Welcome

Welcome to Upper Bucks County, microcosm of the Delaware and Lehigh Valleys. Comprised of the Palisades, Pennridge and Quakertown Community school districts, Upper Bucks is more than the sum of its parts.

More than 20 municipal boroughs and townships comprise Upper Bucks. From tidy Cape Cods on long established streets to planned residential communities and rural 18th century fieldstone barns and farmhouses, Upper Bucks offers a broad array of best value housing along with commuter convenience to large urban centers.

Philadelphia is about an hour away, and New York City can be reached in less than two hours. In Upper Bucks, you'll find multi-generational family farms alongside new business startups; historic taverns and restaurants and national, convenience restaurant chains. From commercial and light industrial complexes to downtown business districts embracing a diverse mix of shopping and dining, the area is strategically placed in the center pivot of all four compass points. The area's boroughs and townships offer a wide-open welcome to all who journey here. Recreation and cultural activities are bundled together with "Main Street" appeal, like annual downtown Christmas tree lighting ceremonies and holiday house tours in December, spring and fall outdoor festivals, fireworks and Fourth of July community day events.

Outdoor recreation is abundant here. Nockamixon State Park's hiking, biking and horse trails wrap around the largest, man-made lake in Bucks County, fed by the Tohickon Creek. The park and lake provide year round recreational opportunities for the soloist, family reunion celebrants, and everyone in between. From seasonal kayaking, paddle boarding and picnicking to winter ice fishing, hiking and cross country skiing, Nockamixon State Park and lake is a convenient centerpiece for Upper Bucks communities, and beyond. Outdoor enthusiasts have many choices for big or small hiking jaunts. Ringing Rocks Park or Ralph Stover State Park offers challenging topography for hiking. Local lap walking trails in Milford and Richland townships offer fresh air exercise and are family and leashed canine friendly.

Come to the area's boroughs for unique shopping. Hunt for antique finds in downtown Quakertown, or browse one-of-a-kind boutiques in Perkasie. Dine along the banks of the Delaware River, or walk to area restaurants after a ball game in the park.

Focusset

Our new edition of the Annual Directory and Resource Guide is built from the ground up by Chamber members who live and work in the community. Our aim is to create awareness of a place rich in tradition, dynamic and innovative, as its leaders position the region for the future.

Packed with things to see, do, and experience, there's always something to discover in Upper Bucks. Join us on these pages, and in person.

This is your open invitation to stop by, anytime.

Shopping & Dining

Unique Boutiques: From Fast to Fabulous Dining

What are you hungry for? From full service restaurants in quiet rural settings, to an array of convenience foods and casual restaurants located along Route 309, no one should leave Upper Bucks hungry. Take a moment to consider the diners, convenience foods, cafes or restaurants in any one of Upper Bucks small downtowns.

Quakertown's downtown continues to grow. Look for owner operated restaurants, brew pub and other eateries in the heart of Quakertown's business district. Downtown revitalization efforts reinforce the idea that growth is an evolving process.

For those traveling through Upper Bucks on Route 309, food stops are plentiful.

Stew Butler, franchise restaurant operator of Chick-fil-A, located at 602 N. West End Blvd., in Richland Township, said his goal is to offer a casual dining experience to patrons. "Quick service, fast food, convenience food, no matter what you call it, the way we handle our dining room we are fast casual," Butler said of his business. "While it's a national brand, what sets us apart is we make everything fresh here. Our chicken fillets are trimmed, breaded and cooked on site, and our produce is chopped and sandwiches are assembled here," Butler said. According to Butler, the area is far from food service saturated. "There's always room for something unique in food offerings that the area doesn't already have," Butler said.

While Quakertown Borough and its surrounding municipalities are often referred to as the "heart of Upper Bucks," the region is much larger. Shopping and dining diversity is available to visitors and residents, stretching as far east as Dublin Borough to the Delaware River; south to Montgomery County, and north and west to the Lehigh and Montgomery County borders. Try some down-home cooking or inventive cuisine. Upper Bucks offers variety to the palate and the pocketbook. Consider an afternoon of antiquing after enjoying lunch in town, or be an early bird with breakfast at the Karlton Café, where seasonal ingredients regularly highlight inventive fresh menu specials. Stoked with a hearty breakfast, coffee and fresh squeezed juice, set out to explore the many owner-operated retailers on Broad Street or head to The Quakertown Farmers Market on nearby Station Road to stock up on pantry items, fresh produce, poultry, eggs, meats and cheeses.

