Not often, but once in awhile I get away from the corral gate to accept an invitation to a service club meeting, and I always come away with something more to appreciate about Hopkins County people. I enjoyed warm hospitality and a bunch of new friends at the Bright Star Gardeners program, potluck supper and officer election on August 2 at the Seniors Center. President Hillis Bass welcomed everyone and her farmer husband Al asked the blessing on the food. Brenda Payne, who is a local Master Gardener, presented a program of Fall vegetable gardening tips. You can find Brenda and her husband Ed most any day in their well-tended plot in sandy land on their property in Rocky Ridge. Several club members who brought salads and main dishes for the spread used homegrown vegetables seasoned with herbs they cultivate. And of course, desserts ruled!...there was fresh watermelon, a fig-sauce (like applesauce) that was to die for, and caramel brownies prepared with last fall's pecan crop (preserved in the freezer). These ladies believe in cooking and eating well, organically as much as possible!

2016/2017 officers-elect are: President Betty Holden, co-Vice Presidents Judy Jones and Gale Milligan, Secretary Alyssa Duran, Social Secretary Nancy Faubian, Special Secretary Ricky Russell, Parliamentarian Linda Tatum and Reporter Linda Phillips. Anyone interested in gardening is welcome at the monthly meetings!

Speaking of good things grown at home, watermelons and grandkids hold first place in our family! Judging by the Summer 2016 Watermelon photo files, we've included the pleasures of watermelon eating at family gatherings more than any summer before! This is 1-year-old Ava selecting a slice from a home-grown Black Diamond.

Here's a unique local helping-others-help charity that's doing good things in Sulphur Springs...it's called Chicks for Charity...and it's based on a simple yet ingenious concept. Meetings are held just four times per year, where each member agrees to contribute $50 (or more if they wish) at each quarterly meeting, and the money is collected and pooled. In place of hearing a program, selections are made from the various charity requests the club has received from non-profit organizations. Then a vote is taken to decide which organizations will receive that quarter's funds. That organization receives the checks to use for their cause, and it's usually enough to make quite a generous gift. Hearts of Hope Animal Shelter was a recipient back in the Spring. Over the past few years, Chicks for Charity has donated almost $110,000. to non-profit organizations in Hopkins County including Heritage Christian Counseling Center, Shadow Ranch, Branded Ranch Rodeo, Fruitful Harvest Food Pantry, Bright Star Baseball and many others. View photos and find out more by looking up Chicks for Charity of Hopkins County, Texas.

Friends, let's count our blessings, say our prayers and help others when we can, while staying cool...that ought to keep us pretty busy! Til next week, I'll see you at the corral gate!

GOODIES MADE WITH MESQUITE BEAN FLOUR

Tumbleweed Smith

One of the benefits of being a reporter is you get to sample food products made by the people you interview. Such is the case with Guy and Patsy Hester in Ozona. They have a place called OZONA FLOUR MILL & GOODS, THE HOME OF MESQUITE BEAN FLOUR. Patsy makes five different types of breads with the flour they grind themselves. I brought home some banana nut and it was delicious. Guy and Patsy also make a line of jellies made with Texas fruit. Customers come from as far away as California and Michigan.

"A preacher's wife is the one that got me started in this," says Patsy. "She asked me if I put mesquite bean flour in my breads, which I have been making for lots of years. So Guy suggested we go outside and get some beans and see what we can do. So we got some and put them through our processor and made flour."

Guy says they have several ranches in the area where they pick beans. "Then we bring them back here and hang them up to dry. Before they get completely dry, we stick them in the oven and heat them to dry some more. Then we take them out, let the cool off, then run them through our hammer mill. We come out with fine flour about the color of brown sugar." The flour by itself is powerful stuff. You don't want to use it straight.

"You use one-fourth of mesquite bean flour and three-fourths regular flour, wheat flour or whatever kind of flour you like," says Patsy. "My breads are ten dollars a loaf. I've got pumpkin, banana, cranberry, zucchini and hummingbird, made with bananas, pineapple and cherries. Most of them have pecans. I put the flour in rolls, regular bread, even put it in my buttermilk pie. I make cornbread with it. That's my favorite."

Guy makes mesquite bean coffee by putting the beans in the oven until they turn completely black, then grind them, hulls and all. It makes a strong coffee. He suggests using it sparingly.

They pick the beans in July and August.

"You pick them when they're purple," says Guy. "I think the first year we picked a hundred and twenty pounds. Five pounds of beans make three pounds of flour."

The flour sells for ten dollars a pound. If you want to grind your own beans, that service is available.

"We'll mill them either for two dollars a pound or go on the halves. We don't want any beans off the ground. Nothing green. We want only beige, purple, red or brown beans. You can tell by the way they look and the way they feel that they're ready to be pulled. When you grab hold of that bean it just pulls right off."

The Hesters started their business four years ago and have a building dedicated to producing the flour. The equipment is state of the art. www.tumbleweedsmith.com

THE IDLE AMERICAN

Humor In Real Life...

Commentary by Dr. Don Newbury

In the company of three physicians and a veterinarian recently during a three-day span, I queried their personnel about day-to-day occurrences that make them smile.

In three cases, answers came quickly. The vet, however, thoughtfully detailed a foul-up at a clinic decades ago. Hearing the account is included in lectures at the mother school of veterinary medicine, Texas A&M University. If not, it should be. I now present them, one at a time.....

The staffer at Ophthalmology Associates says this one happens daily. When patients are asked to open their eyes, some can't. "Okay," she says, "Open your mouth." Almost always, both eyes and mouth fly open.

A hygienist at Dr. Marshall Brown's office confirms the "trick" works in reverse, too, admitting, though, that patients can almost always open their mouths on command.

For her, humor comes regularly after patients stretch out in the dental chair. As she prepares to take blood pressure verse the leg crossing readings, it is common configuration, at which to ask them to uncross time she says--politely, their legs. More times I should add--"No, let's than not, she claims, try it again. Uncross their legs are crossed, your legs. When they either right over left, are side by side, I can or vice versa. They al- get an accurate read- most always simply re- ing."...
