HOME INSPECTION:

What is a home inspection, what is the real purpose?

A home inspection is a thorough inspection of the house that you are purchasing. The home inspector will usually start on the exterior of the home and walk around the home looking for any deficiencies. While you are there with the inspector it is the time for you to ask any maintenance questions or any questions that you may want answered.

The inspector check the plumbing, the mechanicals of the house, concerns safety general maintenance. This inspection is for you to look for major structural deficiencies or concerns throughout the house. Some buyers are led to believe that the inspection results are for them to go to the seller with a punch list of small items.

Please remember that your goal doing an inspection is to look for major items of concern. The inspector also tells you the items that will need maintenance down the road that is their job. The inspection is not really for the purchaser to go to the seller and ask for every little item on the list to be corrected. You have to remember you're buying a home that has been lived in and every home has wrinkles as it gets older. Kind of like we do.
