Sheffield's
EPA Grant

ATLANTA – The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) selected 172 communities across the country including five in Alabama to receive funding for Brownfield site revitalization. This will help local governments redevelop vacant and unused properties. "EPA is committed to working with communities to redevelop Brownfields sites which have plagued their neighborhoods. EPA's Assessment and Cleanup grants target communities that are economically disadvantaged and include places where environmental cleanup and new jobs are most needed," said EPA Administrator Scott Pruitt. "These grants leverage considerable infrastructure and other investments, improving local economies and creating a job growth environment." Among the five communities in Alabama selected to receive grant funding was Sheffield and its Redevelopment Authority. It received $200,000 that will be used to clean up the Lady Ensley Furnace, the old dump, and the former shooting range site. Other Alabama communities on the EPA grant list include Bay Minette, Dothan, Selma, and Tarrant. Studies have shown that residential property values near cleaned-up Brownfields sites increased 5-15.2%. Properties a mile away can increase in value from a revitalization site.

Holland
to Lead Chamber

SHOALS—The Board of Directors of the Shoals Chamber of Commerce has named Caitlin Burns Holland as Chamber President after a national search to fill the position. Holland has served as the Chamber's Vice President for Investor Relations since November 2015, and she will start her position immediately. Macke Mauldin, past Chamber Chair and President of Bank Independent, headed the search committee. The Chamber engaged

The year was 1967. Gasoline was $.33 per gallon, movie tickets were $1.25, and the Beatles were singing, "All You Need Is Love." Also that year at the young age of 19, Wenston Dison was drafted. After training stints at Fort Benning, GA, Fort Knox, KY, and Fort Riley, KS, Dison was about to be deployed as a cook in the Army in 1968. A civilian by the name of Connie Webber was contracted before deployment to direct the entertainment portion of the send-off. She asked Dison and the rest of the 63 Signal Battalion to sign a burlap blanket as a keepsake in their honor. Then off they went on a 21 day journey to

Nha Trang, Vietnam. "It was scary, but I was glad to go," commented Dison. He cooked for the troops for one year. Dison had a passion for cooking in his early years so the job came easy - except for the heat. Summer temperatures were routinely above 100° fahrenheit with excessive humidity. Dison and four other cooks served breakfast, lunch, and dinner for 800 troops per day. Some of their favorite meals were sausage-gravy and toast for breakfast, roast for dinner, and ice cream, of course. When hamburgers were served, Dison and the other cooks would crank out 1600 buns made by hand. The life-sustaining food was one of the few pleasures for the troops during the war. Upon Dison's return to the

Do You Believe The Bible?

You might have heard the following story, but please allow me to tell it one more time. Once there was a man (who was educated above his intelligence) giving a lecture about the Bible. He had little respect for much of its content, especially anything to do with miracles. In his speech he especially belittled the story of Jonah and the whale. He presented a lot of "proof" as to how it would have been impossible for a man to be swallowed whole by a whale- - let alone survive for three days.

In the audience there was a little old lady who had endured this man's tirade against the Bible. When he finished and opened the floor to questions, she was the first one to raise her hand. She began, "Mister, I have listened carefully to your comments dismissing the miracles of the Bible as a hoax and I want you to know I couldn't disagree with you more!" "Oh" replied the instructor, "then maybe you would like to take the podium and explain scientifically the Jonah and the whale story," he said in a condescending voice.

"I'm sure I could not do that to your satisfaction," she answered. "All I know is that the Bible says the 'Lord prepared a great fish to swallow Jonah' and I reckon I will have to ask Jonah the rest when I get to heaven." To that the lecturer asked with a smirk, "And what if Jonah is not in heaven?" Not rattled in the least, the little lady confidently countered, "Then, I reckon sir, you will have to ask him!"

What an answer! Here was someone who had the confidence in the Bible to know if the Bible said it- - it was true- - regardless of whether she could explain the details of it or not. Isn't that true with a lot of Bible teachings? For example, I believe fully that God created the heavens and the earth (Genesis 1-2). Of course, I was not there! And I could not even begin to explain how He made something out of nothing! Yet, I believe it to be true because I believe the Bible to be God's revelation to us (II Timothy 3:16-17).

