Poe's foster is to try to restore their faith in hu-repetitively throwing and attempting to drown the two small kittens. The woman assumed the kittens were dead as they lay motionless, soaked and injured. The Princess Anne woman then took the kittens to Somerset Animal Hospital; unfortunately it was after hours. She contacted the Maryland State Police where an on duty trooper responded. After realizing the kittens were still alive he transported them back to the State Police Barracks. Shortly after, a member of the Worcester County Humane Society rushed them to PETS ER in Salisbury and once they were stabilized were able to go to Healing Hands Animal Hospital, also in Salisbury where they were cared for until discharge to a foster home.

The kittens, Edgar (a tabby) and Poe (pure black) are now being fostered by Worcester County Humane Society employee, Ashley Brown where they will continue their recoverily," says Ashley Brown. "I want to show them that people do care about them. This entire community from the first responders all the way to the people sharing their story online pulled together for these two small beings. All the donations made and all the calls just to check in on them, this is the side of humanity I want them to know."

With veterinary bills estimated at about $2,000, the humane society has started a Go Fund Me account named Edgar and Poe's Recovery Fund, to help with the cost. So far the fund has raised over $1000 that will go directly to veterinary costs for the kittens. Anyone interested in donating can also do so on the shelter's website www.worcestercountymdhumane.org or mailing a check to: WCHS, 12330 Eagles Nest Road, Berlin, MD 21811 or P.O. Box 48, Berlin, MD 21811.

GM gives financial overview during meeting

By Kelsey Reichenberg

On May 26, the Ocean Pines Association (OPA) board of directors held their monthly public meeting in the Assateague Room of the Community Center. Both President Pat Renaud and Vice President Cheryl Jacobs were not present, but Renaud was able to participate via conference call speaker phone.

The meeting began as the General Manager Bob Thompson gave his report. First, he touched on the financial standing of the community's amenities, golf, the Yacht Club and aquatics.

Golf closed out the month $5,863 ahead of budget. Net revenues were $52,521 worse than budget and expenses were better than budget by $51,658 for the month. While golf is currently $15,661 worse than budget, year-over-year comparison reveals golf is $1,306 better for the same period last year.

Net revenues for the Yacht Club were $9,556 worse than budget for the month. Expenses were higher than budget by $18,876 for the month, and the club finished the month $28,433 below budget. While year-to-date net operating performance is $138,351 behind the budget, year-over-year comparison reflects a $105,656 improvement over last year for the same time period.

Aquatics' revenues for the month were $3,596 better than budget and expenses were $12,870 worse than budgeted. Net result, Aquatics ended the month $9,274 ahead of budget for the month. Year-to-date comparison shows that aquatics is $107,772 ahead of budget and $163,398 better than last year.

Thompson continued his report with updates on capital projects currently underway in Ocean Pines. He began with the DMA reserve study, which refers to the analysis of the physical status and the repair/replacement cost of the major common area components OPA is obligated to maintain as well as the evaluation and

Men and women over 50 who are considering returning to school may be eligible for financial assistance through various programs. According to the American Association of Retired Persons, older men and women who want to go back to school do not necessarily have to bankroll that expenditure on their own. AARP notes that the Internal Revenue Service offers tax breaks such as the American Opportunity Tax Credit and the Lifetime Learning Tax Credit that older students can take advantage of to lessen the blow of tuition costs, which have risen considerably since today's men and women over 50 were in college. Older men and women may also be able to take advantage of 529 college savings accounts they opened for their children that their kids did not end up needing. AARP also notes that men and women over 50 who want to apply for financial aid must be prepared to enroll in more than one class and in more than just a continuing education program. More information is available at aarp.org.

Preparedness guide is an effective tool

The 2016 Atlantic hurricane season begins today, June 1 and runs through November 30, which is when most tropical cyclones form. The Worcester County Commissioners and Worcester County Emergency Services (WCES) urge residents to prepare now for weather-related emergencies that could arise.

It only takes one powerful storm to devastate lives, homes and communities. Fortunately, preplanning for disasters can significantly reduce our vulnerability to severe weather. Develop a disaster supply kit, and create an evacuation plan that includes where each family member should meet in the event of an emergency or if they become separated. With a little advance planning, families can be prepared to act in the event that a storm develops on the horizon, know their vulnerabilities and what actions to take ahead of time to help minimize the effects of a hurricane disaster.

