Robert Miller (left center) was one of the four big winners from Monday's Excellence in Education Awards. Miller is an English professor at CCBC Essex. He's been teaching for over 25 years, with nine of those years spent at CCBC.

- Article & photo by Patrick Taylor -
 With the school year finishing up and summer around the bend, many teachers are already preparing for next year. In education, despite the lengthy summer break, most will spend their summer honing their skills or working on lesson plans. And, much like teachers in general, that work often goes unappreciated.
 But on Monday night, a slew of east side educators received the recognition they deserved at the Annual Excellence in Education Awards hosted by the Chesapeake Gateway Chamber of Commerce.

The annual event recognizes one teacher from each Chamber member school who has been nominated by their school administrator.

 While there were plenty of finalists, there could only be one winner from each category. This year's winners include Alyssa Michael of Mars Estates Elementary, Lindsay Bugda of Middle River Middle School, Chanel Wright-Greene of Kenwood High School and Robert Miller of CCBC Essex.

"All of us right now can think of those one or two - and for some it may even be five - teachers who inspired us and who did not let up on us," said BCPS Superintendent S. Dallas Dance.

Finalists were selected by school administrators using a list of criteria. Educators who were nominated directed or participated in leadership activities or extra-curricular programs, created a quality and innovative learning environment for all students, showed a supportive and caring attitude towards students and colleagues, and made a significant impact on education in a variety of ways.

"The efforts of these dedicated men and women truly are appreciated, and we are excited about this opportunity to recognize their efforts," said John Gontrum, president of the Chamber.

Hart-Miller south cell officially opened to the public

- Article & photo by Devin Crum -
 Although it has technically been open for a month, officials and dignitaries gathered on Hart-Miller Island to cut the ribbon for the opening of its south cell to the public.

The island's central beach, originally constructed to join the then-separate Hart and Miller Islands in 1981, has been a popular destination for boaters for decades. But now visitors to Hart-Miller have access to nearly 300 acres of additional real estate on the island full of recreational opportunities such as five-plus miles of hiking and biking trails, abundant bird and wildlife viewing opportunities and history about the island.

South cell interior access is available May through September on Thursdays - Mondays from 11 a.m. - 4 p.m.

And don't worry about bringing your bike to the island; they have them there for visitors to use.

According to Ranger Dean Hughes of the Maryland Park Service, the expansion of the Hart-Miller Island State Park facility is the fulfillment of a promise made more than 30 years ago to the citizens of Maryland.

"It was at that time that the Department of Natural Resources, the Port Administration and the [Maryland] Environmental Service agreed to work together to rebuild and restore Hart and Miller Islands with the vision of creating a new state park," Hughes explained.

The first phase of that vision was initiated in 1982 with the opening of the beach to the public. And the island had more than 44,000 visitors in that first year, he said.

Within the next 10 years, the ranger station, observation tower and all of the other facilities there today were completed and open to the public, "and believe me, they enjoy them," Hughes noted.

"If you haven't been here on any given weekend in the summertime, this entire beachfront is filled with hundreds or even thousands of boats and visitors, all here - see HART-MILLER on page 8 -

SPHS student works to gift scholarships to friend in need

- By Devin Crum -

Graduating Sparrows Point High School senior Christina McCluskey received thousands of dollars in scholarships to help her pay for college next year. And she would have had significantly more had she decided to attend a school in Maryland.

But McCluskey's school of choice is Misericordia University in Pennsylvania, where she intends to study occupational therapy. And since the scholarships she received from the Maryland State Senate and House of Delegates are state money, they can only be used for in-state schools.

When McCluskey learned she could not take that money with her, she began to ponder who deserved it as much or more than she did. "And I instantly thought of him," she said.

That person was her friend of six years and fellow SPHS senior David Mundy Jr., whose father had passed away late last year.

