ALBION ELEMENTARY SCHOOL STUDENT RECEIVES LEADERSHIP AWARD AT BOARD MEETING

Zackary Baron received the Leadership Award during the February Board of Education Meeting. Zackary's teacher is Mrs. Klips. She nominated him because he is a hard worker, displays outstanding behavior and makes good choices in the classroom on a daily basis. He is a leader in school and his community. He is involved in Student Leadership Council, PACE and Science Olympiad. He is also a Boy Scout. Congratulations Zackary!

WINNING METAL PROJECT WAS ROLL OF THE DICE FOR ORLEANS LEARNING CENTER STUDENTS

Students in Mr. Steven Kuehn's Multi Occupations program at the Orleans Learning Center recently completed a unique project. The students created pencil holders that looked like dice made out of sheet metal. Mr. Kuehn says the students did the layout, drilled and bent the metal to assemble their projects.

The pencil holders came out so well, that when Orleans/Niagara BOCES Superintendent Dr. Clark Godshall saw the students working on them he offered a first, second and third prize for the students who work he liked the most. "It was an unplanned contest," says teacher aide Brenda Buryta. "It took the students by surprise, but they kicked it up a notch and did a great job. It was great recognition for the students and taught them a valuable lesson; you never know when someone might show an interest in the work you do. Always do your best and try hard because it makes a difference, if not now, it may in the future."

Congratulations go to: First Place: Jason Brown, Second Place: Kedarie Booze, and Third Place: Carlito Sunday.

BECAUSE YOUR PET IS part of the family

Caring for your entire family

Families have placed their trust in locally owned funeral homes for years for serving their needs. As a full-service pet funeral home and memorial center, we are dedicated to serving the entire family, so, as animal lovers ourselves, we realize companion pets are important to family members too. Pets are unconditionally loyal companions that profoundly touch our lives.

We offer families individual pet cremations and customized memorial services to help you say goodbye to your pet in a loving and dignified manner.

Thank you

Orleans County Snowdrifters would like to sincerely thank the community for making our pancake breakfast, held on Feb. 5, at the Carlton Rec Hall, a success. A special thank you to the landowners for their continued support of the club. Thank you to the public and business owners who donated our door prizes and supported the 2017 pancake breakfast. And once again, thank you to the breakfast crew for another job well done!

Thanks again, Orleans County Snowdrifters

NOT OFTEN SEEN AROUND HERE, BUT ...

By Douglas H. Domedion

"OTTER ON THE
© Douglas H. Dom
The river otter, the "Clown of the Waterways."

The week before I was checking an eagle nest near Oak Orchard Creek in the State Wildlife Management Area when I noticed the signs of a rare animal in the recent snow. If it had not been for this long channel of packed-down snow I may have missed the tracks; someone had been "sledding" on the dike next to the creek. I had seen the same type of sign several years ago over in the Tonawanda WMA – otter!

Otters are considered very intelligent animals and love to play. They love to slide on mud or snow and will have "slides" down steep banks that go into the water. In snow they will take 3 or 4 bounds and then slide for many feet and then repeat the process again. They are real clowns and seem to really enjoy life.

This water-loving animal is between 3 and 4 feet long including the tail and will weigh between 10 and 30 pounds (females being smaller). Its long, slender body is well designed for swimming and his thick tail is about one-third the length of the body.

His lustrous brown fur is on the short side in length but is very dense. Its fur is the most durable in North America, and back in 2006 a good otter pelt could fetch $100 or more. With the fur market at rock bottom right now the pelt is only worth about $25. The hollow guard hairs are oily and waterproof with the under fur being thick and downy, which holds air bubbles against the skin when they submerge. The inside of the skin has a very dense layer of fat that also helps to keep the animal warm. If you ever have a chance to run your hand over otter fur you will understand how they can slid through the water so easily.

The otter has short powerful legs, webbed feet and streamlined bodies that make them terrific swimmers so they can catch fish under water. The muscular tail helps to make sharp turns and steer them. They have transparent lens that cover their eyes that protects them from particles in the water when submerged. He also has very long and stiff whiskers that are extremely sensitive and help to locate food even in muddy water.

Otters are great nomads that have circuits they are consistently traveling. They travel from one waterway to another and may take weeks to cover these circuits and cover up to 60 square miles. They will travel good distances over land to get from one waterway to another.

About 80 percent of an otter's diet will consist of aquatic organisms like fish, crayfish and water insects. They will take muskrats, turtles, ducks and small beaver. Their diet can also include land mammals, birds, berries and fruits. Trout fishermen dislike the otter because he may take a few trout but he usually concentrates on slower fish like suckers, chubs and bullheads.

Breeding takes place in March and April and the cubs are born about one year later. Otters have delayed implantation that causes this long delay in birth. Both sex do not become sexually mature until they are two years old but males don't become successful breeders until they are 5 to 7 years old. The male will mate with more than one female and generally does not help with the raising of the young.

