 Photos of several local soldiers already have been collected for the Wall of Faces display, which will be located near the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Wall in Washington, D.C. The photos include, from the left, Willard A. Godfrey of Milton, killed Feb. 7, 1967, in Vietnam; David P. Hellenbrand of Janesville, killed Dec. 1, 1968, in Bien Hoa Province and John J. Fieldler of Janesville, killed July 29, 1967, in Vietnam. The Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund is working to locate photos of all 58,286 soldiers listed on the wall to be included in a new education center.

Memorial group seeks photos of Vietnam veterans who were killed in service

U.S. Army Lt. David Johnson was killed in action on Jan. 25, 2012, while fighting in Afghanistan. The soldier's body was flown home to parents Andrew and Laura Johnson, and though their grief was tremendous, they weren't left alone in their mourning.

Veterans turned out in support for a service at the 24-year-old's high school in the small city of Mayville. The former soldiers, mostly Vietnam veterans, honored the Johnson family by brandishing American flags and commemorating the sacrifice Johnson had made for his country.

IN BRIEF

JANESVILLE

■ Petitions submitted to city council: Two petitions spearheaded by Janesville resident Bill McCoy have been forwarded to the Janesville City Council. One petition asks the council to halt the construction of the proposed fire station on Milton Avenue. The other caps spending on city projects. City Clerk Jean Wulf said McCoy's petitions were filed properly and had the appropriate number of valid signatures. McCoy obtained more than 3,500 signatures for both petitions. The city council has 30 days to act on them. The city council must decide to enact one or both petitions as city policy, consider them advisory or disregard one or both of the petitions.

ROCK COUNTY

■ Rock County considers medical examiner services: Rock County is considering using the Dane County medical examiner's office for death investigations, forensic pathology and other related services. During its Monday meeting the Rock County Board Public Safety and Justice Committee asked county staff to prepare a resolution to contract with the Dane County medical examiner's office.

Contracting with the Dane County office would cost the county about $597,789 a year.

FOOTVILLE

■ Residents OK school sale: Residents of the Parkview School District on Monday authorized the school board to sell Footville Primary School. The authorization came at the district's annual meeting.

Parkview School District approved a $17 million referendum in April to allow the district to construct a new junior/senior high school in Orfordville. Elementary students eventually would move into the renovated junior/senior building.

The school board is set to discuss when to put the Footville building on the market, however students are expected to attend the school for at least one more school year during construction.

The annual Rock River Thresheree Reunion features antique steam engines, tractors, construction equipment, military equipment and plows, as well as blacksmith demonstrations, corn mill, buckwheat mill and shingle mill. THRESHREE: TURNING BACK TIME

Labor Day weekend event takes a year to plan

By DENNIS HINES
STAFF WRITER

EDGERTON — Charlie Hendrickson has been working with steam engines and other antique farm equipment for most of his life.

Hendrickson owns a full-sized steam engine and a small steam engine that was manufactured by Walter Durst, founder in 1963 of the Durst Corp. Hendrickson displays his engines at several steam shows throughout the year, including the Rock River Thresheree Reunion, which will be held Friday through Monday, Aug. 29 to Sept. 1, at Thresheree Park in rural Edgerton.

"When (Durst) passed away, he gave (the steam engine) to me," Hendrickson said. "I still take it with me to steam shows. I recently took it to a show in Iowa that's similar to ours. It was the show's 50th anniversary, and they asked me to bring it."

Hendrickson said he has been involved with the thresheree for at least 40 years.

"I'm 51 years old, and I've been active with it since I was 9 or 10," Hendrickson said. "I grew up working with one of the founders of the thresheree. He took me under his wing. He showed me how to fix the parts of the steam engines, and I was hooked. That's how I got started."

Hendrickson lives on the grounds of Thresheree Park and helps maintain its building and property.

"I'm out there throughout the year," Hendrickson said. "I'm a machinist by trade. I restore a lot of the equipment. They don't make parts for this type of equipment anymore, so if you need something you have to make it. It's a challenge."

Hendrickson said a lot of work goes into maintaining the grounds during the week leading up to the thresheree.

"There's a huge list of things to do, about two pages worth, from the small things to take care of to the big things to take care of," Hendrickson said. "Whether you're ready or not, people are going to come."

Todd Ligman, president of Rock River Thresheree Inc., has been involved with the event since 1986. He also is involved with maintaining the equipment.

"I've worked on a lot of the equipment that's out there," Ligman said. "Over the years I've been on the grounds, there's a lot of repair and maintenance that needs to be done, so we're constantly doing repairs on the older stuff. When equipment gets that old, it always needs to be repaired."

Ligman owns a steam engine that he purchased about three years ago. He said he has been interested in antique steam engines since his childhood.

"I've been a mechanical guy my whole life, so it came natural for me to fall into it," Ligman said. "My dad used to take me to the thresheree when I was a kid. He actually set up at the flea market as a vendor."

There will be a Parade of Power, featuring antique tractors and farm vehicles, at 2 p.m. each day. The event also will include a flea market with more than 300 vendors.

"There's vendors that come from all over the U.S. and bring their equipment in for display, and the flea market has a lot of old, collectible stuff, too," Ligman said. "There's a gamut of stuff."

You've got craft items, a lot of antiques. There's a ton of different things in the flea market, just about anything you would want. That's always been a big draw out there. The guys go look at the tractors and the ladies go to the flea market. A lot of guys go to the flea market, too. There's tools and all kinds of stuff."

Ligman said about 20,000 people attend the thresheree each year.