"I fully subscribe to the National Weather Service's mantra 'It only takes one' when it comes to preplanning for disasters," WCES Director Fred Webster said. "Hurricanes, tornadoes and even severe thunderstorms can cause major damage and can severely impact families on Delmarva. Resolve today to prepare ahead of time."

Disaster kits should contain general items, such as bottled water, a battery operated radio and extra batteries, flashlights, canned food and a manual can opener, sleeping bags or blankets, first aid kit, personal care items, and extra clothes. Kits should also include other essentials that are specific to each family, such as prescription and non-prescription medicines and glasses, infant formula or diapers if needed, cash, and proof of residency. Some items, such as prescriptions and formula, should be replaced with new or fresh supplies every couple of months. Follow label directions or check with your pharmacist for storage information.

Proof of residency will be needed in the event that the area in which you live sustains extensive damage and is closed to the general public for any period of time. Other hurricane preparations that can be made at any time include purchasing flood insurance and inventorying personal property. The inventory should include digital pictures or videos of your property and belongings before the storm.

Pet owners, your emergency plan should include how to provide for any animals in your care in an emergency, and include each animal's needs in your emergency supply kit. Pre-arrange boarding for your pet if it will not be residing with you during an emergency.

While putting together a family emergency plan may seem like a daunting task, the Family Emergency Preparedness Guide, developed by WCES, can be used to help you write this plan. Pick up a copy of the guide at the Worcester County Government Center in Snow Hill and at all Worcester County branch libraries, or go to www.co.worcester.md.us, the county homepage, and click on the YouTube link to watch the video Prepare for the Hurricane Season. Be #HurricaneStrong.

It all started with a toy boat

For those of you who have read this column during the past decade, you know that I love boating and that my boat is my mistress. My wife has said that I'd probably pause a little too long before answering whether she or my boat is more important to me. I don't

It's All About. . .

By Chip Bertino

chipbertino@delmarvacourier.com

think I'd hesitate when giving the answer; but I would have to sleep on the boat for awhile.

When I was a child I had a fleet of plastic boats that I played with in the tub or on the floor or, during the summer, on the sandbars behind my grandparents' home at the shore. For hours I would play, pulling the boats behind me with a long string or building marinas out of sand and sticks. I would use fishing sinkers as anchors. My grandfather wasn't too happy when I would raid his tackle box for another "anchor" for yet another toy boat.

My favorite toy boat was a blue and green cabin cruiser. I don't know why, but it was. Although this particular boat was one of several dozen in my fleet, it was first among equals, usually getting the best slip in any marina I constructed. I believe it is drydocked (read: in a bag filled with my old toys) in my attic.

Runabouts under 20 feet have always held a particular interest with me. These are the types of boats with which I grew up. Down the street from my grandparents house was Hap's Pier. In addition to the fishing pier, he had an anchorage that accommodated about 15 or 20 boats that were owned by what we called "weekenders" who came down to go fishing on the weekends. The boats weren't fancy really but to me they each had a personality. My brother and I nicknamed many of them. There was the "Bat Boat," the "Gold Boat," "Baldi's Boat" and "Hap's Brother's Boat." The monikers may not have been terribly creative but they worked for us. As I write this I can still see many of them floating at their moorings on a tranquil summer day.

When the tide went out and the boats were resting quietly on the sandbars, I would walk around them to get a closer look. Occasionally, old man Hap would chase me away. Many of those old boats are now considered classics. I'm sure though that many of them were long ago destroyed.

It pains me when I see an old boat in someone's yard just wasting away and overgrown with vegetation. I can almost hear the boat pleading to be returned to the water one last time. I know that sounds crazy. My wife says I'm a "boat whisperer" and maybe she's right. If I could spend my time anyway I wanted, I would love to restore old boats, making them water-worthy again so that families wanting a boat but unable to afford one could enjoy the pleasure that is boating. Boating brings families together in ways that are undeniable and most important. Not only that but boating helps build a lot of family memories. That has certainly been the case with my family.

My first boat was an eight foot wooden row boat built by my grandfather. I loved it and spent countless hours in her rowing, fishing or just sitting listening to the water lap her hull. It was time well spent.