When McCluskey brought the idea of giving her $1,000 scholarship from Sixth District Delegate Bob Long to Mundy, Long's office told her they could consider him, but he had not submitted the scholarship application.

"Nothing was done because the due date was right before his father passed," McCluskey said. "It makes sense that he didn't do it."

So McCluskey worked with AVID coordinator and mentor Dr. Geoffrey Holland to complete the application for Mundy.

"He had an essay on file already, so that was put in the packet. And I wrote a letter stating that he deserved it more, and I explained to Bob Long that I can't take it out of state, but he can [use it]," McCluskey explained. Mundy plans to attend Towson University in the fall.

"He's the most deserving person for this that I know," she commented. "He worked just as hard as I did."

And since the deadline had already passed, the application would not have been considered if it was mailed in. Therefore, McCluskey had to find Del. Long's home address and personally deliver it to him so it could be considered.

What's more, McCluskey went through this same process for Del. Robin Grammer's $500 scholarship and noted that she will with Senator Johnny Ray Salling's if she can, though she has not heard back for sure about that one yet.

At the SPHS senior awards ceremony on Friday, June 3, Del. Long described McCluskey's and Mundy's situation after announcing his other scholarship recipients and commended McCluskey and Dr. Holland for their tenacity and hard work.

"They took their time out to put the paperwork together, not only to fill it out, but drop it off at my house," Long said.

"This is what our community is all about. When we see someone in need, we come together," he said. "It's very admirable."

Tradepoint Atlantic unveils new marketing center made of shipping containers

- Article & photo by Patrick Taylor -

While Tradepoint Atlantic has been redeveloping Sparrows Point, they've made sure to keep some nods to the past in honor of the workers who spent over a century on the property.

Last week, Tradepoint continued with their homages when they unveiled a new marketing center, a 1,400-square-foot building made entirely of old shipping containers.

"The opening of our Marketing Center serves as another milestone in the continued evolution of our growth strategy here at Tradepoint Atlantic," said Michael Moore, CEO of Tradepoint Atlantic. "As we continue to bring top-flight tenants to our property, this provides us with yet another asset that helps convey through its unique design our vision for Tradepoint Atlantic."

Inside the new marketing center you'll find a conference room, kitchen, office space and a newly developed software tool to help the marketing team bring in new customers. Along the wall of the main room sits a timeline of the history of the Tradepoint property, complete with a collage.

Tradepoint Atlantic's marketing center is designed by Gensler and constructed by SG Blocks. JLL, a professional services and investment management firm, serves as the exclusive broker for Tradepoint Atlantic.

"We are very excited to bring prospective tenants and customers to this state-of-the-art Marketing Center to share with them the value and opportunities this site has to offer," said Mark Levy, Managing Director at JLL.

"With its advanced technology we will be able to provide visitors an interactive experience, and a glimpse into what the future holds for this site."

Tradepoint executives and the Sixth District delegation cut the ribbon on the new center.

McDonough gears up for general election with Republican Club visit

- by Patrick Taylor -

Last week, Delegate Pat McDonough stopped by the East County Republican Club to speak with the club's members about the upcoming Congressional race and highlight the differences between he and Congressman Dutch Ruppersberger.

McDonough spent about 30 minutes taking shots at the incumbent congressman while laying out his plan for office.

"I believe the country is moving in the wrong direction, rapidly," said McDonough, before labeling Ruppersberger as a "prisoner of big money."

Highlighting recent statements Ruppersberger made regarding transgender bathroom rights, as well as Section-8 housing, McDonough painted Ruppersberger as an out-of-touch Washington insider who votes along party lines.

Unlike Governor Larry Hogan, McDonough has embraced the surge that presidential hopeful Donald Trump has seen, and like Trump McDonough voiced his support for a wall to be built along the Mexican border. But his reasoning goes beyond illegal immigration, with the delegate noting that a lot of heroin makes its way up north from Mexico. Deaths from all categories of opioids reached new highs in Maryland last year, with heroin fatalities increasing 29 percent, to 748, while deaths from prescription pain medications climbed 6 percent, to 351. It was the fifth straight year that heroin deaths were on the rise, and the third straight year for prescription opioids.

