DEVELOPER A NO-SHOW

Union members sign in before attending the proposed land use change for Evergreen Valley College.

Union members turn out for final land use change proposal for Evergreen College

By William D. Bellou
Publisher

Union members turned out, but the developer was a no show at the last community meeting for the proposed Evergreen Valley College 27 acre land use change held on Aug. 25 at Grace Church on Aborn Rd. The meeting was a follow-up to the Aug. 15 meeting.

More than 40 percent of those attending the meeting to provide input to San Jose City staff were union members from two local trade unions. The developer and its representatives of the project, Republic Urban, did not attend the meeting.

The controversial project calls for a land use change of 27 acres owned by Evergreen Valley College on the north-eastern corner of Yerba Buena and San Felipe roads from Public/-Quasi-Public (PQP) to Neighborhood/Community Commercial (NCC).

The proposal calls for Republic Urban Development to be awarded a 95-year lease on the property providing revenue of 1.5 million dollars annually to the college which is approximately 1 percent of its current budget.

The next meeting regarding the land use proposal goes before the San Jose City Planning Commission at City Hall on September 28.

Evergreen dance troupes win top awards at 2016 World Dance Championships

By Sean Eastwood
Times staff writer

Evergreen dancers from Achieve Dance Arts Academy (ADAA) have won the 2016 World Dance Championship in New Jersey on Aug. 2.

One team of 9 members won the 3rd place in the 11 and younger small group competitions, and the other nine member team won the 5th place in the 12 and older small group competitions.

In 2015, ADAA won the 1st place Champion of the National Finals at the US National Dance Competition in Orlando, Florida, for the 12 and older solo division, with the Pointe Ballet routine, La Esmeralda.

ADAA has been providing innovative programs, including classical dance, contemporary dance, Latin dance and Gymnastics for the Evergreen Valley for several years. The Dance troupes have performed frequently at community events, charity events and other social gatherings throughout the Bay Area.

The Achieve Dance Arts Academy has received awards by the City of San Jose and the County of Santa Clara.

Proposal

proposal process and the remainder of time was devoted to community input on how this land should be used. Community members were allowed a one minute time limit to express their opinions.

The City of San Jose Planning Services Division Project Manager, Kimberly Vacca, reviewed the comments received from the last community meeting.

Here's the summary of individual comments from community members at the Aug. 15 meeting.

- The college should preserve the land for school purposes and expansion.
- There are not enough classes and amenities at Evergreen Valley College to accommodate local and regional populations.
- The land should be maintained for public use and not include commercial buildings or retail stores with minimum wage jobs.
- The 27 acres should be used for recreational purposes and open space.
- If the development must be constructed, it should only be built on the corner of Paseo de Arboles Rd. San Felipe Rd.
- The level of service on the nearby roadway is inadequate and unsafe.
- The proposal restricts educational opportunity for Evergreen.
- There is an oversaturation of commercial development in the area.
- Commercial land use is best served in urban areas, not at the college.
- There should be an environmental impact report.
- There is a current lack of land for public uses within the city.
- The current land proposal is inconsistent with the State of California general plan guidelines.
- Evergreen Valley College is moving forward with the application illegally and requested the city attorney look into the issue.
- There is a fault line on the property which makes the land unsafe.
- Evergreen Valley College cannot renovate existing buildings due to cost.
- There is inadequate funding for the San Jose/Evergreen College District.
- There is minimal payback to the community on the current proposed lease agreement.

Community leaders opposing the project site traffic concerns, and increased air pollution. They also expressed concerns about additional strain on the police department's four officers assigned to the Evergreen Valley Foothills Division. Several residents pointed out that the earthquake fault line running along the eastern side of the college property can only expand westward using the 27 acre parcel. If the 27 acres are designated for commercial use, the expansion of educational facilities is diminished. Others point out that the 1967 bond passed by voters set aside the land for education, not private ventures.

Union members attending the meeting were asked to stand to show their support of the project. After the meeting, several residents talked to the union members and pointed out that they are not against the trade unions and that Evergreen College uses union workers for all of its development. They told the union members that they will have jobs whether commercial buildings are constructed, or whether classrooms are constructed, but that they prefer college expansion over commercial development.

Division Project Manager Kimberly Vacca addresses the community at the Aug. 25 land use change proposal for Evergreen Valley College.

Several union members were surprised that the salaries of the Evergreen Valley College administrators currently total the projected $1.5 million dollar annual revenue of the proposed project. One resident said that a lot of people in the community took wage cuts during the last recession, but not college administrators. He suggested they take one now and keep the land for a future college expansion.

Jim Zitto, member of the Evergreen School District, spoke against the proposal. "We are looking for sites for new schools in which we need at least 10 acres per site and it is impossible to find and land which is running $3 million per acre," said Zitto. "We need to keep the 27 acres at Evergreen Valley College designated only for education."

Some of the residents attending the meeting said they want the police academy to come back to Evergreen Valley College. Others want the college to sell the downtown office and come back to Evergreen. A few residents mentioned that a UC extension would be beneficial, but not office space or apartments. One speaker said the community needs to vote every San Jose-Evergreen Valley College Board of Trustee member out of office in November.

Some questioned why Evergreen Valley College would consider building commercial buildings when there is more than 35,000 sq. ft. of vacant space at Village Square, and a vacant food store on Aborn Rd.