Timing, investment mix can help you boost retirement fund

If you're a baby boomer, you're at the point in life where, if you haven't actually entered retirement, you're at least approaching the outskirts. But if you're like many of your fellow boomers, you may be experiencing more than a little trepidation over your financial prospects as a retiree.

Just how worried are baby boomers about their future? Consider these numbers:

Seventy-two percent of non-retired boomers think they probably will be forced to delay retirement, and 50 percent have little confidence that they will ever be able to retire, according to a recent AARP survey. Other surveys show a similarly bleak outlook among the baby boom generation.

Fortunately, when it comes to building resources for retirement, you have options. Of course, if you're in one of the younger age cohorts of the baby boom generation, your possibilities are greater — you still may have time to take measures such as boosting your 401(k) and individual retirement account contributions, reducing your debts and positioning your portfolio to provide you with a reasonable amount of growth potential.

But even if you are pretty close to retirement, or at least close to the point where you initially expected to retire, you can act to better your outcome.

Seventy-two percent of non-retired boomers think they probably will be forced to delay retirement, and 50 percent have little confidence that they will ever be able to retire ...

For one thing, you could re-evaluate your planned date of retirement. If you really don't mind your job and could extend your working life for even a couple of years, you could help yourself enormously in at least three ways:

- You'll add on to your retirement accounts. The longer you work, the more you can contribute to your IRA and your 401(k) or other employer-sponsored account.

- You may be able to delay taking Social Security. You can start taking Social Security as early as age 62, but your benefits will be permanently reduced unless you wait until your full retirement age, which will likely be 66 or 67. Your payments can increase if you delay taking your benefits beyond your full retirement age, up to age 70.

- You may be able to delay tapping into your retirement vehicles. The longer you wait until you begin withdrawals from your IRA and 401(k), the more time you are giving these accounts to potentially grow. Once you turn 70 1/2, you will need to generally start taking withdrawals from a traditional IRA and a 401(k) or similar plan, but you don't face this requirement with a Roth 401(k) account.

As an alternative to delaying your retirement, you may be able to adjust your investment mix to provide you with the combination of growth and income that can help carry you through your retirement years. You also can be strategic about which investments you start taking withdrawals from, possibly allowing your portfolio to grow more than you had envisioned.

Start thinking now about ways you can help yourself achieve the retirement lifestyle you want. With some careful planning, you can be a boomer whose retirement plans don't go bust.

Main Street Peddlers features antiques, collectibles, resale items

Business name: Main Street Peddlers Primitives and Resale
Owners: Rae Collicott and Renee Uglum
Address: 770 S. Main St., Janesville
Hours: 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday
Phone: (608) 295-5952 or (608) 290-0558
Website: Search for Main Street Peddlers on Facebook
Type of business: Antique, resale and collectible store
When did business open? Oct. 1, 2013

Why did you start this business? We needed an outlet. We needed a lot of space.

How did you get into this line of work? (Renee) started building furniture when she was about 15, and I've always been into rummaging, so we had rented a booth south of town. We started combining her big pieces with my small pieces and we just outgrew the space we had out there. We had about 400 square feet and it wasn't enough. We couldn't get anymore room out there. We found this place; we have 3,500 square feet now.

What types of products or services does your business offer? Our service is to show people how to redecorate their home, how to put different items together. We have a wide variety of things for your home. Anybody could come here and find something. We've had people ask us to come decorate their home. We don't have enough hours in the day right now, but they have asked. I (Renee) build a lot of custom pieces, but I'm so backed up that I've had to put a halt on any special orders at this time.

Main Street Peddlers offers furniture, collectibles, toys, CDs, books, lamps, tables, games and movies.

What has been the biggest challenge in your business? With both of us, not enough hours in the day to get our product to the store. We've got really low prices, and items go out fast. It's a challenge just keeping the store stocked. We do have employees now, and that's given us a little spare time where we can get inventory in here.

What aspect of the business do you enjoy the most? The customers — just to see their faces when they walk in and find that perfect item. It's exciting. We recently had a woman who came in ... and she spent almost $700 on dressers.

We keep lists of things people are looking for and we contact them if something comes in. They're not obligated to take it, but we try to pick up a few things that people want.

From what cities do your customers come? We get a lot of Rockford and Roscoe people. The majority of the customers do come from Janesville, but we get them from all over. Then they will bring their friends and family members. We get a lot of people from Madison. On our Facebook page, it shows where people are watching us, and we even got one person from Great Britain. We get people from South Carolina, Kansas and California. People come in and tell family members who tell other family members.

What are your plans for the business? The first weekend of October will be our anniversary. We are setting up outside with vendors. We will have a flea market/rummage sale weekend. We'll be doing a lot of raffles of Renee's custom furniture. At the end of the weekend, we're going to donate 10 percent to ECHO.

We will be involved with a Project 16:49 event on Aug. 31. We've donated one of our custom tables and bench sets for a silent auction.

YURI RASHKIN
DISCOVER JANESVILLE

Here's what happens when the mailman throws a party

A year ago, Tom and Lori Hathaway threw a party. A Janesville letter carrier, Tom Hathaway lives on his mail route, so he invited his neighbors and customers. To his surprise, more than 200 people showed up, and by all accounts they had a great time.

That got Hathaway thinking.

As someone who walks the streets of Janesville for work every day, Hathaway decided that his party could be more than a neighborhood get-together. Hathaway decided to use his house party to make a difference in the community where he lives and works.

Over the years, Hathaway has experienced firsthand the effect of homelessness.

