Two Lines In Heaven

Up in Heaven there are two lines: One with a sign that says, "If you were henpecked, line up here," the other saying, "If you weren't henpecked, line up here."

One day St. Peter was looking at the new arrivals, and he saw the "Henpecked" line going on forever... while the "Non-henpecked" line only had 1 guy standing in it.

St. Peter walked up to him and said, "You mean to tell me you were never henpecked in your whole life?"

The guy said, "Well I don't know about that. All I know is this is where my wife told me to stand."

Relax, we'll do the housework.

Did You Know?

Newspapers have helped shape the world for decades, serving as invaluable resources that highlight both national and local news, retail information, cultural events, and much more. Although several newspapers now offer online versions of their publications, many readers remain partial to print versions. Those who purchase printed newspapers daily or subscribe to home delivery should consider recycling the papers to protect the planet. According to the environmental resource EarthEcho International, recycling a single run of the Sunday issue of The New York Times - or a comparable paper's Sunday edition - would save 75,000 trees.

Nominations Solicited for Chamber's YOUNG PROFESSIONAL AWARDS

Outstanding Young Professionals to be Recognized for Professional, Community Involvement

The Danville Pittsylvania County Chamber of Commerce is soliciting nominations for its Young Professionals PACE (Professional and Community Engagement) Awards which will be presented to exceptional young professionals in the Danville-Pittsylvania County region. The awards will recognize up to five young professionals who have made significant contributions to our region through professional achievements as well as through community/volunteer service. Young professionals who are 25 to 40 years old and either reside or work in Danville or Pittsylvania County are eligible.

Criteria for the award include:

- At least three years of professional work experience
- Demonstrated leadership within their profession
- Contributed to this region through volunteer/community activities

To nominate a young professional for the PACE Award, please submit a nomination. Nomination forms are available on the Chamber's website at www.dpchamber.org. Nomination forms can also be obtained by emailing the Chamber at chamber@dpchamber.org or by calling the Chamber office at 434-836-6990. The deadline for nominations is April 21, 2017.

Award winners will be recognized at the Annual Awards Dinner of the Danville Pittsylvania County Chamber of Commerce on May 8, 2017.

The Danville Pittsylvania County Chamber of Commerce is a business organization with approximately 700 members in the Danville/Pittsylvania County region. The Chamber works to energize the region by creating exceptional business growth and profitability in a vibrant, customer-centered culture.

PROTECT YOURSELF FROM IDENTITY THEFT

Identity theft is a pervasive problem. According to figures from the Bureau of Justice Statistics, an estimated 17.6 million people, or about 7 percent of U.S. residents age 16 or older, were victims of at least one incident of identity theft in 2014- and growing. Identity theft is not just a problem within U.S. borders, either. Each month, Equifax and TransUnion credit bureaus report that more than 1,800 identity theft complaints are lodged by Canadian residents. Victims may be subjected to various types of identity theft. Attempted misuse of an existing account is the prime complaint. This account can be a credit card, bank account or phone or utility account. No matter the type of fraud perpetrated, many identity theft victims endure a direct financial loss as a result. Sometimes individuals do not find out they've been the victim of identity theft until they are notified by a financial institution — or even after filing their taxes — when money already has been lost. People may invest in expensive services to protect their identities, but Consumer Reports notes this tactic is not always necessary. There are other, less expensive ways for men and women to protect themselves from identity theft.

