South B.A. Develops

By EMILY RAMSEY
Managing Editor

Construction has reached near completion for The Reserve at Aspen Creek, a multi-family development on Tucson Street (121st Street), between Aspen Avenue (145th East Avenue) and Elm Place (161st East Avenue).

The Reserve at Aspen Creek is the residential element of a development by The Signorelli Company, which also includes The Shops at Aspen Creek, an entertainment, shopping and dining concept, with Warren Theatres as its entertainment anchor tenant.

"We want to blend a quality place for people to live with a quality entertainment component," says President and CEO Danny Signorelli.

The Reserve at Aspen Creek, with 240 units, sits on the eastern end of the company's project area and is expected to begin leasing in early March.

The Shops at Aspen Creek will feature up to 400,000 square feet of restaurants and retail stores with the potential for future development on 50 acres north of the Creek Turnpike that The Signorelli Company also owns.

Signorelli expects to see construction move forward this year on elements of The Shops at Aspen Creek, with his hope of fully completing the project by 2020.

This is the first project in the greater Tulsa area for The Signorelli Company, which is based in Houston.

The company was drawn to develop in south B.A. due to its continued residential growth, its easy accessibility to the Creek Turnpike and to Tulsa, and similarities to the company's other projects, says Signorelli.

BLUE STAR MOTHERS SUPPORT TROOPS

Members of the Broken Arrow Blue Star Mothers of America are doing their part to positively impact the United States military. The organization focuses its efforts on supporting soldiers who are overseas as well as providing aid to local veterans in need.

Perhaps Blue Star Mothers of America is most well known for its care packages – shipping boxes filled with supplies – sent to deployed soldiers. The Broken Arrow chapter ships at least 100 boxes overseas each month. In 2016, the chapter sent just over 1,500 boxes.

However, the organization's efforts reach much farther than that, says Susan Thesenvitz, the chapter's communications and public relations officer.

Thesenvitz joined Broken Arrow Blue Star Mothers in 2009. Her son, Greg, served in the National Guard and was deployed to Afghanistan in 2010.

"Any time that a military-related organization comes to us with a need, we try to help. We help at the vet centers, at the Coffee Bunker. We help families who have children in the military," she says.

To fund its endeavors, the chapter holds regular fundraising events, roughly one per month, such as selling baked goods, asking for donations at Walmart or partnering with local businesses.

Individuals can support the organization through donations, whether that be monetary, items for the care packages or their time, Thesenvitz says.

"We receive help from Eagle Scouts, Girl Scouts, local students, area businesses," says Chapter President Janet Viel.

"We also have classes of school students that will draw pictures on the boxes that we send to the soldiers," Thesenvitz adds.

During the Christmas season, the chapter increases its care package efforts, sending three boxes to each soldier, one for the soldier to keep and two to give away to foreign servicemen and women who are also on active duty.

"We get letters that will make you cry from foreign soldiers, thanking us, saying that their country doesn't send them anything," says Thesenvitz.

Items that the chapter is currently requesting include canned soup, canned pasta, breakfast bars, individual coffee or tea bags, baby wipes, band-aids, hand warmers, sunglasses, cough drops, toothbrushes, mouthwash, ziplock bags and socks. For a full list, visit babluostar.org.

The boxes also often include comics, magazines, books, cards, letters, drawings from students and stationery for writing to their families.

"When you think about the fact that they're in these foreign countries, away from so many things that they're familiar with," says Viel. "These things bring soldiers a taste of home."

"My son would be away from his base with his unit for weeks on the

KUDOS OF THE MONTH: Ambassador Hotel

The Ambassador Hotel has drawn national attention to Tulsa by being named by Trip Advisor as one of the best hotels in the United States. Trip Advisor is one of the most popular travel website companies in the world.

The Ambassador Hotel Tulsa is ranked ninth among its top 25 hotels in the nation. The number-one rated hotel is the Nantucket Hotel & Resort in Nantucket, Massachusetts.

The Ambassador Hotel, located at 1324 S. Main St., is owned by Coury Properties. The 55-room luxury hotel is on the National Register of Historic Places and was the first hotel opened by Coury Properties and Paul Coury, which now owns hotels in Oklahoma City, Wichita, and Kansas City, Missouri.

The Ambassador Hotel was opened by General Patrick Hurley in 1929 to be a residence for wealthy Tulsans who were building mansions not yet ready for occupancy. (Hurley was later named Secretary of War in the Herbert Hoover administration.) The hotel went through tough times during the Great Depression of the 1930s and eventually became housing for retired seniors. It closed altogether in 1987. Coury and investors bought the property in 1999 and began a $5.5 million restoration. In October 2014, the hotel became part of the Autograph Hotel Collection by Marriott with the agreement allowing the Ambassador to retain its own identity.

The Ambassador Hotel also houses the popular Chalkboard Restaurant. The Ambassador General Manager is Andrew Mungul and the Director of Sales is Michelle Koskey.

2017 OSU in Tulsa Icons Named

An Oklahoma State Regent for Higher Education, a prominent Tulsa charitable organization and a generous philanthropist who left his mark on the city have been selected as 2017 OSU in Tulsa Icons by Oklahoma State University-Tulsa and OSU Center for Health Sciences for their contributions to the university, the state of Oklahoma and the nation.

"The OSU in Tulsa Icons share OSU's mission to educate and help others," says OSU-Tulsa President Howard Barnett. "All have spent their lives in service to our community and have contributed to the breadth and quality of life and education in Oklahoma and throughout the country."

The Icons are Jay Helm, a Tulsa businessman who serves as a member of the Oklahoma State Regents for Higher Education; the Charles and Lynn Schusterman Family Foundation; and the late Henry Zarrow, who with his wife, Anne, founded the Anne and Henry Zarrow Foundation.

"A Stately Affair in Tulsa provides the university the opportunity to recognize those who have made a significant impact on Tulsa and our state," says Kayse Shrum, D.O., president of OSU-CHS and dean of the OSU College of Osteopathic Medicine. "These leaders have been integral to furthering our mission to increase the number of primary care physicians in rural Oklahoma and to improve the state's health status."

Helm is chairman of American Residential Group, Ltd., a Tulsa-based multifamily residential properties development and management firm that has been a leader in the renaissance of downtown Tulsa. As a graduate of OSU, he has long provided leadership and support for the university and its efforts in Tulsa. Helm previously served on the OSU/A&M Board of Regents and the OSU-Tulsa Board of Trustees before being appointed in 2013 to a nine-year term on the State Regents.

As a civic leader, Helm's impact has been felt on higher education statewide. He currently serves on the Board of Trustees for the University Center at Tulsa Authority as well as the Board of Trustees for both OSU Medical Authority and the OSU Medical Trust. He also is a member of the Tulsa Regional Chamber Board of Directors and executive committee.

The Charles and Lynn Schusterman Family Foundation was established by the late Charles Schusterman and his wife Lynn in 1987 to benefit education, child advocacy and youth leadership programs in Tulsa and Oklahoma.

Give a Little, Change A Lot with the Power of Twelve

Salvation Army Starts Program To Address Area Needs

By K. J. WEBB
Contributing Writer

The Salvation Army of Metro Tulsa has launched the Power of Twelve, an ambitious comprehensive program that focuses exclusively on helping those in the community who need it most: the homeless, impoverished and hungry families, children and individuals and the thousands of at-risk youth who encounter challenges on a daily basis.

The Power of Twelve concept is simple: commit to donating $12 a month for 12 months. The cumulative effect of small, consistent giving produces significant results. The program goal is 12,000 members.

"People often question whether their small donation can make a difference but it can through the Power of 12," says Captain Ken Chapman, Tulsa Area commander, The Salvation Army. "Even a small gift, combined with thousands of others giving on a regular basis, make a big impact. If we can hit our goal, or even go beyond it, the assistance we could provide to the needy and suffering in our community would be tremendous."

These numbers of those needing help can be overwhelming. There

HUNGRY FAMILIES: The Power of Twelve is an ambitious comprehensive program that focuses exclusively on helping those in the community who need it most: the homeless, impoverished and hungry families, children and individuals and the thousands of at-risk youth who encounter challenges on a daily basis.

are 50 children every single night of the year at The Salvation Army Center of Hope (COH), northeastern Oklahoma's largest homeless shelter; the average age of homelessness is nine years old. In 2016, the COH provided nearly 110,000 nights of safe shelter and served 358,000 warm, nutritious meals to the hungry, many of them children. The Salvation Army Boys & Girls Clubs of Metro Tulsa serve over 18,000 at-risk children every year by providing safe, structured after-school and summer youth development programs. These programs educate and empower the area community's youth to make positive life choices and develop the skills they need to do well academically and succeed in life.

"The Power of Twelve is positioned to make a significant impact on the efficiency and reach of these important social service and youth development programs," Chapman says.

Captain Chapman explains the inspiration for the Power of Twelve concept: "It's about power, the tremendous power that results when people come to together to serve the greater good," he says, adding, "The number 12 can be found 187 places in Scripture.

CHILDREN IN NEED: There are 50 children every single night of the year at The Salvation Army Center of Hope (COH), northeastern Oklahoma's largest homeless shelter; the average age of homelessness is nine years old.

There are 22 occurrences of the number in the Book of Revelations alone. The Biblical meaning of the number 12 is God's power and authority. It is considered a perfect number, a number of power."

The number 12 is also significant in secular areas of life: there are 12 months in a year, 12 zodiac signs, 12 people on a jury, a carpenter's ruler has 12 subdivisions, pharmacists and jewelers use the 12-ounce pound.

"The beauty of the Power of Twelve is its simplicity," Chapman says. "For as little as the cost of a movie ticket or a few gourmet coffee drinks, anyone can change a life for the better."

By joining the Power of Twelve, metro Tulsa residents become an important part of a powerful mission of "Doing The Most Good" and make an ongoing positive impact where it is needed most, in the local community.

Laura Chalus Embraces Role at Tulsa Garden Center

By EMILY RAMSEY
Managing Editor

Editor's Note: Laura Chalus, executive director of the Tulsa Garden Center, is one of Greater Tulsa Reporter's "10 People to Watch in 2017," as announced in its January 2017 issue. GTR was the first news group in greater Tulsa to introduce "10 People to Watch," which launched in January 2009.

Throughout the year, GTR will publish a series of articles featuring each of its "10 People to Watch," with next month's issue to feature Tulsa's Young Professionals 2017 Chair Stephanie Cameron.

As a long-time garden hobbyist and self-proclaimed lifelong learner, Laura Chalus was quite familiar with the Tulsa Garden Center, 2435 S. Peoria Ave., before she ever considered applying for its executive director position.

Therefore, after she was hired in August 2016, Chalus was surprised that what she found at the garden center far surpassed her expectations.

"I was amazed by the community feel at the garden center and at Woodward Park: it's a home away from home for many people," she says, those "people" including those in the garden center's numerous affiliate organizations.

"These are my people. They love gardening and nature. When there is so much negativity in the world, this is a place where it doesn't exist," she continues.

Chalus' professional history has been wrapped up with nonprofit work. She has worked for Workforce Tulsa and Tulsa Community Foundation, among others, managing grants, overseeing fundraising, and working with event management.

"Helping people is at my core. I always feel like I should be making a contribution."

An Inola native, Chalus earned her bachelor's degree in university studies from Oklahoma State University and recently received her master's from the University of Oklahoma in human relations, with an emphasis on organizational studies.

Before earning her bachelor's degree, Chalus pursued accounting and chemistry. "I'm a left-brain thinker," she admits.

For that reason, she wanted to enhance her skills in human relations and chose to focus her master's degree on an area heavily focused on self-exploration, she continues. "It helped me find meaning and purpose for myself."

Before applying for the position at the Tulsa Garden Center, Chalus was working as a contract accountant and "keeping my options open and just paying attention to things put in front of me," she says.

So, when a friend suggested she apply for the garden center's job opening, Chalus felt as if it was placed in front of her for a reason. "All roads have led me here," she says.

Since joining the garden center, Chalus has compiled a number of priorities, two of those being the maintenance of the center's facilities and mansion and the improvement of its rose garden, which lost about half of its rose bushes last year due to Rose Rosette Disease.

Chalus first focused on the state of the garden center's 97-year-old mansion in order to provide better customer service to the affiliate groups that use the mansion on a daily basis.

These groups include numerous horticulture and community organizations.

"We started cleaning the nooks and crannies of the mansion and organizing storage areas," she says, with the overall focus of "maintaining and respecting the history of the mansion."

The land that the mansion sits on was originally a Creek Indian allotment. The mansion, built in 1920, holds decades of history, including as one of Tulsa's original Jewish synagogues, which was located in the basement.

"We want to emphasize all of that history and open the area up for tours and make the mansion more convenient and hospitable," she says.

Recently, Chalus and her team have turned their attention to the 4.5-acre rose garden, a WPA (Works Progress Administration) project that was built in 1934.

"The rose garden used to win national awards," she says.

Thanks in part to its rose garden, Tulsa received the designation as "America's Most Beautiful City" in a 1957 Reader's Digest article.

The rose garden has recently been largely affected by Rose Rosette Disease, an incurable virus caused by an eriophyid mite that has created increasing amounts of rose bush devastation in recent years across North America.