Finally, consider the apostle Thomas who would not accept the resurrection of Jesus until he could see Jesus with his own eyes which he was given the opportunity to do. Thomas then declared: "My Lord and my God!" Jesus went on to say, "Thomas, because you have seen Me, you have believed. Blessed are those who have not seen and yet have believed" (John 20:27-29). We who believe the Bible to be true are still among the "blessed"!

Blanket...

States in 1969, he was reunited with a childhood friend, Bonnie, and they married a year later. The couple had three children (with their son now looking down from heaven), four grandchildren, and two great grandchildren. After a lifelong career in carpentry, Dison is now retired and much more relaxed these days. He enjoys fishing, lawn maintenance at home and church, and tending to his goats.

Dison recently received a call from Dawn Griffin, a kind woman who was trying to piece together some history she had stumbled upon in her hometown of Loveland, Colorado. Griffin had bought the contents of an abandoned storage unit. Inside the unit was an Army foot locker. That foot locker had been home to the long ago-forgotten blanket signed by Dison and the others in the unit. Griffin diligently tried to locate any one of the troops who had signed his name. She was unsuccessful until she found Dison's name and a landline phone number.

Thanks to the kind deed of a stranger who knew there was only one place the blanket deserved to rest, Dison is now the proud owner of the history he helped created so many years ago.

Thank you, Mr. Dison, and to the men and women of the armed forces who serve our country with pride to keep us free.

Holland...

Wheless Partners Executive Search and Leadership Consultants to manage the search.

"Wheless has extensive experience in the Shoals and vetted over 300 candidates. The search committee interviewed seven very capable candidates," said Mauldin. "After a nationwide and thorough search, we are pleased that the most qualified candidate is right here at home. In addition to Caitlin's enthusiasm, she demonstrated the best combination of skills, talent, and knowledge of the Shoals to benefit our members for years to come."

Before joining the Shoals Chamber, Holland led a private law firm. Prior to that, she served as the Director of Resource Development for the United Way of Northwest Alabama. During her tenure at the Chamber, Holland has managed the Rhythm of Commerce capital campaign, organized legislative trips to Montgomery and Washington, D.C. and facilitated first-time events such as Shoals Alabama Launchpad and CO.STARTERS.

"I am incredibly thankful for this opportunity to serve my home," remarked Holland. "It is truly an honor to be selected. I will continue to focus on meeting the goals of our capital campaign. Our chamber is well-positioned to advance our region and to assure a robust and dynamic economy where businesses of all kinds can thrive."

Holland holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in Mass Communication from Auburn University and a Juris Doctor degree from Cumberland School of Law at Samford University. She is a Sheffield resident and is married to Tre' Holland. The couple has one son, Fort.

Greg Carnes, Chairman of the Shoals Chamber of Commerce and Dean of the UNA College of Business, said, "We focused on three areas to identify our top candidate: experience, leadership, and personality. Caitlin exceeded our expectations in all three."

A celebratory reception is being planned and will be announced soon.

Why Colbert County needs an independent ambulance company.

If you live in Colbert County and dial 911 right now, the ambulance that picks you up will have a Huntsville Hospital logo on it.

So, it should come as no surprise that, if you're in Muscle Shoals, for example, there's an 83% chance you'll end up in an out-of-town hospital.

We believe Colbert County patients deserve better.

Because every year, families in the greater Shoals area spend $205 million due to out-of-town hospital stays, according to an independent study. That's great for the out of town hospitals, but too often it means emotional stress and financial hardship for area families.

We're Shoals Hospital, and we believe the time has come to have an independent ambulance company in Colbert County. An independent company will take you to the hospital that makes the most sense for you and your medical condition.

It will also mean less cost and stress for Shoals families. And that's good for everyone.

ASK THE ATTORNEY

MAKE THE RIGHT CHOICE

Thomas McCutcheon

Ask the Attorney is sponsored by local attorneys, McCutcheon & Hamner, PC, as a service to the residents of NW Alabama.

I have written this column for 10 years and enjoyed doing so. I have never tried to advertise for my law firm (McCutcheon & Hamner) and have always tried to emphasize that it is as important to hire the right attorney for the type of case that you have as it is to hire the appropriate doctor for the medical problem that you have. There are few recognized legal specialties but there are at least 25 legal sections of the American Bar Association.

