Billie Ruth Standbridge and daughter Mikelle

Billie Ruth Standbridge and daughter Mikelle share a love of quilts as part of their family heritage. They are promoting the Lone Star Heritage Quilt Guild annual show this weekend, Sept 18 and 19 near downtown Sulphur Springs at The Roc, 115 Putman St. You can see 155 beautiful heirloom quilts expertly displayed, with quilt-related vendors and door prizes. Admission is $5 per adult.

Meet the newest members of my family! My granddaughter Mrs. Hanna Moreland Garst introduces sons Cypress (left) and Beau (right) to the world. The twins were born in Hopkins County Memorial Hospital on Wednesday September 9, and weighed in at 6 pounds each. Mom, Dad, big brother Dakx and the babies are all doing fine.

My granddaughter Hanna and new twin boys!!!

War Bonnet the filly.

Miss Magic's War Bonnet is now 7 months old, and has started 'school' this Fall, actually being weaned and gentled. Her confinement is out of sight and reach of Mama, but she can still smell and hear her. In time, Miss Magic will return to Mama's meadow where she will again have room to practice her lightning-quick moves. And hopefully, she'll get a new home range and the perfect new owners before 2015 is out.

Til next week, I'll watch and wait for you at the corral gate. First day of Autumn is a week away!

THE STORE AT DIKE

Tumbleweed Smith

Tumbleweed Smith

Mike and Carol Scott own the store at Dike, a small community near Sulphur Springs. The place is named for a pioneer family. "Dike just has a couple of things," said Mike, "the store and the post office. That's pretty much it."

When they bought the store twelve years ago, the shelves were empty. It had been vacant for a while. Mike says the store was just sittin' there and he thought someone should open it.

"I had bought six hundred acres down the road here and moved my cattle from Rockwall. Carol and I ran the feed store in Rockwall for twenty-five years, up through 2001. Since our cattle were right down the road I didn't want to run all the way to Sulphur Springs every time I wanted a coke or needed a gallon of gas or something like that, so I just thought I'd open it back up."

It's hard to pass by the store without stopping to look around. It looks like a movie set. A 1940 panel truck is parked in front that has a surfboard and air horns on it. Antiques are all over the property. Inside the store, customers find a stuffed bear, an elk and all kinds of country stuff.

"Outside on the porch we have horse collars, all types of harness and things that used to lay round the farm. We've got some old saddles. One of them is from about 1900 to 1920. That junk has character."

The store doesn't just sell groceries and gasoline. Carol prepares meals for some regular customers.

"They walk in and tell Carol they want this, this and this. They sit down and go to talking and all of a sudden Carol sits a bowl of something in front of them and they ask what it is. Carol tells them it's their breakfast. 'You ordered sausage, gravy, biscuits and eggs. I just put it in one bowl.' Now they've got to where they understand her and walk in and say, 'Carol, fix me some breakfast.' They never order anything. At lunchtime they'll walk in and ask, 'we havin' hamburgers or barbecue or bologna?' Carol tells them to sit down. It's like bein' at home."

The store sells the basics: milk, bread, potato chips and cokes. About the gasoline, Mike says he has the cheapest gas in town.

The back of the store has four male dummies sitting around a table like they're playing cards. Mike's easy chair is nearby. Customers enter through a screen door that opens with a loud squeak. It has a bell on it that rings when the door opens. A strong spring on the door causes the door to slam.

"Everybody gets a kick out of my screen door," says Mike. We got it fixed that way to wake me up when I'm snoozing in my easy chair."