Venturing outside of Quakertown, Sellersville, Dublin or Perkasie, full service restaurants in quiet rural settings offer a "time out" to day trippers, hungry visitors or a chance for residents to become regulars.

Tucked in a nearby corner of Milford Township, The Brick Tavern Inn, located at 2460 Old Bethlehem Pike, has been serving travelers and patrons for nearly 200 years, since it opened in 1818. "The Brick" as it is known, was an Underground Railroad stop during the 19th century, on the route to freedom for slaves. Today, visitors enjoy indoor dining year round along with in season, al fresco dining on a tiered patio, surrounded by decorative potted plants, gardens, herbs, and a koi pond. Weekly live musical entertainment is available on the patio. Welcoming hospitality, seasonal ingredients, and a new American cuisine menu are offered in a relaxed country setting, according to Marcia Short, restaurant general manager. "We want people to feel welcome here," Short said of the atmosphere, and food offered at The Brick.

Upper Bucks Businesses Give Back

Community involvement is a hallmark of businesses located in Upper Bucks. The Brick's business philosophy includes offering occasional Charitable Tuesdays, where 10 percent of daily sales go to a designated local charity. So does the team at Chick-fil-A. "We try to be an integral part of the community and support blood drives, and the food pantries, along with the athletic teams, and community fundraisers," Butler said. Long-time Upper Bucks Chamber members, The Brick hosted the 2014 Christmas holiday business card exchange setting a festive mood for celebrating. "We are invested and aware of the local economy and the chamber keeps us involved in that," Short said of membership.

Let's Shop!

Small boutiques offer new and consignment goods, and creativity options in Quakertown Borough. Creative workshops in decorative painting, along with upcycled furniture and home furnishings for sale are available at Pippi & Peanuts Eclectic Boutique. Since 2012, Pippi & Peanuts Owner Jan Reese offers supplies, home décor, furnishings and classes. Reese said she located her business to Quakertown because of its small town charm and central location to her customer base in Quakertown, Dublin and Perkasio. "I am here to bring something new and create excitement in downtown Quakertown," Reese said. "There is so much here from the cute, well kept homes to the park system, pool and even an outdoor ice skating park."

Upscale Atmosphere for the Working Person's Wallet

Convenience. Great food. Accessibility and hospitality. These hallmark characteristics are stock-in-trade features of McCoolle's at the Historic Red Lion Inn and McCoolle's Arts & Events Place in Quakertown.

"When looking for high quality venues to host events and seminars, McCoolle's is dynamic and progressive," said Bob Podraza, Edward Jones Investments financial advisor, located in Quakertown. Podraza said he likes to support other Quakertown business owners and selecting McCoolle's Arts & Events Place for seminar dinners is a good fit. "They are conveniently located, have plenty of parking, good audio visual support, great food and the facility is flexible to accommodate the size of my groups," Podraza said. Both the restaurant and adjacent events building provide services in historically unique settings.

McCoolle's at the Historic Red Lion Inn celebrates a decade of operation in 2015. Originally opened about 1747 by Walter McCoolle, it operated as McCoolle's Tavern. Jan Hench, McCoolle's owner/operator said stewardship of the corner property and historic building is a top priority. "It's a landmark building that had fallen into disrepair," Hench said of the building's condition before she took it over. "When the restaurant was in decline and stopped operating, it was really missed by the community," Hench explained.

Recent façade renovations were necessary when it was discovered the front facing windows needed to be rebuilt. The windows and freshly restored stonework is the backdrop of the popular covered patio-porch dining area, which faces Main Street. McCoolle's is located on the corner of Main and Broad Street.

McCoolle's Arts & Events Place offers a 200-plus seat theater for performing arts entertainment, as well as special occasion catering for business and private parties.

A complimentary shuttle bus service is available to McCoolle's patrons for the asking.

Small craft beers brewed onsite, under the Red Lion Brew banner, offer such quaffs as "1799 Rebel Ale", a nod to the local John Fries Rebellion, and "Komo Sutra Imperial IPA", or India Pale Ale.

Located at 4 South Main Street.

Tourism & Recreation

Visit Upper Bucks County Attractions

Do and see more in Upper Bucks County. There's no shortage of things to do in a region noted for its exceptional beauty, natural resources and recreational accessibility.

