At The Corral Gate

Enola Gay

It's hot! Coping with this Texas heat is just a part of daily life at this point of the summer. I hope you have a shady place, and I hope you can find the time to retreat to that shady place! Often, I take notice of my horses standing beneath the shade of the trees and grazing on the green grass that nature provides, and I'm a little bit jealous. We have to work so hard for our creature comforts!!

As far as the indoors, here are a few tips for staying cooler.

1. Consider planting trees around your house to provide shade. This can keep your home cooler and reduce your cooling bill. In addition to shade, all those leaves act like "little fans" and actually increase the breeze!
2. Consider "solar screens" on your home's windows. These screens reflect the sun's heat, keep your home cooler and keep energy costs down. If you are a FEC customer, you may be able to get rebates on solar screens, LED light bulbs, insulation and energy-efficient water heaters.
3. Use smaller cooking appliances during the heat of the summer, like your toaster, crock pot and microwave. Think twice before you use the burners or the oven! These really heat up the house!
4. Use fans in addition to air conditioning. Although fans don't actually cool a room, the moving air that fans produce can cool the people in the room by about 5 degrees.
5. Replace your old incandescent light bulbs with the new cooler LED's. About 85% of the electricity used by incandescent light bulbs is turned into heat.
6. Get the new advanced power strips that can help stop "electricity draw" by your electronics and appliances. The new strips look like the old ones, but they prevent costly power draw that occurs even when your computer, televisions, appliances and gadgets are unused or turned off.

Aaahhh..those good ole summertime foods...corn on the cob grillin' and sweet watermelon and cantaloupe chillin'. I know many of us try to eat as healthy as we can. Many of us grow some of our food and also enjoy "natural" and "organic" products from the store. True, some of the most common staples in our kitchens may contain GMO ingredients, but up til now we have been able to make personal choices through careful label reading. That may be about to change nationwide if a bill that would modify current GMO labeling passes the House. After months of arguing and bargaining, the Senate voted in favor of the bill last week. As of now, it has not come before the House of Representatives. The essence of the bill is that food manufacturers and producers will have to disclose GMO ingredients but won't have to put the information right on the label. The labels could disclose required information in three ways: with a written statement on the package, with a phone number or link to a website, or with a QR code that could be scanned by a smart phone. Critics of this bill are calling it a "no-label" labeling law, and also claim that many foods containing GMO's could be exempt from labeling. Let's watch how this develops. Let's also look seriously at planting and growing a garden. There's still time for a fall garden!

FOOD LABELING AND WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW

GENETICALLY MODIFIED ORGANISMS

WHAT? Genetically modified organisms (GMOs) are organisms in which the genetic material has been altered in a way that does not occur naturally.

WHY? It makes an organism function differently than it would naturally. The genetic material is altered to produce a new product with a new trait, gene, or trait. Genetically modified organisms are used in many ways.

RISKS? There are many risks associated with GMOs. The biggest concern is the possibility of allergenicity. Other risks include the possibility of increased antibiotic resistance and the possibility of increased pesticide use.

Nutrition Facts None of Your Business

Ingredients: Genetically Modified Organisms. Nutrition Facts: None of Your Business. This is a parody of a nutrition label.

Meantime, I'm entertaining thoughts of watermelon time under the cool shade tree and other simple country delights while waiting for you to join me at the corral gate!

100 HORSES IN HISTORY

Tumbleweed Smith

Tumbleweed Smith

The other day Gayle Stewart of Spicewood was looking at some of her books and found Black Beauty signed by her Godmother in 1964. She has several books about horses which she considers treasures and will never get rid of them. She describes herself as horse crazy.

"From the time I was four years old I've always loved horses. I took my first riding lesson at eight, then got the whole family involved. My brother rodeoed, my sister had a Shetland pony named Jim Bob, named after Jim Bob Altizer, the famous roper from Del Rio. The fascination with horses just grew and grew and became a family project that was just wonderful. It was the best time of my family's life, really. Then we turned eighteen and couldn't compete in junior shows any more so we turned to other interests."