I've had many experiences during the years I've been boating. As a teenager I once got caught in a storm on the Delaware Bay. Black clouds and wind came up unexpectedly and scared the you-know-what out of me. The episode lasted about fifteen minutes but seemed like forever. I rode it out and in the process got a whole lot smarter about the fury of nature.

I've had more than my fair share of engine problems, especially with the old outboards we had when I was a kid. They usually got me to my fishing destination but conked out on the way in. Thankfully I always had an alternate propulsion system: oars.

There are many memories of experiences and people that come to mind when I think about boating, such as fishing with my grandfather and father-in-law; my children and my nieces and nephews diving off the bow of our boat, splashing around in the water. I think about a girlfriend who was forced to keep my boat from getting beached after the engine broke down while I sought help. I eventually married that girl just to make it up to her. Lucky her.

It's been a long time since I played with toy boats and constructed marinas in the sand. Oh, but what an influence that time has had on me over the years!

Strawberry season is here. After the cold spell we have had we hope that the cold did not harm the delicate blossoms. Strawberries are so versatile from breakfast fruits to salads and then dessert. We can mix them with other fruits for a nice fruit bowl in the morning, a healthy salad for lunch and then more strawberries at dinner for dessert.

Freezing strawberries is so easy and a good way to take advantage of the short season. Cut out the stem caps and slice any very large ones. Add 3/4 cup sugar to every 4 cups of berries. Pack in zip-lock bags or plastic containers. Then enjoy in recipes or over ice cream at a later date.

Ocean Pines Kiwanis celebrates anniversary

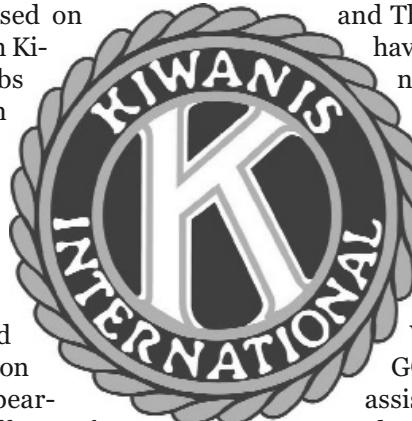

By David Landis, Sr.

It was April 12, 1980 and the Charter of the Kiwanis Club of Ocean Pines was presented and the officers installed by then Capital District Governor Malcolm Livick in the Ocean Pines Yacht Club. The Kiwanis Club of Delmar, DE was the sponsoring Kiwanis Club. Based on information, which Kiwanian Dick Jacobs had compiled in 2006, the club had its first meeting on February 20, 1980 at a local restaurant with the minimum 25 required members. Formation of the club was spearheaded by the efforts of James Grimm who had been a member of Kiwanis in Baltimore before moving to Ocean Pines in 1979.

On Wednesday May 18, in the Ocean Pines Yacht Club, the 36th anniversary of the club's charter was celebrated with a luncheon chaired by Peg Morton. Members from other Capital District 5 clubs, the Millsboro, DE and Bridgeville, DE clubs, were in attendance, as was the District's Lt. Governor John Hassman.

Several members were recognized for their service anniversaries: Ralph Chinn (20 years), J. Graham Caldwell and Al Levine (15 years), Gloria Bassich (10 years) and Stella Hartington (5 years).

On May 25th, 17 scholarships were awarded at Stephen Decatur High School. Donations were also given to local schools in support of their programs such as Buckingham Elementary and Showell Elementary schools' Kiwanis Student Leadership Clubs for elementary students, known as K-Kids, exist; Berlin Intermediate School and Stephen Decatur Middle School where Kiwanis Builders Clubs exist. Stephen Decatur High School and The Salisbury School each have a Key Club. The Kiwanis Club judges Science and Art/Essay contests at Showell Elementary and also provides funds to the Ocean Pines Department of Recreation and Parks in support of children's programs. Worcester County GOLD's Priority One which assists children from prenatal to age 5 is another of the club's recipients. There are also community service programs in which the club participates and donates.

Father and son exhibit opens Friday

"Father & Son," a show of art by two pairs of real-life fathers and sons timed to honor Father's Day, will be on display through June at the Ocean City Center for the Arts. The public is invited to the free opening reception on First Friday, June 3, from 5-7 p.m. to meet the artists and enjoy complimentary refreshments.