From Nockamixon and Ralph Stover state parks to Lake Towhee and Tinicum Park, numerous county and municipal trails and parks are open to the public. Upper Bucks has hiking, biking, walking and boating, horseback riding, fishing, swimming and more, set against lush backdrops of shifting colors and textures and offering a fresh view with each season.

Become an Outdoor Lover in Upper Bucks County.

For those who enjoy camping, Upper Bucks offers several campgrounds where patrons discover comfortable sites and facilities, scenic vistas, convenience and proximity to regional area attractions. While most campgrounds are tucked away in quiet rural pockets, their strategic locations provide easy access to regional rail service and major highways for day tripping. Camping makes exploring the region not only possible, but it's effortless and affordable too.

Local access to the Pennsylvania Turnpike (I-476) provides for easy visits to Philadelphia by car, or connections to regional rail service to Center City Philadelphia, along with history, arts and cultural activities there. "A lot of people use us as a drop off point with easy access to regional rail service to Philadelphia and (driving access to) the Lehigh Valley," said Donna Gallagher, owner/operator of Homestead Campground in West Rockhill Township.

Homestead Campground offers patrons a chance for the perfect combination of rest and activity set in a quiet, relaxed natural atmosphere, Gallagher said. "I think Upper Bucks is a "microcosm" of what Bucks County has to offer," Gallagher said.

Quakerwoods Campground Inc., located on Rosedale Rd. in Milford Township, offers a variety of activities along with campsites and access to nearby attractions. The camping season stretches from June to November.

In Haycock Township the Little Red Barn Campground is located on Old Bethlehem Rd., and is minutes from Lake Nockamixon and Lake Towhee, providing boating, hiking, biking, fishing and picnicking.

Upper Bucks embodies an expansive geography. It touches Dublin Borough and stretches to the Delaware River lined with towns such as Point Pleasant, Erwinna, Upper Black Eddy and Tincum Township. Traversing from the river inland, Upper Bucks includes Springtown, Springfield, Richland, Haycock and Nockamixon Townships. In Milford and West Rockhill Townships, Upper Bucks reach extends to the western Montgomery County border and to the north, toward Lehigh County.

Strategically located between Doylestown to the south and east, and Montgomery County and the Lehigh Valley to the north, Upper Bucks County is a gateway in both directions for travelers and those looking to spend their leisure time in the area, said Robert Cormack, executive director of Bucks County Economic Development Corp., based in Doylestown. "I think of Nockamixon State Park and camping, hiking and bicycling, when I think of Upper Bucks," Cormack said.

The Tincum Arts Festival offers a vast array of regional crafts and art for sale in Erwinna, set between the Delaware River and a backdrop of rolling, curvaceous hills. The Tincum Arts Festival is held annually in Tincum Park along the banks of the Delaware River.

THE UPPER BUCKS HEALTH & DIAGNOSTIC CENTER

From local to national resources, Upper Bucks medical providers are mindful of the needs of patients. They offer world-class partnerships, identify emerging needs of the demographics they serve and are training to retain the next generation of health care professionals.

Whether treatment involves minor injuries or a life-altering illness diagnosis, prevention programs, workshops about healthy lifestyle choices, cancer treatment or cutting edge clinical trials, health care provided by Grand View Health and St. Luke's University Health Network have strong roots in Upper Bucks.

"For over a hundred years, Grand View Health has served our community and will continue delivering top-notch care right here – close to home," said Jean M. Keeler, JD, president and chief executive officer of Grand View Health. "Affordable cost and accessible care and treatment are paramount to Grand View's mission to serve its patients," Keeler said. "Our goal is to offer residents in Bucks and Montgomery counties exceptional quality care that is both affordable and accessible."

According to Keeler, health care includes "leading our community to a healthier future." Keeler said its employees, medical staff, volunteers and partnerships are among its greatest strengths. For more than two decades, Grand View Health has had a partnership with Children's Hospital of Philadelphia for pediatric and neonatology services. In partnership with Fox Chase Cancer Center, a world-leader in cancer diagnostics, treatment and care, Grand View Health offers opportunities for patients to engage in clinical trials.

A partnership with Lehigh Valley Health Network offers area residents advanced maternal fetal or prenatal care by perinatologists. Such services are for high risk or complicated pregnancies and deliveries, Keeler explained.

While St. Luke's University Health Network is based in Bethlehem, area residents can take advantage of cutting edge services through St. Luke's Hospital Quakertown Campus and its nearby affiliates across multiple medical disciplines.