With that in mind, Hathaway and friends have been planning for the past year to turn a neighborhood party into a huge fundraiser to benefit the homeless in Janesville.

This year's event will be from noon to 7 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 31, at Hathaway's home at 604 N. Adams St. in Janesville.

Using social media (Facebook.com/goodcause.help) and the network he built walking his mail route for 14 years, Hathaway found a lot of help, including sponsors and to his relief, even Port-A-Potties.

Hathaway is taking this week off from work to make sure that everything is ready, and he is making his home the drop-off site for those who want to bring things either for the party or for the homeless of Janesville.

This has been a different effort from others in the community because the Hathaways are not associated with a particular nonprofit, nor are they looking to raise money for one organization.

Instead, Hathaway invited speakers from several organizations that serve the homeless in our community, including HealthNet, ECHO, GIFTS, Project 16:49 and others, and asked them to come and speak, looking to raise awareness of the issue of homelessness.

In addition, the event will feature performances by local musicians, including John Splan, Pancake Riot and Penny Mae Dixon Band, food from several popular food trucks and even alcohol sales. All money raised will benefit the homeless of Janesville.

Hathaway says that for years he and his family wanted to volunteer at a soup kitchen, but for one reason or another it never happened.

Over the years, Hathaway has experienced firsthand the effect of homelessness. He had one customer who said that, "she had to pack up all her stuff and move into a car. I gave her a phone number and she found help," Hathaway said.

He said that the reason he wanted to turn his house party into a fundraiser is because homelessness affects everyone.

"To me it's just sad that it happens in America. And it happens more than people think. It's not just adult males. It's families and it's children. They need our help," Hathaway said.

Hathaway and his friends are not sure how much money they will raise, however, they do expect between 500 and 1,000 people to show up.

When it comes to the impact Hathaway is hoping to have with the fundraiser, he expresses two main goals. One is that every one of the organizations involved will be better off than they were before the fundraiser and that people will decide to get involved with helping these organizations, having met and learned about them at the fundraiser.

Hathaway points out that while many of his neighbors and customers already may be involved with some of these nonprofits, many people don't know what options there are to get involved to make a difference, and he is hoping to change that.

Community-based work only a partial solution

Wisconsin citizens face a crossroads in how we support people with disabilities. A recently released plan by the state Department of Health Services designs a roadmap to eliminate all facility-based work centers so all adults with disabilities will be placed into community-based employment.

While we completely support the department's plan to increase community-based services, as experts in our field, we know and understand that 100 percent community placement is not a realistic goal. While many individuals can achieve this goal, a one-size-fits-all approach to employment cannot serve people with a diverse range of abilities.

Riverfront, with a facility on Barberry Drive in Janesville, is a leader in supporting people with disabilities in the community. Twice as many Riverfront participants work in integrated community employment than in our work centers.

Many adults employed at work centers have profound disabilities and will never achieve productivity of more than 10 percent to 20 percent of a person without disabilities. Their disabilities will prevent them from finding community-based jobs. Furthermore, many individuals require one-to-one personal care assistance with basic daily needs, such as eating and using restrooms.

The move for change is coming from a federal level, so Wisconsin is not alone in examining employment services. Massachusetts, New Jersey and Mississippi have chosen to maintain full ranges of employment services. Other states have closed all work centers to focus on integrated community employment and, consequently, adults with the most significant disabilities suffer. They become isolated and typically work few hours, if at all.

Incomplete federal guidelines are driving changes at the state level. As a result, Wisconsin's plan has ambiguities and calls for more direction from several federal agencies, leaving Wisconsin adults with disabilities and their families in limbo.

We believe that once the Department of Health Services receives the additional guidance and updates the plan, there should be an additional 30-day public comment period.

The deadline to act on behalf of Wisconsinites with disabilities is just weeks away, Sept. 2, so please contact DHS, your legislator and Gov. Scott Walker today and tell them to:

- 1) Preserve the full range of options for people with disabilities, including the option to attend and access facility-based vocational and day services.
- 2) Recognize that because of incomplete federal guidelines, the Department of Health Services plan is incomplete.
- 3) Request that the state open another 30-day comment period after the federal guidelines are complete and the Wisconsin plan is amended.

Your voice is important to the future of Wisconsin's adults with disabilities. Please make your voice heard and comment before Sept. 2.

Riverfront serves individuals with disabilities in Rock County through community employment, onsite employment, day services, adult family home care, behavioral support and benefits counseling. Freedom or free stuff?

To the editor,

The next step is dinner at the dormitory. The School District of Beloit's recent decision to extend breakfast and lunch to all children is yet another step by schools and government in their creeping socialism and the undermining of the family structure and responsibilities.

The school board already has a beachhead established in the form of overnight teenagers and the board and teachers union continue to push downward the age for kindergarten.

The future will have 6-month-olds going directly to the school for care and learning and campus dormitories for eighth through 12th grade students.

Do you want freedom? Or do you want "free" stuff? This is one of the fundamental questions facing America today.

If you want free stuff, it actually comes with a cost — your freedom. If you want freedom it could at times require sacrifice, faith, blood, sweat and tears; but you would have your independence, honor, strength of character, family, friends and community and your own self-determination.

Patrick Henry thundered, "Give me liberty or give me death." What will your choice be?

An increasingly intrusive, overbearing bureaucratic and regulatory government, or your liberty to pursue your own vision of happiness?

If you choose government to sustain you and keep you, be forewarned that it will in the end oppress and smother you and make you very dependent, weak and vulnerable to a dictatorship. Pray to God for the wisdom, strength and courage to choose freedom.