In this day and age no single attorney can be an expert in every field. Tax lawyers and intellectual property lawyers must have specialized education and there are requirements for attorneys who handle capital murder cases. Certainly the Federal Courts have their own admissions and certification requirements and the various state bar organizations require continuing legal education and have fairly strict requirements for what is continuing legal education.

That said, we happily continue to see people who thought they were hiring a lawyer they had seen through advertising only to find that it wasn't that lawyer but someone they had never heard of. Occasionally, they would be interviewed by a non-lawyer or find that the law firm didn't handle on-the-job injuries that happened in a car wreck. We recently handled a case for a client who had an on-the-job injury in a car wreck and his previous attorney simply did not handle workers compensation cases. It is important to coordinate the two cases in a manner that maximizes the benefit for the client.

When you hire an attorney, whether it is for a divorce, a criminal matter, estate planning, elder law or personal injury, don't hesitate to ask:

1. Have you handled these cases before?
2. Have you tried these cases before?
3. Have you won these cases before?
4. Have you ever handled an appeal in this area of the law?
5. Will you handle all aspects of this case from beginning to end?

If you are satisfied with these answers from the attorney (not paralegal or investigator) then hire them. Don't hire someone without interviewing them first. Every single employment advertisement for a skilled job in the newspaper requires experience. Hiring a lawyer is no different. An injury can change your life in ways you didn't ask for in a split second. The lawyer you hire is an important part of how satisfied you are with the result of your case.

Buckle up and drive safely.

Please send the questions to: "Ask the Attorney,"

We will not print your full name in the article. We will not be able to return any written or preprinted items which are submitted.

No representation is made that the quality of legal services to be performed is greater than the quality legal services performed by other lawyers.

So, Eradicate the Founding Fathers?

Last week's topic about the ever-growing animosity for anything associated with Civil War gray brings up another issue.

There is ignorance and misplaced anger with respect to Confederate general Robert E. Lee simply because he fought for the south. He did not want a similar position with the Union Army that would have him warring against his family in his home state of Virginia. Conversely, Lee chose to protect them.

The southern/Confederate exclusivity to slave-ownership misconception is rampant. It started much earlier. Many of our founding Fathers supported slavery and benefitted from it. Slavery was legal in all thirteen colonies, not just in the South. Nine U.S. Presidents were slave owners, and eight of them still owned other humans on the day they died.

Names like Madison, Hancock, Henry, and Jefferson are a few of the more celebrated. As misguided as slavery was, it was still popular and legal for all those years. That's why it is clear that Lee gets the short straw on history.

Although George Washington freed all slaves before his death, he himself owned slaves almost all of his adult life, including when he was President.

When Thomas Jefferson penned, "All men are created equal," he was a slave owner. Jefferson and other founders knew that there was a

CENTERSTAGE THEATRE PRESENTS "THE DIXIE SWIM CLUB" a Jones Hope Wooten comedy at the Historic Ritz Theatre, 111 W. Third St., Sheffield on June 8 and 9 at 7:35pm. Admission is $15 for adults and $10 for students. Five southern women, whose friendships began on their college swim team, set aside a long weekend every August to recharge those relationships. As the years pass, these women increasingly rely on one another to get through the challenges of life. This is a hilarious and touching comedy. This play is directed by Laura Connolly and Andrew Maples. For more information, 256-383-0533 or tvaa.net.

The People's Voice?

Editor:

Now that Mo Brooks and Luther Strange, among others, are vying for the U.S. Senate seat, we hope they will attend town hall meetings this summer to explain their approach to vital pending issues.

They are supposed to be representing all of us, not just the coterie of big donors and like-minded supporters. We need open discussion with the candidates to assess who will serve us best in the Senate. We deserve to know their positions, and have them listen to our concerns, on such crucial issues as healthcare, the budget, tax reform, climate change, trade agreements, and the investigation into Russia and the election.

What do they think the Senate should do about the House version of TrumpCare that will reduce health coverage for millions of people, including a significant portion of Alabamians?

The widely-respected Economist magazine wrote (5/24), "Donald Trump's budget ignores what is ailing American workers. Cuts to social programs are unlikely to improve the health or employment prospects for struggling Americans." What do the candidates plan to do about it?