Also opening on First Friday in the Thaler Gallery is the annual group photography and digital media show.

Delaware artists Chase and Gregg Rosner have two unique approaches to art. Father Chase is a retired graphic artist and old-house restorer who now sculpts in wood, with the objective of capturing the subject's essence. Son Gregg, who works as the manager for Rehoboth Bay Sailing Club and volunteers for MERR and the Surfrider Foundation, works in photography, sculpture and mixed media, and has produced impressions of his father for this show.

Maryland artists Dean and Christian Peterson also have their independent visions. Father Dean, who currently teaches photography and digital imaging at Salisbury University, uses various photographic processes to explore his ongoing interest in abstract image making. Son Christian works in bold, graphic colors with imagery that represents singular moments in his life's journey, from high-energy music concerts to clean barreling waves.

Painter Becky Simonds occupies Studio E in June. Born in Baltimore and currently residing in Ocean Pines, she attended the Baum School of Art in Allentown, Pa. and paints in oils and watercolors.

The Spotlight Gallery hosts Susan Buyer, who enjoyed a long career at the National Library of Medicine in Bethesda before moving to Berlin. She works in encaustic, a mixture of natural beeswax and damar resin (crystallized tree sap) that adds translucency to her art.

Berlin resident Bonnie Preziosi is the artisan in residence for June. A graduate of MICA and an avid surfer, she makes nature-inspired, one-of-a-kind jewelry, often embellished with crochet.

The Ocean City Center for the Arts at 502 94th Street is the home of the Art League of Ocean City, a nonprofit organization dedicated to promoting the visual arts in the Ocean City area through education, exhibits, scholarships, programs and community art events. The arts center is supported by memberships, donations, sales of art, and corporate and civic funding (in part by the Worcester County Arts Council).

DAR awards good citizens

The General Levin Winder Chapter of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution recently recognized DAR Good Citizens at four Worcester County high schools. Recipients Kenny Christopher, Pocomoke High School, Kallie Blakelock, Snow Hill High School, Allison Jade Shumate, Stephen Decatur High School, and Cassandra Juliet Stevens, Worcester Preparatory School, were awarded a DAR Good Citizens certificate, lapel pin and gift card.

According to DAR Good Citizens chairman Pat Arata, the program was initiated by the National Society in 1934 to recognize male and female high-school seniors who exemplify the qualities of a good citizen: dependability, service, leadership, and patriotism. It is open to all senior class students enrolled in accredited public or private secondary schools that are in good standing with their State Boards of Education. United States citizenship is not required. For more information on the DAR, visit www.dar.org.

Drowning not the only water hazard

Spending time on the water can be quite enjoyable. That is why thousands of people own boats and visit coastal areas throughout the year to fish, sail and swim. Marine transportation also provides a fast and efficient method of commuting.

As fun as a day or night on the water can be, maritime accidents do occur, despite the best efforts and intentions of recreational or commercial boaters and water enthusiasts. Many accidents can be avoided when boaters remain aware of the potential hazards that exist on the water.

Bodies of water can seem peaceful and welcome respites on a hot day. But water-related accidents, particularly unintentional drownings, account for roughly 3,500 fatalities in a given year in the United States. Furthermore, about one in five people who die from drowning are children ages 14 and younger. Those who do not experience fatal accidents may receive emergency care for nonfatal submersion injuries, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Here are some of the other dangers that can occur in and around the water.

-Dehydration: Being in and around the water doesn't necessarily mean the body is getting enough fluid to remain healthy. When the temperature is high, dehydration can set in within an hour, often through loss of moisture from sweat, urine and even breathing. A person who is cool from swimming may not realize his body needs water until dehydration already has set in. Drinking plenty of fresh water will help keep the body cool and comfortable.

-Hypothermia: Hypothermia occurs when the body loses more heat than it produces and the core temperature drops. Hypothermia may even occur in warm water, or if you are sitting around in damp clothing as the temperature outside falls. Try to remain as dry as possible, even preventing clothing from being dampened by sweat, to prevent hypothermia. Cover up and wear layers of clothes to ward off hypothermia.