The St. Luke's Bone and Joint Institute, located in Quakertown, treats adult, pediatric and geriatric patients with innovative and emerging technological advances and practices.

St. Luke's University Health Network was among 20 sites chosen from across the United States, to participate in the Success Using Neuromodulation with BURST, or SUNBURST study, as an innovative option for managing chronic pain. The new technology involves an implant device, allowing surgeons to customize treatments for patients, providing more flexibility and device location comfort, according to St. Luke's officials.

John Sylvia, president of St. Luke's Hospital Quakertown Campus, said treatment and education are keys to injury prevention, treatment and rehabilitation. "We are a 62-bed hospital and there are not many 62-bed hospitals with leading neurosurgeons and access to world-class, highly skilled specialists, and we've got it here. My goal is to have no one have cancer, a heart attack or torn ACL," Sylvia said.

"Prevention has improved, but it's not where it needs to be. Society in general has not taken ownership of this. As more people take ownership, it resonates more,” Sylvia said. Daily preventative practices can avoid illness and injury. “Many health care services are geared toward certain age groups, but physical therapy cuts across all ages,” Sylvia said. Chronic pain treatment – for the “weekend warrior,” high school athletes, or those with moderate or severe injuries, illness, or post surgery is a specialty area, according to Sylvia.

A hospital and health care facility, the Temple/St. Luke’s School of Medicine is the only school of medicine located in the Lehigh Valley, the St. Luke’s website said. Training and retaining high quality physicians, and grooming specialists, is one of the program’s goals, Sylvia said. “A lot of students now have some sort of connection to the area, and that creates a tie,” Sylvia said of training the next generation of medical practitioners.

History & Culture

A Rich Past, Vibrant Present and Forward Future

Pennsylvania, loosely translated as “Penn’s Woods,” retains its charm and vitality more than 300 years after King Charles II of England deeded the land to William Penn.

Upper Bucks contains a rich treasure trove to explore local history and experience cultural events.

The John Fries Rebellion happened here. An American Revolutionary War uprising, the Fries Rebellion protested unfair taxation by the new government, the thing the Colonists fought England to be free of, according to Dr. Robert Leight of Richland Township, a local historian and retired public school educator. “John Fries opposed the tax, which wasn’t explained very well by the government,” Leight said. Known interchangeably as the “Hot Water Tax,” “House or Home Tax Rebellion,” and “Window Pane Tax,” assessments were made by the number of windows in a home, since window glass was expensive and considered a luxury. As a Revolutionary War veteran, Fries became a magnet for dissent, and was nearly hanged for his part, Leight said. President John Adam’s intervention – at the “Eleventh Hour” – spared Fries neck from the noose.

Upper Bucks would feature as an Underground Railroad stop during the American Civil War. Leight says the greater Quakertown area included two main “stations” as they were known, and the slaves were called “passengers,” a nod to railroad terminology.

History is relevant as long as people remember it, according to Frank Licopoli, a member of the Quakertown Historical Society. Licopoli said his mission is to save and restore as many documents as possible to establish a reference file of local personal histories. The stories of “ordinary people who worked in factories, raised children, contributed to the school districts and church communities” are worth preserving, Licopoli said. Historical societies provide collections to view, events, activities, tours, education and opportunities to volunteer. A great resource for researching a family tree, historical societies provide artifacts and mementos for a taste of eras gone by.

Haycock, Hilltown, Perkasie, Richland, Milford and Springfield Townships; along with Dublin, Quakertown and Richlandtown Boroughs boast active historical societies with much to share.

Learn about local history at The Sellersville Museum, located at 120 East Church St. The Richland Historical Society is located in a one-room school house, located at 130 Richlandtown Pike, Quakertown.

Nearby historic attractions include Mercer Museum and Fonthill, Mercer’s home in Doylestown, and Pearl S. Buck House and Historic Site, located in Hilltown Township.

Wander along Upper Bucks many country roads, dotted with vintage and antique examples of Dutch and German barns or explore the many covered bridges here.

A night on the town could include a local trip to Sellersville Theater, a showcase for regional and national acts inside a restored Victorian theater. Nearby, Bethlehem’s annual Musikfest and year-round ArtsQuest venues offer festivals and live music, while Allentown’s PPL Center offers sports events, and A-list live arena concerts.