Big Band concert 'Your 40's Hit Parade' a big hit

By Sean Eastwood
Times staff writer

Concert goers were treated to a high energy, very professional "Your 1940's Hit Parade" 17-piece big band jazz concert featuring vocalist Mary Blaser at Evergreen Valley College on August 20.

The band, featuring vocalist Mary Blaser and Music Director Mark Russo plays popular big band music from the 1930s and 1940s.

The production company, Gary Vecchiarelli Productions, a successful Las Vegas production company, brought the show to Evergreen "because bringing quality music from the 30's and 40's is very special and everyone knows it's missing from most venues in San Jose, said Vecchiarelli.

Back by popular demand

Your 40's Hit Parade" 17-piece big band jazz concert returns for a second concert at Evergreen Valley College on Sept. 11.

Evergreen Valley College Theater is located at 3095 Yerba Buena Rd., San Jose, CA.

Tickets and upcoming concert information is available at: www. EvergreenConcerts.com. Or, call 408.294.5555. Will-call tickets are also available.

Evergreen Valley College proposed land use change

Special to the Times

Overview

Using the developer Republic Urban as an agent, the SJECCD Board of Trustees is asking the City of San Jose to amend the General Plan designation for the 27 acres on the north-eastern corner of Yerba Buena and San Felipe roads from Public/-Quasi-Public (PQP) to Neighborhood/Community Commercial (NCC). Essentially this means a land use designation change and eventual rezoning of the acreage to make it available for commercial and retail development. In addition, the district has accepted a bid from Republic Urban to lease and develop the property for up to 95 years.

This property is where the San Jose Police Academy training center used to be located. It is also where the district's administration buildings were located. The district requested the police academy to vacate the premises and moved their own SJECCD offices to a multi-million dollar downtown facility.

What Has and Has Not Changed

Then things changed. Chancellor Bud announced in a meeting in July that the amount of property to be initially developed is still under negotiation with Republic Urban. Chancellor Bud said the SJECCD expects the "initial phase" to be somewhere between 9-12 acres and the amount received annually by the district to be less than the $1.5 million originally proposed. This is roughly less than 1.5 % of the annual budget.

What has not changed is the proposal for the entire 27 acres being reclassified as NCC. This is not under negotiation with the developer. Changing all 27 acres to a land use designation of NCC is the first step. The second step is rezoning the property. Even if the district rezones and develops the property in phases, the community will still have lost the 27 acres for education and public land use (PQP) because the designation will have already been changed to NCC. This should be read as "commercial and retail" only. The "amenities" referred to by the developer's representative at the San Jose Planning Division meeting on August 15th are the services that commercial and retail store fronts have to offer. Under NCC there are no requirements for education or partnering with the SJECCD for internships or any other public land use.

Viewpoints on the Impact

At this juncture the re-zoning of the property is a secondary issue and is distracting. If we want to save the 27 acres for education, the

Indian burial site records shed light on solar project

By Sean Eastwood
Times staff writer

Santa Clara County admits it should have checked Indian burial site records before starting its solar panel project on a field near Guadalupe Parkway.

After being informed about the burial records by a community newspaper, the Ohlone Indian tribe has been asked to assist the County in ensuring any human bones or artifacts buried there are not disturbed during the final installation of solar panels on the 5-acre site.

San Jose State University records reveal that an archaeological survey was conducted in the early 1970's along Highway 87 between Capitol Expressway and Branham Lane.

Too late?

Most of the panels have already been installed, but it's still possible that workers may encounter native soil when they complete a trench for a fence adjacent to Highway 87, according to a spokesperson.

The contractor, Far Western, said its onsite archaeologist will look at the proposed trench excavation and survey using GPS coordinates before their construction crews resume finish the project.

The Ohlone tribe can monitor the excavation to make sure the archaeological work is performed to the highest standards possible.

Secret investigation ‘Gang of Thrones’ details revealed by SJPD

Stash found: guns, drugs, cash, jewelry, and one alligator

By Sean Eastwood
Times staff writer

A secret undercover investigation code named “Operation Gang of Thrones” conducted by the San Jose Police Department began in March of 2016.

Detectives of the San Jose Police Department’s (SJPD) Gang Investigations Unit began building a criminal conspiracy investigation against a Vietnamese criminal street gang.

SJPD worked closely with the Santa Clara District Attorney’s Office, Drug Enforcement Administration, and Federal Bureau of Investigation. On Tuesday, August 23, 2016, all the agencies, as well as personnel from the Santa Clara County Sheriff’s Office, Milpitas Police Department, Santa Clara Police Department, Orange County Sheriff’s Office, and the Louisiana State Police, served search warrants and arrest warrants at various locations in the cities of San Jose, Santa Clara, Milpitas, Fremont, Anaheim, and an undisclosed location in the State of Louisiana.

This collaborative investigation resulted in the arrest of 23 suspects who are known members or associates of a criminal street gang in San Jose. The suspects were booked into the Santa Clara County Jail on charges ranging from extortion, public corruption, narcotic trafficking, assault, illegal gun possession, and conspiracy. Two of the suspects were arrested in Anaheim, California, by the Orange County Sheriff’s Office. There are six suspects at large for various felonies, including; Conspiracy, Accessory After the Fact, Narcotics and Gambling.