In an effort to learn more about the disease, the garden center has joined a national rose research effort, dedicating two of its six rose terraces, or tiers, to research. "We want to be a part of the solution," says Chalus.

The disease has also caused us to change the way we look at the rose garden, she says, such as the layout of the rose garden, what plants are in the rose garden and how to maintain the bushes that we currently have.

NATURE ENTHUSIAST: Tulsa Garden Center Executive Director Laura Chalus stands outside the mansion, 2435 S. Peoria Ave., which serves as the garden center's offices. Chalus entered her role on Sept. 1, with many points of focus, including the rose gardens, which have been recently devastated by Rose Rosette Disease.

In the coming months, the staff plans to add additional plants to the rose garden, including plants for pollinators and monarch butterflies, with a focus on beautifying the garden.

This will be done in time for the garden center's much-anticipated Wine and Roses event that will return, after a year's hiatus, in September.

However, with Wine and Roses will come some rebranding changes, including a renaming of the event.

"The cancellation of the event last year allowed us to take a breath and look at the event and determine how we can keep up with the times," says Chalus.

Board members are looking at downsizing and improving the quality of the food and wine vendors to create a higher-end event.

"We are carrying on the tradition but keeping it fresh. Even though the name may change, individuals will still be in for a delightful tasting."

Tulsa311 Makes Reporting City Issues Easy

One of the great things about living in Tulsa is that we are headed toward more direct technology interactions between government and citizens. One great example of this occurred last fall when the City of Tulsa launched Tulsa311, a customer-relations management system. Tulsa311 makes it easy for Tulsa residents to report city issues or request city services in multiple ways.

If you need to report a pothole or high grass in your neighborhood or need more information

From The Mayor

By MAYOR G.T. BYNUM
City of Tulsa

about city services, you can dial 311 from a cell phone or landline. You can visit our self-serve website at tulsa311.com and use the live chat feature (available during business hours). Or, you can easily download a mobile app on your smart phone (compatible with Android and iOS systems).

Since I always have my cell phone handy, I recently downloaded the Tulsa 311 mobile app on my phone and within seconds, I was checking out the Tulsa311 menu. It's fast and easy to use, allowing me to quickly report a pothole, pinpoint its location, take a photo and file a report.

Whichever method you choose to use to reach the City of Tulsa, please know that contacting us has never been easier.

I realize some folks would rather speak directly to a Tulsa 311 agent, so you can dial 311 and report or request a service. The call taker will create a service order and route it to the appropriate department for response where they will work as quickly as possible to resolve your issue.

Some of you may prefer to visit the Tulsa311 website, where you can register your own account and begin managing and receiving updates on the service orders you submit to the City of Tulsa. You even have the capability to try out the online chat feature, which is available during regularly scheduled business hours.

I'm excited how Tulsa311 is transforming the way we all communicate with the City of Tulsa. I can hardly wait for future interactive features that will continue to enhance the customer experience by serving as a one-stop convenience shop for Tulsa residents. I invite you to watch our Tulsa311 tutorial video.

Also, please remember that Tulsa311 is only for regular everyday city services and is not for emergencies. If you have a police, fire or medical emergency, call 911.

What Our Military Bases and Defense Communities Need

Opinion

By MIKE COOPER
President, Association of Defense Communities

MIKE COOPER

The neglect of our military infrastructure impacts not only our security but also the needs of our service members, their families and the communities that support them.

Our defense infrastructure not only supports our military missions and readiness. It also supports our 1.1 million service members, their families, and the communities they call home. But a five-year period of unprecedented turmoil for our defense budget has seriously damaged the military and our defense installations.

No one understands this more than the members of the Association of Defense Communities – more than 250 communities and 35 states that host and support our nation's 400 defense facilities. A new administration and Congress provide an opportunity for swift action to end sequestration and begin the critical work of rebuilding our military and defense infrastructure. We must remove all obstacles, including arcane, bureaucratic budget-scoring rules, and focus on getting the job done. With an on-the-ground perspective, America's defense communities stand ready to support this undertaking.

To begin with, we need to rein-vest in the basic components of our military installations -- roads, airfields, buildings and utilities. We need to enhance the resiliency of our installations and protect the land and air space of our training ranges and facilities for current and future missions. And we need to ensure we are providing great places for our service members and their families to live, work and learn.

A ready list of defense infrastructure projects exists. For example, our system of early-warning radar sites in the northern continental tier is on the verge of collapse, directly impacting our security. With quick action, investments in these kinds of critically-needed infrastructure improvements could become a reality in a matter of months, creating tens of thousands of jobs.

Just as we invest in our defense infrastructure, we must take care of the people who protect us – our service members and their families. Our defense communities work tirelessly to ensure that service members and families have great places to live, learn and prosper. They have invested hundreds of millions of local and state dollars to ensure that our bases are sustained. As a nation, we must support them in return, leveraging their investments to develop transportation connections outside the fence, high-quality schools, health-care options and access to other services our military families need and deserve.

This reinvestment must be driven not only by strategy but by innovation that ensures that we are doing things smarter and more efficiently. Partnerships between the private and public sectors are critical to achieving this goal, and these partners stand ready to make it happen. When the Air Force needed to increase mission capability and reduce costs, for example, the state of Oklahoma and the city of Enid came together to expand the municipal airport facilities and runway to serve Vance Air Force Base.

We also must not forget our nation's former defense infrastructure, the hundreds of military facilities in every part of the country that have been through the Base Realignment and Closing process and offer the potential for job creation. Many sit fallow as they wait for the federal government to transfer land or address environmental issues. More than 9,700 former defense sites present an opportunity to enhance local job growth if the private sector can collaborate with the federal government to focus existing resources. We should leverage the full power of the federal government to turn these unique sites into robust engines of economic growth.

The communities, states and industry partners that support our military bases – whether active or not – understand the value of our defense infrastructure both inside and outside the gate. Strong communities are an essential ingredient to the strong military that keeps us all safe.

March Means Headliner Heaven in Tulsa

When I worked at the Tulsa PAC and March rolled around, I was keenly aware of the competition for audiences during that time-frame. I learned not to underestimate the pull of March Madness, St. Patrick's Day and spring break.

This month is no exception. In fact, if you are looking for headliner entertainment, you will find it nearly every day at one or more of the many venues around Tulsa.

Forty years ago this month, the PAC opened its doors with a concert performed by the First Lady of Song, Ella Fitzgerald, accompanied by the Tulsa Philharmonic. To pay homage to that anniversary, the PAC Trust will host singer/siren Jane Monheit on Mar. 12. Performing with her is Grammy Award-winning trumpeter Nicholas Payton, joined by her trio and the Tulsa Symphony. Payton produced and played on Monheit's 2016 album, "The Songbook Sessions: Ella Fitzgerald." In combination with Payton's genius and talent, Monheit brings freshness to The American Songbook. "I love pop stuff, but one of the beautiful things about jazz is the way it blends with other genres. You can cross over, mix it up and try different things," she told me in a recent interview. Expect a few surprising song mashups, top-rate artistry and a concert experience all will remember.

Also at the PAC this month is my favorite musical, Stephen Sondheim's "Sweeney Todd." It's a dark tale for sure, but the music is extraordinary. Theatre Tulsa, which never misses a step thanks in no small part to the leadership of Sara Phoenix, presents this bloody tale of that "Demon Barber of Fleet Street," Mar. 3-12. Meat pie, anyone?

Several other events complete the PAC March calendar, including "Celebrity Attractions," "Motown: The Musical," March 14-19; Tulsa Ballet's "Swan Lake," Mar. 24-26; and "Brain Candy Live!," March 29. "Brain Candy" features Adam Savage and Michael Stevens in what has been described as "a cross between TED Talks and the Blue Man Group."

In the film "Zen of Bennett," Tony Bennett says, "Choose a career that encompasses what you gravitate to naturally, and you will have a satisfying, life-long vocation." He's 90 and still booking concert dates and hosting TV specials. I think this iconic

Italian singer can party with the best of them on St. Patrick's Day at the River Spirit Casino, though he's going to have some stiff competition from "Experience Hendrix" across town at The Joint, or from the opening night of the NCAA Men's Basketball Championship at the BOK Center. "Experience Hendrix" comprises 29 performers channeling Mr. Purple Haze, and sold out all 27 of its shows in 2016.

Take a trip back to the sizzling '60s with the bands Chicago (Mar. 24) and REO Speedwagon (Mar. 25). Both were formed in 1967. Even if the '60s weren't your time in the sun, you will know those Chicago tunes, and the group has retained four of its original members. Also headlining at the Paradise Cove at River Spirit are ZZ Top (Mar. 10), bringing their special brand of sharp-dressed blues as part of their Tonnage Tour, and country music's multi-Grammy winner Brad Paisley (Mar. 23). He's the triple Grammy Award-winning singer who has hosted the Country Music Association Awards with Carrie Underwood for the last several years.

Comedian George Lopez will have plenty of material to work with Mar. 8 at The Joint. He finds the humor in ethnic relations, including Mexican American culture. Brett Michaels of "Every Rose Has Its Thorn" fame performs at The Joint, Mar. 9. He's a singer, songwriter, musician and reality TV star. He won "Celebrity Apprentice" in 2010. "Bad to the Bone" singer George Thorogood and the Destroyers appear at the Hard Rock on Mar. 30.

She performs at the BOK Center, Mar. 6, followed by American punkers Green Day, Mar. 7. People who weren't familiar with Green Day before have come to know them through the "American Idiot" Broadway musical.

Double Grammy winner Miranda Lambert has gotten a lot of ink lately due to her split with hubby Blake Shelton, but that's a side note to a much bigger story. She's won seven consecutive Academy of Country Music Association awards, which is a

Add Cain's Ballroom and its usual massive lineup of bands to that, along with performances by singer R. Kelly, Mar. 8, and the rock band Kansas ("Dust in the Wind" and "Carry on Wayward Son"), Mar. 25, at the Brady!

I remember a few years back when one appearance of Michael Bolton would have T-Town buzzing and angling for tickets! A concert staycation could be a great option for March. Do what I do and try to take in as much as time and budget allows, mixing in blast-from-the-past experiences with something entirely new.

Tulsa PAC Celebrates 40 Years During March Anniversary

Special from the PAC

For four decades, the Tulsa PAC has brought quality arts and entertainment to Tulsa, and the tradition continues this month with the 40th Anniversary Celebration concert and more.

Honoring the first-ever Tulsa PAC concert in March 1977 with the legendary Ella Fitzgerald, jazz artist Jane Monheit will take the stage with Grammy winner Nicholas Payton and Tulsa Symphony Orchestra. The show honors Fitzgerald's musical legacy with several of her classic tunes as well as songs from the Great American Songbook. Monheit and Payton's recent Ella tribute album will take center stage on Sunday, March 12 at 7 p.m. in Chapman Music Hall.

Theatre Tulsa keeps upping the ante with yet another smash musical when "Sweeney Todd" comes to the stage March 3-5 and 9-12. With incredible music from Stephen Sondheim ("Wicked," "Into The Woods"), this maniacal play tells the story of barber Sweeney Todd, who returns to London after 15 years of exile in order to take revenge on the corrupt judge who banished him. He gets a little help from local baker Mrs. Lovett, who is in desperate need of fresh meat for her pies. But where will she find this delicate filling? Starring Theatre Tulsa favorite Mark Frie ("Fiddler On The Roof," "Les Miserables"), it's a deadly delight guaranteed to turn the John H. Williams Theatre upside down.

American Theatre Company presents "The Caine Mutiny Court-Martial," coming March 10-12 and 16-18 to the Liddy Doenges Theatre. In 1953, Herman Wouk adapted the court-martial chapters of his Pulitzer Prize-winning novel into a suspenseful evening of theatre. It's the story of a young lieutenant who is on trial for relieving his captain of command in the midst of a typhoon. The lieutenant claims that the captain, Queeg, was a psychopath in crisis who was commanding the ship and its crew to destruction.

Tulsa Symphony celebrates America's Main Street with the perfect soundtrack for a road trip with "Route 66: A Trip Down Memory Lane" March 11 in Chapman Music Hall. Conducted by Ron Spigelman, the concert features a multimedia presentation with highlights from the 2,448 miles of the Mother Road as well as memorable music, including highlights from Kander and Ebb's "Chicago," Aaron Copland's "Buckaroo Holiday" from "Rodeo," Gershwin's "Someone to Watch Over Me," excerpts from "Oklahoma!," W.C. Handy's "St. Louis Blues" and more.

It began as one man's story, became everyone's music, and is now a Broadway musical. "Motown: The Musical" is the true American-dream story of Motown record company founder Berry Gordy's journey from featherweight boxer to heavyweight music mogul. He launched the careers of Diana Ross, Marvin Gaye, Michael Jackson, Smokey Robinson, The Temptations and many more. Featuring classic songs such as "My Girl," "Ain't No Mountain High Enough" and "The Tears of a Clown," "Motown: The Musical" is a smash hit Broadway jukebox experience. Presented by Celebrity Attractions, it comes to Chapman Music Hall March 14-19.