Education & Agriculture

Partnerships for the Future

Education and agriculture are vigorous Upper Bucks mainstays. From its rich history of one-room school houses to its modern public school districts and private schools, Upper Bucks County offers residents diversity in educational choice.

Live and learn in Upper Bucks

Public education aims to prepare youngsters from preschool to young adults for the rigorous new economy and challenges of college and career advancement.

“Our primary concern is ensuring that students are equipped with the skills necessary to succeed in the 21st century economy. This includes content knowledge in traditional disciplines, as well as competencies such as enhanced literacy (print and digital), technological proficiency, collaboration and an appreciation for diversity,” said Palisades Superintendent Bridget O’Connell.

Palisades, Pennridge and Quakertown are the three public school districts serving Upper Bucks County. For high school graduates and adult learners, the nearby Perkasio campus of Bucks County Community College offers conveniently located continuing education, as well as four-year degrees in partnerships with area colleges and universities through its main Newtown campus.

In addition to educating students, Upper Bucks school districts contribute to the local economies by providing jobs for residents and supporting local retailers, restaurants and other businesses.

Quakertown Community School District Superintendent William (Bill) Harner, said making connections with the business community is imperative to his approach to Chamber membership.

“Active involvement by hosting social functions with local organizations and making connections with the business community helps facilitate partnerships in the community. We do our best to do our business here in our own backyard,” Harner said.

O’Connell said about 46 percent of employees live within the Palisades School District.

“By keeping, adding and expanding current programs, the District is educating young residents who will, in many cases, continue to live, work and enrich the community for the rest of their lives,” O’Connell said.

The three public school districts support skilled trades and industrial education to students who choose to attend classes at the Upper Bucks County Technical School, located in Bedminster Township.

Of the skilled trades taught at Upper Bucks County Technical School, agriculture science, is a natural fit for the area, providing young workers a chance to continue their specialized education either at nearby Bucks County Community College or Delaware Valley University, noted for its progressive agriculture and animal husbandry programs. Upper Bucks County’s agricultural heritage thrives with new, sustainable and organic farming start-ups, co-existing alongside multi-generational family farms.

Farming is Big Business

“According to the 2012 Agriculture Census, there are 827 farms operating on 64,024 acres across Bucks County,” said Andrew Frankenfield, Penn State Extension educator. “That translates to reported crop sales of roughly $46.8 million, and livestock sales of roughly $15.5 million,” Frankenfield said.

“Trends in Upper Bucks as well as throughout Pennsylvania are the increasing number of new and young farmers going into agriculture from other careers,” said Tianna DuPont, sustainable agriculture educator with Penn State Cooperative Extension, serving Northampton, Lehigh and Upper Bucks Counties.

“The local food movement is demanding locally grown products. New farmers are bringing an interest in sustainable agriculture, a large number of farmers markets and restaurants want to buy local, and grocery stores want to buy local,” DuPont explained.

Many innovative farming trends include systems integration for pest control, increased use of biologically based sprays and treatments, introducing beneficial insects and caution regarding spray treatment applications, DuPont said. “There is a lot of habitat here, and Bucks County is unique,” DuPont said.

Seasonal outdoor farmers markets bring together consumers with grower producers. Popular customer supported agriculture also known as community supported agriculture, or CSA programs, offer upfront “shares” consumers may purchase early in the farmer’s growing season. The shares guarantee fresh product to customers with weekly deliveries during the growing and harvest seasons.

Quakertown

Open For Business

From its initial settlement days as the “Great Swamp” in the early eighteenth century, to its current status as a thriving commercial hub in Upper Bucks County, Quakertown has drawn on the progressive spirit of its residents, business owners and leaders to create an outstanding environment for business to thrive and families to live, work and play.

In addition to favorable tax incentives and a growing population needing goods and services, there are a number of compelling reasons to consider a development project in Quakertown.

