Crosby Council member Heglund grills Mayor-elect Hunter Also hiring firm, DDAI, recommends Crosby add administrator position to staff

At the beginning of the meeting of the City of Crosby Council on December 12, a required public hearing was held for the proposed 2017 budget and levy for the City of Crosby. The public hearing for the budget and levy allowed an opportunity for city residents to inquire about the proposed budget for 2017. It was not for the discussion of property values as this is determined by the county assessor. The final budget and levy must be certified to the county auditor by December 28, 2016.

There was no public input about the proposed 2017 budget and levy; and the public hearing was closed after some discussion between Mayor Joanna Lattery and Clerk/Treasurer Lisa Sova about whether or not they needed to pass the budget at the meeting. Sova suggested they wait to pass the budget and levy at the next meeting and that was agreed to by Mayor Lattery.

At the public comment portion of the City of Crosby Council meeting, Jeff Olsen 21078 Wood Avenue Ironton, spoke about his ownership of some rental property in Crosby and his desire to have some input into the new rental ordinance before it is enacted. Olsen was told they had been revising the language based on discussion at the last meeting. Then it would need to be published and a public hearing held before it would be put into effect. Olsen then spoke about contract extensions for the police chief, lieutenant and clerk/treasurer. He said, "Unless there is a reason to extend it. I don't think they should be extended. Unless you're negotiating it."

Mayor Lattery then said, "But that's what this contract is, it's negotiated out."

Councilman Paul Heglund the asked Mayor-elect Jim Hunter to sit at the table in front of the council, so that he could publicly speak with him. It seemed Heglund felt that Hunter was walking around town acting as if he was already mayor and promising people things in town.

Councilman Heglund asked "When do you take office?"

Hunter replied, "January." Heglund continued, "And you been walking around town the last six weeks like you're the Mayor already."

Hunter said, "No, I haven't."

Heglund said, "You been promising them this, you been promising them that. You've been talking to the union. Is that legal?"

Hunter replied, "You know Mr. Heglund, truthfully, it is legal."

Heglund said, "Oh, okay. It's a little shady, isn't it?"

Hunter replied "No, if you're gonna take office, I think you need to know what's happening, and how you approach something. We have somebody that may retire. If that does [happen], I don't know what the procedure that is with the union. So, I did call the union. And asked them what the procedure was."

Heglund said, "Why don't you wait until you get into office?"

Hunter said, "I wanted to know. There's nothing wrong with information. We live in America. We don't live somewhere you can't call somebody or you can't talk to somebody about something."

Heglund said, "I understand that."

Heglund also wanted to know where Hunter was getting his information about the contracts concerning Crosby Police Chief Kim Coughlin, Police Lieutenant Kevin Randolph and Clerk/Treasurer Lisa Sova.

He said, "And then we were talking about contracts at the last meeting. And you seemed to know everything about it. Where did that information come from?"

Hunter responded, "I don't know what contract you're talking about. I do have some information here about contracts."

Heglund said, “We were talking about Kim’s and Kevin’s and Lisa’s. And you seemed to know everything about it. Now how can that be?”

Hunter said, “I’ve never read the contracts. How do you know about it, have you?”

Heglund said, “Yeah, you bet I have.”

Hunter said, “You read every one of them?”

Heglund responded, “Well, most of them.”

Hunter repeated, “Most of them. So now you’re the authority of contracts?”

Heglund said, “No, I’m not the authority. How did you get that information? That was my question.”

Hunter responded, “I got it right here in front of the council. You said you were going to review it; it was at the last meeting.”

Heglund said “Yeah, I mean, you seem to know everything that’s going on.”

Hunter responded, “Isn’t that nice?”

Heglund replied “Well, I think it’s a little shady. That’s what I think.”

Hunter stated, “Maybe your opinion isn’t the best in the world. And you’re entitled to it.”

Heglund responded, “How’s your opinion? Is that the best in the world?”

Hunter responded, “No, but if I want to check on a contract, I think that’s my business, not yours.”

Heglund said, “I just think it was pretty shady.”

Hunter said, “I think maybe you should clean up your own backyard before you start on mine.

Heglund said, “I think yours needs more cleaning than mine.”

Hunter said, “No, that’s debatable, Mr. Heglund.”