In her all new show, "2020 Vision," Miss Richfield 1981 offers a survival guide for the new world. With comedic songs, videos, and her unique take on audience participation, Miss Richfield will help calm post-election panic and provide tools to prevent the apocalypse! Miss R dedicates her life to the friendly citizens and responsible merchants of her hometown, Richfield, Minnesota. Her live performances across the country receive critical acclaim with the New York Post declaring Miss R "the must-see act in Provincetown" and the Chicago Sun-Times describing her as "Garrison Keillor meets Mary Tyler Moore." This event is a benefit for and presented by Oklahomans for Equality and comes to the John H. Williams Theatre March 18.

returns to Tulsa for the first time in six years. Odette, a young maiden trapped in the form of a swan due to an evil sorcerer's curse, must find eternal love to break the spell. This lavish production, set to Tchaikovsky's well-known and much-loved score, features scenery and costumes originally created for Houston Ballet by Tony Award-winning designer Desmond Heeley. "Swan Lake" is at or near the top of most lists of best ballets, famous ballets and popular ballets. It comes to Chapman Music Hall March 24-26.

Tulsa PAC Trust presents the family-friendly musical "Alexander, Who's Not Not Not Not Not Going To Move," based on the classic book by Judith Vorst. Alexander's dad has taken a job in a city a thousand miles away, which means that he and his family are going to have to move there. But Alexander can't bear to leave the people and places he loves, so he decides that he won't move. Catch the hilarity March 31 in the John H. Williams Theatre.

Set in a time-bending, darkly comic world between heaven and hell, "The Last Days of Judas Iscariot" reexamines the plight and fate of the Bible's most infamous and unexplained sinner. This thought-provoking work by Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright Stephen Adly Guirgis tells the story of a court case over the ultimate fate of the disciple who betrayed his friend and teacher to the authorities. Lawyers call for the testimonies of such witnesses as Mother Teresa, Sigmund Freud and Satan. Theatre Pops presents the drama March 31 and April 1-2 and 6-9 in Liddy Doenges Theatre.

Tickets for all events are available by calling the Tulsa PAC ticket office at 918-596-7111 or online at TulsaPAC.com. You can also check out the latest PAC news on social media platforms.

Upcoming, New Festivals to Promote Design, Music

In the coming months, Tulsa will welcome two new festivals, both making their debut — one for the very first time and one for the first time in our region — and both upping the ante for cultural draws within our city.

In April, Tulsa will welcome the New York City-based Architecture and Design Film Festival, a festival that is making the journey here largely due to our exquisite architectural landscape and through the tireless efforts of the Tulsa Foundation for Architecture (TFA). This festival will not only encourage the already-abundant interest in our local architecture but also, no doubt, add another ember to the growing fire of our local filmmaking scene.

And in May, the newly-created MisFest, an all-female one-day music showcase, will come to River West Festival Park.

The Architecture and Design Film Festival, presented by Tulsa Foundation for Architecture, will take place April 20-23, at Circle Cinema, 10 S. Lewis Ave.

This film festival was launched in 2009 by Architect Kyle Bergman, with his goal of engaging the design community while also opening up the design world to a wider group of people, he says. The festival only visits a handful of select cities annually; among them, this year, are Seoul, South Korea; Los Angeles; and Orlando.

The four-day festival features over 20 diverse films, all with varying points of view and unique stories but all unified by their design focus.

“(TFA’s) intent is to provide students and the public the opportunity to learn about design and architecture in order to better appreciate what we have in Tulsa,” says TFA Executive Director Amanda DeCort — a mission that fits seamlessly with the film festival.

The festival, she expects, will also help to capitalize on the current interest in downtown Tulsa architecture.

TFA regularly sells out its Second Saturday downtown walking tours and saw over 700 people attend its downtown residential tour, Dwell in the IDL, last year.

“There is a lot of design curiosity in Tulsa,” Bergman says. “We want, through this festival, to foster and raise the design level of thinking.”

A small sampling of the documentaries, and some on my watch list, to be shown include Strange and Familiar: Architecture on Fogo Island, a look at an architecture project on Fogo Island, the largest offshore island of Newfoundland and Labrador; Pedro E. Guerrero: A Photographer’s Journey, an exploration of the photographer’s collaborations with three of the most iconic American artists of the 20th century, including Frank Lloyd Wright; If You Build It, a story about an innovative high school design and build project and the changes it brings to students and their poor rural North Carolina community; Yarn, highlighting the reinvention of knitting and crocheting; and Getty Frank Gehry, showcasing one of the world’s greatest architects and some of his greatest and most controversial projects.

Tickets go on sale March 1 at circlecinema.com.

For music lovers and those wishing to encourage female empowerment, MisFest will be held May 13, with its goal to put a spotlight on female artists and their talents, says Ryan Howell, River Parks events coordinator.

The festival will feature upwards of 12 female musicians in the Tulsa and Oklahoma City area.

“There are a great number of female musicians in Tulsa,” says musician Amira Al-Jiboori, who is organizing the festival with Howell and fellow bandmate Casii Stephan. “It’s been our dream to bring female musicians together.”

Al-Jiboori hopes to see this festival return annually and to grow Tulsa’s already large female music scene.

Although Tulsa already has a lot to offer, these new festivals provide further testament to the creativity teeming all around us in our city. It’s hard not to be inspired.

The Tropical: Upscale Thai, Seafood in South Tulsa

Local Dining

By BLAKE AUSTYN
Contributing Writer

The Tropical Restaurant and Bar, 8125 E. 49th St., opened in 2011 as a second restaurant concept for the Karnchanakphan family, who have been in the Tulsa community for decades.

The family’s original restaurant is Lanna Thai, which opened in 1998 at 51st Street and Harvard Avenue. A second Lanna Thai location opened in 2002 at 7227 S. Memorial Dr.

The Tropical was added as an upscale Thai restaurant with a focus on surf and turf.

The restaurant’s upscale intention would not necessarily be known by looking just at the exterior, which is a house with a picket fence in front. However, once you step inside, the atmosphere shifts.

The interior is very warm. I particularly enjoyed the bar area, which includes a number of tables and booths and a fireplace.

My mother and I came for an early dinner on a Friday evening, and we noticed a nice crowd regularly trickling in, made up of all ages, including families with little ones.

The Tropical’s Thai menu is extensive, with many names hard to pronounce, but our waitress was knowledgeable, and she offered many helpful suggestions.

The menu consists of salads, soups, curry and pasta dishes, and signature entrees, such as a New York strip, ribeye and trout.

For our appetizers, she suggested The Tropical Lettuce Wrap, one of the restaurant’s most popular appetizers. It came with a mix of crispy rice, green onions, red onions, cilantro, carrots, and mint plus noodles and peanuts with iceberg lettuce scoops.

I loved the freshness and the added flavor of peanuts. Delicious!

The size was large enough that my mom said that she could eat this as her whole meal, but granted, she is not known for her large consumption of food. So I don’t know that most people would feel similarly.

We also tried the Corn Cakes, made of herbs and green beans mixed with corn. The dish came with four cakes and offered a surprisingly sweet, unique flavor. We couldn’t get enough of them.

When I was deciding on my entree, there is a red curry dish at Lanna Thai that I am absolutely obsessed with, so I was torn between ordering a dish that our server said was similar to that or opting for something different.

But this is a food review, after all, and I am always a fan of trying new things, so I chose the Penne Keow Whan, which still incorporates curry, and I love curry.

The dish is made up of green curry, penne, basil, sugar snap peas, bamboo shoots, bell peppers, and avocado, plus your choice of a meat. I chose the seafood medley, which includes shrimp, scallops, calamari and salmon.

I enjoyed the slightly spicy flavor of the green curry. Though, some portions of the seafood, namely the scallops and calamari, were a bit too fishy and chewy for me.

My mother chose a dish from the menu’s Flavors off the Grill items, the Jumbo Sea Scallop, which did not consist of one scallop as the name might suggest, but closer to six scallops.

All dishes in this category come with jasmine rice and the choice of an original house-made sauce, a topping and a side.

She ordered the Thai Garlic sauce, Sweet Pepper Mango topping and Corn Cakes as the side.

The flavors all melded together nicely, with the sweet mango flavors combining well with the Thai Garlic sauce.

The Tropical is open for lunch and dinner seven days a week, with lunch starting at 11 a.m. and dinner at 5 p.m.

Link Together Fundraiser Supports Tulsa Symphony's Regional Outreach Of Carnegie Hall's Link Up Program

Link Together for student success is the title given for Tulsa Symphony's fundraising dinner event on March 30 in the Assembly Hall of the Cox Business Center. This event will gather support and excitement toward next year's (2017-2018) Link Up program.

Link Up is the Carnegie Hall program that Tulsa Symphony brings to 12,000 Tulsa-area students. The most recent season culminated with concerts in February.

Link Together is planned to be a night featuring a casual and fun atmosphere, with a focus on local teachers and schools.

This year's event will include performances by TSO musicians, explanations about the Link Up program, a demonstration by a small group of Link Up students, and remarks by the special guest, Hillarie O'Toole, from Carnegie Hall.

Hillarie O'Toole has been a member of the Weill Music Institute team since 2012. Currently serving as manager of learning and engagement, she has implemented the Link Up program in New York City, nationally, and internationally, providing concert and educational resources to over 350,000 students and teachers.

Single tickets for the event are $112 per person (which includes sponsorship for one student in the Link Up program). Various ticket packages are available.

Clarifying Terminology:

Link Together is the fundraising event on March 30 that will raise awareness of the program and fundraise for the 2017-2018 Link Up program.

"Link Up" is the name of the overarching program developed over the past 30 years by the Weill Institute at Carnegie Hall. It reaches almost 400,000 students worldwide through partnerships with more than 90 orchestras.

Tulsa Symphony was accepted as a partner orchestra in 2015 and piloted a small version of the program (impacting 1,200 children) during the 2015-2016 season. The Pilot Program was an overwhelming success with students, teachers and program sponsors. The 2016-2017 season is our first full execution of the program, and will reach over 12,000 students.

The participating school districts this year are Tulsa Public, Union, Sand Springs, Jenks, and Broken Arrow. The Link Up program, through Tulsa Symphony, is currently active in every elementary school in these five districts, all at zero cost to the schools, teachers and parents.

TSO's Link Up program also serves as Tulsa's Any Given Child program. Every fourth grader in Tulsa Public Schools will take part in this program in 2016-2017.

The Link Up program is a three-year curriculum which engages 3rd, 4th and 5th graders in an exploration of orchestral repertoire and core musical concepts. The design of the curriculum is such that the programs – The Orchestra Rocks, The Orchestra Moves, and The Orchestra Sings – build upon one another from 3rd to 4th to 5th grade, regardless of the order in which they are presented.

The Link Up concept is far more than an annual orchestra concert. Each year, the program begins at least 3-4 months before the culminating concert with participating teachers receiving professional development training to learn the curriculum. Through this professional development training, we work to adapt the program to the needs of each teacher's students and to integrate it with his or her existing school program. Months of classroom preparation lead to a culminating concert with the Tulsa Symphony in which the students and teachers play and sing along with the orchestra from their seats in the concert hall. The concert is fully scripted with engaging visuals projected onto a giant screen above the orchestra with all production and classroom materials provided through the Carnegie Hall partnership.

LINKING UP: Link Together Chair Dr. Kathy LaFortune and Judge William Kellough are all smiles as they begin preparation for the fundraising event to promote symphonic music for young students in the greater Tulsa area. LaFortune and Kellough are also on the board of the Tulsa Symphony.

This year's culmination Link Up concerts (The Orchestra Rocks!) took place in February and featured eight student performances.

In a nutshell, this is a program based on decades of research and is a perfect fit for the Tulsa community. Tulsa Symphony would like to continue to expand the reach of Link Up into additional suburban districts and neighboring cities and towns in our region.

Sponsorships begin at $1,000 (4 people), and table sponsorship are available at the $2,500, $5,000, $10,000, $15,000 and $20,000 levels.

Merger Creates Advanced Orthopedics of Oklahoma

Two of Tulsa's most established and innovative orthopedic groups recently joined to form Advanced Orthopedics of Oklahoma. The affiliation, between Central States Orthopedics (CSO) and Eastern Oklahoma Orthopedic Center (EOOC), will combine the strengths of both organizations to allow them to better serve patients in the Tulsa and surrounding communities. The larger group is now comprised of 29 physicians whose collective goal is to continue to provide superior patient care and service.

Advanced Orthopedics of Oklahoma differs from most groups of its kind, which are typically affiliated with a hospital system, often resulting in less autonomy in patient care. By preserving the independence of the group, the organization can focus on a patient-centered approach and the doctor-patient relationship.

Over 15 years ago, physicians from both CSO and EOOC partnered with other local specialists to form Oklahoma Surgical Hospital, which has been nationally recognized as a leader in the delivery of quality, personalized health care. Oklahoma Surgical Hospital is the only hospital in Tulsa and one of 102 hospitals in the nation to receive a 5-Star rating from Medicare. They have been ranked by HealthGrades as one of America's 100 Best Hospitals for Joint Replacement, along with receiving 5-star ratings for Total Knee Replacement, Total Hip Replacement and Spinal Fusion Surgery. CareChex, a division of Quartos, Inc., ranks Oklahoma Surgical Hospital in the top 1 percent in the nation and first in the state for Major Orthopedic Surgery. Oklahoma Surgical Hospital is also ranked 2nd in the nation for the lowest readmission rate following hip and knee surgery by Medicare.