How do they approach reform of the tax regime so that it is fair to all, and not just further benefit the rich? Do they think the U. S. should remain in the Paris Climate Accord? What about NAFTA?

Do they have an open mind and willingness to act on the facts that emerge about Russian interference and possible Trump campaign ties?

We await their presence and want to be heard!

Paris Shift Had To Go

Editor:

A new day has come of prioritizing American interests on the world stage. President Trump will be remembered decades from now as setting the U.S. on a new path of prosperity by leaving the Paris agreement on the ash heap of history where it belongs.

In exiting the Paris Treaty, President Trump has made good on his campaign pledge to put America first. Obama's bad climate deal endangered the future growth of the U.S. economy and millions of jobs that Americans need to provide for their families. In leaving the agreement, President Trump has established that the federal government's first responsibility is to the American people rather than foreign interests. The consequence of the Paris agreement was to simply shift production, growth, and jobs to emerging markets overseas when there are too many working families hurting here at home.

Fortunately, President Trump has not forgotten working families in Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan, and across the country in our industrial base who depend on there being real, good-paying jobs in order to make ends meet. These workers supported him in 2016; the President's commitment to pull out of the Paris climate accord was one of the most important promises made to the American people. A part of his reason for being President was to stop the bad deals that are killing the American economy.

Under Paris the jobs we need to create cannot exist here. Under Paris we cannot increase manufacturing here and we cannot get coal miners back to work. Under Paris we cannot expand our power grid and rid ourselves of these self-inflicted regulatory wounds. Paris was an obstacle to getting Americans back to work. For that reason alone it had to go.

Still the Fake Accusations

Editor:

After all the past accusations the fake news media has brought against President Trump and his administration, none of it has proved to be true.

They are persecuting Jared Kushner out of extreme desperation that maybe just one of their witch hunt stories will have some merit. They want to redeem themselves to their viewers and the Americans who know the media has become inaccurately evil and obsessed with destroying President Trump, his family, and his followers.

May God have mercy on their souls.

If I Have Type 2 Diabetes, How Often Should I Check My Blood Sugar?

This week I will talk about a question I often get from patients in which there is not a straightforward one-size-fits-all answer, which is how often should blood sugar be monitored at home in somebody with type 2 diabetes. A lot depends on your medical history, whether your blood sugars are well controlled or not, whether you are on insulin and whether you suffer from bouts of low blood sugar (hypoglycemia). In addition to that, different physicians and medical groups have strong opinions on the best practices for checking blood sugar and they do not always necessarily agree. Therefore, what I will offer today is only my opinion on how blood sugar should be monitored, recognizing that every case is different and that you should always consult your healthcare provider regarding diabetes management. With that in mind, let me first talk about hypoglycemia. When somebody develops low blood sugar, the most common reasons for this are that the person ate very little or not at all recently, that they are eating less carbohydrates in their diet than normal, that inadvertent overmedication with the blood sugar-lowering medicine occurred, or that this is a response to a recent change to a new or stronger dosage of a diabetes medicine. Sometimes we struggle to explain what the cause was in the first place. The most common symptoms of hypoglycemia noted will include dizziness, fatigue, confusion, sweating, shakiness, palpitations and in worse case scenarios, coma and death. Because hypoglycemia can lead to such dangerous results, we recommend that all diabetic patients have a blood sugar meter and strips so that they can check their sugar on demand should they get symptoms concerning low blood sugar.

Besides checking for low blood sugar, monitoring blood sugar can be very helpful in your overall diabetes care. If you are only on medicines by mouth and your sugars have been under good control, it is reasonable to check your sugars no more than once daily, usually fasting when you first get up. If your sugars have been doing well for a very long time, it is even reasonable to space it less frequently than that. I usually advise patients in these situations not to completely give up checking their blood sugar at home because if it starts rising, it won't be noticed until your next doctors' visit, which could be months away. If you are on oral medicine and the sugars are not on under good control, then I do ask that the patient monitor their sugar on a daily basis. Not only do I want to know what fasting sugars are running, but I am also interested in seeing how their blood sugar changes after a meal. It can give me information about how well you are doing on your diabetic diet as well as how the oral medicine is working. Therefore, I will often ask for blood sugar readings 2 hours after one or more meals daily when blood sugars are not well controlled on oral medicine.