Overall, opioids accounted for 86 percent of Maryland overdose deaths in 2015.

McDonough also spent a lot of time hammering Ruppersberger for his time spent on the intelligence committee, wondering aloud how the Congressman could have missed the rising threat of ISIS.

After spending most of his time lasering in on Ruppersberger, McDonough turned his attention to jobs and economic growth.

"In the past eight years our economic growth has been 1 percent," said McDonough. "Growth at 1 percent is third-world country growth."

According to McDonough, he plans to help spur growth by limiting outsourcing, repealing the Dodd-Frank Act, getting a handle on illegal immigration and being prepared for the imminent wave of automation.

HART-MILLER

to enjoy the relaxing atmosphere and calm waters that the island provides," he said.

HMI is now one of Maryland's 72 state parks under the stewardship of DNR. But it began its modern life in 1977 and 1978 when Bethlehem Steel Corporation and C.J. Langenfelder & Son, Inc., respectively, conveyed the deeds to the islands to DNR.

In 1981, the state began construction of a containment dike around the island, forming its present-day perimeter. And placement of dredge material from the Port of Baltimore and its surrounding marine channels commenced from 1984 through the end of 2009.

And according to the Maryland Port Administration's Director for Harbor Development, Chris Correale, the island was important because it allowed Baltimore to become the first port on the east coast to have a 50-foot-deep channel, ready to handle the super Post-Panamax Past visitors to Hart-Miller may be familiar with its large central beach. But the park's expansion opens a whole host of new opportunities to guests to experience.

ships which will begin arriving this summer.

"It has allowed us to thrive as a multi-billion-dollar economic engine for the state of Maryland because it holds 100 million cubic yards of dredge material, put here through the the deepening to the 50-foot channel and subsequent maintenance," Correale explained.

And while the work of countless people over the last four decades has brought the island to this point, everyone in attendance acknowledged the work of one particular group of people - the Hart-Miller Island Citizens Oversight Committee - in assuring that the island would be an asset to the public and the state.

DNR Secretary Mark Belton said that, while the new facility is the culmination of community activism and leadership, steadfast dedication and a "really innovative" partnership, the efforts on the island have only been successful due to the dedication and involvement of citizen groups like the HMICOC over the last 30-plus years.

Since its creation in 1981 in response to community concerns over the HMI project, the Committee provided ongoing review of water quality, sediment monitoring and scientific studies on the impacts of dredging, as well as design plans for the recreational improvements on the island.

"We owe the members of the Citizens Oversight Committee a large debt of gratitude for their vision, unique perspectives and their grit, which ensured that their government never forgot a concept promised to the citizens of Maryland over 40 years ago," Belton commented.

"Their involvement has become a model for how the Port engages with stakeholders in all other dredge material management projects we have," Correale stated, adding that the open and transparent dialogue has been key to establishing relationships with communities.

Belton and Correale recognized two longtime Committee members, Tom Kroen and Harry Wujek Jr., who both passed away late last year. As part of that recognition, Correale revealed that the MPA plans to erect a monument on the island in the fall, in honor of the HMICOC and the importance of citizen engagement.

Maryland Park Service Superintendent Nita Settina said some of the island's greatest assets are "world-class views of the Chesapeake Bay from an observation tower, high-quality grassland and lake habitat that attracts and impressive diversity of sea and bird life" and a half-mile of beachfront for wading and picnicking, along with several other recreational resources.

An avid cyclist, Settina made the decision to have bicycles on the island for visitors to use.

"I thought bikes out here would be really fun, and a good way to run from the mosquitoes and generate a little breeze," she joked.

DNR will now be working with MES and using input from visitors to develop a plan to eventually expand recreational access to the island's much-larger north cell as well.

