*APR Annual Percentage Rate. HRCU may finance up to the maximum approved by law for New & Used vehicles (including tax, tags, documentation and custom extended warranties) and is also based upon vehicle value and the applicant's credit worthiness. The interest rate applied may be higher based on the applicant's credit worthiness or vehicle value. Minimum loan amount is $2,000. HRCU makes all final determinations regarding the vehicle value and applied interest rate. Rates and terms are current as of 4/1/16 and are subject to change without prior notice. See HRCU's Equal Lender Credit and Security Agreement. Additional interest rate discounts or promotional terms may apply to new loan applications only and may already be reflected in the interest rate advertised. No other discounts apply.
 **Rates and terms are current as of 4/1/17 and are subject to change without prior notice. HRCU's APR is subject to a variable interest rate and applies to an 80% LTV Equity line loan. The applied interest rate will remain the same for the first 12 months of the loan. After 12 months, the interest rate will adjust to the prime rate plus 1.50% on the last calendar period. The interest rate applied cannot increase or decrease more than 2.50% at each potential adjustment. The minimum APR is 4.00%. The maximum rate can never exceed 18%. A five-year advance period applies with up to 10 fifteen-year adjustments. Interest rate discounts or promotional rates are available for new HRCU applicants and is the effective interest rate for one year from the date of loan origination. Loan will revert to market interest rate in effect with the expiration of the promotional discount. No other discounts apply.
 ***Qualifying loans for the HRCU Money Tree mystery prize promotion include new or used auto loans and home equity lines of credit. Minimum funded loan amount to qualify is $10,000. Certain restrictions may apply. See Official Rules at www.hdriver.org.

Simple Ways To Alleviate Back Pain

Few health problems are as prevalent as back pain. The American Chiropractic Association says that 50 percent of working Americans admit to having back pain symptoms each year. Bone and Joint Health Canada states that as much as 80 percent of people experience back pain at least once in their lifetime. Back pain can be so significant that it results in a loss of function that impedes daily activities. In fact, according to the 2015 Global Burden of Disease report, back pain is the single leading cause of disability in most countries.
 Back pain can be a complex issue. According to data compiled by TheGoodBody.com, only one in 10 people learns the primary cause of their pain. That's because many things, including muscle sprains or joint irritation, can contribute to back pain. Other factors that may contribute to back pain include arthritis, stress, obesity, or diseases of the internal organs. Each of these issues can make it challenging to uncover the culprit behind back pain.
 Ruling out degenerative diseases can be a first step in treating back pain. Doctors also may ask their patients about their level of physical activity. Doctors may want to know if patients suffering back pain engage in activities involving repetitive movements to determine if their back pain can be traced to these activities. Some common factors contribute to back pain, and addressing these issues may bring about relief.

- Visit and consult with a good chiropractor.
- Strengthen core muscles. Poor muscle tone, especially in the back and abdominal muscles, may result in back pain. Engaging in activities that strengthen the core can help strengthen the area, offering more support to the back. A doctor, physical therapist or fitness instructor may guide you in exercises, such as planks or abdominal crunches, that can strengthen the core.
- Get up and move. A sedentary lifestyle can be a major contributor to back pain. Nearly half of Americans who experience back pain are desk workers who spend the majority of their time sitting, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Qi Spine, a clinic that gathered data from 1,300 people who said they deal with spine-related pain, found that half the participants with sedentary jobs had lower back pain. Standing, moving around and taking breaks from the desk can help alleviate pain.
- Lose weight. The spine is vulnerable to effects of obesity. Extra weight in the abdomen may pull the pelvis forward and strain the lower back, states the American Obesity Association. Losing weight can reduce that strain on the lower back, thereby reducing pain. Back pain is a frequent complaint and compels many people to visit their doctors. Exercise, maintaining a healthy weight and strengthening core muscles can go a long way toward keeping the back healthy and pain-free.

Arthritis Linked To Another Condition

People who see dermatologists for the skin condition psoriasis should not take the presence of joint aches and pains lightly, as the two things might be connected. The National Psoriasis Foundation notes that psoriasis is a precursor to psoriatic arthritis in 30 percent of patients. What is psoriatic arthritis? Psoriasis is an autoimmune condition that affects the rate of skin cell reproduction. People with psoriasis may experience redness, itchiness and raised bumps (plaques) of skin on various areas of their bodies. Psoriatic arthritis is a chronic form of arthritis that typically occurs in people with skin psoriasis, but also can be present in those without the skin condition, but particularly among those who have relatives with psoriasis.
 The American College of Rheumatology says that psoriatic arthritis typically affects the large joints, especially the lower extremities, distal joints of the fingers and toes and the back and sacroiliac joints of the pelvis. Early recognition, diagnosis and treatment of psoriatic arthritis are crucial to relieving inflammation and preventing permanent joint damage. SYMPTOMS of psoriatic arthritis can develop gradually or quickly, and some symptoms can be severe. NPF indicates that common symptoms of psoriatic arthritis include

- morning stiffness and tiredness;
- tenderness, pain and swelling over tendons;
- swollen fingers and toes;

- reduced range of motion;
- nail changes, including pitting, redness and pain in the eyes. Symptoms of psoriatic arthritis are similar to rheumatoid arthritis, gout and reactive arthritis. Doctors will rule out other symptoms that may be indicative of those conditions. The American College of Rheumatology also indicates that psoriatic arthritis is typically blood test negative. The diagnosis is typically made by a rheumatologist after reviewing a clinical history and performing a physical exam.

TREATMENT: Doctors will need to assess symptoms before deciding on a course of treatment. Mild cases may respond to over-the-counter, nonsteroidal anti-inflammatory drugs, such as ibuprofen. However, antirheumatic drugs and newer biologic drugs may be prescribed to treat more aggressive cases of psoriatic arthritis. Corticosteroid injections can be useful for swollen joints, and surgery may be necessary to repair badly damaged joints. Individuals who suspect their arthritis may be linked to psoriasis can first speak with a dermatologist or primary care physician. The NPF also offers a screening tool at www.psoriasis.org/psascreening.
