Keys family donates land for children in Hoy Community

I am because we are

Because we are,

Submitted

Children who grew up in the Hoy Community in the 1960s had very few options when it came to playground equipment and recreational activities. Jerlean Keys Williams recalled that the main place Hoy kids had to play was the red clay basketball court outside their two-room schoolhouse. The oldest of Howard and Idell Keys' ten children, Williams often wished she and her friends had more recreational opportunities like the kids had in the nearby city of Laurel. Although Laurel and the Hoy Community are virtually side-by-side today, in the 1960s a shortage of transportation made it virtually impossible to come into the city just to participate in recreational activities.

"I saw so much lacking," Williams explained. "I knew that when I grew up I was going to make a change. I had a vision; I had a dream."

Her dream, that she would one day be able to give back to the children of the Hoy Community, will soon become a reality. Along with her siblings, Williams has donated 6.5 acres of land located directly behind the Hoy Community Center upon which to build a sports complex.

Williams said her mother set a strong foundation for her family and instilled in them all the importance of education. Because of her mother's example, Williams completed high school, received a bachelor's degree in education and later became a registered nurse. However, as important as Williams believes good education to be, she also feels that recreation and physical activity is just as important for growing children. About three years ago, Williams shared her vision with close friend and community leader Lillian McDonald. McDonald then contacted Beat One supervisor Johnny Burnett and other citizens in the community and helped form an organization, the

Howard and Idell Keys Sports Community Council (HIK).

Christopher Heidelberg is the president of the council and McDonald serves as secretary. The council is working in conjunction with Burnett and the Jones County Parks and Recreation Department. It is anticipated that the HIK sports facility will be able to host football, baseball, softball and soccer.

"It's a wonderful gift to the community from the Keys family," said Burnett. "The family, Ms. McDonald, Christopher Heidel-

FUMC honors Jones Co. Sheriff's Department with prayer luncheon

By Linda Cranford

As a part of their strategic planning to reach out to the community in 2017, the members of Laurel First United Methodist Church have started a "First Friday Community Prayer Luncheon." In January, the first luncheon honored Ben and Erin Napier with the up-and-coming new HGTV series "Home Town." Last Friday, February 3, the church honored the Jones County Sheriff's Department. "We wanted to provide a setting where we could support and love those who have a huge influence in our community and are critical for its wellbeing," explained Bro. Mark Anderson. "So, we came up with a prayer luncheon where we can sit down together for a meal and pray for one another."

Bro. Mark Anderson welcomed the Sheriff's Department to the luncheon.

Addressing the guests, Anderson said, "We want to be a blessing to you, because we know if you are blessed, the whole community is blessed. I hope you will leave this place knowing that you do not stand alone. You have a community that stands with you and supports what you do. We appreciate you and want you to feel blessed." Before introducing Jamie Tedford, Jones County Sheriff's Department Chief of Operations/Division Commander Major, FUMC member Robin Robinson notified the guest of a small gift of appreciation located at each table setting. The gift was a small pocket cross with a note. Robinson said the pocket cross is something they can keep with them as not only a reminder of the prayer luncheon but also as a reminder of God's love.

Major Jamie Tedford spoke on behalf of the Sheriff's Department thanking the church and expressing the importance of the community and law enforcement working together to fight crime.

Tedford spoke of the importance of building relationships and the need for the community to come together to fight crime. "We feel America is broken just like you do," exclaimed Tedford. He said in his 20 years he has seen the change in the way the fight against crime has to be conducted today. "We've got to partner together more in today's times than ever before," said Tedford. "We can't do it by ourselves. We've got to have the help of the church and the community." Tedford continued saying, "I believe God has got me in law enforcement to serve. The pay is low, very low, but we don't do it for the pay. We do it because our heart is in it, and we feel we've been called to do it." He thanked the church on behalf of the sheriff, who was unable to attend, and the entire Sheriff's Department and said, "You will never know what this means to us in the Sheriff's Department. It is heartfelt and so appreciative."

berg and the council are spearheading this project and are doing a great job. I will do all I can to help see this get done."

Although no completion date has been set, Williams is ready to get things moving in that direction.

"I'm really anxious (about getting the project started)," Williams said, explaining that she is a senior citizen and not getting any younger. "This is very necessary for me. I want to see this (become a reality)."

The HIK Sports Community Council is soliciting financial assistance for this project. Individuals can make a contribution by visiting the website www.hikfoundation.com or contacting McDonald at (601) 426- 2902.

JCJC students meet state legislators

By Teresa McCreery,
JCJC Media-Public Relations Director

The annual Mississippi Community College Legislative Appreciation Luncheon provides an opportunity for representatives from the states' community colleges to meet with legislators informally, but it also provides a unique opportunity for students too. Students from each of the 15 community/junior colleges share their musical and culinary talents with the group while several students enjoy the role of hosts and hostesses at the legislative appreciation luncheon. JCJC freshman business major from Collins, Javier Alexander, said he enjoyed the networking opportunity.

"It was a great experience meeting some of the great people who help keep community college affordable. The whole time in their presence it was nothing but smiling faces and very firm handshakes. It made me feel good to meet the faces of the people that are responsible for the education of so many people in Mississippi because without the funding of junior/community colleges thousands of people would go without higher education."

Ellisville's Precious Graham, a freshman English major, shared, "I was honored to be chosen to attend the appreciation luncheon. I enjoyed understanding, on a deeper level, what all our legislative representatives, community college presidents, and vice presidents do for our community and junior colleges. I am more grateful and aware of what goes on in our state."

Dre'Anna Gates, a freshman elementary education major from Quitman, said it reminded her of some activities she appreciated in high school. "I enjoyed getting to meet new people from a different college. It reminded me of high school BETA or FBLA convention. My favorite part was being able to enjoy all the talents around Mississippi."