-Marine life: Tropical marine life is not always friendly, and there may be some apex predators in the surrounding waters. It is adviseable to research what fish and other marine creatures inhabit the waters where you plan to spend some time. Although many animals will keep their distance, there is the potential for run-ins with seemingly innocuous creatures that can cause injury. Always keep a respectable distance from underwater animals when snorkeling, swimming and exploring.

-Water quality: The water itself could be a source of danger. Harmful bacteria and other microorganisms can reside in poorly maintained water or water with limited movement. Heed all posted warnings about swimming conditions, and do not consume fish from waters where there is concern about chemical spills or other contamination. Staff infections and skin irritations can occur when swimming in water with unseen pathogens, even if the water looks clean.

-Toys: A surprisingly common cause of water-related accidents, especially in swimming pools, is using toys and flotation devices that are not suitable for the conditions. These items can flip over and trap people upside down under the water. Furthermore, pool floats and rafts should not be used in place of personal flotation devices, or PFDs, which are designed and certified for use in life-saving situations.

-Chemicals: The chemicals needed to maintain safety and water quality in a backyard pool can be dangerous. Many chemicals can be toxic in high concentrations and volatile when stored in close proximity to others. Homeowners may be playing novice chemist when mixing chemicals for the pool, inadvertently putting themselves and swimmers at risk. Always follow the precautions on pool chemical packaging to ensure the water is safe.

-Alcohol: Alcoholic beverages impair decision-making abilities and reaction time. It's never good to mix alcohol with swimming and boating. A person operating a boat or watercraft should not be allowed to do so when under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

Many good times are to be had when enjoying the recreational benefits of the water. Keeping safety in mind will help prevent accidents and injuries.

Exploring Jupiter and its moons

By Douglas Hemmick, Ph.D.

The month of June is the beginning of vacation season, and it is hoped that good clear weather for stargazing will prevail. As people begin to enjoy time away from work, stargazing may be an attractive pastime.

The topic for June is the exploration of the planet Jupiter. Can stunning images such as active volcanoes and tall water spouts be found in space, beyond Earth? Jupiter and its moons hold some answers.

Located as the fifth planet from the Sun, the gas giant planet Jupiter is well outside the realm of the terrestrial planets, Mercury, Venus, Earth and Mars. A spacecraft going to Jupiter must travel about eight times farther than one visiting Mars. History fans may recall that Galileo first observed Jupiter's four largest moons. Today's astronomers have identified as many as 67 moons orbiting the enormous planet Jupiter.

The first probes to reach Jupiter were Pioneer-10 launched in 1972 and Pioneer-11 launched the following year. Along the path of their 20-month journeys the Pioneers became the first probes to cross the asteroid belt, thus raising the possibility of collisions. Safe passage of both Pioneer craft confirmed that there is abundant space between the asteroids, making collisions improbable. The Pioneer probes measured Jupiter's intense radiation belts, giving astronomers the first concrete assessment of this potential danger.

The Voyager-I and II probes arrived at Jupiter in March and July 1979. These fly-by craft took a series of images spanning more than a month and included 100 hours of close-ups. The two Voyager crafts took more than 52,000 images of Jupiter and its four major moons. These images revealed the energetic motions of Jupiter's giant cyclones, which changed patterns in just a few hours.

The next Jupiter probe Galileo arrived at the giant planet in 1995. The Galileo craft included both an orbiting module and an entry probe, designed to dive down into the planet itself. This atmospheric probe was released from the main spacecraft months before its high-speed entry into the giant planet's atmosphere.

Fiction with the Jovian atmosphere initially slowed the craft's speed, followed by a parachute deployment. The small probe collected information for 58 minutes, before the enormous pressure of the Jovian atmosphere destroyed it. Discoveries by this probe included an intense radiation belt above Jupiter's clouds, wind speeds of 220 mph, as well as lightning larger than Earth's.

Galileo's orbiting module spent eight years circling the planet gathering significant volumes of data. One of the orbiter's most fascinating discoveries has led scientists to the idea of a vast hidden ocean on Jupiter's moon Europa. Early observations by Voyager probes had noted a series of lines criss-crossing the surface of this moon. However the Galileo orbiter found that the Europa's patterns were changing with time. In addition, there were observations of gravitational flexing of Europa, altering the moon's overall contours and producing internal heating. These observations have led to the theory that Europa's cracks and streaks are occurring within a thick icy crust covering a liquid ocean hidden beneath.