It is very helpful to check your blood sugar more frequently when you are on insulin, whether you take a once-a-day long acting insulin alone, whether you take a long-acting insulin daily combined with short-acting insulin at each meal or whether you take an insulin mixture like 70/30 or 75/25 insulin. Checking your morning sugar daily before breakfast while on insulin therapy lets me know if your longer acting insulin is doing its job, or if its dosage needs to be adjusted. In addition to that, if you also take a short-acting insulin with your meals, checking your sugar before lunch and dinner also lets me know whether the short-acting insulins are doing their job at keeping the sugars down from your previous meal. Therefore, at minimum, I typically recommend checking sugars three times daily when on both a short and long-acting insulin. Once again, when your blood sugar is not well controlled I will usually want to know how your sugar changes after you eat a meal. In those cases, I'll often ask patients to check their sugars a couple of hours after one or more meals. As you can see, deciding on how often to check sugars can get quite complicated and should be individualized to each patient.

Are Your Time And Season Here?

The four seasons annually picture our lives from birth to death. Spring (BIRTH), summer (PRIME OF LIFE), fall (GRAYING AND WRINKLES) and winter (DEATH WITH ETERNITY AND JUDGMENT TO FOLLOW). NOTE: Ecclesiastes 3:1-8 "To every thing there is a season, and a time to every purpose under the heaven: A time to be born, and a time to die; a time to plant, and a time to pluck up that which is planted; A time to kill, and a time to heal; a time to break down, and a time to build up; A time to weep, and a time to laugh; a time to mourn, and a time to dance; A time to cast away stones, and a time to gather stones together; a time to embrace, and a time to refrain from embracing; A time to get, and a time to lose; a time to keep, and a time to cast away; A time to rend, and a time to sew; a time to keep silence, and a time to speak; A time to love, and a time to hate; a time of war, and a time of peace." TIME IS SO PRECIOUS. Each day wasted is lost forever. Each day should be considered an opportunity and privilege to thank and serve our Saviour and Creator. Ephesians 5:16 "Redeeming the time, because the days are evil." Colossians 4:5 "Walk in wisdom toward them that are without, redeeming the time."

Don't let a day pass without thanking God and giving praise to His holy name. A good many of us older folks are going to leave this planet shortly. Facing God is not an option, it's a fact. Our Saviour and Redeemer will want to hear from us why we did what we did and said the things we said and what we did with our time and money. Surely Almighty God is interested in how much time we spent reading His word and praying. Quite possibly we'll be interested in our track record as saved folk. RIGHT? 1 Timothy 5:25 "Likewise also the good works of some are manifest beforehand: and they that are otherwise cannot be hid". Won't it be wonderful to finally get what we have coming? Friend, are you prepared for this (WINTERTIME) event? We are told to: Amos 4:12c... "prepare to meet thy God." ARE YOU READY? Your Saviour, Christ is a whisper away.

Medicare Minute

Medicare Part A Part 2

Last week we discussed how Medicare Part A will cover you if you are admitted into the hospital. A hospital, under Medicare, can be acute care hospitals, critical care hospitals, inpatient rehabilitation facilities, long term care hospitals or mental health care.

The one aspect of Medicare Part A we get the most questions about is coverage at a skilled nursing facility (SNF). To be covered by Medicare at a SNF certain criteria has to be met. First, of course, is you have to have Medicare Part A. Next your doctor has determined that you need daily skilled care given by, or under the supervision of, skilled nursing or therapy personnel. Your skilled nursing care will have to be in a SNF that is certified by Medicare.

What a lot of people don't know is that you must have a "qualifying" hospital stay to be covered at a SNF. Under Medicare a "qualifying" hospital stay is at least a 3-day inpatient stay prior to being admitted to the SNF. If you go to the ER and are held one day for observation and are admitted into the hospital for two days this does not constitute a "qualifying" hospital stay. If you are admitted on a Monday and discharged the following Wednesday this is not a "qualifying" hospital stay. In the two examples above those are 2-day inpatient stays. A good rule of thumb is you must be admitted as inpatient for at least three midnights.

You also need to know that Medicare Part A will only cover you for 100 days at a SNF and only 20 of those days are at 100%. In other words days 1-20 are covered at 100%. Days 21-100 you will pay the first $164.50 per day and Medicare pays the rest of the cost. Starting with day 101 you will pay 100% of the bill.