A total of 34 search warrants were served during this investigation in California including one in Louisiana. The following evidence was seized:

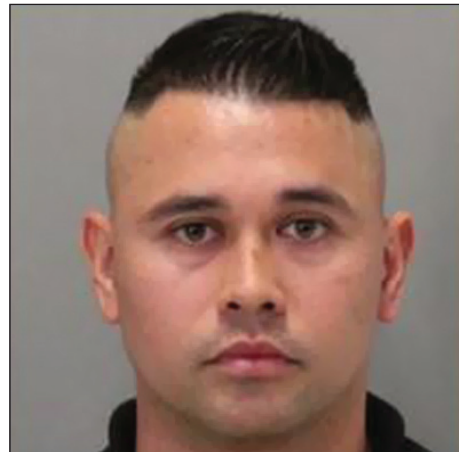

- 5 handguns
- 69 illegal gambling machines
- Over $200,000 in US currency
- Body armor, jewelry, phones, computers, and financial records

Investigators also recovered more than 4000 Ecstasy pills, 300 Zanex pills, 200 Molly tablets, illegal steroids, over 600 pounds of Marijuana (420 lbs. of which was seized by the Louisiana State Police in transit from San Jose)

Several vehicles were also seized; which included one with a hidden compartment containing $100,000, and one alligator.

During the course of the investigation, SJPD was alerted to the possible criminal involvement of a San Jose Police Officer. Upon learning this information, SJPD took immediate action by implementing extraordinary investigative measures to determine the extent of the officer’s involvement in this criminal investigation.

The investigation revealed that SJPD Officer Derrick Antonio, a 9 1/2 year veteran, was providing confidential law enforcement information to members of a criminal street gang in

SJ Police officer Derrick Antonio

San Jose. The Santa Clara District Attorney’s Office reviewed the investigation and issued warrants for Officer Antonio’s arrest, charging him with five felony counts of 502(C)(3) PC - Unauthorized Computer Access and one felony count of 32 PC - Accessory After the Fact.

Officer Antonio was arrested in the City of San Jose by members of the SJPD’s Criminal Investigations Detail on Aug. 23. He was booked into the Santa Clara County Jail on the above charges. Officer Antonio has been on paid administrative leave since June 2016.

Lastly, during the course of the investigation, SJPD identified three suspects who conspired to bribe a uniformed member of the SJPD. The suspects are allegedly affiliated with the Duong Café, located at the Pearl Center Plaza, 2268 Senter Road in San Jose, and according to police, are associated to a criminal street gang in San Jose.

Dr. Alejandro Garcia, professor of Physics and Astronomy at San Jose State University, will discuss his consulting work for DreamWorks and the upcoming movie “Trolls” at the next free talk and stargazing event at Evergreen Valley College.

The talk will begin at 7 p.m. on Friday Sept. 9 at Evergreen College Visual Performing Arts Theater.

Motion picture directors strive to tell interesting stories set in compelling worlds, and during the creative process, physicists can help them in a variety of ways. Professor Garcia has been a physics consultant for DreamWorks Animation since 2011 with screen credit on Madagascar 3: Europe’s Most Wanted and Mr. Peabody and Sherman. He also teaches Physics of Animation, a course developed with the support of the National Science Foundation.

Following the talk, a social gathering will be held from 8 p.m. – 8:30 p.m. at the Visual Performing Arts Theater at the college. Free food will be offered for the science loving Evergreen community. A free raffle will be held for a $25 Fry’s Electronics Gift Card from WeMo Connect. WeMo Connect offers Tech

OFF THE SHELF

Evergreen Branch Library tenth anniversary celebration scheduled for Sept. 17

By Edith Sutterlin
Special to the Times

Evergreen's 10th anniversary is coming on Sept. 17, 2016, 1p.m. – 4 p.m. Save the Date! Special events will kick off with a Lion Dance performance by the Vinh Son Liem Group, a cake, special guests, a visit from Conroy the Cougar, balloons, face painting, a special Musical Storytime and more! The original Evergreen Branch goes back to March 1976. Our newer, current building was opened at the same popular Aborn Road location on Sept. 16, 2006, with expanded space, parking, and a neighboring playground park. Success was so great that San José opened the new Village Square branch last spring to help meet the demands of this vibrant community!

Evergreen and Village Square Libraries offer Flu vaccines

Free Flu vaccines will be available for anyone age 7 or older, so stop by 4 p.m. to 6:45 p.m. at Village Square Library on Tuesday, Sept. 6, 2016 or at Evergreen Library, Sept. 13, 2016.

Tween "Sew Easy" workshop

Unique to Evergreen is a new "Sew Easy" bear workshop for Tweens. In four Friday afternoons, Sept. 23 – Oct. 14, 4-5 p.m., children 8-13 years old will learn to thread a needle, sew on a button, master at least three basic stitches, and make a stuffed teddy bear. Unique to Village Square is Fun Crafts4Kids, where 7-11 year olds can have drop in for fun Thursdays, 5:45-6:45 p.m.

