Massachusetts General Hospital investigators may have uncovered a novel mechanism behind the ability of the diabetes drug metformin to inhibit the progression of pancreatic cancer. In their report that has been published in the open access journal PLOS One, the research team describes finding that metformin decreases the inflammation and fibrosis characteristic of the most common form of pancreatic cancer. Their findings indicate that this beneficial effect may be most prevalent in overweight and obese patients.

PrEP, or pre-exposure prophylaxis, is the first medicine that the Food and Drug Administration has approved to be shown effective to prevent infection with HIV. Nearly 50,000 new cases of HIV occur in the United States every year. Many doctors might be worried about prescribing PrEP for safety reasons. In a study published in Open Forum Infectious Diseases, researchers reviewed major studies of both PrEP for HIV prevention and aspirin for heart attack prevention. They found that both had similar low rates of serious side effects. Aspirin users rarely had serious bleeding or death and PrEP users rarely had serious kidney or bone damage.

The use of proton pump inhibitors, the popular medications used to treat gastroesophageal reflux and peptic ulcers, may be associated with an increased risk of dementia in a study using data from a large German health insurer, according to an article published online by JAMA Neurology.

BLUE TAG SPECIALS:
 We have HUNDREDS of non-advertised items marked down throughout our entire store. More savings passed on to our customers. Just look for blue tags on the shelves.

NO LIMITS:
 Our competitors also have advertised specials. The difference is, in most cases, they have a limit on how many of an item you can buy at the sale price...we don't have any limits to family shoppers.

Many protestants claim to be Christians and say the Catholics are not! The Reformation act (Protestants) did not occur until the early 14th century! Yet history reveals the so called Christian crusades began in early 11th century to drive the Muslims out of Jerusalem, that commenced with a call to arms by Pope Urban II. Many protestants have been led to believe their doctrines for worship are by The Holy Grace of The Almighty Father Elohim. Yet history reveals most were started by the Roman Catholic church: Sunday worship, Easter (in 325 CE), Christmas, Valentine day, Halloween, etc! History even reveals the connections with pagan worship! So Be It! Ron & Jeri
