At The Corral Gate

In Hopkins County, it's becoming rare to hear about folks being a-horseback. I'm talking about riding for recreation, maybe on informal trail rides at a friend's place, or just out on a county roadside. Not that many years ago, it was much more common to see friends riding on weekends, or to be invited to a trail ride that "everybody" was going to! I am saddened by this, as I feel yet another of our "ways of life" is passing, at least here in our locale. Other places are much more "horse-ey" than we are here!

Here's a bit more on local autumn horse-related events...

Autumn Trails annual "trail ride weekend" is October 14-16 in Winnsboro. In addition to the Saturday and Sunday morning rides from City Park, there is a Welcome Parade on Friday at 4pm, with lineup at the Winnsboro water tower. Then on Saturday night, all trail riders and their guests are invited to a Barn Dance at the Winnsboro Civic Center with the Marcus Lindsey Band. The dance will begin at 8pm. If you want to be part of this East Texas tradition, look up the details at winnsboroautumntrails.com.

Last Year's Trailride leaving

There will be a High School Rodeo in Sulphur Springs on October 22 and 23 as part of Fall Festival. The rodeo will take place in the Civic Center arena both days. There will also be a Rodeo Dance on Saturday October 22 at 8pm. Everybody be there!

There will be a 7th annual Ranch Rodeo in Sulphur Springs on October 29, sponsored by an area cowboy church. There will be great food and rodeo entertainment, and much more. It's a fundraiser for a children's charity. More on this later, but go ahead and make plans to be there.

There will NOT be a St. Jude Trail Ride in Como, Texas this year. Jim Murray, who has done a wonderful job putting this on for the past several years, just was not able to commit to it for 2016, but he and his wife Jean hope that they can host it again at the 2J Ranch in the autumn of 2017. A phenomenal amount of money has been raised for St. Jude's Children's Hospital over this ride's history.

The NETBIO Cattleman's Classic Ribeye Roundup, held in Sulphur Springs on "Beef Day" October 7, was a big success with 41 ribeye cooking teams. 36 of these were "amateurs" and five were restaurants, which competed in a separate division. Here's the winner results:

AMATEUR FIRST, Smokehouse Rats of Terrell, Tx SECOND, Pine Meadow Ranch of Yantis, Tx THIRD, O'Neal Cattle Company of Winnsboro

RESTAURANT FIRST, Seth's Lake Fork Creek, Quitman, Tx SECOND Chili's Sulphur Springs, Tx THIRD 5D Steakhouse Avinger, Tx. In addition to the best steaks you've ever tasted, the event brought the best in country and Western Swing music to Celebration Plaza with a dance under the stars by Jake Hooker and the Outsiders featuring Jack Phillips of Sulphur Bluff, Tx who is an 11-year-old fiddling sensation! Thanks to the NETBIO board, committees, sponsors and cooks for an event worthy of Texas pride!

We live in a great state and a great country. Let's remember to wave the Texas flag and Old Glory too, and count our blessings as Americans because this is still the greatest country to live in.

Til next week, I'll watch for you at the corral gate!

DESIGNING ART CARS

Tumbleweed Smith

Tumbleweed Smith

Joe Haden of Crockett creates art cars. "Art cars are my life," he says. "Art's my life but I think art cars consume most of my life."

He was living in Houston when the famous art car parade started twenty-nine years ago. He immediately got involved.

"I just said to myself that I would do my own car. I think I have done something new every year except for maybe two or three. And I've been in it twenty-six years."

He has done quite well with his entries in the parade, which is held in April and attracts up to three hundred vehicles from all over the country. "I won first place this year, second place last year. I usually win something, but that's not why I do it. I do it because it's fun."

It was a rainy afternoon when I visited his place in Crockett. The back of his large city lot is filled with cars he has had in the parade. One of his vehicles had an "I Dream of Jeannie" theme. Another looked like a rooster. Still another was a giant fish eating a van in front of it.

"I didn't make a lot of stuff this year. I had it lying around. Everything on this truck we're standing by is made of trash. It's bottle caps, reflective tape, about 400 license plates from motorcycles, items that someone was throwing away."

He made what he calls a lace car. The fenders, body, doors, hood, every outside part of it looks like a metal doily.