The Quakertown Region Boasts a Growing Population ...With Growing Income

QUAKERTOWN POPULATION BY AGE (2000 - 2013)

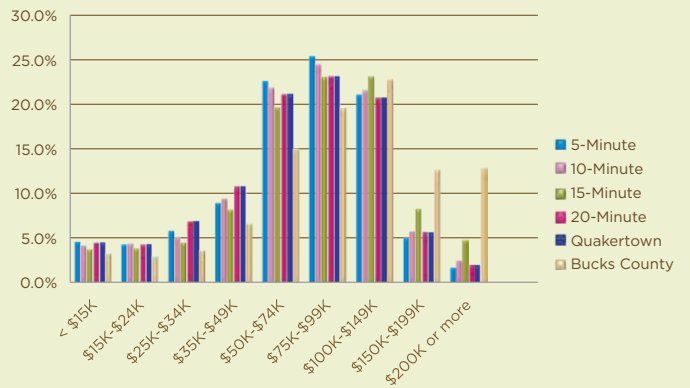

By 2013, steady increases in the 45 - 54 and 55 - 64 age brackets will occur in Quakertown, while a dramatic decrease in the 35 - 44 age bracket will occur. This will result in 40.5% of the population being over the age of 45 versus 34.3% being over 45 in 2000. Only 13.2% of the population will be between the ages of 35 and 44 years versus 17.9% in 2000.

AN AGE COMPARISON OF REGIONAL POPULATION (2013)

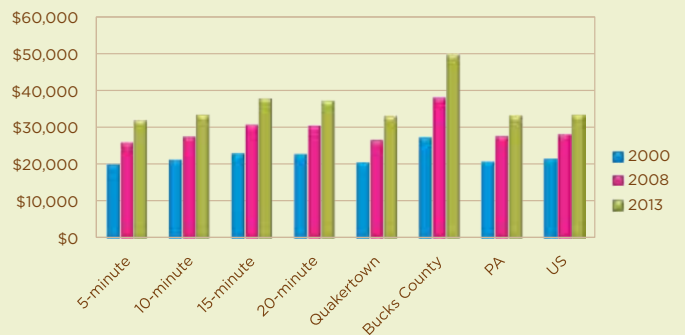

By the year 2013, the most notable difference in age groups depicted in each market area will be in the 25 - 34 age bracket. Quakertown and the 5-minute drive time area will have a higher percentage of the population in this age category than the other market areas. The other, more notable difference will occur in the 55 - 64 age category; the other rings will have a higher percentage in this category than that of Quakertown and the 5-minute drive time ring.

AVERAGE HOUSEHOLD INCOME (2013)

By 2013, over 25% of the households in the 5-minute drive time area will earn between $75,000 and $99,000. This is in keeping with total county earnings where 68.0% of the households will earn over $75,000. In 2013, 65.2% of Quakertown's households will earn between $50,000 and $149,999 versus 2008 when 56.0% of Quakertown's households were earning between $50,000 and $149,999.

PER CAPITA INCOME (2000 - 2013)

By 2013, the per capita income for Bucks County will be $49,873 and the per capita income for persons in Quakertown will be $33,214, which is comparable to that of Pennsylvania and the United States.

The population in each of the drive time rings has been increasing, and is projected to continue to increase through 2013.

...And Growing Consumer Needs

CONSUMER PERCEPTION OF OPTIMAL AVAILABILITY OF VARIOUS RETAIL SERVICES IN THE REGION

When area consumers were asked to rate whether or not there were sufficient resources for various retail establishments in the region, the three rated in most need are:

- art galleries
- non-movie theaters
- book stores

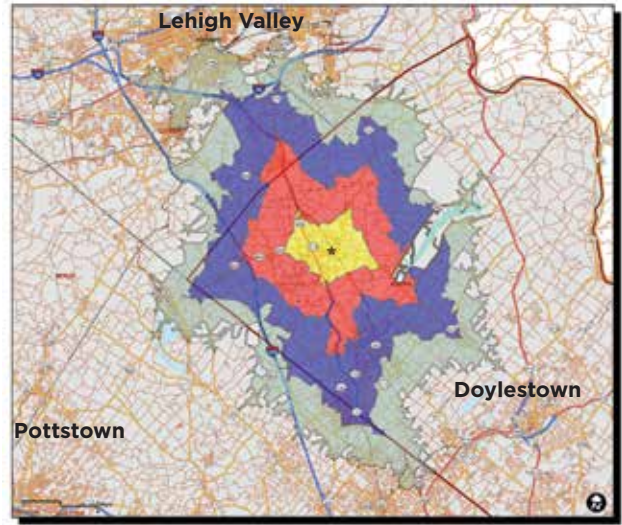

What consumers reported as sufficiently available (“there are enough of these”) are:

- hair/beauty salons
- hardware and home centers
- family clothing stores
- movie theaters
- hotels/motels

QUAKERTOWN IS IDEALLY SITUATED AT THE CROSSROADS OF MAJOR ACCESS ROUTES: PA 476, ROUTE 309, I-78 AND ROUTE 313

This convenient location gives Quakertown easy access to Philadelphia, the Lehigh Valley and New York. Quakertown also is convenient to Pottstown and other points west in Montgomery County, and Doylestown and other locales in Central and Lower Bucks County.