The goal of the affiliation of the CSO and EOOC is much the same as their efforts with Oklahoma Surgical Hospital: to create and maintain a quality and cost-effective approach to orthopedic care combined with a personalized approach to the health care experience.

David Long, COO of Advanced Orthopedics, feels the affiliation will have a positive outcome for both organizations as well as for the patients they serve. "We believe an affiliation of our practices strengthens the opportunities for growth through the development and enhancement of services, while improving the overall patient experience," says Long.

Jeff Smith, CFO of Advanced Orthopedics, states that a primary goal of the affiliation is to serve the needs of their ever-growing client base. The combining of expertise ensures patients receive the right care in a timely manner. "Together, we offer the most comprehensive musculoskeletal care in Northeast Oklahoma," says Smith.

The group will continue to operate at most local hospitals, allowing patients a variety of options to work with their insurance plans. And, despite the name change, patients will continue to receive the same care they've come to know and trust from both groups. Patients will notice little difference, with phone numbers and locations remaining the same until a full integration which is expected to occur over the next two years.

Autism Clinic Expands to Accommodate Growth

The Griffin Promise Autism Clinic to Hold First Annual Gala surprised by the clinic's continued growth.

"In summer 2016, we added two therapy rooms and a training room, expansion that we weren't planning until year five," she says.

The added rooms allow for additional therapy sessions and family training classes to take place at the same time due to the added privacy.

With the start of the new year, the clinic began offering a number of expanded services, and recently hired a part-time therapist to add to its three full-time therapists to help with the workload.

In January, the clinic officially began administering autism diagnostic testing, called ADOS (autism diagnostic observation schedule), a scientific evaluation to determine if and where a child lies on the autism spectrum.

The clinic also recently began providing space for a local doctor who works with rare diseases and PKU (phenylketonuria).

Additionally, the clinic now offers feeding therapy, which assists infants and children with feeding difficulties.

"Children with autism can be sensitive to taste, touch, smell; they don't like the way things feel because their senses are heightened," Frederick says.

"Most people, when they think of autism, they think of people who are sensitive to light and sounds, but it can apply to other senses as well."

Feeding therapy takes the same approach as the clinic's other therapies: coaching of the whole family, including parents and caregivers.

"Therapy clinics are not going to be the fixer. It's about having a team of people," Frederick says. "Families who come in and train, those are the kids who we see have significant improvement."

One such family will be honored at the clinic's first annual gala, to be held April 1 at the Glass Chapel, 1401 W. Washington St., in Broken Arrow.

The Broken Arrow family participated in the clinic's Journey Program and instituted it in their home for their child who has autism, says Frederick.

The clinic's Board of Directors funded the family's table at the event.

The gala will feature interviews with the whole family and provide an opportunity to showcase where our donors' money goes and showcase the kids, their stories and their families, she says.

Frederick and the clinic's board members made the decision to offer a gala this year due to the consistent growth in participation and proceeds at its past fundraising events.

The gala will include a three-course dinner, a wine pull, and live and silent auctions, with packages including international travel, tickets to local events and destinations, and autographed sports memorabilia.

Doors open at 6:30 p.m. with dinner beginning at 7 p.m.

Fulbright Scholar Researches Global Food Security

Professor Istvan Feher Leads Courses in TU's Global Scholars Program, TCC's Honors Program

Professor Istvan Feher, a Fulbright Scholar-in-Residence, is teaching this semester at The University of Tulsa and Tulsa Community College. TU and TCC joined to host the Fulbright Scholar-in-Residence for the 2016-2017 academic year. Community partners include Tulsa Global Alliance and the Oklahoma Center for the Humanities at TU.

Feher is from Hungary and is an economist who has spent his career studying food production, agricultural policy and the economics and sociology of food. He served in the Hungarian government as the head of Cabinet of the Ministry of Agriculture and deputy secretary of state, Ministry of Agriculture and Regional Development.

In addition to his responsibilities as a Fulbright Scholar-in-Residence, he is researching and studying sustainability and food issues in Oklahoma. Feher said he is particularly interested in food production and distribution systems development.

"The students at TU and TCC are better global citizens just by the exposure and engagement that Dr. Feher brings to the classroom and the study of food sustainability," says Douglas Price, TCC's director of global learning.

Feher is leading courses as part of TU's Global Scholars Program and TCC's Honors Program on subjects related to global food security. From agricultural production worldwide to food deserts in the Tulsa area, the issue of food supply systems and food security has become a general priority. Feher will lead discussion and critical analysis in the classroom as well as in the greater Tulsa community.

"I can always count on a meaningful conversation with Dr. Feher," TU finance junior Anna Behermeyer says about her experience in Feher's course. "I was initially intimidated by his laundry list of career achievements, but his classic Hungarian friendliness and true passion for teaching put me at ease."

Feher is in a position to serve as a unique expert resource for our students, says Lara Foley, assistant provost for global education at TU. "He wasted no time in engaging with all manner of people from around the state - farmers, policymakers, industry experts and community leaders - all with the aim of integrating their knowledge into his courses. Moreover, his upcoming series of roundtable discussions on the history and governance of the European Union could not have been timelier," she says.

The Fulbright Scholar-in-Residence program provides an opportunity for cultural and academic exchange between a prominent international scholar and the host institution. Institutions that receive scholars, and the scholars themselves, are selected through a competitive process, and residencies are funded by a grant from the Fulbright Scholar Program sponsored by the U.S. Department of State.

HVAC Student Pushes Past Gender Stereotypes

Each year, the Oklahoma Department of Career and Technology Education recognizes students who have chosen to study specific programs based on interests and abilities, rather than traditional gender roles, with the aptly named Breaking Traditions Award. Nominees for the award contribute by creating more awareness and support of all non-traditional students and programs.

Non-traditional training and employment is defined by occupations and careers where individuals from one gender comprise less than 25 percent of the individuals employed in a particular field.

Lauren Steele, an adult student in Tulsa Tech's Heating, Ventilation and Air Conditioning (HVAC) program, has been nominated for one of the awards this year. Her initial decision to follow this career path was built on her desire to find a stable career and perform the type of work she enjoys the most.

"I chose HVAC because it is a technology that we all use every day," Steele says. "I also enjoy the type of diagnostic work we encounter, where a component or system has failed, and finding the correct solution is kind of like solving a puzzle."

The Broken Arrow native acknowledges there may not be many women currently working in the industry; however she has never been the type of person to back down from a challenge, especially when it involves a statement that usually ends with, "because you are a girl."

"My family always raised me with the mindset of, 'Don't be that same girl,'" says Steele. "We were always encouraged to make our own choices, to be independent, and to never let others keep us from achieving our goals."

Jimmy Hawley, one of Tulsa Tech's HVAC instructors, thinks there are plenty of opportunities in the industry for students with Steele's unyielding drive.

"There is no doubt that Lauren is determined to learn as much as she can, in order to achieve her goals," Hawley says. "The skills and training will provide an opportunity, but that type of determination will translate into success as she continues her career."

Steele, a recent graduate of Inola High School, credits her instructor with providing knowledge and patience and never hesitating to spend a little extra time to explain a particular concept or process.

"Mr. Hawley is very helpful and a great instructor," says Steele. "He takes the time to visit with each student to make sure we have a good understanding of something before moving on to the next step. I have always felt comfortable in our class environment, especially if I need to pause or ask additional questions."

A National Technical Honor Society recipient, Steele has already demonstrated what can happen when outstanding career training is combined with a fierce desire to succeed. Intelligence, reliability and always working as a team player are just a few of the reasons Steele was recently offered a position as a preventive maintenance tech, with Tulsa-based Air Solutions Heating, Cooling and Plumbing.

"My responsibilities include inspecting heating and air systems," Steele says. "I check electrical components for potential problems, monitor carbon monoxide emissions, and look for any other issues that may prevent optimal performance of the system or present a danger to our customers. I am very thankful to Air Solutions for such a great opportunity; they are a great company, like a family, and I certainly appreciate everything they have done to help me succeed."

Like all Tulsa Tech students, each day Lauren Steele is making her own path toward success, and she is quick to encourage other young women, regardless of their interests, to do the same.

"Just be yourself," Steele says. "I prefer to wear a T-shirt, jeans and boots, and I enjoy hands-on work. However, I can also throw on a dress, with a little make-up, let my hair down, and do the

National Merit Finalists Named

Three Broken Arrow High School students were recently honored as this year's National Merit Finalists for their prestigious academic accomplishments.

Maia Cruse, Madeline Pratt and Jacob Taylor are among approximately 15,000 students from across the nation who qualified and are some of the highest scoring students in the state of Oklahoma.

Established in 1955, the National Merit Scholarship Program is a long-standing academic competition for recognition and scholarships. High school students enter the National Merit Program by taking the Preliminary SAT/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test, which serves as an initial screen of nearly 1.5 million entrants each year. From there, 34,000 students are commended and 16,000 semifinalists are chosen. Every year in February, 15,000 finalists are chosen based on their abilities, skills and accomplishments.

ACADEMIC HONOR: Congratulations to Broken Arrow High School seniors Maia Cruse, Madeline Pratt and Jacob Taylor, who have all been named National Merit Finalists.

From March to mid-June, approximately 8,000 finalists will be selected to receive a scholarship award, which includes National Merit Scholarships as well as corporate- and college-sponsored scholarships.

B.A. FIRE DEPARTMENT PARTNERS WITH TCC

REAL-WORLD TRAINING: Tulsa Community College Fire and Emergency Medical Services interns stand with Fire Chief Jeremy Moore, right, and Dr. Craig Brown, chief of the TCC Fire and Emergency Medical Services Technology program, in recognition of a new internship program that partners TCC with the Broken Arrow Fire Department.

As part of an innovative new program, the Broken Arrow Fire Department (BAFD) and Tulsa Community College are launching a Fire and Emergency Medical Services internship for TCC students.

The interns will take part in the 20-week Broken Arrow Fire Academy, in order to learn the skills needed to perform the duties of a firefighter as well as earning essential certifications for employment.

The first five TCC students took part in the Broken Arrow Fire Training Academy that began Feb. 7.

"This is a partnership that allows our students to train side-by-side with cadets from the Broken Arrow Fire Department and will ensure they are workforce ready when they complete their degree or certification in the TCC Fire & Emergency Medical Services program," says Dr. Craig Brown, chief of the TCC Fire and Emergency Medical Services Technology program.

However, the program also provides benefits to the BAFD in furthering their education by allowing BAFD employees to take any TCC Fire & Emergency Services courses for professional development or to complete an associate's degree in TCC's program.

This reciprocal agreement includes TCC's EMT and paramedic courses that provides specialized emergency medical care.

"This is a win-win situation for the City of Broken Arrow," says Fire Chief Jeremy Moore. "Not only will current firefighters have the opportunity to improve their skills and level of training, this program will also provide a pipeline of trained recruits for future employment."

If a student is subsequently hired, the City of Broken Arrow will see cost savings of approximately $14,000 per person, as the new hire will have already completed the required 20 weeks of training.

Growth Moves South

"With the types of things we have developed in Houston, we see the same need in south B.A.," he says.

The company's projects include master-planned communities, multi-family developments, office parks, and mixed-use projects.

"Our long-term plan with this project is to create a catalyst in south Broken Arrow that drives jobs and sales tax and supports the community with quality development," he says.

Signorelli also credits the City of Broken Arrow officials and its Chamber of Commerce for their vision and leadership.

"They understand how to create a dynamic area, such as with the Rose District and north Broken Arrow," says Signorelli.

"South Broken Arrow is the next piece."

Broken Arrow Blue Star Chapter Aids Soldiers, Families

road, checking roadside bombs, and they would load as many of our care packages as they could in the vehicle to use during that time," says Thesenvitz.

"Baby wipes, socks and drink mixes were three of his favorite things," she continues. "Those things made a huge difference in his life."

In March, the membership will fundraise by selling butter braid pastries in a variety of flavors. The pastries are available for purchase on the chapter's website or through a chapter member.

A few times per year, the B.A. chapter will spend a morning outside of a Walmart Supercenter or Neighborhood Market location with a list of needed supplies for its shipping boxes. "Sometimes shoppers will stop and make a monetary donation, but many times they will buy one of the items for us in Walmart and then donate it to us," Thesenvitz says.

The chapter also regularly partners with area restaurants to receive a portion of proceeds on a specified day.

On April 18, 10 a.m.-8 p.m., Raising Cane's, 13301 E. 96th St. N., in Owasso, will donate 15 percent of its sales to the chapter. However, in order for the chapter to receive a portion from an individual sale, customers must mention the Broken Arrow Blue Star Mothers.

The Broken Arrow chapter has had an Owasso presence since 2015 when the Owasso Blue Star Mothers was dissolved. The Broken Arrow chapter now splits the city of Owasso with the Rogers County chapter.

Although the Blue Star Mothers' mission is focused on its soldiers and veterans, another group is also largely benefited, notes Thesenvitz.

