A VISIT TO THE LOW COUNTRY

Tumbleweed Smith

When I finished college I hitch hiked across the United States. I was in Mississippi somewhere and heard people speaking with an accent I thought was beautiful. It flowed up and down the scale like music and was pensive, almost spiritual. I liked the soft sound of it.

This past week I was in Savannah, Georgia and Charleston, South Carolina and heard a lot of that same accent. We traveled there with friends and had no agenda. We just wanted to see a little bit of the southeast coast. After landing at the Savannah-Hilton Head airport, we went to our hotel, which was right downtown, close to the popular city marketplace and a square with an impressive fountain. We were just a few blocks from the Savannah River, which forms the boundary between Georgia and South Carolina. The area is called the low country because it's just a few feet above sea level.

The next day we decided to take Amtrak to Charleston, South Carolina (about a ninety-minute train ride) and spend the day there. We had lunch at Jestine's, a popular eating-place that serves southern food. We waited in line for an hour before we were seated. While we were waiting, one of our foursome mentioned my name. An eleven year old holding an ipad googled Tumbleweed Smith and read my website.

On the way to Savannah I mentioned that I was going to have some cornbread and milk, a popular meal in rural east Texas. I thought it was also popular in the south. At Jestine's, the waitress brings a basket of cornbread to your table. I ordered a glass of milk and started crumbling my cornbread into it. I picked up my spoon and started eating it. I noticed some people at nearby tables were watching me. When I was about halfway through my special mixture, the waitress came up to me and asked, "WHAT are you DOING?" I said, "Yeah, like this is the first time you've ever seen someone eat cornbread and milk." She replied she had never seen anyone do that.

Moments later the owner of the place came over (apparently she had been talking to the parents of the eleven year old who googled me) and said, "Tumbleweed, there's a rumor in the back of the room that you are tearing apart our cornbread, putting it in a glass of milk and drinking it. I just want you to know that we're not responsible if you choke." I replied, "I'm not drinking it. I'm using a spoon." She also said she had never seen anyone do that. I felt elated that I had taught a bastion of Southern cooking the proper way to enjoy cornbread. My wife and our traveling companions started calling me Cornbread. Our driver suggested the name Crumbleweed.

Their New Year's Day tradition is a mixture of field peas and rice called Hoppin' John. I much prefer black-eyed peas.

We loved Savannah and Charleston. Both have attractive parks with statues and giant live oaks trees, historic architecture, carriage rides, trolley cars, legends and friendly people who love where they live. They're a lot like Texans.

At The Corral Gate

By Enola Gay

Believe it or not, we are easing toward the final quarter of the school year. Seems that we just got started! In Hopkins County, we have seven schools PLUS many of us think of Yantis as ours too, although that school is in Wood County. So that makes eight schools, including Sulphur Springs. I've often felt that the town kids get an abundance of recognition in the news, and sometimes the county kids get a bit less. So I want to try to make up for that, at least a few times per year!!

Some of our county schools have held Basketball Homecoming. The Sulphur Bluff Bears held theirs in January. Here's a peek at some photos. Over the next couple of weeks, I hope to display photos of the other county school homecoming festivities. I learned something this week...schools that don't have a Football program do Homecoming for Basketball. Local schools that do have Football do Football Homecoming. Makes sense! Now, do you remember back to when your school's sporting event was ALL THAT and a huge event in your life? Oh, those were indeed the days!

Sulphur Bluff Homecoming Court

Attendants: Holly Bassham and Kip Collins

King and Queen: Raney Cortez and Dakota Emerson, Duke & Duchess: Katelyn Allen and Thomas Coberley, Prince and Princess: Kaylon Hume and Trayton South

Sulphur Bluff Homecoming Game

Bears win the Homecoming Game with Sulphur Bluff 57 and Bloomburg 39.

Sulphur Bluff Reigning King and Queen and Prince and Princess and Nominees for this year.

Senior Nominees: Kadee Anderson and Justin Goldsmith; Reigning King and Queen: Kacie Powers and Landon Dornor; 2014 Senior Nominees: Sydney Evans and Dillon Huie; 7th Grade Nominees: Ann Dornor and Trayton South; Reigning 2014 Prince and Princess: Katlyn White and Harrison Fite; 8th Grade Nominees: Kaylon Hume and Agustin Castillo

Soon, we'll be watching for the kids with livestock projects, getting them ready for the NETLA Show and Sale. It's set for February 26, 27 and 28 in the Civic Center arena. Hopefully, we will get lots of photos to show you then! And plan to turn out and give those hard-working kids a handshake or a pat on the back! They'll appreciate it!

The groundhog predicts 6 more weeks of winter weather ... so what else is new? And as I write this, we're just ending a full moon season. Did you get to see the glorious orb shrouded in a cloudy mist?

Beautiful!! And did you know that, in some years, there are 13 full moons during the 12 month period? For example, the 13th full moon of 2012 occurred on December 28. A rarity, a "blue moon" is the second of two full moons occurring during a calendar month.

Gardeners, don't forget, we need to plant our potatoes on February 14 !! And this year, that date does fall on the "dark of the moon". The dark part of the moon's cycle is supposed to set the best conditions to plant vegetables that yield under the ground. It may be a bit early yet, but I'm wishing you a bountiful garden this summer AND a year full of good health!

Til I see you next, count your blessings. And honk when you go by the corral gate!