"When that's ready, the entire island will be 1,100 acres and open to public access," Settina concluded.

SCHOLARSHIP

- continued from page 2A -

"It's amazing," Long expressed as he presented a Maryland House of Delegates proclamation to McCluskey. "You went above and beyond to help this young man out in his time of need."

Mundy heaped praise on his classmate as well, noting that through the years they had been in school together, he and McCluskey had discussed their futures, including how they would pay for college.

Mundy had expected to have enough scholarships to almost fully pay for his expenses at TU. But because of his father's death, he had missed the deadline on many of them.

"I thought I had nothing. It was a really happy moment, knowing that someone was there for me," he said. "What Christina did for me is really going to make a difference."

But McCluskey told the East County Times she was just doing what her parents had raised her to do.

"I feel very humbled to give [the scholarships] to him," she said. "But I was just doing what was expected of me, and what a friend would do, really. I know he would do it for me."

Following the announcement at the awards ceremony, the two embraced each other, during which McCluskey said Mundy expressed his heartfelt appreciation for what she did, and she responded that it was her pleasure. She added that she was so proud of him and that she knows his father is too.

Free summer meals and camp for BCPS students

School will be out soon, but the free breakfasts and lunches that some families depend on during the school year will continue.

Baltimore County Public Schools is participating in the Summer Food Service Program, sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, which provides free meals to all children (ages 18 and under) free of charge and without applications or registration.

Meals will be provided Monday through Friday at area branches of the Baltimore County Public Library (lunch only) from June 20 - Aug. 12, and at selected schools (breakfast and lunch) from July 5 - 29.

Breakfast will consist of cereal, a breakfast bar, or a pop tart served with fruit or juice and milk. For lunch, the program offers a cold sandwich, fruit or vegetable, juice or frozen treat and milk.

A list of locations and times and additional information is attached.

mation is attached.

Studies have shown the importance of a child getting their day started with a good breakfast. And just because school is out for summer doesn't mean that BCPS takes any less interest in helping the future leaders of America.

Want to help your child get ready for Grade 6? Loch Raven Technical Academy is hosting a special FREE half-day summer camp, Camp Raven, from July 5 - 29.

The camp, which is only for Baltimore County Public Schools' students who will be entering Grade 6 in August, is designed to strengthen students' skills in reading, mathematics, social studies, and science. Instruction will be individualized to meet students' needs and will feature many project-based activities to engage students in deeper learning experiences.

The camp will be held at Loch Raven Technical Academy, 8101 LaSalle Rd., 21286, from 8:30 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. each day. Bus transportation will not be provided.

Space is limited, and enrollment is on a first-come basis. For more information or to enroll, please visit www.signupgenius.com/go/4090d4da9aa2ca6f94-camp.

RECOILING IN RELIEF

As part of the ignition system, it is the job of the "ignition coil" to transform the battery's low voltage into the thousands of volts required for the spark plugs to ignite the fuel. This component can fail due to voltage overload caused by bad spark plugs / plug wires or shorts caused by damage in the coil's windings and insulation (due to heat and vibration). As a result, the vehicle can suddenly die after running for a while, or the engine may not start at all. Fortunately, replacing a faulty ignition coil is a relatively inexpensive repair. The spark plugs should be replaced at the same time. Ignoring spark plug problems can result in faulty ignition coils.

When was the last time you replaced either the ignition coil or your spark plugs? If it was a long time ago (or worse, if you can't remember!) then it's time to bring your car into our shop. Our experienced technicians can provide the preventive care that keeps your car running smoothly and safely. In addition, we can find the source of any problems you're dealing with and fix them fast the first time that you bring it in,

Open Mon.-Fri. 7:30-5. We fix check engine lights!

HINT: Replacing the ignition coil and spark plugs is one of the top ten check-engine-light repairs.