"When my son joined, I had no idea the amount of support that I would need," she says. "You're around women who know what you're going through."

"Blue Star Mothers saved my life."

Anyone interested in learning more about the Broken Arrow Blue Star Mothers can visit babluestarmothers.org or call 918-259-9479.

The group meets on the first Tuesday of every month at 7 p.m. at its Broken Arrow office, 905 S. 9th St., Suite C.

Its office is open to the public on Tuesday 4-8 p.m. and Saturday 9 a.m.-1 p.m.

BROKEN ARROW SPORTS

Tiger Senior Tony Hall an All-Around Player

By MIKE MOGUIN
Sports Writer

Junior Caleb Huffman is the man putting up points for Broken Arrow, but he gets help from senior teammate Tony Hall. As a matter of fact, the pair are like a balanced attack.

Sometimes Hall, a 6-4 guard, may finish as the scoring leader. Such was the case when he posted nine points in Broken Arrow's low-scoring 39-29 win against Bishop Kelley on Feb. 17.

Broken Arrow persevered through a struggling campaign last year as it went 9-17. But most of the victories came down the stretch, setting up the springboard for this season. As of Feb. 17, the Tigers had completed the regular season with a 17-6 record and ranked eighth in the state Class 6A poll.

"We knew it from last year that we could be something," Hall says. "It was our responsibility to score and be the leaders on the team then. It transitioned to this year as the leadership just grew a little bit more. Caleb has the ability to score a lot because of his speed and athleticism. We have two big roles we have to do. It feels good knowing that I get to go in the game and come out and have fun with my friends and stuff. Just going in there and compete basically, that's pretty much it, just having fun."

Hall has confidence in a way that makes him versatile.

"I'm the all-around player," he says. "There is no specific thing I do that just stands out. I can do everything. That's bringing the energy. I just have an all-around game that most players may not have, so I consider myself like the glue that can do everything so I can bring everybody together."

When both Hall and Huffman have big games, opponents will find themselves having a difficult time.

"Everyone else will feed off our energy," Hall says. "Once we get that going, there is no stopping us."

The key to success for this year's Tiger team, Hall says, has been just being a team.

"That's what it all comes down to," he says. "We love each other, like on and off the court, so there's no fighting. We don't have to worry about that. We go into the locker room, we're happy. We all bond together this year. Last year, we didn't mix along very well with some of the seniors. They were doing their own thing and we were trying to keep going. It paid off this year and everything is clicking. We just bond and there hasn't been any fighting among us."

"If there is anger on the court, that is just us competing. But after practice, we know we're still going to be good. We're just pushing each other this year," Hall says.

Hall sees a variety of athletic abilities in his teammates.

"We have different athletic abilities," he says. "As far as jumping high, that would be Caleb and Braden Boyer. Especially Caleb, he can jump out the gym. Caleb is probably one of the most athletic kids I have ever seen and Braden Boyer is pretty fast for his size too and can jump high. A majority of our guards are quick. Some can jump higher than others, pretty much."

At this writing, the Tigers were set to meet Stillwater in the first round of the regional tournament on Feb. 24 at Booker T. Washington.

Prior to the postseason, a victory against OKC Douglass, No. 2 in Class 3A, in the semifinals of the John Nobles Tournament in Moore, was Broken Arrow's most memorable game of the season, Hall says.

"I just put the nerves away and played my game and I played as hard as I could and it kind of clicked," he says. "I knew they (Douglass) were the tough team, they were going to be scrappy and we're going to have to get boards. So I play really hard and I ended up coming up with 20 rebounds and 20 points. I made a couple of great couple of great passes and stops on defense there. It was just fun, because we were just feeling the power and it was like a beast was going inside me."

Hall said he knows this team can go all the way to state.

"Our toughest opponents will be Union and some OKC teams," Hall says.

Chris Ratcliff Full Speed Ahead at RSU

By TERRELL LESTER
Editor at Large

Chris Ratcliff talks like he's running a fast break. Up-tempo. No hesitation. Full speed ahead. Quick. Quicker. Quickest. Reach the goal. Make a point. He will lead just about any league in words produced per minute. In January, he was in peak form. His words abounded. Flowed and cascaded. He was just landing in Claremore, taking on the assignment of Director of Athletics for Rogers State University. He had a new job, in a new city, in a new state. He was ready to shout it from the rooftops. He was in super sales mode. He spoke with the energy of a winning coach. The passion of an evangelist. The pace of a quarter-miler. He quoted Maya Angelou. Ratcliff was hired to head up the department that fields teams in 14 sports in its first full year of membership in NCAA Division II. Ratcliff, a native of Houston, Texas, and a 2005 graduate of Henderson (Arkansas) State with a Bachelor of Science in Recreation and Leisure, followed by a Master of Science in Sports Administration in 2006, had spent the previous seven years at the University of Arkansas at Monticello, first as women's basketball coach, finally as athletic director. In rapid-fire succession, he enumerated three reasons for departing Monticello and choosing Claremore:

- Facilities.
- Administration.
- Quality of life.

"I've known about Rogers State since they started athletics in 2005," he said. "I've always known Claremore was a great town. "When you look for jobs, and I don't look for jobs, you always want to look at their facilities. Are they better than I have right now? "And, does the administration care about athletics? Do they want athletics to succeed? "Then, thirdly, is it a better quality of life for my family?" According to Ratcliff, with a population of some 9,000, Monticello is about half the size of Claremore. "And, we were one-and-a-half hours from anything," he said, referring to the southeast Arkansas community, close to the Mississippi border. Now, he is 20, 25 minutes from Tulsa. He and his wife, Andrea, an elementary art teacher, have two children. "There wasn't a lot of opportunity for our kids to create a culture of arts and athletics" in Monticello, Ratcliff said. "Claremore had a lot of things for our family, a lot of things for quality of life improvement." The campus of Rogers State, which traces its roots to Oklahoma Military Academy and beyond, boasts a still-blossoming baseball and softball complex plus a shimmering soccer pitch. The men's and women's basketball teams play in the off-campus Claremore Expo Center, not an ideal set-up but functional and virtually homey. "Better facilities than what I had," Ratcliff said, adding that UA-Monticello also fielded a football team, a sport RSU does not have. When he trained his focus on the school administration, Ratcliff mentioned RSU President Dr.

Larry Rice and Tom Volturo, executive vice-president for administration and finance. Rice was a member of the Oklahoma House of Representatives (1991-04) and was on the staff at the University of Tulsa before assuming the RSU leadership in 2008. "Athletics is important to (Rice and Volturo)," Ratcliff said. "Not just having a program, but being successful." For the 40-year-old Ratcliff, moving from one NCAA Division II school to another was "a no-brainer." Where football had been the No. 1 sport on the UA-Monticello athletics roster, men's basketball is the signature sport at RSU. Or, as Ratcliff says of men's basketball, "our front door." The program has been successful. The bell-cow sport, men's basketball, fielded its first team in 2007-08 and has produced eight 20-win seasons in nine years. Talks have long persisted within the RSU community of the need for an on-campus basketball facility. Mindful of the ever-tightening Oklahoma education budgets, Ratcliff admitted that such a facility was at the top of his priority list. A native of Houston, Ratcliff is animated and dynamic. His workdays can stretch from sun-up to right near midnight. Always in motion, his mind is moving as quickly as his feet. He wears a tireless smile. He can be found at RSU athletic home events and often on the road. Basketball, soccer, baseball, softball. He might be more fan than administrator. For sure, he is part cheerleader, part promoter.

He lunches with city leaders. Speaks to a litany of service organizations. "We can build a brand here (at Rogers State)," he said. "We can make Rogers State a regional brand. A national brand. "A national brand, of course, comes with winning," he said. Ratcliff has inherited a foundation for winning. The men's basketball team won its Heartland Conference championship last season. Junior cross country runner Baylor Harvey recently became RSU's first NCAA All-American. The baseball team finished runner-up in the 2012 NAIA national tournament. When he left the coaching bench to become a full-time athletics director in 2011, he did so with minimal misgivings. Sure, he would miss the competition of coaching. The camaraderie with his peers. The interaction with his players. "But I believed I could make a bigger impact on more people as an AD," he said. He tries to set a good example every day. A handshake here. A pat on the back there. A kind gesture along the way. "I always recall the words of Maya Angelou," he said, establishing himself as perhaps the first coach to quote and reference the great poet. "People will forget what you said. People will forget what you did. But people will never forget how you made them feel," he said, reciting her penetrating, provocative words. For once, and for effect, Chris Ratcliff slowed the pace of his delivery. But almost instantly, he returned to his rapid-fire mode. Talking sports. Talking Rogers State University Hillcats.

KEYNOTE SPEAKERS, MASTER OF CEREMONIES ANNOUNCED FOR IBA CITIZEN ATHLETE AWARDS

CHRIS HERREN

EVENT TASTING: Members of the Rotary Club of Tulsa's Henry P. Iba Citizen Athlete Awards Committee met recently for a tasting at the Hard Rock Hotel and Casino, where the event will be held June 26. From left are Hard Rock Head Chef Tony Aidoo and Rotarians Trisha Kerkstra, Kacey King and Gene Martin. In the background is the table setting, which will feature a center stage.

Shannon Miller, the most decorated Olympic gymnast in American History, and Chris Herren, former NBA player for the Denver Nuggets and Boston Celtics, will be the keynote speakers at this year's Henry P. Iba Citizen Athlete Awards. Sportscaster Chris Lincoln has been named Master of Ceremonies at the prestigious black-tie-optional event to be held at the Hard Rock Hotel & Casino Tulsa on June 26.

Shannon Miller was the first female recipient of the Henry P. Iba Citizen Athlete Award in 1994. She remains the Most Decorated Olympic Gymnast in American History with seven Olympic medals. She is the only American to rank among the Top 10 All-Time gymnasts and is the only female athlete to be inducted into the US Olympic Hall of Fame twice, Individual in 2006 and Team in 2008.

She has won 59 International and 49 National competition medals. Over half of these have been gold. She is the first U.S. gymnast to win two World All-Around Titles and she is the first American female to medal in the individual all-around of a non-boycotted Olympics. Her tally of five medals (two silver, three bronze) at the 1992 Olympics was the most medals won by a U.S. athlete in any sport. At the '96 Games, she led the "Magnificent Seven" to the U.S. Women's first-ever Team Gold and for the first time for any American gymnast, she captured gold on the Balance Beam.

After retiring from Olympic competition, Miller received her undergraduate degrees in marketing and entrepreneurship from the University of Houston and her law degree from Boston College. She then moved from Olympic athlete to advocate for the health and wellness of women and children.

Miller launched her company, Shannon Miller Lifestyle: Health and Fitness for Women, which empowers women to make their health a priority through programs, education and awareness.

In 2011, Miller was diagnosed with a rare form of ovarian cancer. She had the baseball-sized tumor removed successfully and followed up with an aggressive chemotherapy regimen. Now cancer free, she continues to be a strong advocate for awareness and early detection.

Miller has taken the lessons she learned through the obstacles she faced as an elite athlete, as a young adult and those from her journey with cancer to publish an inspirational new book: It's Not About Perfect: Competing for my Country and Fighting for my Life.

Chris Herren was a high school basketball legend from Fall River, Massachusetts, who scored over 2,000 career points while at Durfee High School and was named to the 1994 McDonald's All-American team. Herren realized his lifelong dream of playing in the NBA when he was drafted by the Denver Nuggets in 1999 and then was traded to his hometown team, the Boston Celtics, in 2000. After suffering a season-ending injury as a Celtic, Herren went on to play in five countries, including Italy, Poland, Turkey, China and Iran.

Herren struggled with substance abuse for much of his basketball career. Alcohol and drug-free since Aug. 1, 2008, he has refocused his life to put his sobriety and family above all else. He shares his harrowing story of abuse and recovery in his memoir, Basketball Junkie, as well as in numerous interviews throughout the Emmy-nominated ESPN Films documentary Unguarded, of which he is the subject.

In June 2009, he launched Hoop Dreams with Chris Herren, a basketball player development company that offers basketball training, camps and clinics to top basketball prospects in New England. Off the court, Herren continues to share his story with audiences in the hopes of reaching just one person and making a difference in his or her life. In inspiring presentations, he draws on his own history to convince audiences that it is never too late to follow your dreams and urges audience members to overcome their setbacks and start making the right choices.

To support this vision, he founded The Herren Project, a nonprofit organization dedicated to providing treatment navigation, educational and mentoring programs to those touched by addiction and to educate people of all ages on the dangers of substance abuse. In 2012, The Herren Project launched a national anti-substance abuse campaign, Project Purple, to encourage people of all ages to stand up to substance abuse. Since 2012, it is estimated that over 300,000 teens nationwide have taken the pledge to make good choices, standing up and together against drugs and alcohol. The Herren Project continues to make a significant impact nationwide one person, one family at a time.

Returning as master of ceremonies will be Chris Lincoln who emceed the eighth annual awards in 2001.

For more than four decades, Lincoln has been covering sports.

He has been to 48 states and traveled to 16 foreign countries on four continents.