Homework and tutoring available

School has started, and both library branches are ready to help with homework, tutoring, and assistance in finding the right resources to support learning for all ages. Visit sjpl.org/kidshomework to find free online tutoring in English, Spanish, and Vietnamese, as well as links to online encyclopedias and magazine articles that you can use with your San José Public Library card.

September is National Library Card Month, so come in today for this valuable asset available free to infants through seniors!

Computer classes

Computer classes and Homework clubs will be happening at both branches. Homework help is available at Village Square most Mondays, Tuesdays, and Thursdays, 3:30 p.m. – 5:30 p.m., and Wednesdays to 5 p.m.; and will be sharing space with Math Companions at Evergreen on Mondays, 4 – 5:30 p.m., starting Sept. 19.

Students complete summer internship at Santa Clara Valley Water District

This summer, the Santa Clara Valley Water District hosted 48 local high school and college students for a paid summer internship program.

Out of 500 applicants this year, 10 participants were high school students from MetroED's Silicon Valley Career Technical Education. These students marked the first time high school teenagers were selected for the water district's summer internship program. The hands-on learning opportunity introduced these students to water career pathways based on their individual interests.

Several key partnerships helped make the summer internship program possible at the Santa Clara Valley Water District. These include: San Jose-Evergreen Community College District, Metropolitan Education District, TeenForce, and Silicon Valley Career Pathways.

Students began the program with an orientation, developed a learning plan with their mentors, completed safety trainings, completed assigned duties within their specialty, and attended social events to connect with business professionals. Students completed a five-minute capstone presentation in addition to a performance evaluation by their mentor.

According to Peggy Donatelli, Program Administrator for Recruitment at the Santa Clara Valley Water District, student interests included engineering, environmental related programs, business, political science, and computer science. Feedback from mentors was very positive and the water district has hired 18 former interns, to date.

San Jose-Evergreen Community College District's Chancellor, Dr. Deborah Budd, told the water district board that the partnerships are the beginning of "the collective impact we can have, all working together, between the high schools, MetroED, community college, and four year institutions with business so that we can really build those pathways for our students in the community, hire within the community, and really build everyone's future."

Dramatic 'Bloodless Bullfight' held in Silicon Valley last weekend

Both Portuguese and Mexican-style bullfighting was featured with all the pomp and circumstance of a traditional Corrida de Toros including a live brass band, bullfighters in their Traje de Luces (suit of lights), and Cavaliers on horseback along with the danger of fighting in the ring with a very live bull but without the kill.

California's Bloodless Bullfights which take place mostly on Central Valley's cattle ranches and dairy farms are rare to see in a more urban environment such as Silicon Valley where techies and hipsters may find themselves engrossed in an ancient practice not found in an app.

OpEd

primary issue is to keep the land use designation as Public/Quasi-Public (PQP).

Allowing the land use to change from PQP to NCC has long lasting negative consequences to the residents of the City of San Jose and its ability to meet our future educational and public land use needs. If Republic Urban and the district convince the San Jose City Planning Division and Planning Commission to approve the amendment for NCC the land use will no longer be Public/Quasi-Public. Essentially the district's board of trustees can do what they want with the entire 27 acres within the NCC land use guidelines.

The Envision San José 2040 General Plan is very clear on the land use designations of Public/Quasi-Public and Neighborhood/Community Commercial. The district does not need to amend the land use designation the property. As is, Quasi/Public Land can be already used for the purposes the district has stated. Examples are an aquatics center, educational partnerships with Silicon Valley companies, UC Extensions, and medical facilities providing internships for our nursing program.

Public/Quasi-Public (Chapter 5, Page 11): This category is used to designate public land uses, including schools, colleges, corporation yards, homeless shelters, libraries, fire stations, water treatment facilities, convention centers and auditoriums, museums, governmental offices and airports. Joint development projects which include public and private participation - such as a jointly administered public/private research institute or an integrated convention center/hotel/ restaurant complex - are allowed. This category is also used to designate lands used by some private entities, including private schools, daycare centers, hospitals, public utilities, and the facilities of any organization involved in the provision of public services such as gas, water, electricity, and telecommunications facilities that are consistent in character with established public land uses. Private community gathering facilities, including those used for religious assembly or other comparable assembly activity, are also appropriate on lands with this designation. The appropriate intensity of development can vary considerably depending on potential impacts on surrounding uses and the particular Public/Quasi-Public use developed on the site.

Neighborhood/Community Commercial (Chapter 5, Page 9): This designation supports a very broad range of commercial activity, including commercial uses that serve the communities in neighboring areas, such as neighborhood serving retail and services and commercial/professional office development. Neighborhood / Community Commercial uses typically have a strong connection to and provide services and amenities for the nearby community and should be designed to promote that connection with an appropriate urban form that supports walking, transit use and public interaction. General office uses, hospitals and private community gathering facilities are also allowed in this designation. NCC designations are frequently a part of Urban Villages plans.

Upcoming Meetings

The next public meetings on this proposed amendment is with City of San José Planning Commission in September, followed by a San Jose City Council meeting in November.

San Jose Planning Commission on Wednesday September 28.

San Jose City Council on Tuesday November 15. The agenda items will include the council's vote on the planned amendment.

If you have an interest in this amendment proposal then please come to these meetings to voice your opinion. Many members of the community will voice their opinion for maintaining this property as PQP. Instead, they want the district to provide a vision and a plan that includes this land and serves the needs of the community and its students. This community, faculty and our students deserve a community college that we can all be proud of.