Burke's leadership questioned

To the editor,

Mary Burke is trying to manufacture an image of a competent, job-creating businesswoman at Trek and an experienced government leader, touting her tenure as commerce secretary for Gov. Jim Doyle. She failed at both jobs.

Burke wasted millions of taxpayer dollars on a vacant lot on a Commerce Department deal under her "leadership" that created no jobs and leaves the state on the hook for $12.3 million. The Milwaukee Journal-Sentinel reported that after a federal review, the state is now required to repay the money.

Burke's Commerce Department had no written commitment from Abbott to develop the property or create jobs. The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development concluded that Burke's Commerce Department "participated in a speculative land banking venture without ensuring that the funded activity" would be eligible. We would see more boondoggles like this if Burke were governor.

Trek outsourced jobs under Burke's "leadership." After the outsourcing was reported and Burke's "leadership" was revealed to be detrimental to her campaign, Burke's brother tried to take responsibility for it. There is no dispute that the vast majority (99 percent) of Trek bicycles are manufactured overseas, even though Burke dodges questions about it. She won't say if Trek gets parts from China that it could get in the United States. She won't say how much the workers who produce those parts, supplies and other materials are paid.

Mary Burke won't answer questions because she is not qualified to lead Wisconsin.

Exploring the new transit center

DENNIS HINES/STAFF

Residents line up Wednesday to tour the new Janesville Transit Services Center, 101 Black Bridge Road. City officials held a dedication ceremony for the new 43,200-square-foot center, which features five maintenance bays and is able to house 18 buses. The building can be expanded to house 10 additional buses and is expected to meet Janesville's bus transit needs for the next 50 years. The city has been planning to build the new center for the past 12 years. The project cost about $8 million, and the city received a $6.64 million in Federal Transit Administration grants, which paid for 83.5 percent of the project.

across the country have been so kind and good to my family during our incredible grieving journey," Andrew Johnson said. "They have shown great honor to my son as well as all KIAs."

Ever since the outpouring of support Johnson received from veterans during his family's time of need, he has felt deeply indebted to these men and women.

Johnson, publisher of the Dodge County Pioneer, has since found a way to return the kindness.

He's been the driving force behind the effort to locate a photograph of every Wisconsin soldier listed on the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Wall in Washington, D.C.

Four Janesville soldiers are on that list, along with seven from Beloit and a few from Walworth County (see list).

The photographs will be part of a display at the new education center near the existing memorial. The new building will include an electronic Wall of Faces, corresponding to each name on the wall. The Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund is working to locate photos of all 58,286 soldiers listed on the wall. Construction for the facility is planned to start in 2016 and be completed for a grand opening in 2019.

Upon hearing about the Wall of Faces project, Johnson found himself in a unique position to participate. He has been in weekly newspaper publishing in Wisconsin for 25 years, has served as the president of the Wisconsin Newspaper Association and is currently a regional director with the National Newspaper Association, so he knows a thing or two about getting the word out.

Johnson hopes to have all the photos collected by Veterans Day of this year, Nov. 11.

"When I read about the effort it was a no-brainer; newspapers can significantly help find these pictures," Johnson said. "I brought it to our newspaper association in Wisconsin and they thought it was terrific and that local papers could join the effort."

Hundreds of photos gathered

The effort has been moving at a good clip, according to Johnson. He said that when he got involved, there were still 450 photos to collect in the state, and that number has since dropped to 175. Many media outlets across the nation are helping to spread the word, and several states already have finished collecting their photos.

Ordinarily, the military keeps photos of its soldiers in its records, but this particular project was made challenging by a 1973 fire that destroyed many of those records. A large fire at the United States National Personnel Records

Center in a suburb of St. Louis resulted in the loss of roughly 16 million to 18 million official military personnel records.

That being the case, the Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund has been forced to try to rebuild a large portion of the lost collection of photos by trying to individually locate them in relatives' or friends' private collections. The official list of photos still missing shows at least 13 soldiers from Rock and Walworth counties.

Finding local photos

has been scouring her resources to help.

"What we had previously done when we heard about the project is we went through our files to find soldiers who were casualties from Walworth County to see if we had a file," Jordan said. "For the soldiers that we had information on that they didn't already have, we sent it in. Unfortunately a lot of what we had were newspaper clippings, so the pictures weren't the best."

Jordan would love to see the project meet its goal and feels that the Wall of Faces would be a touching addition to the memorial, both for family members of veterans, but perhaps even more so for living veterans themselves.

"I think a photograph is so meaningful; these were very young people that we lost in the prime of life," Jordan said. "They made the ultimate sacrifice, and I think a picture brings it home more than seeing a name on the wall. But, of course, the wall is also very meaningful because you see 58,000 names all at once."

Vietnam veteran Tom Stehura, president of the Janesville Patriotic Society, said that the Wall of Faces will be a great way to recognize a group of veterans who felt undervalued in their time.

"During, and for long after, it was not a very pleasant thing to be a veteran, especially one who served in Vietnam," Stehura said. "In fact, when we came home we were pretty much insulted and scorned. It took years for that hurt given by our fellow countrymen to finally resolve itself, so we've been slowly coming back out of hiding and make ourselves more and more known."

Stehura is happy to see his peers being honored in this way and thinks it's worth the time to track down the many remaining photos.

Stehura

"As a Vietnam veteran I say that it's really important to not forget the sacrifice these men and women made for this country," Stehura said. "I think having the wall there and these pictures of the folks who died is very important, and we should do whatever we can to help out."