Business & Location

A Great Place to Do Business

Work locally, regionally, nationally or take the business global from Upper Bucks County. Providing the needed tools for business and industry success including networking support, a rich talent pool, fairly priced commercial and industrial real estate and convenient access to markets through a series of major highways, Upper Bucks County is strategically positioned in the mid-Atlantic region.

“There is room to grow here,” said Raj Verma, president of Vertech International Inc., a global company based in Richland Township specializing in “soft jaws,” manufacturing and defense products. Access to major markets is key, and a primary reason Vertech is located in Upper Bucks, according to Verma. Bayonne Bridge in New Jersey, one such major project is easily accessible because of convenient highways and interstates. “We have easy access because of the highways here, and to the Bayonne Bridge project, where we are manufacturing the railings for this billion dollar construction project,” Verma said.

While Vertech is a global company the firm’s core markets are primarily located in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and Virginia, according to Verma. Major highway access creates a flexible reach for businesses and growth for startups as well as long established companies. The potential for freight rail service, along with major arterial highway access makes Upper Bucks County a vibrant place to do business.

Upper Bucks is convenient to major markets from the Pennsylvania Turnpike, Route 309 and Routes 663/313. That makes shipping goods and providing customer services an E-Z Pass ride away. As home grown manufacturing companies rebound to challenge off-shore operations, the Upper Bucks County Technical School is poised to provide skilled trade talent to a variety of industries.

The Upper Bucks County Technical School outreach is expanding to meet emerging business and employer needs through new programming partnerships. “The mission of the technical school is workforce development,” said Bernard J. Wagenseller, executive director of the facility, based in Bedminster Township. Chamber membership benefits the technical school’s mission in collaborative ways, according to Wagenseller. From member representation on a variety of school and occupational committees to networking opportunities with business and industry leaders, students and employers can connect more easily than ever before.