Heglund said, “Another thing Jim, we have been having committees the last couple of years, the chamber, economic development, planning and zoning, the 210 project, and you seem to be having a problem on these committees, the people on the committees.”

Hunter said, “I don’t have a problem with the people on the committees.”

Heglund said, “That’s not what I hear. Number one, Mayor Joanna, Linda Peoples and Chris Ryan, they went overboard with these committees. And you seem to have an ax to grind with them three people.”

Hunter said, “No, I don’t.”

Heglund said, “That’s not what I have been hearing.”

Hunter said, “Well, you know, if you believe in gossip that’s wonderful.” Hunter told Heglund if he was going to make allegations he needed to be specific.

A memorial service will be held at 1:30 p.m. on Saturday, December 17 at the Lifespring Church in Crosby.

Heglund said that he heard that Hunter was against the Hallett Community Center "And we should stop some of the funding there."

Hunter denied Heglund's accusation, "no that's not true." He told Heglund that if he was the messenger, "he should know the facts."

Heglund warned Hunter, "You better watch who you talk to, that is all I am telling you, because it kinda gets back to people."

Hunter told Heglund that he would talk to "whomever he wanted to."

Heglund also said that he heard that Hunter was not happy with the City Attorney, which Hunter agreed. In addition, Heglund said he heard Hunter was going to set up an office at city hall.

Hunter agreed, "I was going to ask to, yes."

Heglund said, "I don't think that's going to happen. We've never had that in the past. Who do you think you are, just because you are going to be mayor?"

Heglund also said that Hunter had only "one vote on this panel, one. Actually you only conduct the meetings and you're a tie breaker," Heglund said.

After Heglund finished, Hunter gave the council copies of information on reviewing of contracts that he had received from the League of Minnesota Cities.

Hunter said, "I'd like to leave these copies for each one of you about reviewing of contracts. You don't have to use 'em if you don't like to. It was just something I thought it would be nice to have."

The council continued with unfinished business employment contracts from the prior meeting. Paul Heglund following a statement "I was the one that tabled this. We were talking about Lisa's contract, Kim's and Kevin. I think all three of them have done an excellent job. I talked to a few people, that agreed with me, that [have] been doing a good job: Mike Midthun, Mike Heglund, Skully, myself and Choik Perpich. That these three people have done an excellent job for the City of Crosby."

Heglund then made a motion to extend the three contracts until 2019. It was seconded by Councilman Ron Prushek. Following some discussion between Councilman Jim Goshey and Heglund. Goshey suggesting that the contract for the Clerk/Treasurer Lisa Sovo wasn't due to expire until Dec. 31, 2018 and based on a recommendation from Gary Weiers they were considering hiring an administrator and the clerk/treasurer duty list may be changing. Then motion was amended to extend Chief of Police Kim Coughlin and enact Police Lieutenant Kevin Randolph contracts until 2019 with the agreed to annual increases in pay. Lisa Sovo's contract was left out of the motion and remains in effect and is due to expire the end of 2018.

Gary Weiers with David Drown Associates Inc., a firm that helps the cities search for a new administrators. Weiers talked about the organizational study results for the city of Crosby that was financed by National Joint Powers Alliance (NJPA). Noting that Crosby has a lot of activity for a city of around 2,500 in population. He said that Crosby had a city library, campground and cemetery, and those are some things that are fairly unusual. He said, the work load in general is a little bit higher. "And I would suspect that the work load in the Police Department would be a little bit higher." Weiers recommended using technology better to reduce workload. He also recommended that Crosby hire an administrator and eliminate some of the administrative duties of the Clerk/Treasurer position. In addition, Weiers recommended the elimination of the deputy clerk position. With the Clerk/Treasurer resuming the duties of that position.

He said the salary of an administrator would be in the neighborhood of a $100,000 per year. By reducing the one deputy clerk office position by 16 hours per week, there would be a little savings there.

"But that doesn't add up to anywhere near the kind of money it would take to have the administrator position," he said.

Another recommendation was to allow the clerks revise their duty list to make it more efficient. Also reposition a person at the window to save time and reduce the width and size of the window space to reduce noise and distractions.

He said software could be used to make reservations at the campground. Personnel policy manual would be another good idea to have.