If you have questions regarding any aspect of Medicare or Medicare health plans feel free call us at Alabama Health Guidance (256-648-5710), stop by our office at 885 Florence Blvd (Four Lane Shopping Center) or email me at ikey@alabamahealthguidance.com. growing trend against slavery in the eighteenth century. If the country survived its quest for independence, its first major hurdle would be an internal reckoning for the coming generations. The quest for independence was upon them. It was the right time to unite the colonies in the direction of independence first. Even though most in the 1770's knew slavery was wrong, they also knew that there would be no unity against Britain if there were also internal concerns about slavery. After the Revolutionary War, discussion turned more and more toward a society free of servitude. If Lee were supposed to view slavery through a twentieth century lens, why shouldn't the others?

I can easily envision a mind-set of the angry mobs carrying this anti-south momentum forward against the memory of the founders.

If all are held to account equally, there are many monuments that will come down, a lot of historic sites, homes, and museums will be razed. The mob will turn its collective attention

Do we have to destroy all the historic bridges in America or will we just try to rename them? In addition to Washington state and Washington D.C.,

How many counties will have to be renamed across the country? How many streets, expressways, high schools, and courthouses? How many thousands of 'insulting' historical markers would be taken?

There are numerous colleges and universities which bear the names of prominent founders and slave-owners of the day. I may actually be in favor of leveling some of those colleges where the out-of-touch enrollment has been demanding safe havens from Trump trauma and any conservative thought or stimulation.

Seriously, can we see how political correctness could deteriorate into total anarchy? Will law enforcement stop the mobs? Or will they stand down as U.S. courts continue with the folly of reversal and revision? They will be granting legal authority for what amounts to historic plundering on a scale the size of the 3,000 year-old treasures that militant Muslims have destroyed in the Middle East, but which are no less historically meaningful to us.

Be aware that an 18 ft statue prominently displayed in Seattle, Washington of communist revolutionary, Vladimir Lenin, head of Russian government from 1917-1924, is free from danger. Lenin was only responsible for a few million politically-related deaths by conservative estimate.

It is easy to understand the snide remarks about Seattle residents comprising a lot of California's rejects.

Loved Right

When you walked out of my gray, wooden growing up house on Third Avenue in my small mountain town in North Carolina - when you walked down our little short sidewalk that intersected the city sidewalk and turned right and preceded to walk up the sidewalk, the house beside ours was where Mrs. Mamie, Mr. Grady and Fred Williams lived. Mrs. Mamie could give you the evil eye if you messed with her grapes, but she also had a funny, little Betty Rubble laugh. Mr. Grady was the first person in my life who I remember dying. He just disappeared, and I never saw his short, dark frame again. Fred was our high school's football star. He was my sister's age, six or seven years older than me. He made men of all the boys by tackling them or throwing them in the bushes or such - much with their approval.

Beyond Fred's house, where the sidewalk met the street corner was the Carson's house. The five kids that lived there were just about the same ages as me and my siblings. Their mother was quiet and could cook and their dad was kind and had one eye that looked the wrong way. The Carsons had like-aged cousins, the Jenkins who lived on the other side of Third Avenue across from my house. All the kids from the neighborhood spent a lot of time on the Carson's corner playing - at first it was hide and seek, stick ball and roller skating - then later, laughing, talking, flirting and figuring life out.

When you turned the corner and walked passed the Carsons', the next house was the spooky abandoned house that Tressy Couch stayed in sometimes. Tressy talked to herself and wore rags. When she wasn't in our neighborhood, she roamed the streets and stayed in a runned-down shack near the black cemetery. I know what all that means now, but when I was little it simply meant that this was the house you ran past at night.

After passing the spooky house, and a deep driveway where the Fergusons and Owens lived, there was the McDaniels' house where my friend Denise lived. Then there was the little Pentecostal church house with the tin roof that rattled with the band jamming inside. Next to the church was Bernard's house. I think he liked me. Beside the McMinn's was the Crestwell's, house, my parents' best friends. (Alberta and Trent, Ruby and Clint). At times, we had fun in their house. We played with Barbies while our parents played cards and our fathers drank. Other times, it was our safe haven.