Generally there are two or three cubs born in a nest that maybe in an abandon beaver lodge, a log jam, loose rock piles and even old woodchuck holes. Their eyes do not open until they are almost 5 weeks of age and are not weaned until 4 or 5 months old. They stay in the den for about two months. They must be taught to swim by the mother but float easily like a cork because of their fluffy fur that holds air bubbles. They will remain together as a family unit for about 13 months.

So if the otter disappeared from Western New York, how did they get here? Sportsmen and trappers played a big part, especially the trappers.

Tune in next week and learn why this animal now exists in Western New York. If you spot an otter or see some signs of them (slides) let me know or contact the DEC.

Wedding Guide

Plan your perfect day.

Secrets to a Long and Happy Marriage

Some might say a long celebrity marriage is one that endures the duration of the newly betrothed's trip down the aisle. We've seen Britney Spears dissolve a marriage after 55 hours and Kim Kardashian call it quits after 72 days. It seems even money can't buy matrimonial happiness.

But some couples have been together for 50, 60 years and say they're still as much in love as they were the day they spoke their "I dos." What do they know that others do not?

According to clinical psychologist and relationship guru Dr. Phil McGraw, "We all need to be flexible and to compromise in marriage, but you've got to be true to your core traits and characteristics, what I call your authentic self." Some couples enter a relationship projecting a persona they believe the other person wants -- one that really isn't what they're all about. This could be a woman trying to fill the role of her husband's nurturing mom or a guy playing the protector to his wife. In reality, marriage is more of a partnership, and truth and trust are often at the basis of good marriages.

There are many other "secrets" that marriage experts will offer to couples seeking the magic formula. Whether you're pondering marriage or have already tied the knot, consider the following advice to make a marriage endure for the long haul.

- There's no such thing as the perfect marriage. Some couples create an image of what they think marriage is supposed to be, and that image that often goes "poof" once reality sets in. Even soulmates are bound to frustrate or irritate one another from time to time.

- Couples should express their frustrations. Bottling up frustrations can eat at a person and eventually destroy a marriage. Talking about the things that are bothering you with your partner opens up a discussion and can help you work through things.

- Divorce should not be seen as a viable option. Couples who want to bail on the marriage at every turn could be directing their energy toward divorce as the only solution instead of discovering ways to remove the cause of strife. Divorce can sometimes be the easy way out when you think about the work that goes into keeping a marriage working. Experts say that there are a few issues, like adultery, abuse and drug/alcohol addiction, that may be reasonable catalysts for divorce if personal safety and sanity is being compromised.

- Make time for romance. It's easily said but not so easily done. Too often married couples forget what it was like to date when all of their attention was spent on each other instead of the house, kids, work, etc. Today there seems to be even more distractions, from e-mails to texts to pressure and obligations at the office. Happy couples find the time to spend quality time with their spouses -- even if that's only 10 minutes of alone time a day.

- Put "we" first. Many people operate on a "me" mentality. When you're part of a couple, give more to your spouse than you take. If he or she is doing the same, you're working collectively for the benefit of the marriage instead of yourselves.

- Respect each other. Often couples having troubles realize they treat strangers better than they treat each other. Would use the insults or unflattering terms that you sometimes throw at your spouse with a complete stranger? Probably not. Good marriages are based on a foundation of respect and love. It's easy to lose feelings of love if the respect is gone.

Couples can realize that there are some thorns that come with the roses of marriage, and staying happy together does take work for it to all be worth it. ■

Tips on how to write
CLASSIFIED ADS that

- 1. USE A KEY WORD. This immediately tells the reader exactly what you have to sell.
- 2. Make your description CLEAR AND FACTUAL. State the year, make, model, color & size and tell what condition the item is in. Also, state the special features.
- 3. STATE THE PRICE. Successful classified advertisers have learned that the price in an ad helps increase the chances for results.
- 4. IF THERE IS A GENUINE SENSE OF URGENCY, say so. The words "We're moving," or "Must sell fast," suggest that readers respond immediately.
- 5. INCLUDE YOUR PHONE NUMBER. Classifieds get results fast and often generate immediate sales. If you cannot be available to answer the phone at all times, be sure to specify special calling times such as "after 9pm" or "before 11am."

BY NATHAN D. PACE
 ATTORNEY AT LAW

BILLED FOR PARENTS' CARE COSTS?

Many states have "filial responsibility" laws, which obligate adult children to take responsibility for their parents. These laws date back to 16th-century English "Poor Laws," which directed financially able family members to support indigent relatives. While nearly all states in this country had such laws in the past, many were repealed as Medicaid became available to those who could not otherwise afford care. However, as more seniors are currently living longer with incapacitating conditions requiring costly long-term care, many adult children are being threatened with legal action if they do not pay loved ones' bills. With this in mind, it is important that seniors apply for Medicaid on time and avoid disqualification resulting from making gifts to children before applying.

If you have any questions about estate planning as it pertains to Medicaid, you need to call the Law Office of MACK & PACE for an appointment. Planning for the future can be complicated and our experienced attorneys take pride in providing personalized service to all our clients. We can help you craft a thoughtful will, draw up advanced care documents, and set up trusts. If you have any questions, please call.

