HOW THE BALD EAGLE RETURNED TO NEW YORK

By Douglas H. Domedion

They are back!

Your chances of seeing a bald eagle soaring across the sky or sitting in a tree around a marsh in this area is pretty good today, and this situation is getting better every year. I spend a lot of time photographing in our refuge areas and also keeping tabs on our nesting eagles, so I see eagles quite frequently. Just this last week I saw a new pair of adult eagles in our "swamp," so a new nest may be on its way. We have four active nests between the federal and state refuge areas here. There are several more on private land in the surrounding area and probably a couple more we haven't found yet.

However, this has not always been the case, because mankind screwed them up, along with a lot of other birds with the insecticide DDT back in the 1940s. At that time it was believed to be a "wonder cure" for controlling mosquitoes and many crop-eating insects. However, it killed small birds outright and the fish and small mammals were being contaminated, which in turn affected the larger birds of prey such as the osprey, peregrine falcons, and of course our bald eagle. The effect was gradual, but what happened was that it accumulated in the bodies of these birds of prey and in time caused them to have very thin eggshells. This in turn caused the eggs to easily break while being incubated and eventually there was no successful reproduction. Being long-lived birds this was not noticed in the early years, but eventually we caught on and the DDT was banned in 1972. By this time the damage had already been done.

In 1976, New York State only had one nesting pair of eagles left (Hemlock Lake) and they had produced only a few young in 11 years because the female just had too much build up of the DDT and most of her eggs were unsuccessful. Because eagles do not mate until they are 4 or even 5 years old you can see where things were headed; no young to mature to mating ages, no birds to fill the loss of old birds.

The peregrine falcon had been pushed almost into extinction because of heavy DDT usage east of the Mississippi River, but some Cornell folks figured out a way to breed and raise them in captivity and then eventually released into the wild to start to rebuild their numbers.

In 1976, two young men working for the DEC were given the task to learn all they could about bald eagles for the next two years and eventually come up with a plan for the restoration of the birds in New York State. This they did with dedication and working with the fellow who led the way for restoring the peregrine falcon they came up with a plan; one that was totally new with bald eagles.

What these two fellows decided to try was something called hacking, where a young bird from another nest would be put in the nest, at the right time, of the last remaining eagles in NYS that would hopefully accept and raise it. That happened and the idea for a large-scale hacking program was formulated and the new restoration project started. Young eaglets were gotten from other states where the eagles were being successful and raised in special hacking towers here that were basically large cages up 35 feet on telephone poles. The birds were hand raised with minimum human contact and released into the wild at the proper time. Hopefully these "new" birds, that were not laced with DDT, would become the nucleus of a new generation of bald eagles in NYS.

Of course this had to be done on a large scale across the state and it would be at least four years to find out if this project was working and even longer for the eagle population to really take off.

So these two young men, with the help of volunteers, dedicated their lives to bringing the eagle back to us. Eventually four different hacking sites were used across the state from 1976 until 1988. It has been a long journey, but a very successful one with one of the first three new eagle nests actually popping up on the Iroquois National Wildlife Refuge in 1986 as a direct result of hacking program in the State Oak Orchard Wildlife Management Area in 1981 and 1982 where a total of 42 eaglets were raised.

These two dedicated men, Peter Nye (head of the NYS Endangered Species Unit) and Mike Allen (a Wildlife Technician in Avon), have given us back our national bird. Both these men have retired, but they are still very active in the welfare of our eagles. Now the eagles may be up against other dangers such as new chemicals in the environment, wind turbines and possible mining near the Iroquois National Refuge. We didn't know all the problems we created in the 1940s with DDT, do we really know what kind of problems we are creating now?

To hear the whole story of the return of the bald eagle to NYS join one of these dedicated eagle men, Mike Allen, on Nov. 2, at the Barker High School Cafeteria at 1628 Quaker Road at 7 p.m. The event is free to the public and you really don't want to miss this wonderful opportunity to look into the restoration of our National bird that WE almost drove into extinction through our ignorance!

My contact information is 585-798-4022 or woodduck2020@yahoo.com. Remember I'm always interested in hearing about where you are spotting eagles in our area. More nests are showing up along the Lake Ontario shoreline and we need to know where they are so they can be protected from predators (raccoons) and US!