We have the power to make a difference — so let's use it

Make a point to spread kindness, forgiveness

TOM DEN BOER
GUEST COLUMNIST

One morning I happened to be walking by a local bank. Highlighted in the window was a cheerful display of the bank's community contributions for the year. The display pulled me through the doorway and before leaving, I wrote down the comments a bank staff member had posted on the display board: "Being involved with our community and staff fundraisers means that coming to work does not mean just another day, another dollar. Instead it's another day, another difference." Wow! This is a true sign of an engaged and committed employee.

So what are we doing for others? Do we even have time to consider helping our neighbor or our community when most of our time is taken up with caring for our families and close friends?

Dr. Martin Luther King said, "Every man must decide whether he will walk in the light of creative altruism or the darkness of destructive selfishness. This is the judgment."

This is not a statement to be taken lightly, but a powerfully reflective question that requires an answer from every individual sharing this world — from the neighborhood backyard to the corporate boardroom.

Recently, I witnessed a very unique way of demonstrating community kindness. A local resident who owns and operates a floral shop urges local residents to come and meet new friends at his store. He hosts a community event and gives away 6,000 roses. Yes, I said 6,000 roses!

The only requirement to attend the event is that you have to commit to a random act of kindness. Anyone who picks up a half dozen free roses is asked to sign a promise to keep one of the roses for themselves and give the others away to five different people, spreading goodwill and friendship in the community.

The theme of the event is "It's a great way to give back to the community — one flower at a time." After attending one of the events, I was amazed by the sea of beautiful, multicolored roses given out by goodwill ambassadors throughout the community.

Community leaders must accept the challenge to create a forgiving community within their own workplace, neighborhood and community. We all know what happens when colleagues or neighbors hold grudges against one another: It leads to disrespect and degradation of character. Community leaders need to be alert for negative situations and the fallout that can result from issues that

Community leaders need to model healthy, forgiving ways to respond to frustration and disappointment. Community leaders must create an atmosphere of trust and respect, focusing on opportunities and a positive vision.

Today's work environments and neighborhoods are made up of a diverse mix of multicultural, multigenerational and multidimensional people with different beliefs, wants and needs. Each person and business has a story to tell. These should be shared equally and openly. By opening ourselves up to welcoming others into our circle of friendship, we break down the barriers that cause fear and hurt.

Everyone has the potential to turn a life and a community around. Too often we underestimate the power of a touch, a smile, a kind word, a listening ear, an honest compliment or the smallest act of caring, all of which have the potential to make a difference in someone's life. We can make a positive difference for others by doing nothing more than reaching out and using the power of our speech and actions.

Seed by seed, a garden is planted; grain by grain, a loaf of bread is made; and brick by brick, a stone wall is built. As individuals we can demonstrate by the power of kindness throughout our communities, which will result in long-term positive attitudes among neighbors and organizations.

In closing, I would like to challenge everyone to hold himself or herself responsible to a higher standard of community kindness than anyone else may expect and let us all take the time to make a positive difference with our actions and attitudes.

Dr. Thomas J. Den Boer serves as the CEO of the YMCA of Northern Rock County. Share ideas and comments by calling (608) 754-6654 or send an email to tdenboer@ymcajanesville.org.

PREP FOOTBALL: BATTLE OF JANESVILLE

By TODD MISHLER
SPORTS EDITOR

Many of the faces have changed from both sides of the river. The question remains: Who will make a name for themselves and enter Janesville high school football lore?

The 48th annual tussle between Craig and Parker is scheduled Friday, Aug. 29, at Monterey Stadium in the second week of the Big Eight Conference schedule.

Craig leads the all-time series, 28-19, after Ben McCormick's Cougars won the last two confrontations for the coveted Monterey Rock, including last year's 20-10 triumph in the teams' season finale.

Besides the yearlong bragging rights, a victory obviously will help the winner in the league race and push toward a possible WIAA Division 1 spot, something that has eluded both foes recently. Parker has missed the postseason the last two years, while Craig is seeking its first appearance since 2008.

The Vikings and coach Eric Skrzypchak are looking for their first win in the rivalry after Joe Dye's squads posted an 11-8 mark against the Cougars while reaching the playoffs in 15 of his 19 campaigns.

The last four showdowns have lacked suspense, as last year's 10-point margin was the closest. However, this rivalry has featured tons of excitement and nail biters: 21 have been decided by eight points or less.

Craig's longest winning streak was 14 before Parker won seven of eight from 1997 through 2004. A Cougars' win this week would give them three in a row, their longest string since their long run ended in '96.

Here is a look at some of the players and games that have made this one of the state's best rivalries:

Nov. 11, 1967

Kent Burdick rushed for four touchdowns and gained 146 yards on 19 attempts, intercepted two passes, returned a punt for 40 yards, caught three passes for 63 yards and kicked an extra point as Parker blasted Craig, 32-7, in the series opener on a Saturday afternoon.

Ken Anacker ran nine times for 144 yards and a score, also intercepting a pass for the Vikings.

Nov. 7, 1969

Craig earned its first win in the series with a 14-13 decision in the season finale.

Tom Carpenter's 1-yard plunge made it 6-0, and Craig extended its margin to 14-0 at the half on Mark Cullen's 9-yard pass to Dan Quarne and Jim Lohman's 2-point conversion run.

Then the Cougars held off the Vikings' second-half rally, which included Dick Johnston's 57-yard hookup with John Brikowski midway through the third quarter to make it 14-7. Then the Vikings took advantage of another turnover as Johnston connected with Greg Rud on a 20-yard pass play on the first play of the final quarter. However, Parker missed the extra point.