HINT: Family members of aging relatives should check nursing-home admissions contracts for provisions that ask for a financial "guarantor" or "responsible party," which are prohibited by federal law.

· You are young. The National Association of Realtors says the typical first-time home buyer is 31 years old. People who are younger than that and uncertain about their futures should not feel pressured into buying simply because it is presumed to be the "adult" thing to do. Renting and feeling your financial way, which can include seeing how a job pans out or where your budget lies after paying off debts, might make more financial sense than buying.

· The price-to-rent ratio is too high. Buying may seem like a wise idea, but it could be causing you to spend more than necessary, particularly if you check the price-to-rent ratio and find homes in your area are not fairly priced. Figuring a P/R ratio includes finding two similar houses (or condos or apartments) where one is for sale and the other is for rent. Divide the sale price of the first place by the annual rent for the second. The end result is the P/R ratio. So if a home sells for $300,000, and there is a house around the corner renting for $1,200 a month, divide $300,000 by $14,400 (the annual cost of renting). The ratio would be 20.8. A rent ratio above 20 means the cost of home ownership will exceed the cost of renting. The higher the P/R ratio, the more sense it makes to rent instead of buy.

· Home prices continue to rise. Some people find themselves being priced out of certain neighborhoods or cities. RealtyTrac recently analyzed median wage and home-price growth between 2012 and 2014, ultimately finding that, while the typical worker's earnings increased a meager 0.3 percent during the study period, median house prices were up by 17 percent. Wages have not recovered from the Great Recession as quickly as home prices have, and some people may need to rent out of necessity.

· A market shortage makes it harder to find an affordable home. The number of homes available for sale in many areas of the country has fallen below the number that realtors say is required for the market to be in balance. Therefore, even when a home becomes available, demand drives the price up to where it may not be affordable or fiscally smart to purchase. In such instances, renting may be the best option. ■

How to Manage Time More Effectively

· Examine your existing time management. Before creating strategies for changing the way you manage your time, you first need to understand how you are currently spending it. Jot down what you do during an average week. Include how long you spend conversing, when you start working, how often you check your email, etc. Analyze this time in an effort to determine how much of it is being spent doing something productive and how much is getting in the way of getting things done.

· Complete crucial tasks first. Figure out which of your daily tasks are most important and take care of those first before moving on to less important tasks. This can reduce stress and make you feel more confident that you can accomplish the smaller tasks.

· Write things down. It's easy to feel overwhelmed when there are many things swimming around in your head. Put your to-do list on paper. Seeing it in black and white can help you separate the important tasks from other things that can be put off for the time being or delegated to someone else. If necessary, use a day planner or set notifications on your smartphone.

· Turn off email notifications. Email notifications can be very distracting when you are trying to get work done. Turn these off so you can concentrate more on the tasks at hand.

· Recharge with downtime. Physical and mental fatigue can contribute to procrastination. Plan periodic breaks throughout your day. These breaks can help you be more productive by reenergizing you.

· Avoid instant access. Schedule a time to return phone calls and instant messages rather than thinking you need to reply right away. Some notes may require immediate attention, but many likely do not.

· Block out distractions. Turn off your television and phone and steer clear of social media while trying to get things done. Come back to them later when you've completed your tasks.

· Be flexible. What works for another person may not work for you. Therefore, try a variety of strategies to get a better handle on time management until you discover one that works best for you. ■

Black Forrest Roulade

Serves 8-10

- 1 teaspoon sunflower oil, for oiling
- 6 ounces semisweet chocolate
- 2 to 3 tablespoons kirsch or cognac
- 5 eggs
- 1 cup superfine sugar
- 2 tablespoons confectioners' sugar, sifted

Filling

- 1 1/2 cups heavy cream
- 1 tablespoon kirsch or cognac
- 12 ounces fresh black cherries, pitted, or 14 ounces canned sour cherries, drained and pitted

Preheat the oven to 375 F. Lightly oil and line a jelly roll pan with nonstick parchment paper. Break the chocolate into small pieces and place in a heatproof bowl set over a saucepan of gently simmering water. Add the kirsch and heat gently, stirring until the mixture is smooth. Remove from the pan and set aside.

Place the eggs and sugar in a large heatproof bowl and set over the saucepan of gently simmering water. Whisk the eggs and sugar until very thick and creamy and the whisk leaves a trail when dragged across the surface. Remove from the heat and whisk in the cooled chocolate.

Spoon into the prepared jelly roll pan, the tap the pan lightly on a counter to smooth the top. Bake in the preheated oven for 20 minutes, or until the top feels firm to the touch. Remove from the oven and immediately invert onto a whole sheet of parchment paper that has been sprinkled with confectioners' sugar. Lift off the pan and its lining paper, then roll up, encasing the new parchment paper in the roulade. Let stand until cooled.

For the filling, whip the cream until soft peaks form, then stir in the kirsch, reserving 1 to 2 tablespoons. Unroll the roulade and spread the cream over to within 1/4-inch of the edges. Scatter the cherries over the cream. Carefully roll up the roulade again and place on a serving platter. ■