PREPARING FOR THE WORST

For all too many married couples, what begins as a love match can dissolve into the legal entanglement of divorce. While many argue that a premarital agreement is nothing more than a cynical gesture, others counter that it represents a realistic application of the strategy of "hoping for the best and preparing for the worst." From a legal standpoint, it somewhat resembles a will in that it can be used to control how property will be divided in the event of divorce or death of one of the spouses. Of course, death is inevitable and divorce is not. Yet, just as a will is drawn up in anticipation of a life-changing event, a premarital agreement does much the same.

Do you have any questions about prenuptial agreements? If so, please call the Law Office of MACK & PACE. Our experienced family law attorneys will help you draft a thoughtful document that can help if the marriage dissolves. We can provide the expertise that you need and the compassion that you deserve when dealing with such a difficult issue. In addition, we can also help with adoptions, child custody agreements, and separation decrees. Call in order to schedule an initial consultation.

HINT: The purpose of a carefully prepared premarital agreement is to make it legally binding and enforceable.

Tips on how to write CLASSIFIED ADS that

SELL!

- 1. USE A KEY WORD. This immediately tells the reader exactly what you have to sell.
- 2. Make your description CLEAR AND FACTUAL. State the year, make, model, color & size and tell what condition the item is in. Also, state the special features.
- 3. STATE THE PRICE. Successful classified advertisers have learned that the price in an ad helps increase the chances for results.
- 4. IF THERE IS A GENUINE SENSE OF URGENCY, say so. The words "We're moving," or "Must sell fast," suggest that readers respond immediately.
- 5. INCLUDE YOUR PHONE NUMBER. Classifieds get results fast and often generate immediate sales. If you cannot be available to answer the phone at all times, be sure to specify special calling times such as "after 9pm" or "before 11am."

Choose the Right Tire for your Vehicle & Season

The following are descriptions of common tire types and the conditions in which they might make the best fit.

All-season

All-season tires provide all-season versatility, good wear and ride comfort. They can be dependable tires and offer light snow traction as well.

All-season tires provide adequate protection in many conditions, but do not offer specific benefits in any one area. They're likely to be satisfactory for a vast array of drivers. All-season tires are typically offered in touring and passenger types. Touring will provide lower road noise and better handling, while passenger varieties offer a smooth ride and longevity.

Summer tires

Summer tires are designed to offer traction and maneuverability in warm weather. Orbital grooves and complex treads maximize traction in hot, humid weather. If you live in an area where the temperature is consistently steamy, summer tires may be a good investment.

Winter tires

A safety precaution for many people who live where conditions often include snow, ice and cold weather, winter tires can be lifesavers. These tires are designed using several different types of rubber, and feature tread designs that maximize traction during inclement conditions. Winter tires also come in various subcategories. Studdable winter tires provide the extra security of added studs to enhance traction on ice. Performance winter tires offer better dry road handling, but traction on snow and ice may be compromised.

Performance tires

Performance tires offer a sports car feel. These are meant for drivers who want to feel the road and increase low-speed traction. The higher the level of performance, the increased level of handling and stability at high speeds.

Truck tires

Trucks, pickups and SUVs also have a variety of tire types. There are off-road varieties, which will offer an aggressive tread design for off-road traction and other obstacles. Light truck tires help provide durability and traction. Specially designed SUV tires may be large, but can still offer comfort-focused applications designed for on-road driving. ■

Indicators It's Time to Change Air Filters

Vehicle maintenance can protect drivers' investments and help their automobiles run efficiently. One area drivers should pay particular attention to is their vehicles' air filters. When operating at optimal capacity, an air filter improves fuel efficiency while ensuring vehicles accelerate smoothly without taxing the engine. But when air filters are clogged, fuel efficiency is reduced and emissions are increased, a 1-2 punch that costs motorists money and hurts the planet at the same time. Drivers can check their owners' manuals to determine the recommended intervals to replace air filters, but the following are a handful of indicators that suggest it's time to change them.

• Gas mileage: Unless you just purchased your vehicle, you likely know how many miles you can drive on a full tank of gas. If that gas mileage is suddenly slipping and you find yourself visiting the filling station more frequently, then it might be time to replace your air filter.

• Engine light: Drivers may be alerted to engine issues when the "Check engine" lights up on the vehicle's dashboard. This light may come on to indicate a problem with the air filter, as clogged air filters reduce air flow to the engine, resulting in an imbalanced air-fuel mixture that adversely affects the engine.

• Starting and idling problems: Vehicles sometimes don't start up as smoothly as they once did, and drivers may also notice vehicles are not idling smoothly. These symptoms may indicate misfiring spark plugs that are being polluted (and made less effective) by a dirty air filter that is reducing the flow of air to the engine.