"For my primary art I like to cut holes in metal. So the red car over here with all the holes in it is about five or six hundred pounds lighter now. I did it all freehand with a cutting torch. If you would drive past me you would think it was paint. But I can stick my fingers through the holes in it."

Joe is a consultant to other art car parades in Tulsa, Oklahoma and Trinidad, Colorado. He holds workshops and teaches kids to make art cars.

"United Airlines paid me to do it in an effort to expose kids to painting designs on cars. They walk up to a car and think to themselves, 'I'm not supposed to do that.' But once they start doing it, they find it's fun and they enjoy it."

Sometimes he does commission work. He moved to Crockett a few years ago to take care of his mother and manage some family land. "We've had this ranch since the 1840's. I guess it's my turn to take care of it."

He puts one of his cars in Crockett's Christmas parade. "This is my fifth year in Crockett. Folks here say 'he's weird, but he's ours.'"

FAMOUS TEXANS

Bob Denver

American Comedic Actor

Robert Osbourne "Bob" Denver (January 9, 1935 – September 2, 2005) was an American comedic actor. He portrayed Gilligan on the television series Gilligan's Island and the beatnik Maynard G. Krebs on the 1959–1963 TV series The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis.

Early life

Denver was born January 9, 1935, in New Rochelle, New York, and raised in Brownwood, Texas. He graduated from Loyola University in Los Angeles, California. He later coached physical education and taught mathematics and history at Corpus Christi School, a Roman Catholic elementary school in Pacific Palisades, California.

Career

Television and film career

While teaching at Corpus Christi in 1958, Denver shot the pilot for the TV series The Many Loves of Dobie Gillis, and left teaching for his first professional acting job as a regular on the series when it was picked up in 1959. From 1959 to 1963, Denver appeared on Dobie Gillis as Maynard G. Krebs, the teenaged beatnik best friend of Dobie Gillis, played by Dwayne Hickman. While he was on Dobie Gillis, Denver also appeared on the NBC interview program, Here's Hollywood.

Denver's first feature film appearance was in the service farce, A Private's Affair, with Sal Mineo in 1959. He landed a small role in the 1963 Jimmy Stewart film, Take Her, She's Mine, playing a beatnik poet working at a coffee shop. He was credited as Robert Denver. Denver also appeared in the 1964 beach film For Those Who Think Young with Tina Louise prior to the development of Gilligan's Island. He also had a one-time role replacing the actor who played Dudley A. "Dud" Wash, the husband of Charlene Darling of the Darlings, on The Andy Griffith Show which was aired March 30, 1964 (he appeared in only one episode). This was done by the network to promote Denver's face and make him more familiar to the viewing audience, since Gilligan's Island was about to go on air.

Denver is remembered primarily as a comic actor. However, he also appeared in one dramatic role on television, as a physician (Dr. Paul Garrett) in one episode of Dr. Kildare, telecast on October 10, 1963; the episode, "If You Can't Believe the Truth ...", also featured Barbara Eden and Ken Berry. Denver also played a bit part in one episode of The Silent Service in 1957 (S01 E37: "The Loss of the Tang").

After Dobie Gillis ended in 1963, Denver landed the title role on the sitcom Gilligan's Island, which ran for three seasons (1964–67) on CBS, and became a staple of later syndication. His role as the well-meaning, but bumbling, first mate among a small cast of shipwrecked castaways became the one for which he is most remembered. During the run, Denver privately went out of his way to help his costars who warmly appreciated his efforts, such as successfully demanding that Russell Johnson and Dawn Wells be included in the series' opening credits and insisting that Wells get an equal share of the show's publicity with Tina Louise.

Later career

Denver in 1977

After the conclusion of Gilligan's Island, Denver appeared in films such as Who's Minding the Mint? (1967), The Sweet Ride (1968), and Did You Hear the One About the Traveling Saleslady? (1968), opposite Phyllis Diller. He also performed in other TV shows, such as The Good Guys (1968–1970), Love, American Style, and Dusty's Trail (1973) (a facsimile of Gilligan's Island, with the basis of a lost wagon train headed to California). He also starred as "Junior" in the Sid and Marty Krofft children's program Far Out Space Nuts (1975). In 1976, The Wackiest Wagon Train in the West was a feature movie created from four episodes of Dusty's Trail. A decade after CBS left the castaways in limbo, he returned to the role of Gilligan – along with many of his former co-star castaways – lending his voice to the animated The New Adventures of Gilligan series, its sequel Gilligan's Planet, and the live-action made-for-TV reunion movies Rescue from Gilligan's Island, The Castaways on Gilligan's Island, and The Harlem Globetrotters on Gilligan's Island. He also played four separate guest roles on Fantasy Island, on ABC from 1978 to 1980. In 1983, he starred in the television pilot, The Invisible Woman, as the bumbling mad scientist uncle of the title character, a journalist, and in the TV movie High School U.S.A..