Ways to get involved:

Mark your calendars and come to the city meetings.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Reader offers advice on picking leaders

Editor,

The Op Ed in question, published in the Evergreen Times, August 19 – Sept. 1, 2016 by Neharika Bandar, Clinton or Trump: who will do more for the leaders of tomorrow?

My response is as follows:

"Ask not what your country can do for you, but rather ask what you can do for your country."

This phrase, spoken by President John F. Kennedy, is often repeated, and the meaning of which is embraced by many Americans. The phrase strikes at being self-reliant, at valuing what one has worked hard to achieve, at being a Patriot.

The offer of "free" of most things from government, (except for those Americans in need of basics) should be considered in direct opposition to President Kennedy's directive, request, and philosophy.

Cambrian Park Plaza carousel will remain despite redevelopment of shopping center

By Ken Yeager
County Supervisor

Many residents of the Cambrian Park neighborhood have been worried about the fate of the Cambrian Park Plaza carousel since the family that built the landmark shopping center sold it last year.

I have been very concerned about the carousel as well. That is why I am happy to report that the Board of Supervisors is expected to officially declare it a county historic landmark on August 30.

The new owner of the shopping center, Texas-based Weingarten Realty Investors, has pledged to keep it intact if any redevelopment of the plaza is undertaken. The historic landmark designation gives the sign an extra layer of protection and recognition as a community landmark.

The 17-acre Cambrian Park Plaza shopping center was built between 1953 and 1954. It contained eight acres of stores complemented by nine acres of parking. Cambrian Park Plaza joined Rancho Los Altos as one of the first of Santa Clara County's first new style shopping centers that fully embraced the postwar car culture.

Because the shopping center was made up of low-slung buildings that were as much as 200 feet from the street, it lacked visibility in the rapidly suburbanizing neighborhood. The carousel solved the visibility problem and became an area landmark.

In a report to the County's planning department, architectural historian Kara Brunzell called the carousel an "eye-catching example of Roadside Vernacular architecture." Brunzell says that type of mid 20th Century architecture used "bright colors, exaggerated scale and kitschy panache to seize attention." The carousel is one of only a few examples of in the San Jose area of Roadside Vernacular that she cites. The others are the orange Mark's Hot Dogs building as well as the Babe's Mufflers and Futurama signs.

Developers Paul Schaeffer and Christian Wilder built Cambrian Park Plaza using Wilder's earlier Rancho Los Altos shopping center as a template. The Schaeffer family continued to own the shopping center, with its 170,000 square-foot of retail space, until it was sold to Weingarten Realty Investors.

While the shopping center currently sits on an unincorporated parcel of land, state law will require it to be annexed by the City of San Jose if Weingarten undertakes and significant redevelopment of the property. That redevelopment would be governed by the city. The Board of Supervisors would have no authority over how the property is ultimately developed.

I am happy that the Board is poised to agree with the architectural historian's conclusion that the carousel deserves historic landmark status, and I am heartened that Weingarten has publicly committed to preserving it. I hope that officials in San Jose will ensure that the future redevelopment of the shopping center maintains the neighborhood character of what has long been considered the unofficial town center of Cambrian Park.

San Jose City Council votes to give San Jose Police authority to shift officers

The San Jose City Council voted 10-1 Tuesday to give San Jose Police Chief Eddie Garcia the authority necessary to reassign police officers from investigations and special operations to patrol, where the city most needs them.

The emergency declaration gives Garcia the authority to sidestep the police union contract and immediately assign officers where they're most needed, regardless of their personal preferences.

The council declared emergency empowers the city to do what needs to be done promptly.

Hyundai's concept pickup gets reality check in '18

By Sean Eastwood
Times staff writer

Hyundai is ready to start producing its concept truck prototype for the 2018 model year.

Dave Zuchowski, he of the automaker's American Division has confirmed to that the Santa Cruz pickup, first shown as a concept at the 2015 Detroit Auto Show, will go on sale in 2018.

Zuchowski says the decision to put it into production has been made, but the official announcement is yet to come. He added that the final design of the car-based pickup will be locked in soon.

The Santa Cruz is a midsize pickup that aimed more at lifestyle than commercial buyers. It will likely share a chassis with the Santa Fe, or another of Hyundai's crossovers.

The concept was powered by a 2.0-liter diesel engine, but the powertrain offerings for the United States have not been finalized.

One feature on the concept that hasn't been confirmed for production is its unique bed, which can be extended like a drawer to accommodate longer items when necessary.

Pricing has not been set, but the Santa Cruz is expected to start in the $25,000.

Meet the 12-year-old kid who could become Cornell's youngest graduate ever

Jeremy Shuler has been ahead of the curve since day one.

"Early on we realized Jeremy wasn't really ordinary," parents Harrey and Andy Shuler, both aerospace engineers, told Texas Tech Today. While the two have impressive academic backgrounds themselves, they're quick to admit that their son is "much smarter than either of us, for sure."

At age 2 Jeremy was reading books — in English and Korean. By 5, he was studying pre-calculus, and when he took the SAT at age 10, he placed in the 99.6 percentile for all college-bound seniors that year. He also tested as "profoundly gifted" on the WISC-IV — an IQ test for children — with a score of 156, his parents told CNBC.