• Acceleration difficulties: Automobiles that are operating at peak capacity accelerate quickly. But dirty, worn out air filters adversely affect acceleration. Drivers who notice that their cars are struggling to accelerate when stoplights turn green or on highways may need to replace their vehicles' air filters.

• Dirty air filter: Perhaps the biggest indicator that an air filter needs to be replaced is the filter itself. If you cannot find the air filter on your own, consult your vehicle owner's manual to determine where it is. Once you find the air filter, examine it in broad daylight. Clean air filters are white, so if the filter has darkened, it may need to be replaced. ■

Prepare Vehicles for Harsh Weather

As the seasons change, motorists must take steps to safeguard their vehicles, especially when the season changes from fall to winter. Each winter, many vehicles are subjected to sub-zero temperatures, snowfall and icy roads, and such conditions can take their toll on vehicles over time. Taking steps to prepare vehicles for winter weather is a vital step that can make cars and trucks safer for drivers and their passengers.

Battery

Old batteries should be replaced before winter begins. Without a strong, properly functioning battery, engines cannot turn over. Most batteries last between three and five years. However, extreme cold can compromise batteries, especially those that have been around awhile. Batteries are made up of acid and water, and cold temperatures can freeze the water, thereby affecting battery performance. According to AAA's Automotive Research Center, at 32 F, the average battery loses 35 percent of its strength.

Newer batteries can be protected by starting the vehicle each day to warm up and recharge the battery. Let the car run for at least 10 minutes if you cannot take an extended drive.

Exterior maintenance

Keeping a car waxed and sealed can help maintain a durable exterior finish. This includes not only the paint, but the rubber and vinyl parts of the car's exterior.

Winter is a good time to switch to a heavy-duty synthetic wax that can shield against water and road salts. High-quality sealants can be used on bumpers, trim and rubber door seals as added protection. Speak with an automotive retailer or even the car dealership if you are unsure which products will make your car's parts most durable for winter weather.

Do not stop washing your car just because the weather is cold. Slushy, wet roads and snow-melting salts can speed up the formation of rust or other decay on the undercarriage of the vehicle. These materials will need to be periodically cleaned off. Flush the underside of the vehicle whenever possible, taking advantage of any dry, slightly warmer days.

Tire pressure

Vehicle tires lose a pound of air pressure for every 10-degree drop in temperature. Many modern cars will alert to changes in air pressure, and drivers should be diligent in maintaining the proper tire pressure. Fuel economy as well as handling ability can decline when tires are not inflated properly. Tires can be refilled at many gas stations for little cost.

Wipers

Visibility is key in hazardous weather conditions, and keeping the windshield clean is a priority. This means ensuring there is enough windshield wiper fluid in the car and that it is a product that will not freeze.

Wiper blades can freeze and crack in the winter. Older blades may be more susceptible to damage. It's a worthy investment to replace existing wiper blades at the start of each winter. When vehicles are parked, pull the wipers off of the windshield to safeguard them from sticking and cracking.

Cold weather requires drivers to amp up their vehicle maintenance routines. Consult with a mechanic or automotive retailer for more ideas and products that can help your vehicles operate safely and efficiently this winter. ■

☛ LIGHT & MEDIUM TOWING ☛ OFFROAD RECOVERY

Protect Your Vehicle From Snow, Ice, & Damage from the Cold

Winter can be an unforgiving season. Freezing temperatures coupled with snow and ice can take its toll on people who live in climates where cold weather is a fact of winter life.

While winter can test people's patience, it also can be harsh on cars and trucks. Understanding what components of a vehicle can be compromised by dropping temperatures and snowy roads can help drivers take action to safeguard their automotive investments.

While winter can wreak havoc on just about every part of a vehicle, there are some parts that seem to bear the brunt of Old Man Winter's abuse. Properly servicing and caring for a car or truck can help.

Drivers should take their vehicles for a tune-up and inspection before wintry weather arrives. A mechanic will examine the car battery and check antifreeze levels and make sure that the thermostat, defroster, brakes, and even wiper blades are working effectively. Have the tires inspected for adequate tread, which can make navigating roads safer. If the treads are worn, replace the tires.

In addition to visiting their mechanics, drivers can perform some inspections and fixes themselves.