He started his sports career in high school in Warren, Michigan, writing for the school newspaper, yearbook and the Royal Oak Tribune. At the University of Missouri, he was active in covering sports.

In 1974, he became sports director at KTUL. He also hosted the University of Oklahoma's national football replay show with Coach Barry Switzer. At the same time, he hosted shows for OSU, TU and ORU. He produced numerous sports specials and did play-by-play of many sports events for the station.

In 1976, he was tabbed by ABC sports as one of the network's four regional college football play-by-play announcers and later did college and Canadian pro football and basketball play-by-play for ESPN.

Lincoln left KTUL at the end of 1981 to form Winner Communications (now Winnercomm), a television sports production company, with former leading KTUL salesman, Jim Wilburn. The two built the company into the nation's largest independently-owned sports production company with over 200 employees in Tulsa and another 2,000 independent contractors across the nation.

In 2007, Lincoln returned to KTUL as Executive Sports Director and main anchor. In 2012, he stepped down and now does special reports and covers feature events for the station plus freelance broadcasting.

Throughout his 25 years at Winnercomm, Lincoln became known to millions of television viewers around the world as "The Voice of the Thoroughbreds" as the host from 1982-1998 of thoroughbred and quarter horse races and the weekly "Racehorse Digest" show on ESPN.

In Tulsa he is remembered as the "Voice of the Tulsa Roughnecks" (NASL soccer team), the Oklahoma Outlaws (USFL Pro Football) and the Tulsa Twisters (professional team rodeo). He was featured on radio locally as a weekly announcer on the Sports Animal 97.1 FM show. He has also announced local high school football play-by-play for KRMG radio and events for Cox Cable.

He is also active in many Tulsa charities.

The Iba Awards were created in 1994 by the Rotary Club of Tulsa to recognize an influential male and a female premier athlete for their success in their sport, and more importantly, for being positive role models who give back to their communities – not only by donating to worthy causes but by being personally dedicated and involved in their chosen charities.

The awards are named after Henry P. Iba, former Oklahoma State University basketball coach and coach of three U.S. Olympic basketball teams. He was an unparalleled success as a coach, a leader and a citizen and these awards recognize and honor athletes who best exemplify a high degree of citizenship in his image.

Sponsor of the general reception is CommunityCare. Proceeds benefit the Rotary Club of Tulsa Foundation, which supports local non-profits, statewide initiatives benefitting young people and the club's International Projects Committee.

For table sponsorship information, contact the Rotary Club of Tulsa at 918-584-7642 or online at ibaawards.com.

Integrity, Personal Interest Guide Financial Planner

"Confidence, persistence, integrity are necessary qualities for life and running a business," says Gary M. Stanislawski, CERTIFIED FINANCIAL PLANNER Practitioner and president of Regent Financial Services, Inc.

He credits the U.S. Air Force for instilling those qualities and more in him and setting him on his path to teaching and financial planning.

Stanislawski founded Regent Financial Services, Inc., in 2002, with the goal of assisting clients in every aspect of their financial lives. Today, he uses the problem-solving and leadership skills and genuine interest in others that he developed during his military career to help his clients retire with confidence.

Stanislawski, an Oregon native, attended Oregon State University on a four-year ROTC scholarship, earning his Bachelor of Science in Business Administration.

Upon graduation, he entered the Air Force and earned his wings as a pilot in 1984. He flew for eight years, flying such planes as the B-52 and the B-1 Bomber.

After leaving the Air Force, he moved to Tulsa where he received his Master of Arts in Christian Education at Oral Roberts University.

In 2008, Stanislawski was elected to the Oklahoma State Senate and serves as the Chairman of the Education Committee, among others. He is the past president of the Financial Planning Association of Tulsa. He has also served his community on the Jenks Public School Foundation Board and the Planned Giving Committee of the Parent Child Center.

He and his wife, Dayna, have been married for over 35 years and have two children.

"I founded Regent Financial Services with the goal to provide the most personal service available," says Stanislawski.

With 13 employees, the team at Regent Financial has a combined 80 years of financial services experience, working with individuals and businesses in investment, retirement, and estate planning services.

Stanislawski specifically chose Denise A. Lant, CFP®, and Kraig McFarland, RFC®, CRPC®, for their high ethical standards, specialized experience, and their years of service in the industry, he notes.

The Regent Financial team is comprised of three advisors and a support staff of 10, including a Chartered Financial Analyst and a Portfolio Manager.

"Having a support staff of 10 to three advisors allows us to give first class customer service and attention to detail," Stanislawski says. "While the company has grown to be a successful Registered Investment Advisory firm, one thing has remained constant: our commitment to the highest level of personal service."

Stanislawski encourages parents to teach their children about money and to begin to save. When working with new families, Regent Financial lays the foundation by encouraging families to take a realistic view of their savings and debt picture to see if they will be able to pursue their long-term goals.

Regent Financial also offers free monthly educational classes to its clients and the community.

"The Regent team makes every effort to develop portfolios that aim to manage volatility and seeks to maximize results in both good and bad markets, thereby providing our clients with financial confidence, security and stability," he says.

With his decades of financial planning experience under his belt, Stanislawski can confidently say,

HIGHLY-SKILLED TEAM: President of Regent Financial Services, Inc., Gary M. Stanislawski, second from left, stands with his team of three advisors and a support staff of 10, including a Chartered Financial Analyst and a Portfolio Manager.

"Determining the best route into retirement for our clients is as satisfying as flying a jet aircraft."

Jackie Cooper Breaks Ground for 3rd Tulsa Location

Tulsa community and business leaders recently joined Jackie Cooper Imports of Tulsa executive management, staff and Infiniti USA representatives at 88th Street and South Memorial Drive for the groundbreaking of the company's third Tulsa location. The eight-acre site is the future location of a stand-alone Jackie Cooper Infiniti retail and service facility. Estimated construction cost is $10 million.

Jackie Cooper began doing business in Tulsa in August 1991 and is now an authorized dealership for Infiniti, Mercedes-Benz, Maserati, Nissan, Smart and Porsche. The Infiniti franchise was acquired in late 1998 and opened in 1999. Other Jackie Cooper dealership locations include Jackie Cooper Imports at 9393 South Memorial Drive (opened in 1999) and Jackie Cooper Nissan at 8998 South Memorial Drive (opened in 2005). Jackie Cooper's current Infiniti retail and service operations are located in the multi-franchise automotive complex at 9393 S. Memorial Dr. The Tulsa dealership currently employs about 250 team members.

Architect Michael Dwyer designed the new 36,000-square-foot stand-alone Infiniti retail, service, administrative and warehouse complex. Stava Building

Corporation of Tulsa will provide construction services. Completion is expected to be in spring 2018.

"The continued growth of our Infiniti sales, the manufacturer's model expansion and concept cars in development make this the opportune time to expand our Infiniti facility so we may continue to offer exceptional service to our Infiniti customers," says Jackie Cooper Imports Managing Partner Greg Kach.

Jackie Cooper is Tulsa's exclusive Infiniti dealership. The Infiniti full line of 10 luxury performance vehicles includes the Q50, Q50 Hybrid, Q70, Q70 Hybrid and Q70L Sedans, the Q60 Coupe, the QX30, QX50, QX60, QX70 Crossovers and the full-size SUV, the QX80.

The new facility will provide approximately a 300-percent increase in overall space compared to the current area dedicated to the Infiniti showroom, customer amenity areas, service department and parts inventory. It will also allow the dealership to consolidate and expand current vehicle detail operations housed at existing locations.

"Within a year of opening, we anticipate staffing to include approximately 60 team members," says Jackie Cooper Imports Director of Fixed Operations and Infiniti Project Manager Mark Lorentz.

State Homebuilders Induct Five into Hall of Fame

Five legends of Oklahoma's home building industry were inducted into the Oklahoma Housing Hall of Fame recently during the annual Installation Banquet and Hall of Fame induction ceremony of the Oklahoma State Home Builders Association (OSHBA).

Home builders honored four living Hall of Famers and one posthumously as the second class inducted into the Housing Hall of Fame.

Inducted as the Class of 2016 into the Housing Hall were Bob Thompson of Norman, Ken Klein, Charlie Gilmore and the late Bill Rhee, all of Tulsa, and Reese Wilmoth of Oklahoma City, the first OSHBA Associates Council member inducted.

Hall of Fame inductees were introduced before an audience of about 250 by former OSHBA President Phil Rhee, who led the initiative to create an Oklahoma Housing Hall of Fame in 2016.

"It's been a great honor for me to watch the guys come up and receive their awards and to be recognized, because it means so much," Rhee says. "For quite a long time I felt like a big segment of our leadership was not receiving the due recognition that they deserved."

Rhee is the son of Hall of Famer Bill Rhee, who died in 2014 and was known for his work in developing wind-resistant construction techniques and safe rooms.

"Back in 1999, he worked with Project Impact, the city of Tulsa, Texas Tech University and State Farm Insurance to develop safe rooms that FEMA uses today," Rhee says. "He did a lot of work putting those things together. I'm proud of the legacy he left of making homes safer for people, and I'm so glad he was recognized for that."

The first class inducted in 2015 included the late Mark Dale of Edmond and Joe Robson of Tulsa.

The banquet was highlighted by three special awards presented, including Oklahoma Builder of the Year award to Jeff Click, of Oklahoma City, owner of Jeff Click Homes. Also honored as State Associate of the Year was Steve Taylor, immediate past Chair of the State Associates Council, and Phil Rhee, honored with the President's Award by outgoing President Kurt Dinnes.

Guest speaker at the event was Randy Noel of Louisiana, first vice chairman of the board of the National Association of Home Builders.

Installed as 2017 OSHBA officers were Dan Reeves of Norman, President; David Blackburn, Tulsa, as vice president/treasurer; and Steve Allen, of Oklahoma City, as vice president/secretary.

Reeves is founder and CEO of Norman's Landmark Fine Homes. He said his agenda for the year includes implementing a philosophy of "shepherding" leadership to connect with more members throughout the state with the ultimate goal of influencing legislation that impacts the housing industry.

"Our goal is government advocacy, and you have all this activity going on at the Capitol," Reeves said. "We want more people out there. Our voice is being heard, because we've been into the politics side of it. But we need the people to show up at our Legislative Day at the Capitol to see that they are in it."

Also installed were new officers of the State Associates Council, including Chris Evans of Oklahoma City as president; David Sanders of Tulsa, vice chair; and Connie Stokes of Stillwater, secretary. Vanessa Shadix of Oklahoma City remains as treasurer.

"This was an historic night as we not only installed new officers, but recognized five legends that shaped our industry," said Mike Means, OSHBA Executive Vice President. "We are excited about the year ahead and the impact these new officers will have not only on our organization, but the housing industry across Oklahoma."

About Tulsa HBA:

The Home Builders Association of Greater Tulsa is a not-for-profit, professional trade organization that is an advocate for the residential housing and remodeling industry in communities in and around Tulsa and serves approximately 900 members. The association is a corporate channel through which builders contribute time, money and services to local community service projects and education initiatives. Professional members must meet stringent requirements, including customer and professional references, insurance certification and adhere to a strict code of ethics. White River Fish Market Expands to B.A.

By GRANT ROWL
Contributing Writer

Broken Arrow civic leaders and others participated in a ribbon cutting on Jan. 30 for the new White River Fish Market and Restaurant in B.A., located at 1105 E. Kenosha St., which is at the southeast corner of 71st Street and Lynn Lane in the County Line Shopping Center. This is the first expansion in the restaurant's over 80 year history.

This new location is over 7,200 square feet, which is almost 50 percent larger than their current location 1708 N. Sheridan Rd. Broken Arrow City Councilor Mike Lester has worked on this project for over six years to bring White River to B.A. He says, "I viewed no less than eight or nine different sites, none of which worked out for one reason or another. Then one day I drove past this shopping center which really stuck out as being one that mimicked their current location in many ways. After nearly two years of negotiations and issues that at times seemed to almost be insurmountable, we have arrived at the day we knew would finally come."

Lester says, "White River was founded in 1932 by O.T. Fallis as a fresh fish market only, which derived its name from the river in Arkansas from which it got most of its fish. A restaurant was added in 1942. It was first located at approximately First Street and Boston Avenue in downtown Tulsa but moved to its current location on North Sheridan in the early 1960s in a nondescript shopping center.

"In 1981 it was purchased by Garry Cozby, a Texas transplant, who embarked on a 28-year career as proprietor of White River, prior to his death in 2009. For years prior to his death, businessmen Tom Clark, president of Tulsa Beechcraft, and J.J. Lester, VP/CFO Tulsa Beechcraft, whose operation was only one mile north of White River, would eat lunch there and tell Garry, 'any time you're ready to sell, we're ready to buy.' Upon Garry's death, the administrator of his estate pursued Clark and Lester as to their interest in acquiring the establishment. Of course they immediately set in motion what they describe as one of their best business moves ever."

Mike Lester, Broken Arrow vice-mayor at the time and commercial broker with Newmark Grubb, began to court White River to come to downtown Broken Arrow long before the Rose District was even under consideration. It soon became apparent that there was no building suitable within the core downtown area and, more importantly, not sufficient parking to handle the more than 600 average customers that visit White River each day. Lester says that is one of the reasons this location stood out: the abundance of parking, as well as the "glass store front" which is much like that of the one on North Sheridan Road.