The latest addition to Jeremy's resume is Cornell University, where the 12-year-old joins the Class of 2020 this fall. According to the school historian, he's could become the youngest graduate ever from the Ivy League institution.

Jeremy received his high school diploma from Texas Tech University Independent School District — an online program that lets students work at their own pace — and applied to several colleges through regular admissions.

The application process wasn't tedious or intimidating — it was exciting, he told CNBC. "It meant the start of a big adventure."

Jeremy Shuler

He was accepted to other schools, but not every one he applied to. "In the end, Cornell was really our top choice for a few reasons," Andy Shuler, Cornell Class of 1997, told CNBC. "It is academically very strong and perhaps the best in applied and engineering physics. Cornell also is good at a wide range of subjects, so Jeremy can dive into other topics that interest him, like linguistics."

The Shuler family packed up their home in Grand Prairie, Texas, this summer and headed to Ithaca, New York, where they will live within walking distance of campus.

Like most rising freshman, Jeremy is excited for the food, he told Texas Tech Today. "I'm also excited to learn new things and make new friends," he said. "Cornell will be different, though, especially in the first few weeks, as I'll need help to navigate campus and get used to life at school because I've been homeschooled my whole life."

Classes started this week, and Jeremy — who plans to major in physics and minor in math — isn't exactly easing his way into the coursework. He's currently enrolled in calculus, computing, Latin, and physics in mechanics and spatial relativity.

Graduation is far off, but that hasn't stopped Jeremy from thinking beyond college. He told CNBC he wants to go to graduate school for math or physics, and his dream is to solve an unsolved math problem.

Add a HEALTHY TWIST to Your Favorite Foods

FAMILY FEATURES

If you are like most Americans, you might have lapsed a little on your New Year's resolution to eat healthier. Getting back on track is easy and guilt-free, and can be done with just a few steps.

Celebrity chef and registered dietitian Diane Henderiks offers three simple ways to help you get back on the right track and make sure you are eating the right foods:

- Eliminate sugary drinks, like soda, as they don't offer any nutritional value.
- Identify ways to reduce the amount of food you eat, as we all tend to eat more than we need to.
- Most importantly, limit the amount of carbohydrates you eat — this means trying to reduce the amounts of pastas, breads and sugars you are consuming — and focus on eating more fiber-rich vegetables, healthy fats and optimal protein.

"It's easy to transform your favorite meals into healthy, low-carb meals that are rich in flavors and will satisfy you," Henderiks said.

Henderiks has transformed some of her favorite meals into low-carb deliciousness for each meal of the day, including dessert, because you can still enjoy your favorite sweets and all of their great flavors with a few twists that make them healthier.

Living a low-carb lifestyle can also be effective in helping you lose and keep off unwanted weight — just in time for spring.

Waldorf Chicken Salad in Lettuce Cups

Serves: 2

- 1/4 cup Greek yogurt
- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 1 teaspoon rice wine vinegar
- 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 teaspoon dried thyme
- pinch of salt
- freshly ground black pepper
- 2 cups cooked, skinless chicken breast, coarsely chopped
- 1 rib of celery, diced
- 1/4 English cucumber, diced
- 1/4 apple, washed, peeled and diced
- 1/2 cup toasted, chopped walnuts
- 4 large Boston lettuce leaves, rinsed and patted dry
- 1 tablespoon Parmesan cheese

In medium mixing bowl, whisk together yogurt, mayonnaise, vinegar, mustard, thyme, salt and pepper.

Fold in chicken, celery, cucumber, apple and walnuts.

Place 2 lettuce leaves on each plate and spoon 1/4 of chicken salad into each cup. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese and serve.

Exploring ways to help your children to disconnect from electronic world

Ever since Nintendo made the Pokemon Go video-game app available, young people have been exploring their communities with their eyes firmly fixed on their smartphones rather than on the wonders of the world.

If endless hours spent capturing imaginary creatures seems like an electronic addiction, it very well may be, but that's nothing new. Many children have been plugged into electronic devices for a long time now, rarely looking up as they help virtual animals save the day, keep race cars on track and watch endless loops of videos on YouTube.

And that can be a concern, says Elaine Fogel Schneider, Ph.D., a therapist and author of "7 Strategies for Raising Calm, Inspired & Successful Children" "They are so attached to technology at such an early age and it's changing their brain circuitry," Schneider says. "They begin to lose the back and forth communication with their parents, and/or siblings, and the whole notion of empathy. For really young children, these devices have become the babysitter. I fully understand that parents need a break (as do grandparents), but there have to be limits."

Schneider has tips for parents who worry about how they can control their child's electronic pastime.

- Set rules. Limit the amount of time your child can spend on an electronic device and be consistent in enforcing those rules. This way your child knows that when you say he or she only has two minutes left, then there really is only two minutes left, not three or four hours.

- Use a timer. A timer does not "lie" and can take the blame away from you when you're limiting your child's time on the device. Use the timer that measures down the time your child is spending on the tablet, smartphone, and/or technological game, so that your child knows the end for using that device is approaching, and it won't be a surprise when time is up. You can even have your child select a tone on the smartphone that he or she likes.