- Check that all of the vehicle's lights are operational so your car can be easily seen during inclement weather. Exchange your existing windshield washer fluid with one that will not freeze in cold conditions. Check the nozzles on the windshield-washer system routinely and clear out any blockages of ice or debris. While addressing windshield washer fluid, also replace worn out windshield wiper blades with ones that can withstand snow and icy weather.

- A new coating of wax can serve as a shield against road salt, snow, sleet, and rain. Try a polymer wax to protect the paint. Whenever possible, rinse off salt and grime so it does not dry on the car and gradually wear away at the paint. Some drivers mistakenly believe that salt stops being a problem once it dries simply because moisture is the active ingredient for a corrosive reaction. But humidity in the air is enough to keep the salt eating away at the car's paint, and that can contribute to rust. Be sure to rinse off the undercarriage of the vehicle as well.

- Have your tires' alignment checked toward the end of winter or early spring. A season of traveling over pothole-ridden roads or hitting curbs buried under snow drifts can affect the alignment. Get everything back on track. Similarly, inspect tires routinely, as weather changes can affect tire pressure and strength.

- Use a soft snow brush or a foam brush to clear snow off of the car. Avoid hard plastic scrapers you might use on your windshield, as they can scratch painted surfaces.

- Try to park the vehicle in a garage or under a car port, each of which can protect cars and trucks from the often harsh elements of winter.

Vehicles can be affected by the cold weather. Keep them running efficiently to prevent damage this winter. ■

Scrapers should only be used on windows and not on the body of the car.

Three Ways to Conserve Fuel During Your Daily Commute

Commuting is a part of daily life for many working professionals. According to the U.S. Census Bureau's 2011 American Community Survey, the average American spends 25 minutes commuting to work each day. However, Citi's 2015 ThankYou Premier Commuter Index says the average commute time in the United States is 45 minutes. The reasons for that disparity are unknown, though if one accepts the latter statistic as more accurate than the years-old Census Bureau data, it's fair to say Americans spend far more time getting to work than their neighbors to the north. But commutes in Canada also can be lengthy, as Canada's National Household Survey found that, in 2011, commuters in Canada spent an average of roughly 25 minutes traveling to work each day.

While many people enjoy their daily commutes, feeling it's a time to prepare for the day ahead and, if using public transportation, to relax and let someone else do the work, it's fair to say the majority of commuters would like to spend less time getting to and from work. Many would also like to spend less money getting to and from their offices, and finding ways to conserve fuel is an effective way to do just that.

1. Maintain your vehicle.

Poorly maintained vehicles endure undue stress that can be prevented by adhering to routine maintenance schedules.

Peruse your vehicle's owner's manuals to determine the recommended intervals to change the oil and replace the air filter and spark plugs. These simple maintenance tasks are easy and inexpensive, but they make it easier for engines to run smoothly and make efficient use of fuel.

2. Keep tires properly inflated.

Properly inflated tires reduce drag on the engine. Engine drag makes the vehicle work hard to move, and that wastes fuel. But the type of tires a vehicle has also can affect how efficiently it uses fuel. According to the Transportation Research Board, tires that reduce rolling resistance by 10 percent can improve gas mileage by as much as 2 percent. While that figure might seem insignificant, that 2 percent savings can add up to a substantial amount of money for commuters who spend 50 minutes every day getting to and from work.

3. Drive a vehicle with stop/start technology.

Stop/start systems, in which engines shut off automatically when drivers brake and restart automatically when the driver lifts his or her foot off the brake pedal, can make more efficient use of fuel. Once exclusive to hybrid cars, stop/start technology is now more widely available and can cut back on fuel consumption and vehicle emissions. That's especially attractive to eco-conscious commuters who live in big cities where stop-and-start traffic is unavoidable. What's more, many modern air conditioning compressors operate off electricity and not via a car's engine, meaning vehicles with stop/start technology will stay cool in the summer even when the engine shuts off.

Commuting to and from work may not seem like the most eco-friendly daily ritual. But there are ways to commute and conserve fuel at the same time. ■

MEDINA STUDENT DONATES $190 FOR NEW K-9

On Oct. 6, 2016, Aurora Owczarczak, 7, and a student at Oak Orchard Elementary in Medina visited the Sheriff Department. She brought with her $190 worth of donations from several Village of Medina businesses. The donations will be going toward the new Sheriff K-9, Otto. In addition to the purchase of the dog, remaining donations will go to items needed for Otto's care.

When Aurora visited the department, she met with Sheriff Randall Bower, Undersheriff Christopher Bourke, and Otto's handler, Deputy Jeffrey Cole.