BCPS students spend time in China

Baltimore County Public Schools has had a China Cultural Exchange program with Tie Yi (First Railway) School in Xi'an, China, since 2007. The partnership involves students from each school district living with families in the community and attending school in the host country for a six to eight week period. Numerous past BCPS participants in the program are now in college studying Chinese language, Asian studies, international business and diplomacy.

This year's crop of students visiting China includes two Eastern Tech and two Patapsco students.

This year, two of the students are participating thanks to the fundraising opportunities provided by the Towson Town Chick-fil-A and Applebee's on Pulaski Highway. Funds raised through these business partners go to the Education Foundation of BCPS, through a designated account for the program. Scholarships are awarded based on need. The principals of Patapsco and Pikesville high schools matched the scholarship award their students received through the Foundation.

The educators who will accompany the BCPS students this year are Keith Lorenz, a consulting teacher at Dulaney High, and Meagan Wilson, a Chinese language teacher at Patapsco High.

While in China, BCPS students will reside with the families of Chinese students. Two days each week, the students will take field trips. When the students are in school, they will take English classes with Chinese students. They will also take special classes in Chinese language, art, cooking and more.

Dump Dutch & Stop Section 8 Housing

- by Delegate Ric Metzgar (R-7) -

I will be hosting a Dump Dutch & Stop Section 8 Housing event on Saturday, June 18 at the Commodore Hall, located at 1909 Old Eastern Avenue.

During the 1990's, Dutch Ruppersberger, then Baltimore County Executive, opened the door wide to Section 8 housing. As a Congressman during his many years in Washington, he has been an enthusiastic supporter of President Obama's Section 8 programs. As your Congressman, I will support current legislation in the House that greatly reduces Section 8 Housing.

I also oppose the Home Act which is coming before the County Council for a vote in August. This proposal would force private businesses to kneel down to big brother and accept government programs. It is an outright expansion of Section 8 housing.

Any person who resides in the proximity of Section 8 housing can confirm how difficult it is to rid the neighborhood of residents who are nuisances. During my years as a State Legislator, I have received numerous complaints about drug dealing, noise and other disturbances. It has been almost impossible to fix these problems because the government has no respect for the concerns or complaints of private home owners. In the social engineer's attempt to spread the poverty around, Baltimore County has become a dumping ground and saturated with so-called affordable housing. The new program will spread the poverty and the problems into other neighborhoods while continuing to disrupt the current victimized neighborhoods.

All of these programs are a result of failure by city politicians and big government advocates. There are 30,000 vacant houses in Baltimore City that could be rehabilitated, transformed into public housing and be provided as "rent to own" opportunities.

The only way to defeat this invasion of Section 8 housing into Baltimore County is for the citizens to become united and begin to fight back. We have the right to know the identity of the principals behind these shadow non-profits that are reaping the financial benefits of Section 8 housing. The citizens have the right to demand that government will respond to their complaints. The elected officials of Baltimore County represent the people who elect them, not outsiders with an agenda.

Join me and others on June 18th to start the movement by Dumping Dutch, the biggest supporter of Section 8 Housing.

Speed camera enforcement steps up on 695

As part of the Maryland SafeZones Automated Speed Enforcement (ASE) program, the Maryland Transportation Authority (MDTA) and MDTA police, in coordination with the Maryland Department of Transportation's State Highway Administration and Maryland State Police (MSP), will deploy ASE equipment for construction activities on the I-95 Express Toll Lanes (ETL) project in northeast Baltimore.

Beginning on June 9, the ASE equipment will be deployed on eastbound I-695 (Inner Loop) between Bel Air Road and Philadelphia Road. This equipment will be used to slow drivers in the ETL work zone at the I-95/I-695 interchange. Advance warning signs are in place prior to the work zone to alert drivers of automated speed enforcement use, while a speed trailer will display drivers' speeds.