Craig stopped two final Parker drives inside the Cougars' 40-yard line to hang on.

Sept. 19, 1986

Craig claimed a victory in the 20th confrontation, 26-18, nearly blowing a 19-0 second-quarter cushion. Parker climbed to within 19-18 but missed a two-point try, and the Cougars closed out the scoring and the game with a six-play, 42-yard march in this Big Eight opener.

Kyle Reddy led all ball carriers with 76 yards on 19 attempts, scoring twice, including the game clincher.

DAN PLUTCHAK/STAFF

The pigskin will be up for grabs like it was during last year's 20-10 Craig victory over Parker, which allowed the Cougars to raise the coveted Monterey Rock.

Oct. 23, 1996

The Cougars lost three fumbles inside Parker territory, but they capitalized on Parker's lone fumble at the Viking 21. Joe Shere capped off the short drive midway through the first quarter with a 6-yard run in what became the game's only score in a 6-0 Craig victory in the teams' 30th meeting, a Wednesday showdown to end the regular season.

Craig finished with 142 yards of total offense, while Parker managed only 128 yards.

It was the final victory in Craig's 14-game series winning streak.

Sept. 11, 1998

Both teams entered with 2-0 records, but the Vikings bolted to a 25-7 halftime advantage. Parker had not allowed any points in its first two games and forced five Craig turnovers.

Matt Brown intercepted a Craig pass at the goal line with four seconds remaining before the intermission, and one of the Cougars' fumbles came inside the Parker 5 in the fourth quarter, or things could have been much different in Parker's eventual 25-22 triumph.

However, the Cougars, who gained 369 yards, wouldn't go away. They nearly pulled it out as Tim Hanson scored twice for Craig, his second TD coming with 1:52 left.

Brown also recovered a fumble and blocked a punt, while Matt Mohr rushed for 174 yards for Parker.

Sept. 1, 2006

The Vikings, clad in black jerseys, earned a 14-6 decision in the 40th matchup.

Taylor Edwards gained only 21 yards on eight carries in the first half, but he galloped for 217 yards in the second half to lead Parker.

He also contributed in the pass game, taking a 52-yard double pass — Matt McCulloch to B.J. Scharenbroch to Edwards — on the first play of the second quarter.

Craig failed to convert a fourth-and-goal play from the Parker 4 in the second quarter. But the Cougars got a 37-yard scoring toss from Charlie Roherty to tight end Tyler Uschan with 6:52 left in the game, leaving them trailing 7-6 when they missed the extra point.

Craig then let Edwards score uncontested from 14 yards out with 1:11 showing with the idea of having time left to score again. However, Roherty was intercepted on the next play to secure Parker's win.

Aug. 26, 2011

Adam Vesterfelt helped Parker turn a 29-23 lead early in the fourth quarter into a 50-23 rout in the 45th rendition, the highest-scoring game in the series.

Vesterfelt finished with 260 yards rushing on 25 carries, including TD bursts of 25 and 75 yards to close out the scoring. He ended up with six touchdowns, while Parker also intercepted five passes.

September is the season of choices for outdoor folk

September is the time of year when things in the outdoor world start to change. Some bird species start to migrate or group before their annual journey. Some plants, trees and bushes, such as sumac, start to display their fall colors. Many outdoor folks also start to change. Early autumn is truly a season of its own, one not only of change, but of choices.

Fishing can be some of the best of the year, plus hunting seasons start up. With fall colors starting to show, hiking, canoeing and kayaking are a real treat. Be sure to take along a camera to capture nature's displays.

Early September Canada goose hunting season opens in designated areas Sept. 1 through Sept. 15 for those who possess the proper permit. Hunters can purchase them for $3 from Department of Natural Resources offices and license vendors through the last day of the season. Mourning dove season opens Sept. 1 and runs through Nov. 9. Black bear hunting season opens Sept. 3 and runs through Oct. 7.

Hook-and-line lake sturgeon season opens on designated waters Sept. 6 through Sept. 30.

Fall turkey hunting season opens Sept. 13 and runs through Nov. 20. Zones 1-5 reopen Dec. 1 through Dec. 31. Archery and crossbow deer season open Sept. 13 and run through Jan. 4. Ruffed grouse season in Zone A runs Sept. 13 through Jan. 31. Zone B runs Oct. 18 through Dec. 8.

JIM CHEADLE
SCALES AND TAILS

Cottontail rabbit season opens Sept. 13 in the northern zone and runs through Feb. 28. Gray and fox squirrel season opens Sept. 13 and runs through Jan. 31. Fall crow season opens Sept. 13 and runs through Nov. 20.

Some new rules changes are coming for this year's deer hunting season. The Wisconsin DNR has created a number of resources to help make sure hunters are ready for another great season. This year, a crossbow deer hunting license is available for any qualified hunter. Previously, only disabled hunters could use a crossbow under the authority of an archer license.

The crossbow deer hunting season will run concurrent with the regular archer season. During open firearm seasons, a gun deer license will authorize bow and crossbow use. Crossbow licenses include one statewide buck tag and one farmland zone antlerless tag. It is important to note that persons purchasing a traditional bow and a crossbow license will receive only one set of tags.

Water fowling should be good to excellent as breeding populations are mostly good to excellent in Wisconsin and North America, according to recent surveys by state, federal and Canadian wildlife officials. A recent U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service survey showed the highest North American duck population estimate in its 59-year history.