The next house on the corner was the Creswell's auntie, Mrs. Evelyn Washington. She was a big woman. Turning right at the corner, the rest of our city block went like this: beside Mrs. Evelyn lived Mr. Willie Rawlinson, then there two houses full of Clays; then the Hodges and Mrs. Price's house on the corner on the hill. No one ever cut through Mrs. Price's yard. On the third leg of the block was Coach Lem Jones' house and Mr. Pilgrims' apartment housing. Pilgrim's Funeral home was on the corner of Third Avenue, three doors up from our house. It was on top of a hill that was good for riding down with no hands. That hill's landing was right in front of our little, wooden gray house. My dad always said, "Save the $25 for the hearse, just drag me up the hill." We did not honor that request. After the funeral home was our neighbor, Mr. Byrd, who was always old. And next door were the Youngs. I played with their daughters, Betty Anne and Lynne.

We knew everybody. And I didn't even name families on the other sides of the streets, in alley streets, or down driveways behind the street houses (like the Baileys, my best friends, who lived behind us and shared our driveway. We had the same address but theirs had a 1Z2 on it).

Everybody knew everybody. Everybody knew us - the good and the bad - and yet we were still loved, befriended and supported. This was my village. They gave me safety, security and confidence. They knew us and loved us anyway. They weren't perfect either, but their love was. Knowing each other and loving anyway, that's community - that's righteousness.

by DAVE RAMSEY

BUY LEASED BUILDING?

Dear Dave, I've operated my own small business for a couple of years. In that time, I've been leasing the building that houses my company. How do you know when the time is right to buy a place and stop leasing?
 James

Dear James, I'm a big fan of leasing the first few years after starting your own business. It's even better if you can work out of your home, but I understand that's not always practical.

In my mind, you should only buy a building when you have a good idea what your building needs will be from a solid track record.

Growth is a good thing, but in some cases you may want to hold off buying a building if you're growing too rapidly. Don't make the mistake of focusing too much on real estate and not enough on generating revenue and managing your growth intelligently. You would also want to make sure you're going to be in anything you buy for a while, because you don't want to be stuck with a residual value. A residual value is the remaining value of an asset after it has been fully depreciated.

In the first three to five years of starting your business, you should lease. After that, you can choose to lease with an option to buy or, in the right situation, buy a building — debt-free, of course.
 —Dave

WHAT'S YOUR PRIORITY

Dear Dave, I work weekends while attending college full-time. My parents have been generous enough to pay for most of my school expenses, and they let me live at home while I complete my degree. Still, I'm trying to figure out how to move out and continue working, while continuing my studies full-time and attending career-related events. We live in an area where the cost of living is high, so I'm not sure how to handle all the facets of this situation.
 Joel

Dear Joel, I think out of three things — school, work, and where you live — you need to decide which is your number one priority. If it were me, school would come first.

In order to go to school without borrowing money, you're going to have to work. Getting out of school on time, and attending some of the events that will take you toward your career, will pre-empt work. You'll have to work enough to pay for things, but if you can finish school and hit your academic and graduation goals while staying at home a little bit longer, that's a pretty good deal. It's a nice thing your parents are offering, but I can understand your desire to be out on your own.

I want you to be out on your own as soon as you can, too. But if you do that right now, you're going to have extra bills and be forced to work even more. That's going to disturb your entire school process. Guess what your number one priority was in that scenario? Moving out! If it's the tail that's wagging the dog, it has become the number one priority. If it's disrupting work, and thereby disrupting your academics, then you've put your priorities on the wrong thing.

In my mind, the number priority should be finishing school on time, and attending as many connected events as possible. Meanwhile, you're working so much that you're able to continue doing all this debt-free. If that means you're staying at home a little bit longer to pull it off — do it!

5 Tips For A More Beautiful Lawn

As I was mowing my lawn today I realized it is officially Summer time, which means that the distinct sound of grass cutting and edging equipment is echoing through neighborhoods everywhere... We all want to have the most beautiful lawn possible, right? Here are 5 tips to a more beautiful lawn:

1. Mow it correctly! Make sure you're mowing at the proper height for your lawn. 2 to 2-1/2 inches for Bermuda and 2-1/2 to 3" for Zoysia. The taller and thicker the lawn is, the harder it is for certain weeds to grow. Be sure to never scalp your lawn (cut it too short). Weeds flourish in bare areas where they can hog all of the water and sunlight.