Lester says that there is an abundant population surrounding the location for its success. He says, "Flight Safety is across the road with its 850 employees, and there is extensive retail growth in and around this location. Another plus is its proximity to the Broken Arrow Expressway, which will make ease of access from the entire Metro area, especially those living in the southern region, which typically felt it too far to travel to North Sheridan location."

Operating hours are Monday – Saturday 10:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. Lester adds, "The restaurant will serve the freshest grilled, baked or fried fish, along with all the trimmings, to be found anywhere in Oklahoma."

'Fueling Freedom' and the Madness of the Green World

OPINION

In the book titled "Fueling Freedom," authors Stephen Moore and Kathleen Hartnett White explain their views by addressing "the madness of the green war on abundant energy":

-Why the idea of replacing fossil fuel energy with medieval technologies of wind, solar power, and biomass is a dangerous fantasy;

-How recent technological breakthroughs have made our supply of oil and gas virtually unlimited, exploding the myth of 'peak oil';

-Why the green agenda will keep billions of people in grinding poverty and threatens the world - with massive starvation;

-The value of the energy underneath federal lands and waters is at least $50 trillion;

-With a pro-America energy policy, the U.S. should be energy independent by the year 2020.

In my book, 'America Needs America's Energy: Creating Together the People's Energy Plan,' I stress similar points of view. However, I strongly emphasize that the book is dedicated to the proposition that we need to turn to new technologies, innovation, and the enduring American spirit that has enabled us to overcome every challenge this nation has faced since our founding, the goal of total energy independence can be achieved before it is too late. We are the ones who will have to do it, because our societal institutions have proven they are not up to the task. It is time to take a stand, evaluate your own impact to our nation, and play your part in preserving our country. Energy is the future of America, and America Needs America's Energy.

It is time we come together: the U.S. has the immediate challenge

ABC CHAIRMAN: Jennifer Jezek, center, president and owner of York Electronics Systems, Inc., stands with her parents. She has been elected as chairman of the Associated Builders and Contractors of Oklahoma (ABC). Jezek is ABC of Oklahoma's first female to serve as chairman. She's also the first succession to serve. Her father, Steve York, pictured, served as chairman in 1999. ABC of Oklahoma President & CEO Carl Williams says, "We are pleased to have Jennifer serve as our chairman of ABC this year. She is a remarkable young woman who leads by example. We know she will do great things for our organization."

BUSINESS & PEOPLE NOTES

Tulsa attorney Kimberly K. Hays recently took an oath of office as Oklahoma Bar Association president-elect, automatically becoming president Jan. 1, 2018. Also being sworn in as a member-at-large was James R. Hicks. They will be part of the OBA's 17-member Board of Governors, which meets monthly and governs the association.

HAYS

HICKS

Hays is a solo practitioner in Tulsa and has practiced exclusively in the area of family law since 1993. She served on the OBA Board of Governors representing Tulsa County in 2012-2014. She is past chair of the OBA Family Law Section and currently serves as the section's Section Leaders Council liaison, budget chair and Annual Meeting Committee member. She will chair the OBA's Strategic Planning Committee.

Hays is also active in the Tulsa County Bar Association, having served as a director-at-large, TCBA Family Law Section chairperson and as a member of the Professionalism and Professional Responsibility Committees. She is a volunteer attorney for Legal Aid Services, Domestic Violence Intervention Services and Oklahoma Lawyers for America's Heroes. She received her B.A. from Oklahoma State University and her J.D. from the University of Kansas School of Law.

Hicks concentrates his practice in the areas of civil litigation, family law, probate and estate planning in Tulsa with the firm of Barrow & Grimm PC. He received his undergraduate degree from the University of Oklahoma, where he was a member of the Beta Theta Pi fraternity. He earned his J.D. from the University of Tulsa College of Law in 1985. He served as Tulsa County Bar Association president in 2013-2014 during its 110th anniversary celebration. He was appointed to the OBA Board of Governors in 2015 by President David Poarch to serve out an unexpired term ending in 2016. He previously served on the Board of Governors in 1994 as chair of the Young Lawyers Division. Currently, he serves as senior warden of St. John's Episcopal Church in Tulsa.

OBA leadership roles are voluntary positions in which lawyers serve while continuing to practice law.

The 17,600-member Oklahoma Bar Association, headquartered in Oklahoma City, was created by the Oklahoma Supreme Court to advance the administration of justice and to foster and maintain learning, integrity, competence, public service and high standards of conduct among Oklahoma's legal community.

Two new employees have been added to the management ranks of the First National Bank & Trust Co. of Broken Arrow.

Yvette Martinez has joined Broken Arrow's first bank as vice president of retail banking administration while Brian Talkington has assumed responsibility as vice president of commercial lending, working out of its North Aspen branch.

A native Tulsan, Martinez holds a degree in business administration from Northeastern State University. Before joining First National of Broken Arrow, she was associated with Bank of Oklahoma, F&M Bank, and Trust and Prosperity Bank. While at F&M, she oversaw retail operations of 12 branch offices in Texas and Oklahoma.

Talkington is a native of Oklahoma City, holds a BBA degree from the University of Oklahoma and is a graduate of the Graduate School of Banking at Colorado in Boulder, Colorado.

An 18-year veteran of the financial services industry, his background includes service as Tulsa market president for NBC Oklahoma and vice president of commercial lending for American Heritage Bank Sapulpa/Tulsa.

Board Chairman and CEO Gregory Graham says both Martinez and Talkington bring considerable experience and proven expertise to the bank's management ranks and reflect its commitment to excellence in all aspects of customer service.

AVB Bank has named Kaleb Grimm assistant vice president of commercial and consumer lending. Grimm has extensive experience in mortgage, commercial and consumer lending. He is located at the Tulsa-Mingo location at 9800 E. 51st St.

AVB Chief Lending Officer Topper Causby is excited to have Grimm join AVB, saying "Kaleb is a seasoned banker, with experience in mortgage lending and sales. He's a great addition to our consumer and commercial lending areas at the bank." Causby adds, "He is enthusiastic about anything he does, and that certainly meshes well with our energetic group of people here at AVB." Grimm talked about joining AVB, saying, "AVB has good people, great culture and is a fun place to call work." Grimm is a native of Enid, Oklahoma and graduated from Northeastern State University with a bachelor's degree in finance, and has his associates degree in management from the United States Air Force.

Grimm was a member of the Air National Guard/United States Air Force for eight years. He joined in 2009 and served with the 219th EIS Unit. The 219th EIS is an engineering and installation unit that provides power and communication to all members of the Department of Defense (DOD). Grimm served in the Afghanistan War and went on many other temporary duty assignments (TDYs) to multiple countries as well as CONUS (contiguous United States).

CommunityCare announces the appointment of Bradley Bartle as executive vice president and chief financial officer.

Bartle previously served as chief actuary at Noridian Mutual Insurance Company and Blue Cross Blue Shield of North Dakota. He has more than 20 years of experience in the health insurance industry with extensive background in finance, operations, actuarial services, underwriting and health data analytics.

Bartle received a master's in business administration from Northwestern University's Kellogg School of Management in Evanston, Illinois. He completed his undergraduate degree in mathematics at the University of Wisconsin in Madison. Bartle is a Fellow of the Society of Actuaries and a Member of the American Academy of Actuaries.

CommunityCare is Oklahoma's largest locally owned and governed health insurance organization. CommunityCare is owned and operated by Saint Francis Health System and St. John Health System.

Emergency Infant Services announces the hiring of Tim Gowin as executive director.

EIS initiated its search for an executive director in December 2016 seeking candidates displaying exceptional leadership characteristics, strategic vision, respect for the mission of EIS, and compassion for the EIS clients.

A graduate of Oklahoma State University, Gowin has over 17 years of experience in non-profit direct care agency services. Prior to joining EIS, he served as director of outreach at Youth Services of Tulsa where, among many accomplishments, he was instrumental in the launch of T-Town Tacos, a partnership with YST and the Community Food Bank of Eastern Oklahoma. The concept earned a coveted Social Innovation Grant from the Tulsa Area United Way and benefits Tulsa's at-risk homeless and homeless youth with on-the-job skills. Gowin also oversaw Street Outreach Services, Transitional Living Programming and Health Navigation Services at YST.

Peter Grant, president of Grant Homes Remodel & Restoration in Tulsa, has taken the helm as the 2017 president of the Home Builders Association (HBA) of Greater Tulsa.

Grant was installed as the head of the nearly 1,000 member trade organization during the association's annual Installation Gala, along with builders Ryan Farabough of Farabough Homes, and Erin DeWeese of Brian D. Wiggs Homes, who were elected to the positions of vice president/treasurer and vice president/secretary, respectively.

Upcycling Food Waste Takes Us Back to the Future

A nut about recycling from an early age, I distinctly remember the final scene in the movie, “Back to the Future,” where Doc comes back to warn our dear couple of future events, all the while stuffing items from the garbage can into the fuel section of his time traveling DeLorean. What was once a laughable scene is today a near-reality.

Compost is now successfully fueling semi-trailer trucks. UK newspaper The Times reports that British supermarket chain, Waitrose, comparable to our Whole Foods, now utilizes 10 delivery trucks powered by the biomethane captured from food waste. “As of today, there is sufficient biomethane, or renewable gas, from food waste to fuel thousands of trucks – I would say somewhere between 2,000 and 5,000 trucks,” says Waitrose partner, CNG Fuels CEO Phillip Fjeld. According to the report, the trucks can travel up to 500 miles on one tank of the food-based gas. The cost is about 40 percent less than diesel and emits nearly 70 percent less carbon dioxide.

Sustainability Springs to Action
While some are turning compost into fuel, I focus on just the compost. For our lifestyle, vermi-posting works best. We purchased worms from Grogg’s Green Barn to get us started and maintain a thriving, wiggly community that provide us with great soil for starting our spring and fall seeds.

Eco Miss America
I recently read in a YWCA report on the beauty industry, that seven billion dollars is spent on cosmetics each year in the United States. Currently, cosmetics and accessories are FDA regulated but none require FDA approval.

So, I see it as a step in the right direction that the Miss America organization announced they will begin partnering with Eco Tools. As their name implies, this is a brand of cosmetic tools such as brushes that are made with non-toxic, cruelty-free, recyclable materials. “We are so pleased to welcome EcoTools into the Miss America family,” said Josh Randle, MAO’s COO, “and we look forward to working hand-in-hand with them and Miss America 2017, Savvy Shields, to promote our mutual mission of empowering young women everywhere to look and live beautifully.” On a side-note, Shields is a fellow University of Arkansas alum. Go Hogs!

Senior Star Receives Accreditation, Supports ASHA Website

Company Awarded the Highest Level of Accreditation That Can Be Awarded to an Organization

Senior Star recently announced its three-year term of accreditation from the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities (CARF) and the launch of a new website by the American Seniors Housing Association (ASHA), whereyoulivematters.org, a website that Senior Star employee Letitia Jackson played a role in developing.

The CARF accreditation represents the highest level of accreditation that can be awarded to an organization and demonstrates Senior Star's substantial conformance to more than 1,000 CARF standards for quality and pursuit of excellence.

Senior Star at Burgundy Place and Senior Star at Woodland Terrace were each awarded this honor in the following program: Independent Senior Living. This distinction places the communities as the only two organizations in Oklahoma to be CARF accredited for Independent Senior Living.

Choosing to be accredited by CARF is voluntary and a testament to Senior Star's unwavering commitment to improve the quality of lives for the older adults and families in their care, says Shondel Bennett, executive director of Senior Star at Burgundy Place.

"We base our daily decisions on a set of core values, and earning CARF accreditation means our values are measurable with quality care," says Bennett.

"It really means that families can expect excellence from our team," says Sabrina Davidson, executive director of Senior Star at Woodland Terrace.

Senior Star also works to empower its residents and their families with information on aging well in a rapidly growing seniors housing industry. For that reason, Senior Star endorses the new website, whereyoulivematters.org, and its content.

The website offers a consultative approach and is a valuable resource for those searching for expert advice. Among the tools is a 16-page glossary of senior living terminology, as well as numerous videos, testimonials, and editorials from seniors and industry experts. The site also includes informational categories, such as choosing well to live well, comparing lifestyle options, learning about life at a retirement community, forming a plan to live well and longer, making a family decision, and preparing and managing finances.

The new website is part of ASHA's five-year strategic plan designed to provide seniors, adult children and others with meaningful seniors housing information.

Original Sinclair Building Holds Rich History

In the archives of Harweldon, the former Arts and Humanities Council headquarters, is a photo of me around age five playing in the fish pond adjacent to the garage. I was there along with other children of friends because the Harwell's daughter, Margo, was my mother's best friend. By my side was one of my favorite water toys, a large green plastic inflatable dinosaur named "Dino," which was a promotional gift from a Sinclair gas station. The "Dino" character was a company trademark.

The Sinclair buildings are two of Tulsa's legacies from the Sinclair Oil and Gas Company. The 1953 building is now the downtown home of Tulsa Community College. The original 1919 Sinclair Headquarters Building continues in use as an office building and has significant historic interest.