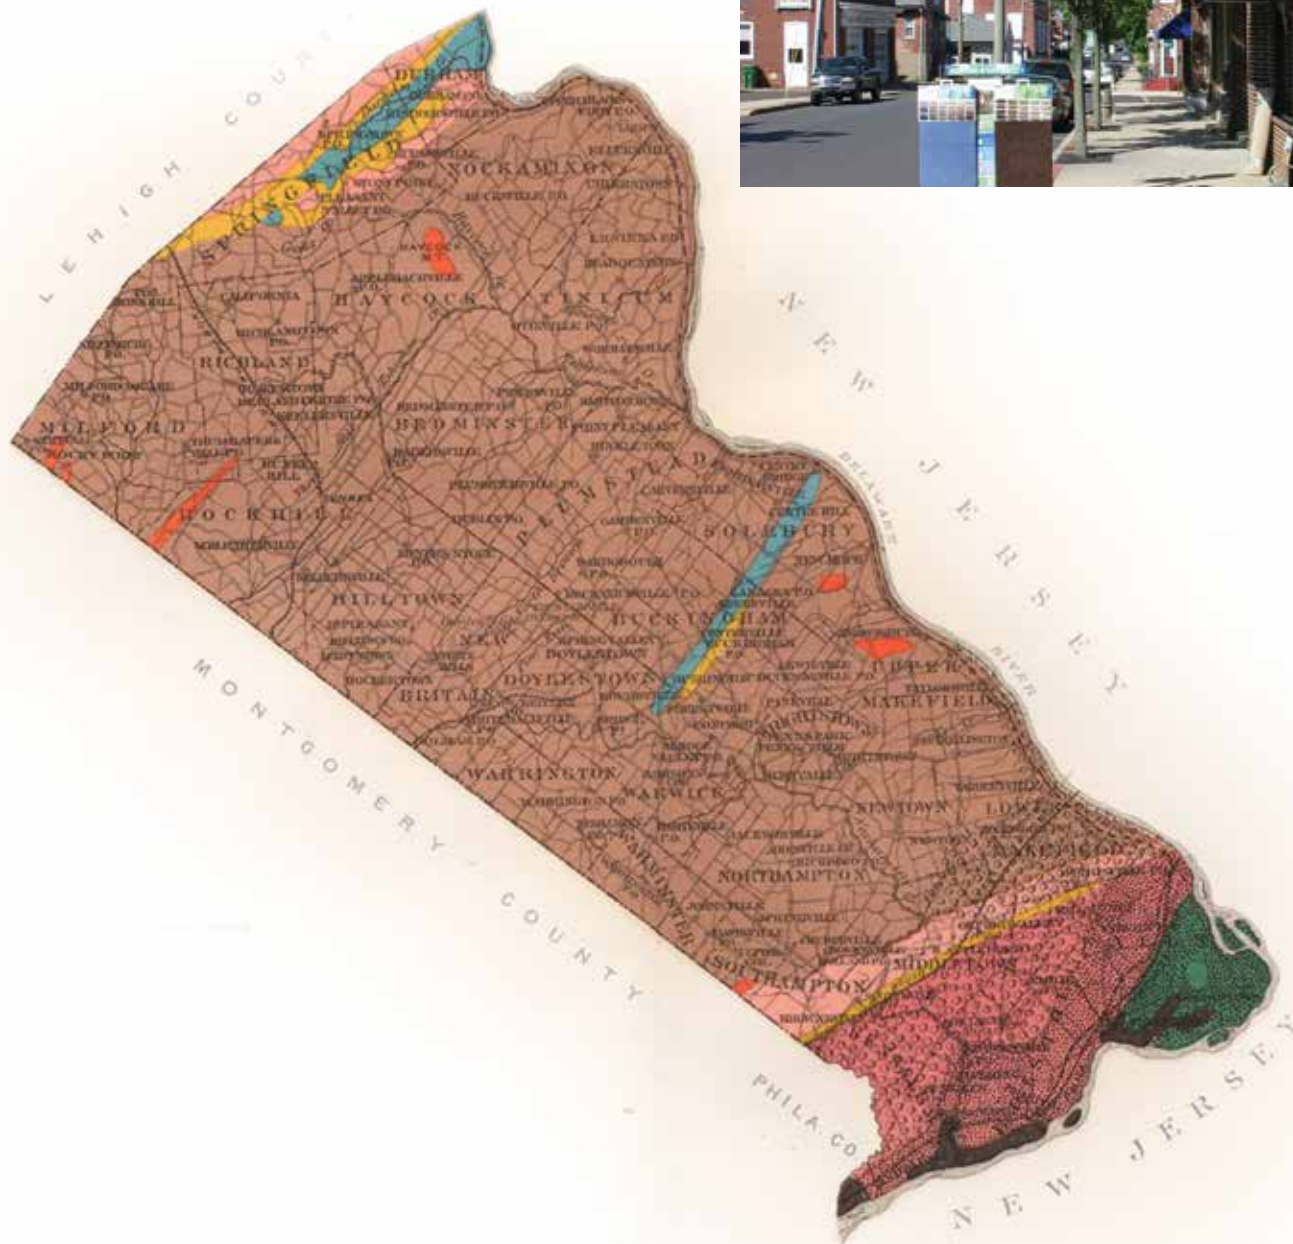

New and emerging initiatives are being explored to bring manufacturing industry job opportunities to young adults in Upper Bucks County, said Susan Herring, director of workforce development at Bucks County Community College. Herring says a pilot program implemented last year in Bristol, Lower Bucks, exceeded expectations. Its promising results could be replicated in Upper Bucks. “The Metalwork Training Program, run by Bucks County Community College and Advanced Manufacturing Training Center in Bristol, trains skilled workers in manufacturing trade jobs by working directly with potential employers,” Herring said. “More than 90 percent of our first graduating class last year received job placement,” Herring said. “The trend is healthy for manufacturing jobs employment,” Herring explained. The Bucks County Career Advancement Alliance has applied for a $1.2 million state Career Technical Education Grant, as part of an initiative announced by Governor Tom Wolf to support career and technical jobs and education. Wagenseller said the money would be used for workforce development, assessment and networking capabilities for students.

In cooperation with public entities like school districts and municipal and county government, real estate prime for redevelopment can get a shot at joining the tax rolls and bringing income and jobs to communities.

United States Cold Storage, based in Voorhees N.J., is repurposing a land tract to take advantage of the Local Economic Revitalization Tax Assistance program, or LERTA. The United States Cold Storage LERTA in Richland Township provides tax incentives on the improvements to the property for 10 years.