She studied political science and journalism at the University of Oklahoma and after graduation worked for newspapers and ad agencies doing feature stories on horses. Some of her writings have appeared in major publications and she has won numerous awards. She has written a book titled 100 Horses in History, true stories of horses who shaped our world.

"My brother came to visit and it's funny how these things happen," says Gayle. "I was opening a magazine and there was an ad from Franklin Mint for a small statue of Traveller, Robert E. Lee's horse. So we went around the table taking turns mentioning famous horses. My brother, who is really smart and is a college professor, said to me, 'you've been writing about these horses, why don't you open a file on your computer and every time you think of a horse, put him in. Before you know it you'll have a book.' It wasn't quite that easy, but that's how it got started."

The book features horses from all over the world and includes western movie stars Trigger, Silver and Champion; Wimpy, the quarter horse from the King Ranch; Black Jack, the ceremonial horse for JFK's funeral procession; Copenhagen, who carried the Duke of Wellington into the Battle of Waterloo against Napoleon and the horse Lady Godiva rode nude through the streets of Coventry.

Gayle traveled all over the US and the UK doing research for her book. Her husband is a pilot and that helped with some transportation bills.

"I just scoured libraries and made sure I footnoted everything. It took ten years to do the research and write the book. I kind of took my time. It took a while to get letters and information back, then I checked and double-checked all my facts. I drew on my own experiences and my own love of certain horses and then added others, like Snowman, the first jumper to win the triple crown of show jumping."

Her book contains vintage photographs and artwork. 100 Horses in History is available for $19.95 at museums, horse parks, bookstores and Amazon. www.tumbleweedsmith.com

HOPKINS COUNTY "HAYSTACK" CHOIR VISITS NEW YORK CITY

Haystack at Liberty Island.

Haystack at Statue of Liberty.

Haystack at Washington Square Park.

Haystack Choir at NY Mets Game

Haystack at Washington Square Park.

Haystack Choir at United Nations Bldg.

Haystack Choir at Trinity Church.

Two dozen "Haystack" (Hopkins Area Youth Singing to Anoint Christ King) high-school singers got a taste of the Big Apple during an Independence season trip to New York City. The town was still festooned with red, white and blue when the group arrived on July 5. They discovered that while New York is fiercely American, it is also an international mecca where flags, dialects and symbols of cultural pride are on display everywhere.

The travel group headquartered at The Row NY Hotel on 8th Avenue in a neighborhood near Broadway and Times Square. They discovered subway travel, digital billboards looming above, crowded sidewalks and a smorgasbord of restaurants. They did some shopping and sightseeing, and a lot of walking and singing. They met with an appreciation and acceptance of their gift of music to the city. In fact, a welcome much larger than might have been imagined was awaiting them on Day 4 of the trip. As the nation was mourning the shootings of police officers in Dallas, Texas, a wave of sympathy was expressed by people when they found out the young singers were Texans. Everywhere the group sang that day, including the U.N. building, individuals came up and expressed sorrow for the tragedy. It turned out to be an opportune time to be "goodwill ambassadors" from Texas.

Haystack Choir director Kevin Wooley and his wife Juli organized the trip for the enjoyment and enrichment of the youth members. A dozen adult sponsors kept pace with the teens to visit the Empire State Building, Statue of Liberty, Ellis Island, Battery Park, historic Trinity Church, the Ground Zero Memorial and St. Paul Chapel, Central Park, Times Square, Good Morning America and Today Show sets, Rockefeller Center, New York Public Library, Grand Central Station, the United Nations building, Broadway's "Alladin" and a game at NY Mets stadium. The choir presented free concerts for onlookers at several locations. In turn, the singers were impressed by New Yorkers who turned out to be helpful and hospitable, making for a positive, fun experience in "the city". Now, a Haystack Choir trip to another exciting location is being planned for 2017!