Aurora would like to raise $1000 and will continue to go around to local businesses in the hopes of reaching her goal. We at the Sheriff's Department would like to thank Aurora for her dedication and hard work that she has put in to securing these donations.

The Right Way to Update a Resumé

The job market can be competitive, as new graduates flood the field each and every year. But graduation season is not the only time of year when the competition to find work gets heated.

The start of the new year tends to be one of the busiest times of year for new hires. According to the employment resource Simply Hired, the first Monday after New Year's Day tends to be the busiest day for job search activity. Companies are returning to full production after the holidays, and as a result there is a flurry of new activity. This means applicants can use the last quarter of the year to prepare for job searches they will institute once the calendar turns.

Many job seekers may benefit from revamping their résumés before beginning their search. It's not uncommon for recruiters to receive thousands of résumés for each job opening they post, and the sheer volume of applicants can make it difficult for job seekers to get their résumés seen. In such instances, job seekers must take steps to tip the odds in their favor. By following these guidelines, job seekers may have a better chance of getting their résumés into the right hands.

- Put a professional purpose. Modern standards may suggest that listing a career "objective" is old fashioned. However, it is helpful to customize your resumé so that it is geared toward the position for which you are applying. A career objective may reflect how you are a strong candidate for each specific job you apply for. Use some specifics that tie into to the particular job or company and you may catch the hiring manager's attention in the process.

- Embrace keywords. Many employers now use application tracking software to sift through the scores of résumés that are submitted for each opening they post. Keywords make it easy for employers to sort through thousands of résumés. The right keywords will flag your resumé and increase your "relevancy score" in the main HR/recruiting software programs available. Adapt your resumé for each application you submit. Use some of the words listed in the initial job posting and description. In addition, look at similar job postings and incorporate some keywords listed in those ads so that you have all the bases covered.

- Trim the fat. Less is often more regarding résumés. List all of the pertinent information, then go over the resumé again and again and cut out any irrelevant information to remove clutter. Only include information that is relevant to your career goals.

- Highlight what you have done. Rather than listing every job responsibility and position in chronological order, use a resumé to highlight specific career accomplishments. This is a time to be your biggest fan and tell the world all of the great things you have accomplished. Remember to include evidence to back up the claims. According to a 2015 survey by CareerBuilder, employers say that résumés that include links to a candidate's portfolio, website or blog garner more attention than résumés without such links.

- Put your own voice in the resumé. Rather than using standard verbiage on your resumé, personalize what you want to say. Hiring managers want to hire a human, not a machine. When speaking about yourself, be sure to use strong action words that define your skills even further. HR professionals cite terms like "managed," "achieved" and "improved" as examples of positive, assertive words.

Updating a resumé with the goal of standing out among a crowded pool of applicants is a great way for job seekers to land a new job. ■

Apple Bobbing

Apple bobbing once was used as a way to weed out potential marriage suitors. Since then, it has become a fun Halloween party game primarily for children.

Apples are synonymous with autumn. Apples ripen as the cool days of fall begin to arrive, and come Halloween, apples are a part of spooky celebrations that can be used for treats and games and as part of seasonal decorating.

Apple bobbing is one autumn tradition that involves the use of apples. Despite the popularity of apple bobbing around Halloween, some historians believe the tradition of bobbing for apples is rooted in love and romance and has little to do with trick-or-treating. According to History.com, apple bobbing began as a courting ritual. While the rules of the game varied, the idea was to attempt to bite into the apple named for the young man the woman desired. This method of courting eventually became less popular, but bobbing for apples was resurrected in the early 20th century when Americans who traced their roots to Ireland and England began playing the game at Halloween parties.

Although apple bobbing still occurs today, many eschew the tradition because of germs. The concept of sticking one's face into a communal bucket of water isn't appealing in a society that prioritizes sanitary behavior. Those who grew up bobbing for apples and want to continue the tradition in a more sanitary way can create individualized games. Instead of one large bucket, purchase smaller buckets and fill them with water. Place a couple of apples in each bucket and let participants race to see who can grab an apple first.

Another variation is to tie apples from strings and suspend them from a clothesline or a horizontal beam, as the ancient Celts once did. Participants try to grab the apples using only their mouths.

Some might be surprised to learn that bobbing for apples is rooted in ancient customs that may have had something to do with marriage. While few would pair matrimony with bobbing for apples today, this fun tradition can still be enjoyed by Halloween revelers. ■