Recent evidence of water plumes on Europa is consistent with the hidden ocean theory. In 2013 Hubble Space Telescope images revealed subsurface water venting from Europa's south pole with large geysers, 120 miles high.

An earlier, stunning discovery came in 1979 when Voyager-I examined Jupiter's moon, "Io" (eye-oh). Photos captured an actual volcanic eruption, as well as remnants of ancient lava rivers. Eight active volcanoes put on a display for the passing probe, sending plumes 250 miles into space. Gravitational distortion of Io contributes an internal heat source driving the volcanoes. In 1997 the Hubble Space Telescope also observed Io's volcanic plumes.

Further efforts to explore Jupiter are in progress with NASA's latest mission Juno. The Juno vehicle was launched in August 2011—it is now in flight and scheduled to arrive on July 4, 2016. Seems an astronomy treat for the upcoming holiday.

June's stars will become fully visible about 9:30 p.m. Leo the Lion appears high in the western sky, while the Big Dipper appears to the north of the zenith, the highest point overhead. The bright planet Jupiter is visible just to the south of Leo. The constellation Bootes the Herdsman flies high overhead and slightly east of the zenith. This kite-shaped constellation features the bright star Arcturus. The planet Mars will become visible after about 10 p.m.

A fascinating conjunction will take place on June 10. The moon will be lo-

Recreational and sports summer camps gear up

Worcester County Recreation & Parks (WCRP) staff are gearing up for the 2016 recreational and sports summer camp season and will deliver eight weeks of action-packed camps at the Worcester County Recreation Center (WCRC) in Snow Hill and other county locations. Most camps are open to school-age children entering grades 1 through 8.

New this summer, a Follow Me Robot Camp, open to youth ages 7-12, will take place at the WCRC in conjunction with Sciensational Workshops for Kids Inc. Children will build their very own robots to take home and keep.

Baseball camp is open to children ages 6 to 16. Lacrosse camp is open to boys, grades 5-12, and the new Follow Me Robot Camp is open to children ages 7 - 12.

WCRP will offer traditional sport camps that teach fundamental skills in basketball, soccer, tennis, flag football, field hockey, and track. Participants will take part in daily drills, modified games, and full games.

For children who cannot choose just one sport, WCRP offers sports combo camps and recreation sports camps that will cover a wide range of traditional and non-traditional sports.

Auxiliary makes donation

The Auxiliary of Atlantic General Hospital and Health System recently held its annual awards luncheon and presented President and CEO, Michael Franklin, with a check in the amount of $50,000 toward the Campaign for the Future for their fiscal year 2016 fundraising efforts.

Judy Baumgartner, Auxiliary Teen Volunteer Coordinator, presented an award to Stephen Decatur High School student, Dana Kim, for her service to the hospital. Ms. Kim accumulated the most service hours of any AGH high school volunteer in history.

"Ms. Kim's service is a great accomplishment, and we are so blessed to have the help and support of our high school volunteers. Ms. Kim should be quite proud of her commitment to serving AGH and the community," said Judy Baumgartner, teen volunteer coordinator.

Volunteers who have contributed 100 hours of service or more to the hospital and health system were also recognized. Volunteers support Atlantic General Hospital by donating their time and expertise in every aspect of the Hospital and Health System as well as in the community, providing more than 30,000 hours of service to the hospital annually. Volunteers also serve on Hospital teams and committees providing crucial insight and community support to Atlantic General Hospital.

WCDC to hold tournament

The Worcester County Developmental Center (WCDC) announces its 10th annual golf tournament to be held on Tuesday, June 14, at the Ocean City Golf Club. Bill Gibbs and The Dough Roller family are again leading the way as event sponsors, and Cecil Tull is at the helm for the 10th year as tournament chair.

Over the past nine years, this great time on the course for a great cause has raised money for adults who live with an intellectual disability in Worcester, Wicomico and Somerset counties. The money has purchased commercial laundry equipment, catering ware, lawn mowers, pallet jacks and hand trucks which have both provided employment for the WCDC clients and helped prepare them for jobs in the community.