Tulsa's early day oilmen always seem larger than life. They lived very colorful lives as they gambled in the oil patch, winning and losing large fortunes while they ruthlessly conducted business. Harry Sinclair was one of these men.

In the brief time that Harry Sinclair lived in Tulsa (1912-1916), he built his three-story mansion (now demolished) near the Council Oak Tree, the Sinclair Refinery west of the Arkansas River and the Sinclair Building at 6 E. 5th St. in downtown Tulsa. He was also one of the founders of The Exchange National Bank, now Bank of Oklahoma.

The most noticeable thing about this building is its shape. The center section is recessed above the ground floor, creating a U-shaped frontal façade. A second characteristic is the paired window placement. Pairs are butted together creating a strong horizontal masonry opening. A third characteristic is the palate of exterior building materials: dark tan granite encasing the first floor, a light tan brick skin for the upper six floors, and cream colored terra cotta for accent trim for the eighth floor and the ninth-floor penthouse. These colors make a notable contrast to many neighboring buildings featuring red brick and gray limestone accents.

At the eighth floor, terra cotta brackets between window openings support a massive fascia. And at the top of the central recess is a huge cartouche framed in acanthus leaves, featuring a large S. Obviously, Sinclair made no attempt at modesty. The cartouche is centered on the main entrance below. Where the center section recesses, a balustrade maintains the line of the first floor.

Sinclair incorporated a number of special features in the interior of his building. Ceilings were typically at 12 feet (very high even in a pre-air conditioning era when ceilings were normally high). Floors throughout were oak hardwood. One of the elevators had a trap door which led to a secret passageway to the penthouse, allowing Sinclair to enter and leave the building unseen. Pneumatic tubes connected offices around the building for inter-office communication. There were nine vaults in the building for a very security conscious company. Finally, basement radiators ensured that perimeter sidewalks would be free of ice and snow. Harry Sinclair is probably best known for his involvement in the 1923 Teapot Dome scandal. During Warren G. Harding's presidency, his Secretary of the Interior, Albert Fall, was accused of receiving a bribe of $300,000 from the Sinclair Oil and Gas Company to provide non-competitive oil leases in Teapot Dome, Wyoming. The planning to secure the Teapot Dome leases is said to have occurred in the Sinclair Building Penthouse. The Washington D.C. District Court found Sinclair innocent of this charge even though the leases were obtained. He was convicted of jury tampering instead and served six months in a Washington D.C. jail.

Soon afterwards, Fall resigned from the Harding administration and went to work for the Sinclair Oil and Gas Company.

Sinclair remained President of Sinclair Oil and Gas Company until 1949. He retired to Pasadena, California, and died in 1956.

Nationally, the Foundation focuses on improving public education, supporting initiatives to provide high-quality training and resources for teachers and to increase the number of students from low-income families who graduate from high school prepared for college and the workplace.

Internationally, the Foundation works to strengthen the Jewish community through investments in leadership development, service and volunteerism, inclusivity and connecting young people with Israel. The Foundation also invests to strengthen Israeli society, primarily through child protection and the renewal of Jerusalem.

The Schusterman Family Foundation has provided generous support for student scholarships at OSU-Tulsa. The Foundation also provides assistance for OSUTeach, a program designed to attract students with science and mathematics majors to careers in secondary education. Lynn and daughter, Stacy, are co-chairs of the Foundation and lead the family's commitment to investing in young people and strengthening communities.

Henry Zarrow, who was affectionately known to many as "Mr. Henry," founded the Sooner Pipe and Supply Company in Tulsa at age

22. A highly successful businessman, Zarrow was also known for his giving spirit. He established The Anne and Henry Zarrow Foundation, which provides broad-based programs benefitting children, the disadvantaged, health programs, education and medical research, primarily in Tulsa.

The Zarrow Foundation is an OSU supporter. Their generous gift to OSU-CHS has underwritten a portion of the construction costs for the A.R. and Marylouise Tandy Medical Academic Building set for completion later this year. The Anne and Henry Zarrow Foundation Lecture Hall in the Tandy Medical Academic Building will be named in their honor. The organization also provides scholarships for students at OSU-Tulsa, OSU-CHS and OSU-Stillwater and helps fund programs such as OSU-Tulsa's Center for Family Resilience.

The Icons for OSU in Tulsa, who were selected by an independent committee, will be honored at "A Stately Affair in Tulsa" on May 1 at Southern Hills Country Club. Proceeds from the black-tie event will fund scholarships for students who plan to attend OSU-CHS or OSU-Tulsa.

Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Oklahoma President Ted Haynes and his wife, Shiela, are co-chairs for the event and Senior U.S. District Judge Terence Kern and his wife, Jeanette, are serving as honorary co-chairs.

CAN Superhero Challenge Shines the Light on Abuse

Annual Family-Focused Event: April 2

By EMILY RAMSEY
Managing Editor

In its efforts to continue to raise awareness of child abuse, the Child Abuse Network (CAN) will hold its fourth annual CAN Superhero Challenge on Sunday, April 2 at POSTOAK Lodge and Retreat, 5323 W. 31st St. N.

The event consists of a half-mile and mile run and a Fun Zone.

"The event is about giving kids encouragement and courage, to help them feel powerful, like a superhero," says Brandi Moore, CAN community relations manager.

In Tulsa county, one in 15 children are involved in a child abuse investigation, she continues, and kids talk to other kids, which, then, affects more kids.

Therefore, the primary focus for the event is to encourage families to talk about the subject of abuse and what children should do if it happens to them or if they hear about it happening to someone else.

"It's a subject that we don't like to talk about, but we have to in order to help the kids," says Moore.

Event organizers, including co-chairs Jessica Zimmerman and Rebecca Thompson, expect to see close to 1,000 attend. The family-focused event has continued to grow year after year, from 250 participants in its inaugural year.

The event will begin at 1 p.m. with the opening of its Fun Zone, with inflatables, face painting and other activities, and the start of its first run, with runs staggered throughout the afternoon.

Children seven years old and younger are welcome to participate in the half-mile run; kids ages eight and older can run in the mile-long course.

The courses are filled with easy obstacles and are not only for kids but for families as well, notes Thompson. "Parents often like to run with their children and to run as a family."

The runs are not timed, and all children receive a medal.

In order to further encourage the superhero mentality and to increase the fun of the event, organizers encourage children to don superhero costumes.

To further spread its message, CAN makes an intentional effort to be active with area schools.

"Schools are one reason why we have eyes and ears," Moore says. "They are on the forefront of saving kids' lives and keeping them safe."

CAN will award the school with the highest number of participants with $500.

Zimmerman, a mother of four, got involved with CAN after moving to Tulsa about four years ago.

"I loved learning about CAN and its mission to be a one-stop place for a child who has suffered abuse," she says.

"And at the event, it's wonderful to see the families come out together, being active together and supporting a great cause."

CAN, located at 2829 S. Sheridan Rd., began in 1988 and serves as a centralized location for all agencies that investigate and prosecute child abuse.

The child is able to tell his/her story one time and, because all agencies are on site, the child does not have to be re-traumatized by repeating the story over and over again to multiple agencies, Moore says.

"You can often see the relief lift off their shoulders after they've spoken to us."

Street School Holds Annual Fundraiser

Guests wore their Mad Hatter-est of hats and Cheshire grins during Street Party 2017, held Feb. 24 at the Cox Business Center Assembly Hall. Merriment abounded with food and melodious tunes for twirling.

Street School's annual fundraiser, Street Party, was an evening of whimsy and adventure. The event is the school's primary fundraiser to help provide the best individualized therapeutic and educational support for at-risk students to overcome the odds and become high school graduates.

Street School is committed to addressing the 23 percent of Oklahoma students that drop out of school every year between ninth and 12th grades. Street School boasts a 90 percent graduation rate every year, disrupting the cycle of dropping out.

The Street Party fundraiser featured dinner and dancing to music from Charlie Redd and the Full Flava Kings. Additionally, there was a live auction, silent auction, wine pull, and raffle for a chance to win a trip for two to Napa Valley, California.

Live auction items included a four-course dinner for eight at The Bull in the Alley, a trip to see the Chicago Cubs, a week-long stay in Lake Geneva, Switzerland, a Colorado mountain climbing adventure with Tulsa City Councilor Phil Lakin and a dinner for 10 with HGTV's Gardener Guy Paul James. Rick Miller served as auctioneer, and Terry Hood from KOTV6 was the emcee.

The event chair was Katie Mabrey, vice president of marketing, Mabrey Bank. Sponsors included Joseph and Virginia Dibert Foundation, The Canada Company, Philip and Miranda

B.A. Launches Financial Transparency Tool

In an effort to, yet again, improve the City of Broken Arrow's transparency, it has launched a new digital platform, powered by OpenGov, that provides convenient access to the city's finances and performance information in an easy-to-understand way.

The OpenGov platform transforms complex financial data into an interactive, digital format that enables better analysis and understanding of the city's finances. The intuitive design makes it easier to explore how taxpayer money is used. The platform can be accessed at brokenarrowok.opengov.com.

OpenGov displays multiple years of government spending and revenue detail and allows users to view historical revenue and expenditure trends and explore multiple views of financial data, including by fund, department, expense, or revenue type.

The platform can show visitors, for example, how much the city spent on public safety over a given time and how much the city collected on fees and then enable the user to share that information directly via email or onto social media.

"This is a great new tool that visually explains how taxpayer money is collected and spent," says Mayor Craig Thurmond. "I'm very excited for the public to begin using the software. It's part of the city's ongoing efforts to make our finances more transparent and understandable."

With the recent launch, the City of Broken Arrow joins a growing list of more than 1,000 leading cities, counties, state agencies, school systems, and special districts across the country that leverage OpenGov technology.

CHILDREN'S MEDICAL CHARITIES CONTINUES PRACTICE OF GIVING

DECADES OF GIVING: Recipients of the Children's Medical Charities Association (CMCA) recent $74,500 donation stand outside of CMCA's new headquarters and thrift shop, The Market at Pearl, 1020 S. Rockford Ave.

The Children's Medical Charities Association (CMCA) has continued to prove its resiliency and industriousness through its 65-year history. During its six decades in operation, the organization has been asked to move its location three times, most recently onto historic Route 66 in Tulsa's Pearl District.

CMCA's headquarters and its thrift shop, called The Market at Pearl, is located at 1020 S. Rockford Ave. and opened in January. The store sells both secondhand and new items, including home decor, children's and adult clothing, books, children's toys, artwork and small furniture.

The store sits in a growing retail corridor along 11th Street with more development to come in the near future, notes Ken Busby, executive director and CEO at Route 66 Alliance.

CMCA's thrift shop began in 1952 when the organization was founded. The organization was originally named the Children's Medical Center Auxiliary, with its focus on supporting the needs of children at the Children's Medical Center, which, at that time, was located on Skelly Drive near Yale Avenue.

The volunteer group served Children's Medical Center in a number of ways: delivering mail, leading tours, working in the cafeteria and providing general assistance.

Another of the auxiliary's fundraising efforts started in 1954 when it began co-sponsoring the annual Tulsa Charity Horse Show with the Junior League of Tulsa. In 1963, the auxiliary took over as sole sponsor. The show continued for the next 35 years, with proceeds to the Children's Medical Center amounting to $1.2 million.

In the '70s, the auxiliary founded its Arts and Crafts Show, raising close to $1 million for the Children's Medical Center over the show's 25-year history. In 1975, the group held its first annual Roy Clark Celebrity Golf Tournament, which lasted for nine years and brought in more than $800,000 in proceeds. In the 1980s, the group began its Children's Miracle Network Telethon, which continued until 2004.

When the Children's Medical Center vacated its building on Skelly Drive in 2000, the auxiliary was allowed to dismantle and salvage portions of the building to sell, raising nearly $65,000.

Because the Children's Medical Center's services were divided up between Hillcrest Medical Center and Tulsa Regional Medical Center, the auxiliary moved to 1110 S. Utica Ave. and became affiliated with Hillcrest.

In 2004, due to an ownership change of the Children's Medical Center services, group members decided to reorganize. They changed the organization's name to the Children's Medical Charities Association and began to seek nonprofit status. CMCA then began its new mission of funding grants to organizations that directly benefit children in the greater Tulsa area.

Hillcrest, however, continues to provide support to CMCA in its new location and with its new focus, says Thornton.

In the last 10 years, CMCA has given $1 million to local children's organizations. On Feb. 16, the nonprofit held a check presentation, giving $74,500 to nearly 30 local children's organizations.

CMCA has close to 50 members, some of whom have been involved in the organization, like Thornton, for 50 years.

Members are responsible for the full operation of the thrift shop, which involves organizing store inventory, rotating inventory monthly, cleaning all items to be sold, and cleaning and maintaining the shop.

"We are all volunteers," says Thornton. "We feel that the service we provide, giving money to area groups that benefit children, is so important."

CMCA accepts monetary donations and donations of items to sell in The Market. Currently, their needs include small furniture pieces, decorative items and clothing for all ages. CMCA donates its unsold items to the Salvation Army.

Those interested in joining CMCA or making a donation can call 918-579-1122.