After a 21-day warning period, MSP will authorize citations starting on June 30. By law, if a vehicle is recorded as traveling 12 or more miles over the posted speed limit (the posted speed is 55 mph at this location), a fine of $40 will be issued to the registered owner of the vehicle.

Maryland SafeZones' goal is to slow drivers and make work zones safer environments for workers, drivers and passengers. Even when workers are not present, work zones can be dangerous due to uneven pavement, lane shifts, reduced shoulders and other modifications. For more information on the program, visit safezones.maryland.gov. The current work at the I-95/I-695 interchange will reconstruct and realign I-695 from Bel Air Road to Philadelphia Road. The project is anticipated to complete in fall 2016.

'Now You See Me 2' has little movie magic

- By Teddy Durgin -

One of the great things about having XM/Sirius satellite radio in the car is that when you are on a long road trip with the family, or just doing a lot of driving in general, you can pre-set multiple channels and enjoy music from multiple decades that you wouldn't ordinarily hear on terrestrial radio. So, on my pre-sets, I have the '60s on Channel 6, the '70s on 7, the '80s on 8, the '90s on 9, and so forth. Of those, I must say, the '60s had some of the best road music with everyone from the Beach Boys to the Beatles to all of the old Motown classics.

But if you listen to any station long enough, you recognize their playlist. For the last week, for whatever reason, whenever I have turned to the '60s on 6, inevitably within the first three or four songs I will hear Sam Cooke's great 1962 hit "Twistin' the Night Away." You know the lyrics. They're somehow in your head already when you come into this world. "They're twistin'... twistin'... everybody's feelin' great! They're twistin'... twistin'... twistin' the night away!" That chorus repeats a LOT! You wanna know where else it was repeatin'?! In my head during the entirety of my recent screening of "Now You See Me 2!" Aaargh!

Here is a film that has little interest in recognizable human emotions, believable character development or plausible storytelling. It's only interested in piling plot twist upon plot twist, reveal upon reveal, until you just don't care. You're just on a roller coaster waiting for the darn thing to stop. It's so twisty and turny that it makes boring, normal, everyday, routine life a welcome return.

Almost the entire cast is back from the first film, which really didn't seem to warrant a sequel. But here it is. The vaunted Four Horsemen - a quartet of magicians, each with a special talent (besides varying degrees of smug), who use their skills to heist major banks and crooked conglomerates and give the cash back to the masses - are back. As the film opens, they are awaiting orders from the secret dark-magic syndicate known as The Eye. The Horsemen include: Atlas (Jesse Eisenberg), a slight-of-hand expert; Merritt (Woody Harrelson), a master hypnotist; Jack (Dave Franco), a professional pick-pocket; and newcomer Lula (Lizzy Caplan), who replaces Isla Fisher's escape artist. Her main talent is illusion, which is used to hilarious effect early on when she has to fake her hand being cut off in order to create a diversion.

Unfortunately, as with the first flick, the film becomes less and less interested in the team as the story twists its night away. And because there are so many turns of the plot, it's one of those dumb movies that actually thinks itself really, really smart. The central story again entails Mark Ruffalo's FBI agent, who is secretly an operative of The Eye, working out some long-held Daddy issues by plotting out ridiculously convoluted capers involving magic and illusion.

Also returning are Morgan Freeman and Michael Caine, who's amazing voices can't save some really silly, faux-profound dialogue about what we see with our eyes, what the nature of reality is and other hogwash. These two gents would have been better served spending their time narrating documentaries or books on tape this past year rather than lumbering through this sequel. They're really old now, too. So, most of their scenes entail their efforts to get from one chair to the next.

The one promising character is an evil tech billionaire played by Daniel Radcliffe who secretly loves magic (get it, get it). He recruits the Four Horsemen to steal an all-powerful computer chip. Radcliffe is great in his first few scenes, displaying an impish glee at his own badness. But, like so many of the other actors and characters, he shrinks the longer the film goes on as the film piles twist upon twist.