- Be ready with another activity. Plan an alternative way of engaging your child so when the device is turned off, some other interest can be provided and take his or her mind off the electronic device. "Describe what you're going to do so the child's interest is piqued into doing something else that he or she enjoys," Schneider says.

- Use these tips in your home at first. As with everything, at first there's a learning curve, so there may be tantrums, tears, melt downs and even depression. That's why Schneider recommends following these tips at home first. "I wouldn't think of trying this out in public right away since I don't think you want to endure the wrath or glances of diners or shoppers as they hear your child scream," Schneider says. In time, though, the child will know what is expected, she says, and will be able to disconnect from a smartphone, tablet, or other electronic device without major melt-downs.

"In the long run, you're doing a service for your child by limiting the amount of time spent on an electronic device," Schneider says. "I can remember hearing my own mother's words, 'I'm doing this for your own good!' And that's really true."

The Katherine Smith Elementary School Back to school event is a great example of the exciting back to school week across the Evergreen School District.

Evergreen kids get back to school

By Sean Eastwood
Times staff writer

A "Welcome Back BBQ" was held on the first day of school to kick-off the start of the new school year in the Evergreen School District at Katherine Smith Elementary School.

This year Quinton Dial, Defensive Tackle for the 49ers, sponsored the school by providing a number of back packs for the kids, he was just one of several sponsors most of whom were organized by Pastor Randy Capistrano of River of Life Church. The year's sponsors included: Quinton Dial of the San Francisco 49ers, River of Life Church, QDKids, Stay Golden Foundation, Stay Dry Go Green, and St. Francis of Assisi Church.

Along with the free meal and backpack give away, the school used the occasion to provide a forum for a number of family resources and agencies to share what they can offer to our families such as after school programs, enrichment opportunities, Walk-N Roll, migrant education, and PTA.

Quinton Dial, defensive tackle for the 49ers, donated backpacks.

Olivero's plan to staff police department gets negative reaction

San Jose City Councilmember Pierluigi Olivero's plan to staff the San Jose Police Department with members of the Santa Clara County Sheriff department and the California Highway Patrol is not getting an enthusiastic response.

Olivero says the police department is stretched dangerously thin, with just 812 street-ready officers. "I want to ask the sheriff's office and the California Highway Patrol for help."

Police Chief Eddie Garcia opposes the idea. He wrote the city council a letter saying he's concerned that asking for outside help would have a detrimental effect on morale, and recruiting efforts.

It's not clear if the sheriff's department has the ability to help out in the first place. The Sheriff's office released a statement saying it, "Remains focused on protecting public safety in the current communities it serves."

'S' Wonderful Celebrating Gershwin set for Sept. 11

Internationally acclaimed pianist Jon Nakamatsu, Gold Medalist at the Tenth Van Cliburn International Piano Competition, leads off the 22nd Season for Steinway Society - The Bay Area, 7 p.m., September 11, 2016 in the McAfee Theater, Saratoga.

Nakamatsu grew up in San Jose and graduated from Stanford University; his wife teaches at Saratoga High School. Though his busy touring schedule often keeps him away, he is immensely popular with Bay Area audiences.

Nakamatsu came to international attention in 1997 when he was awarded the Gold Medal at the Tenth Van Cliburn International Piano Competition, the only American to win the Competition since 1981.

Since his dramatic Van Cliburn Gold Medal triumph, he has become a favorite throughout the world both on the concert circuit and in the recording studio. He has performed widely in North and South America, Europe, and the Far East.

His extensive recital tours throughout the United States and Europe have featured appearances at

Jon Nakamatsu

Carnegie Hall and Lincoln Center in New York City, at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., The White House, and in Boston, Chicago, Cincinnati, Paris, London and Milan. Nakamatsu records exclusively for harmonia mundi USA, which has released thirteen of his CDs. His all-Gershwin recording with Jeff Tyzik and the Rochester Philharmonic featuring Rhapsody in Blue and the Concerto in F rose to number three on Billboard's music charts, earning extraordinary critical praise.

LGBT history to be taught in California public schools

By Sean Eastwood
Times staff writer

The Board of Education approved sweeping curriculum changes aimed at weaving the contributions of minorities into the story of America this month.

The new curriculum stems from the Fair, Accurate, Inclusive and Respectful Act, a 2012 California law seeking greater representation of the LGBT community and other minorities in history, social and civic lessons.

The State Board of Education approved curriculum changes to include the history of gay and lesbian leaders and their civil rights struggles. Starting as early as second grade, students will learn lessons about families with two moms or two dads.

In a KCRA-TV interview, Lauryn Wild, a curriculum specialist said "We are proud to represent a diverse state, and we are proud that this framework reflects the state that we serve."

But State Superintendent of Public Instruction Tom Torlakson sees the change as overdue. "It will give our students access to the latest historical research and help them learn about the diversity of our state and the contributions of people and groups who may not have received the appropriate recognition in the past," he told the Los Angeles Times.

In the new framework, second graders will learn that some families have two moms or two dads, a concept that is presented as part of normal diversity among people.

MOVIE REVIEW

Ben-Hur

By Steven Leonard

Times Media Movie Reviewer

I liked Jack Huston as Judah Ben-Hur.