The day will include 18 holes on the Newport Bay Course, buffet lunch and heavy hors d'oeuvres prepared and served by the clients of WCDC, free drinks on the course, an open bar post play and a door prize and goody bag for every golfer.

Registration and lunch open at 12:30 p.m. , followed by a shotgun start at 1:30 p.m.

You can join in on the fun and help the WCDC cause through various levels of sponsorship, including team and hole, or by donating gifts and prizes for the golfers. For more information about the tournament, go to the WCDC website, www.wcdc-services.org or contact Jack Ferry at 410.632.2382, ext. 117 or Cecil Tull at 410.213.2022.

analysis of the OPA's reserve balance, income, and expenses. "I'm working with the Controller, Assistant Treasurer and staff to finalize the next steps of the draft," stated Thompson. "The draft memo has been crafted and is in final review now. It will be distributed to the board next week."

Next, Thompson went on to discuss repairs to the Country Club. "Over recent months, the Country Club experienced significant water intrusion," Thompson explained. "We removed siding, replaced flashing and created a French drain outside the building." The board plans to continue monitoring for any further water intrusion but believes that the repairs will prevent it from happening

Sports combo camps include traditional sports, such as basketball, soccer, volleyball, and whiffle ball, as well as additional activities, such as badminton and ping pong. Recreation sports camps will offer a variety of games, such as ultimate frisbee, dodgeball, and kickball.

Outdoors Adventure camp and Theme Week camp will also return this summer. The Outdoor Adventure camp will allow participants to explore what our grounds have to offer and take part in different nature games, art projects, and scavenger hunts. During Theme Week camp, participants will experience a different theme and related activities.

For camps held at the WCRC, Early Bird, Sunset, and both half-day and full-day camps are available to fit a variety of busy family schedules.

WCRC has partnered up with some great organizations again this summer to offer additional sports camps. Northern Worcester Athletic complex will host Baseball Camp in partnership with Mid-Atlantic Shockers and a Boys Lacrosse Camp with Coach Kevin Gates.

Two-day camps will be offered again this summer at Frontier Town Water again. The board is now looking at ways to further improve the club.

Thompson went on to remind everyone that the RFP for the Beach Club bathrooms has been prepared, and he explained that he has met with a local architect to help identify additional areas of consideration. "Our internal goal is to have the RFP out by the second week of June."

The next project, bridge repair, was approved last month. "The scope and contract are being reviewed internally," said Thompson.

Thompson went on to discuss the water intrusion experienced at the double doors of the Community Center and how they fixed the problem. "We installed a French drain at the rear of the building, rubber membrane 18" above grade and a catch basin," Thompson explained. They also tied a pipe from the building to the parkway ditch and replaced pipe along the parkway from 15" to 18" squash pipe. The last step includes installing a retaining wall 3' from the building.

A contract has been awarded for the road striping project to begin in Ocean Pines. Due to rainy weather the past couple of weeks, the project has been delayed. However, it should begin in the Parke within the next two weeks.

The final contract for the next project of discussion, the White Horse Park bathrooms, is being completed. "The plans have been drawn, and specifications on faucets and fixtures have been provided," stated Thompson. "The next step is to submit the contract to Worcester County for permits."

Thompson went on to give updates on repairs to the Beach Club. "The materials are in for the roof and work is underway." He also announced that the St. Martin's stormwater pipe replacement project has been completed.

Thompson concluded his report with discussion of the Manklin Meadows Complex project. In a meeting last month, the board asked that the general manager go back and look at other options so the project would not be as expensive. With that, Thompson met with a company to discuss the costs of repurposing two of the tennis courts into pickleball courts. The total estimated cost came to $22,600. The board had a lengthy discussion regarding the project, but no motions or decisions were made.

Following Thompson's report, he announced that 152 Teal Circle is a current CPI violation due to multiple trailers on the property. The board voted to allow the attorney to take action on the violation. The board also voted on capital items including golf mowers, a golf sprayer, Yacht Club tiki bar awnings, the Mumford's pool parking lot pavement, and the Yacht Club food truck. The board voted and there was a tie on the mowers, sprayer and food truck, and therefore they were not approved and a special meeting will be held in the near future to resolve and revote on those items. The tiki bar awnings and repaving of the pool parking lot were approved.