The youth waterfowl hunt will be held Sept. 20 through Sept. 21. The daily bag limit statewide will be six ducks, including no more than four mallards, of which only one may be a hen; one black duck; one canvasback; three wood ducks; two pintails; three scaup; and two redheads.

Dietitian offers expert tips for playing it safe with outdoor meals

ROCK COUNTY — Whether you're enjoying a picnic, a cookout or simply a meal on the back deck, eating outdoors is a highlight of the summer season for most of us.

But warmer weather can also set the stage for food-borne illness when foods are cooked or handled improperly, said Rock County family living educator and registered dietitian Angela Flickinger. She has some suggestions to help ensure that your summer stays healthy and food-safe.

Sidestep Salmonella

Flickinger said that illnesses caused by the pathogen salmonella spike in the summertime.

"Every year in the U.S., salmonella causes about 1.2 million illnesses — more than any other pathogen," she said.

Flickinger offered four quick tips to reduce your chances of contracting salmonella:

- Don't rinse raw chicken or other meat. "It spreads germs around the kitchen and does not contribute to food safety," she said.
- Wash your hands before eating and before and after handling food.
- Always use soap. Wash your hands for 20 seconds with soap and warm water and scrub well.
- Cook chicken to 165 degrees, ground meats to 160 degrees and beef or pork steaks, roasts, and chops to 145 degrees with a three-minute hold. Always use a meat thermometer to ensure that meat reaches a safe end-point temperature.

A meat thermometer is an important food safety tool year round, but especially in the summer.

"The color of meat is not a reliable test of whether meat is fully cooked or safe to eat," Flickinger said. "Even a burger that looks completely done can hold bacteria that causes illness."

Coolers and cantaloupes

A cooler is an indispensable summer food safety tool, in particular for picnic foods such as potato salad and cantaloupe or other melons. Foods left out at room temperature for too long can become ready hosts for harmful bacteria.

Experts recommend slicing your own cantaloupe or watermelon, rather than buying those sliced at the store. It's also important to keep sliced portions refrigerated because cold temperatures slow the growth of bacteria. In recent years, melons have been one of the biggest sources of food-borne illness.

Mayo makes the grade

Mayonnaise, an egg-based spread, has traditionally been mentioned as a potential source of food borne illness, but today's commercial product is actually quite safe, experts say. Pasteurized eggs and high levels of vinegar provide acid that helps control the growth of harmful bacteria.

"But keep in mind that homemade mayonnaise still requires extra caution," Flickinger said.

Cookbook celebrates 100 years of 4-H

I grew up going to the Walworth County Fair, so once Labor Day weekend rolls around, I know what I'm going to be doing. This year, I'll be picking up a cookbook, put out by the 4-H clubs as a fundraiser for the House of Pork, which needs a new trailer.

As an adult, I like wandering through the animal barns and exhibit buildings to look at all the projects. And I like seeing the kids in 4-H and FFA and stopping to chat with them. Every year, they get a year older, but if I'm lucky, I can still recognize them from the year before. Once in awhile, I get flummoxed when they shoot up a couple inches, change their hairstyle or just morph into their young adult selves.

As a kid, I liked wandering through the animal barns and exhibit buildings to look at all the projects. And I liked seeing my friends in 4-H and FFA and stopping to chat with them. Every year, we got a year older, and went from hanging around the tea cup ride to the Scrambler.

Yes, I waited till the last week to finish up all my projects for the fair — some things never change. Some projects were merely gathering up your pets and taking them in for judging. I showed rabbits and poultry. But some projects had to be done ahead of time: You had to make strawberry jam when you had strawberries. I usually entered jam, pickles, cookies and bread. Here are two recipes from back then. I probably got them off the back of food products.

LYNN GREENE

Strawberry jam

Makes 8 half-pint jars or 4 pint jars

4 cups prepared strawberries
7 cups sugar
1/2 tsp. butter or margarine (optional)
1 pouch liquid fruit pectin
Bring boiling water canner, half-full with water, to simmer. Wash jars and screw bands in hot, soapy water; rinse with warm water. Pour boiling water over flat lids in saucepan off the heat. Let stand in hot water until ready to use. Drain well before filling.

Stem and crush strawberries thoroughly, one layer at a time. Measure exactly four cups crushed strawberries into 6- or 8-quart sauce pot.

Add sugar and stir. Add butter to reduce foaming. Bring to full rolling boil (a boil that doesn't stop bubbling when stirred) on high heat, stirring constantly. Stir in pectin. Return to full rolling boil and boil exactly one minute, stirring constantly. Remove from heat. Skim off any foam with metal spoon.

Ladle immediately into prepared jars, filling to within one-quarter inch of tops. Wipe jar rims and threads. Cover with two-piece lids. Screw bands tightly. Place jars on elevated rack in canner. Lower rack into canner. (Water must cover jars by 1 to 2 inches. Add boiling water, if necessary.) Cover; bring water to gentle boil. Process 10 minutes. Remove jars and place upright on towel to cool completely. After jars cool, check seals by pressing middle of lid with finger. (If lid springs back, lid is not sealed and refrigeration is necessary.)

