YOUR TAXIRIDE

Every day I see people on main commercial strips hailing cabs, or what they think is a cab. By hailing, keep in mind you may be getting into a car that the owner is USING as a cab. I cannot begin to tell you how many people get into cars that are not licensed by the Taxi and Limousine Commission as required by law. That car may not only be unlicensed but it could also be driven by an unlicensed or uninsured driver. Even when you hail a cab with a taxi plate, understand that the driver knows full well they should not be accepting a hail ride in the first place. Hailing a yellow cab in the city is fine because these cabs are fully licensed and allowed to be hailed. In our community and other areas outside Manhattan, where there are few yellow cabs, the city created green cabs that can be legally hailed. They are metered and accept credit cards just like yellow cabs. Then there are private companies that have operated in our communities for years. Lastly, there are ride share apps where you can request a ride through your smartphone. But to hail and get in any car that stops for you could indeed be dangerous. I must tell you that I own a car that many could mistake for a cab. I am constantly hailed! Seeing this occur on our streets every day compelled me to write this column in hopes that an educated public will be a safer one.