The council approved the 2 a.m. liquor license for Peanuts Pub, DBA Midway Bar.

Council accepted with regrets the resignation of Chris Ryan from the Planning and Zoning Committee.

Council waived the rezoning application fee for Mr. Belifore for a property that had been applied two years ago.

Council agreed the liquor license application approved by the council on April 25th for Red Raven had included strong beer endorsement.

No fires reported in Crosby since last meeting.

Hallett Community Center added 18 new members last month.

Council approved payment to Visual ClubMate for $3300 for the Hallett Community Center.

Head Librarian Patti Beseres read a Library update. She said the Give-To-The-

Max Day campaign featuring Jingle Books, had a very successful kick off on November 17. That first week, the JFHML Friends Fundraiser raised over $5,000 with a $10,000 match from the Hallett Charitable Trust. To date Jingle Books has now raised $7,000 or $14,000 with the match. All of these funds will go directly back to the JFHML to purchase books, e-books, audiobooks and periodicals in 2017. Credit card donations can still be made online via <https://givemn.org/project/jingle-books> or checks made payable to the JFHML Friends Foundation can be brought into the Library. The campaign runs through December 31, 2016.

Beseres said, "We are always amazed by the generosity and support we receive from our community."

Beseres said, that for the Story Hour, children will be having a special visitor at their end-of-year Christmas Party. Santa Claus (aka Mark Flom) will make an appearance and there will be a photo ops for all of the children. She said, "He has been here the past three years and does a great job. His visit is made possible by the Friends."

She said, the Friends held their second annual Friends Holiday Open House on December 6. The day ended with an evening magic show.

The library's webmaster, since 2008, John See, is now retiring. Beginning in January 2017, Zach Ashbach will be fulfilling the duties of updating the library's website monthly.

Beseres said, "John See has done a fabulous job for us. We received many compliments on our site." It is used to access our on-line Bibliox card catalog and our Overdrive e-books, along with current events, history and opportunities available at the JFHML.

Beseres said, that this will be the 13th year of the Adult Winter Reading program called Hot Reads for Cold Nights.

Beseres thanked you to the city crew for help with keeping the library's sidewalks snow and ice free.

Mayor Joanna Lattery indicated she would update the status of the JFHML joining the Kitchigami Regional Library system. There is a meeting on January 19th. Crow Wing County Commissioner Doug Houge was in attendance and indicated the county would give the regional library a little over $500,000, as required by statute.

Council approved accepting Library donations.

Lieutenant Kevin Randolph said he was interviewed again on another national television show at the city hall council chambers. Randolph had been interviewed on Dr. Phil and this time it was Crime Watch Daily with Chris Hansen. The interview will air on Friday, Dec. 16 at 2 p.m.

Randolph indicate they would like to purchase a new police car. He wanted to set the record straight, "One of the things I heard during the mayoral debate [was a] public question asking why the Crosby Police Department has seven squad cars."

Randolph said, "For the record we have five, of which four run, of which three run safely. And of those three, since I've been here in January, all three of them have been down for a major repairs. We are very often running with two safe running squad cars, in our fleet right now."

He continued, "Our request is to replace the car that self combusted this last summer in the parking lot after being parked for three days." Randolph indicated they would like to try a Dodge Durango this time.

Councilman Paul Heglund made a motion "to approve the purchase of a squad car and leave it up to Kevin to pick the one he wants." Another idea they were considering was to lease with a buy out option at the end of the lease for next years business. They had tried a Dodge Charger this past summer and felt the Durango was a better fit. Officer Randolph felt they could reuse the electronics from the car they were replacing. Randolph said a single cage conversion to a police vehicle would cost around $4000 - $5000. Councilman Ron Prushek seconded the motion. In the discussion following the motion and second Councilman Jim Goshey said "I think we should take the low bid amount of $26,283." Randolph indicated that was the one they would go with. The council approved the purchase although the motion was never changed.

Councilman Dusty Paul talked about the pumper truck needing new brakes.

City Attorney Tom Pearson said he would have something on the Serpent Lake Sewer District land conveyance and Graphics Packaging International, Crow Wing County, Independent School District 182 and City of Crosby land exchange at the next meeting.