Oatmeal cookies

Makes 4 dozen

1/2 cup plus 6 Tbsps. butter
3/4 cup packed brown sugar
1/2 cup granulated sugar
2 eggs
1 tsp. vanilla
1-1/2 cups flour
1 tsp. baking soda
1 tsp. ground cinnamon
1/2 tsp. salt
3 cups old-fashioned oatmeal
1 cup raisins

Heat oven to 350 F. In large bowl, beat butter and sugars until creamy. Add eggs and vanilla; beat well. Add combined flour, baking soda, cinnamon and salt; mix well. Add oats and raisins; mix well. Drop dough by rounded tablespoonfuls onto ungreased cookie sheets. Bake eight to 10 minutes or until light golden brown. Cool one minute on cookie sheets; remove to wire rack. Cool completely. Store tightly covered.

Buy the book

The Walworth County 4-H Cookbook will be available at North Hall, in the Junior Exhibit Building and at Stowell's Lunch Stand during the Walworth County Fair.

Walkers watch for butterflies, flowers, wildlife along the trails

RUSS HELWIG
WEEKLY WALK

Eight adventurers hiked a combination of horse trail and Ice Age Trail in a counterclockwise route around Lake LaGrange on Aug. 13. Part way on the horse trails we split up with Norwin Watson and others taking one path, while I took the remainder on another that connected with the normal route around the lake before meeting up with Norwin.

We would have arrived at the same time but for a large oak tree that recently had fallen and blocked the trail.

The prairie was beautiful with many wildflowers, including rough blazing star nearly ready to bloom and prairie blazing star at the end of its show of color. Some varieties of goldenrod were at the beginning of their bud opening and should add more color in a few days.

Norwin led the Wednesday long-distance walk. He reported that 11 adventurers walked from the Bald Bluff parking lot to the horse trail near Tamarack Road. They returned on the horse trail with the group splitting up near the Ice Age Trail intersection.

Eight continued on the horse trail to the road north of Bald Bluff and took the roads back to the parking lot, while three took the Ice Age Trail back over the bluff. Both groups arrived within a minute of each other.

They did not see many wildflowers but did see a few butterflies. They did not enjoy the sand they had to walk in on part of the horse trail. A tree with a large excavation, which had been made by a pileated woodpecker, was observed near the path.

Along the way a short side trip was made to the Stone Elephant, a large erratic near the Ice Age Trail, which one of the group had not seen before.

They found that the Ice Age Trail from the Stone Elephant to Tamarack Road was in need of maintenance as tall vegetation was invading the path.

On Wednesday, five of us who wished a leisurely flower walk carpooled to the Nature Conservancy nature trails at Lulu Lake off Nature Road. We ended up walking a bit more than three miles, covering all of the trails plus a side trip to a savanna on top of a beautiful ridge at the south end of the trail system.

The south end had poison ivy all along the trail and in spots on the trail. We were glad that we did not wear shorts. Most of the trails had been mowed recently. This helped us avoid much, but not all, of the tick trefoil that lines the trails and its seeds, which stuck to our clothing.

We had a large garter snake slither across the trail in front of us and saw a leopard frog that allowed us to take a photo of it before leaping off the trail, a boat with fishermen on the lake and smaller watercraft on the Mukwonago River near the outlet.

The scenery from the trails was fantastic, including beautiful views of wildflowers peppering the forest floor, the lake and the river.

I was pleased to have Mariette and Dave Nowak with us as Mariette is the top flower expert of all our walkers and Dave is also very good at plant identification.

Ellen Davis gives this report on Wednesday's short walk:

The short hike this morning consisted of six guys, one small canine and me. We car-pooled to the Nordic Trails for another adventure on the 3-plus-mile white trail.

We soon noticed that many of the wildflowers we had admired a few weeks ago had gone to seed — the thistles were looking particularly scruffy. Still blooming at trailside were aster, spotted knapweed and Queen Anne's lace, with an understory of prunella (heal-all). Woodland sunflowers also were seen, along with the occasional evening primrose, mullein, hawk's eye and prairie coneflower.

After talking about monarch butterflies early in the hike, we paid special attention to the butterfly species we were seeing. Giant swallowtails were definitely predominant. There also were cabbage butterflies, an assortment of fast-moving fritillaries and one black tiger swallowtail. Total monarchs seen — only three.

This was a fast-paced hike filled with high energy and good conversations.

Happy trekking, Russ

FAMILIAR FACE PORSCHE CAYENNE

The family ties with the larger Cayenne are pretty obvious.

AutoGraph
Jeff Melnychuk
www.theoctanelounge.com

The base "Macan S" has a 340-horsepower twin-turbocharged 3.0-liter V6. The "Macan Turbo" gets a 400-horse 3.6-liter twin-turbo V6.

What happens when you need more room and doors than your Porsche Cayman or Boxster sports car has? Before the Macan, your only choice was the big Cayenne off-roader or the gigantic Panamera sedan. The new Macan is smaller than those, more affordable (starts at $50,000), has space for five people and has as much as 400 horsepower. Maybe giving up your two-door won't seem like such a sacrifice, after all?

AUDI Q5

Although the Q5 donates a lot to the cause, the top engine is a supercharged V8 whereas the Macan uses turbocharged powerplants.

2015 PORSCHE MACAN

Standard all-wheel-drive directs up to 100 percent of the engine's torque to the front or rear wheels, or from side to side, as necessary.

Carbon-ceramic brakes are optional.

Sport Chrono package (marked by the dash clock) optimizes the Macan Turbo for acceleration: zero to 60 mph in 4.4 seconds.

All models come with the seven-speed automated manual transmission (called the PDK) with paddle shifters.

About the same overall width as the bigger Cayenne.

The Macan is six inches shorter than the Cayenne, with 3.5 fewer inches between the front and rear wheels.

Aside from the logo, the Macan Turbo has squared-off quad exhaust outlets. The Macan S has round outlets.