Prior to going to see Ben-Hur, I lost a court case. I didn't mind losing, but what I didn't like was the judge allowing people to testify against me while I couldn't call any witnesses to my defense. I can now see how the world can evolve into conflicting viewpoints that allows hatred to rise.

I went into Ben-Hur thinking we didn't need another interpretation of this story, but I left no longer angry at my enemies, hatred and fear.

This movie does not escape the shadow of its namesake, but when this Ben-Hur comes into its own, it does so with a thrilling fire-and-brimstone ferocity followed by an emotional release of forgiveness and mercy towards those who have caused great harm in our lives.

Ben-Hur has two strong lead performances, a terrific first act, an exciting chariot race, and a message of hope and forgiveness. Is the chariot race as exciting as in the original 1959 movie? Yes, but the original race, directed by Andrew Marton, was extremely dangerous to film (no CGI) and a stunt man died during the filming.

I walked out liking this Ben-Hur with its pulsating battles and chariot races, its proclamation that mercy and sacrifice are more revolutionary than anything happening in our world today or on screen.

Paramount's remake of Ben-Hur stands on its own as a decent film. Timur Bekmambetov delivers a solidly entertaining, well-shot, biblical epic. I believe Charlton Heston would like this film, although it won't earn any Academy Awards.

The film's opening is mediocre but finishes above average. The drama is somewhat stilted during the first half of the film, but Morgan Freeman shows up as Ilderim to rescue the film. I walked out with a tear in my eye.

Keeping up the faith

By Vice Mayor Rose Herrera
Special to the Times

San Jose is so very fortunate to have places to worship in almost every form represented in the world – just like our forefathers envisioned. We have the freedom to worship (or not) in our own tradition and we're able to live peacefully next to our neighbors of many faiths. Even though our rituals or ceremonies may differ, we all have core beliefs that when we take action enable us to come together and work to better our community. Our faith community can do things that government cannot. One common purpose that we all share is a belief in the potential for transformation – of people, institutions, and our larger culture. I'm deeply grateful for the work that is being done by our faith community and the hundreds of volunteers.

Recognizing the contributions of our faith community, for the past six years I have hosted a Faith Leader's Appreciation Breakfast with a different house of worship lending us their facility, or co-hosting in another facility, in which we gather for a time of food, fellowship and appreciation for each community's contributions to helping our Evergreen neighbors. The goal and purpose of these meetings have been to:

- Show appreciation for the faith community
- Provide interfaith networking
- Connect the faith community to the needs of the San Jose community to help close service gaps

It has been my hope that by bringing these faith communities and non-profit organizations together and recognizing their strength and influence in our community for doing good, we can share common goals, resources, and needs to address such issues as:

- Housing the homeless,
- Providing hope,
- Breaking cycles of violence and poverty

It's been an amazing annual event where faith communities gather and sometimes meet for the first time at the breakfast. They make connections with other faith communities as well as non-profit agencies and city services. Our host faith communities over the past six years have been at the local stake of the Latter Day Saints, the East Valley Pentecostal Church, Most Holy Trinity Catholic Church, the Sikh Gurdwara, and this year at The Village Library co-hosted by the Evergreen Islamic Center.

Years ago, under Mayor Reed, the City of San Jose reached out to their Faith Communities to help us address social challenges such as gang violence and prevention, homelessness, and neighborhood beautification projects. Under the Community Engagement Subcommittee of the Mayors Gang Prevention Task Force, which I chair, faith leaders like Pastor Danny Sanchez have created a faith crisis response team that provides crisis chaplaincy at Valley Medical Center and a program to allow faith communities to share their facilities for programs and space during crisis, as well as provide spiritual and emotional emergency response to families in crisis affected by gang violence.

Currently, faith communities have become actively involved in programs with the City Attorney's Office, San Jose Police Department, and others to engage community volunteers in NightWalks, which will serve as a presence of peace in gang impacted areas.

Other faith leaders and communities have worked on issues such as Housing One Hero – an initiative to house homeless veterans. Evergreen Valley Church, led by Pastor Tim Wood, has taken up the call to commit to housing one veteran through the Housing One Hero program along with 14 other faith communities throughout the city. The unique partnership with faith communities has the added benefit of not only housing a homeless veteran but also supplying the needed support services and resources. I heard the testimony of homeless people who were reminded of their worth and humanity through an experience of being welcomed by a faith community.

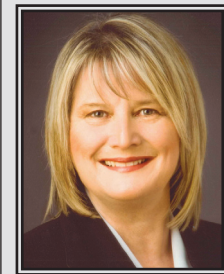

I look forward to this year's breakfast and the wonderful people of faith who will gather together to connect and activate a communal call to collaborative improvement of our City. We have a flourishing city, but we can always be better. With our wonderfully, diverse faith community, we can be better.

As always, my office is open to input or questions by e-mailing district8@sanjoseca.gov, or calling 408-535-4908.

Mark Your Calendars

This year marks my 8th year of hosting our Annual Day in the Park celebration at Lake Cunningham Regional Park. Mark your calendars for Saturday, October 1, 2016 for a day of fun, wholesome community celebration! We are planning a bigger, better festival this year with two performance stages, additional inflatable activity courses, and of course the very popular free pumpkin giveaways! For more information go to: <http://www.sanjoseca.gov/index.aspx?NID=3874>.