The whole thing is also a grand set up for "Now You Pay Me... er, See Me 3," of course. This is a world where billions around the world literally congregate in large public spaces to await the Horsemen's next performance piece. Let's see if this sequel can pull off the same trick by getting throngs of people to show up and turn this franchise into a trilogy.

Sequel 'Conjures' up a second course of frights and scares

- By Teddy Durgin -

One of the sucky things about getting older - and even as I get older, I'll never stop using words like "sucky" - is that you grow increasingly cynical about horror flicks and other genre movies that are purportedly "based on a true story," "inspired by real events," etc. The "Conjuring" movies play this conceit up to the max, as the main two ghost-busters, Lorraine and Ed Warren (Vera Farmiga and Patrick Wilson), are a husband-and-wife couple who really did practice paranormal psychology back in their 1970s heyday.

With so many cheesy cable TV shows now on about ghosts and haunted houses and the fact that anyone can walk through their creepy dwellings now with cameras and sound recorders the size of credit cards, my guess is any ghosts or evil spirits worth their salt are fading even further back into the collective woodwork of the space between spaces. I feel for 'em. It must have been SO much easier to scare people pre-iPhones.

So, "The Conjuring 2" with its 1970s setting is able to really suck viewers into a time when a "Starsky & Hutch" poster would hang on a kid's bedroom wall and the monsters in the closets had to wade through a wardrobe sea of plaid, polyester and bell-bottoms to even peek out into the real world.

This time, the good-Catholic Warrens are dispatched by the Church to London to help a single mom (Frances O'Connor) and her four kids battle a malevolent spirit in their creaky rowhouse, one that has especially targeted the 11-year-old daughter for some reason. What's great about James Wan's direction is he really knows how to summon a feeling of dread and ratchet up that mood and tone for long chunks of screen time. This is a very unsettling film, folks.

"The Conjuring 2" is also a step above the usual horror-thriller fare due to its casting. Farmiga, Wilson and O'Connor are all top-notch actors that have appeared in prestige pictures and well-produced TV shows before. Farmiga's entrancing eyes are ideal for this kind of story and character. You stare deep into them as they register fear and anticipation, long enough for your guard to be let down and Wan to slam a door and make you jump out of your seat. Franka Potente of "The Bourne Identity" and Simon McBurney of "Tinker Tailor Soldier Spy" also lead solid support as a British skeptic and believer, respectively, who are already on the scene when the Warrens make the trip from America.

I do have a couple of nitpicks. Chiefly, at around two hours and 15 minutes, it's just too darn long. It takes the screenplay almost an hour (it might have been shorter, but it felt that long) to get the Warrens even over to England. So, that first near-half of the film is spent setting the table.

Mostly, though, my nitpicks are just that. I just like being held in a film's grip from start to finish. I don't want to have times where I check out, where even the movie encourages me to take a little rest while the gears of its plot mechanics lurch and creak forward. There's no denying, though, that when "The Conjuring 2" is good... it's scary good!

"The Conjuring 2" is rated R for terror and horror violence.

Hello there! My name is Snookie. I'm a big lap dog looking for a lap and home to call my own. I'm a laid-back girl with tons of personality. Here at BHS, I went on a walk with a dog much smaller than me and I did great! In my previous home I lived with kids who loved me. If my beautiful face hasn't won your heart then come out to meet me. I promise it won't take long to fall in love!

RED

I'm sure you've at least seen or heard of the show "Orange is the new Black", right? Well, the awesome staff here named me and my sister after two of the characters. I'm Red and she is Pennsylvania. I'm a bit more outgoing and adventurous than she is, but the one thing we have in common is that we like being together. That makes us a bonded pair (we have to be adopted together.) We both enjoy comfy bedding, attention and catnip. We have also lived with a dog. If you are looking to add two wonderful felines to your home then look no further!

The adoption fee is $50 for Snookie and free for Red as part of the Baltimore 500 special!