- Guard personal information. Do not share your personal information over the Internet unless you are on a secured site. This will be identified by the https:// preceding the rest of the URL. Sometimes a padlock symbol will appear somewhere on the page. Also, do not provide any personal information over the phone, such as tax identification numbers, bank account information or your maiden name. Personal data should be shared only with trusted companies whose authenticity you can verify.
- Watch your wallet. Do not leave your wallet or purse unattended. Keep the bare minimum in a wallet so a thief does not have access to all of your personal information if the wallet is lost or stolen. Keep your Social Security card and rarely used credit cards at home.
- Sign up for alerts. Many financial institutions will offer free online or mobile alerts to warn of suspicious activity on your account. Take advantage of this service.
- Lock down devices. Make sure computers and mobile devices are secured with a password, and only use secured networks when going online. Select strong passwords that include a combination of numbers, letters and symbols, as well as case changes so they will be more difficult to crack.
- Get off of credit-card offer lists. You can stop credit bureaus from selling your name to lenders by going to www.optoutprescreen.com or calling 888-567-8688. Opting out should prevent the majority of offers from coming your way. Many identity theft cases can be linked to crooks stealing credit card preapprovals from mailboxes. Similarly, you can put a security freeze on credit reports, so that lenders will not be able to access credit reports and issue new credit. Identity theft can lead to plenty of paperwork hassle and loss of funds. Preventing it from happening is easier than you might think.

FLASH BACK

POP ROCK & SOUL TRIVIA BY MICHAEL HARPER

1. John Bonham was the drummer for which rock band?
2. Who released "If You Want Me to Stay," and when?
3. What is Napalm Death's 1989 "You Suffer" best known for?
4. Name the drummer whose kit exploded on The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour.
5. Name the song that contains this lyric: "You're gonna leave her once too many times and when you come back, That girl's gonna be mine."

Answers

1. Led Zeppelin. The group disbanded after Bonham's death in 1980. He'd ingested the equivalent of 40 shots of vodka in a 24-hour period.
2. Sly and the Family Stone, on their 1973 "Fresh" album.
3. It's short ... 1.36 seconds, to be exact.
4. Keith Moon of The Who. He'd put too much flash powder in the drums, and the explosion nearly took out the stage. The band was known for explosions and crushed instruments during their performances, but this prank resulted in actual shrapnel from the cymbals.
5. "Shoo-Be-Doo-Be-Doo-Da-Day," by Stevie Wonder, in 1968. It was the first song where he used the clavinet, an electrically amplified clavichord. A number of groups produced music with the clavinet, mostly for sound effects, but by the 1990s spare parts were hard to find.

VETERANS POST

by Freddy Groves

The Appeal Backlog Is Growing

The Government Accountability Office recently issued a report to Congress about the Department of Veterans Affairs disability-claims appeal backlog.

The stats are grim. In 2015, more than 427,000 veterans had appeals pending and had waited for over three years. Of those, 81,000 veterans had waited five years. By 2026 veterans might have to wait an average of 8.5 years to have their appeals resolved.

During the audit, the VA noted three problem areas:

1) The VA said staff resources could not keep pace with the number of appeals, and it needs more people. The board approved a hiring surge in 2017. The GAO, however, discovered that the VA has not addressed training or space problems surrounding that hiring. VA then said that the 2017 hiring won't be enough and they want more people in 2018.

2) The VA blamed the process itself -- a veteran can send in new evidence at any point, delaying the whole appeal. Also when the VA sends out denials of initial claims, it's not clear how to file an appeal or what paperwork is required. Veterans appeal without the correct documentation, adding to the backlog.

3) The VA says it needs new computers, but didn't indicate how and when they'd begin using a new system, which, the GAO says, means they have no idea how and when the new computers would work with a new appeals process.

Do you see the pattern here?

If you need to file an appeal, get help from an appeal representative. Go online and search for information about how to file an appeal, and read everything you can. Remember that the VA has a statutory duty to help you find your records, but you have to be specific about doctors, dates and places of treatment.

Mary Woods has been matched with youth almost 6 years. She has started with the in school program but felt the youth would benefit more with the community based match. Ms. Woods states the youth has benefited more now as a teenager than the earlier years. She instills in the youth the importance of school and good behavior. The volunteer uses her former professional skills in preparing the youth for the future. Mary often assists the agency in activities; and attends trips/trainings. The youth, Mauquesha, has grown more confident in herself. Her school performance has improved as well. The pair has a great relationship. They do not want the match to end. For more information about this program please call, Pat Daniel (434)792-3700 ext. 237.