2. Water it! Your lawn needs at least 1" of water per week, whether it's rainfall or irrigation. In-ground water lines can reduce the labor involved (dragging the water hose around the house) in watering, but you have to install (or have installed) the underground water pipes and sprinkler heads in your lawn. Installing a sprinkler system makes it much easier to have the balanced coverage. As far as the best time to water, most experts say early in the morning. This gives your lawn time to absorb the water without the excess evaporation that's caused by midday sun. Late-night watering could promote diseases. And consider investing in a timer.

3. Make sure you properly fertilize! Most experts recommend a high nitrogen, slow release fertilizer over a quick release fertilizer. A granular fertilizer is suggested as well because you can get a better idea of how much you're putting out. Be careful not to over fertilize as it can be very damaging to your lawn.

4. Turn on the sunshine! Grass needs adequate sunlight. If you have bare areas in the shade where grass is just not growing well, plant a more shade friendly grass seed like fescue. Neither Bermuda nor Zoysia will really flourish without enough sunlight.

5. Spray for weeds... AND Bugs! When you spray for weeds, don't forget proper and appropriate insect control. Some insects can absolutely destroy your lawn.

It's no secret that one of the first ingredients of "great curb appeal" is a green, beautiful lawn. Hopefully these tips will help to have all of our lawns "growing" in the right direction...-mrr

Soap Opera Preview

THE BOLD AND THE BEAUTIFUL Convinced that Quinn was the reason for being let go from her position at Forrester Creations, Katie was unable to rid her mind of the venom she felt toward her nemesis. Quinn was afraid to leave the house. Rick explained to Zende the true reason why he and Maya decided to return. Lt. Baker interrogated Ridge about why someone would want to hurt Quinn. Meanwhile, Quinn went to confront her own chief suspect. In an attempt to get Steffy and Sally to set aside their differences, Thomas arranged a double date at Il Giardino. Sally proved to Thomas how much she wanted to be friends with Steffy by donning a new look that she anticipated would impress his sister. Lt. Baker interrogated Katie. Wait to See: A ruthless businessman refuses to back off of a vendetta.

DAYS OF OUR LIVES Abigail didn't trust Dario's story. Lani discovered some unsettling news about the island. Kate made a shocking move. Chad and Gabi's feelings continued to grow. The castaways began to panic when they realized that Eli was missing. Hope questioned Myron and grew more suspicious of Dario. John was summoned to return to his ISA mission and prepared to say goodbye to Marlena. Sonny feared for Paul's safety. Gabi was knocked unconscious. Wait to See: Steve uncovers information regarding Adrienne's competitor.

GENERAL HOSPITAL Carly second-guessed herself. Scotty worried about his fate. Sonny confided in Laura. Jordan asked TJ a big favor. Sam found herself on edge. Jason was determined to find out who was doing Helena's bidding. Anna stopped by Lulu's. Amy had a favor to ask. Jason got ahead of his enemy. Liz took great pains to keep Jake safe. Sam was less than thrilled to see her mother. Olivia got some surprising news. Nathan gained a little perspective. Jason learned the truth, while Sam had a premonition. Lulu and Dante were in over their heads. Kevin whisked Laura away. Jason was taken aback. Ned and Olivia made a big decision. Michael had something important to discuss with Nelle. Ava was devastated. Wait to See: A friendly game leads to some painful memories.

THE YOUNG AND THE RESTLESS Billy told Phyllis he wanted to make the most of each day and asked to move in with her, and Phyllis joyfully accepted. At the GCAC, Ashley overheard Graham wrapping up a call saying that he and Dina were returning to Paris. Ashley wondered if Graham was taking advantage of her mother. Victor pressed Abby to admit to secretly starting the incubator and purchasing the warehouse. Reed invited Mattie to open-mic night. Later, Mattie told Lily that she met someone. Lauren cornered Sharon and mentioned that she was worried about her dating Scott because of her complicated history. Gloria overheard and warned Lauren that her opposition would just push her son and Sharon closer together. Wait to See: Nikki questions Tessa's loyalty.
