"When I became a CNA seven years ago I never expected it to be such an amazing, rewarding job. Being a CNA is more than just helping residents with their daily activities. You have to have compassion and a desire to help people. I try every day to provide my residents with the care that I would want my own family to receive. There is nothing more rewarding than putting a smile on someone's face and letting them know they are loved each day. Because of my residents and their families, I love my job."