In 1970, Denver replaced Woody Allen in the original Broadway production of Allen's hit comedy Play It Again, Sam, earning praise from New York Times critic Clive Barnes for conveying "a genuine clown-like wistfulness" that Barnes had found lacking in Allen's own performance in the starring role.

Later in his life, Denver returned to his adopted home of Princeton, West Virginia, and became an FM radio personality. His wife, Dreama, and he ran a small "oldies format" radio station, WGAG-LP 93.1 FM. He also earned a small income making public appearances, often costumed as Gilligan. During the 1980s, he recreated the character of Gilligan for numerous cameo appearances, including episodes of ALF, Meego, and Baywatch, as well as a bartender in the 1987 film Back to the Beach. In 1992, he again played Gilligan to benefit the Make-A-Wish Foundation for a West Virginia fundraiser for the organization.

Legal issues

Denver was arrested for having a box of marijuana delivered to his home in 1998. He originally said that the box had come from Dawn Wells, who played Mary Ann on Gilligan's Island, but he later refused to name her in court and testified that "some crazy fan must have sent it." The police reportedly found more of the plant and related paraphernalia in Denver's home. He pleaded no contest and received six months probation.

Death

Denver died September 2, 2005, at Wake Forest University Baptist Medical Center in Winston-Salem, North Carolina. His agent announced that he had died from complications relating to cancer treatment. He was cremated.

THE IDLE AMERICAN

Hope for Days to Come...

Commentary by Dr. Don Newbury

I don't know who first said it; perhaps it was the late radio newsman Paul Harvey. Whatever, it wasn't dissected by WikiLeaks, a come-along lately "source" that sounds like a product "do-it-your-selves" might use to repair automobile radiators in the comfort of their very own garages.

As we tippy-toed into retirement waters back in 2000, we couldn't put away the longtime practice of giving away bagged popcorn. It had become a calling card, so we decided to offer popcorn for "trick-or-treaters."

News got around--or, perhaps more likely, aromas got around—and growing throngs of people now line up down the block annually for what we used to call "nickel bags" of popcorn. Last year, to fill almost 600 bags, more than 100 pounds of corn were popped for the four-hour giveaway.

Recipients are largely children, mostly preschoolers and others in early grades. Accompanying them are parents, grandparents and other adults, most of whom like popcorn, too....

Last year, a youngster, maybe 5, "dressed to the 9s" in a little clown suit, asked: "Mr., do you know why cannibals don't like to eat clowns?" It was an old joke, but the wide-eyed innocence of the questioner trumped popping, bagging and all else.

"You've got me on that," I answered, hoping to avoid being nailed by someone with fact checker in hand.

"They taste funny," the tyke said, laughing riotously. I joined him in laughter, as other hearers nearby applauded lightly....

I doubt if there will be any youngsters in clown suits this year. Several jerks--probably seeking their 15 minutes of fame--are giving clowns a bad name. These folks, some unwittingly, have joined a sordid list of people who are out to instill fear, hopeful of causing as many people as possible to abandon goodwill, seriously wondering if there have ever been times like these.

No matter what, though, we'll hand out popcorn come Oct. 31, with no regard for costume choices.....

I am reminded of a long-ago story about a man who had ill-fitted dentures. His dentist advised the patient to bear up, and to seek diversions to get his mind off denture discomfort.

Heeding the advice, he decided to go boating. He was fishing in the middle of the lake when a speed boat whizzed by. An errant hook from the speeding boater pierced his ear, and he was dragged 50 yards before the speeding boat stopped.

The speedster apologized profusely, but was interrupted by the "victim," who thanked him for the unexpected occurrence. "It was the first time in a month my mind has been off these blamed dentures," he explained....

We are at that place, fearful of the future, confident there have never been days quite like these.

For starters, let's behave and believe that the same God who has intervened in the affairs of mankind throughout history is still in charge....
