APL displays veterans' photography exhibit

On Tuesday, November 10 at 6:30 p.m., Auburn Public Library will unveil a moving display of pin-hole photographs taken by United States military veterans that attests to the healing power of art. Participating artists will discuss the project, called "To Bridge the Gap: Loss and Re-Creation of Identity."

Project organizer and artist Adam Ogden worked closely with veterans using the power of art as a means of emotional therapy. He says the project has helped veterans regain their grasp of who they are while providing exercise for their hands, eyes and mind. The program is free and open to the public.

Oxford Networks fitness walk to benefit the United Way

To kick off its fall United Way campaign, Oxford Networks employees held a fitness walk October 30 to raise money for the United Way. Employees, many in costume, donated a minimum contribution to participate. Walkers strolled through downtown Lewiston, distributing candy and smiles to passers-by. Oxford Networks raised more than $300 from participation across its various locations. Pictured from left to right in the group photo are: Ann Marie Payne, Russell Andrews (in ape costume), Andrea Murphy (kneeling), Denise Chick, Meredith Black (in witch hat), Brad Carr from the United Way of Androscoggin County, Dawna Hannan, Marc Vanderwood (werewolf), Pam Holley, Paul Badeau, Susan Lindkvist (from the United Way), Matt Shaw (from the United Way), and Janet Bilodeau (kneeling as teapot). Parish offers community Veterans Day service

Prince of Peace Parish will host a community-wide Veterans Day prayer service at Holy Family Church, located at 607 Sabbatus Street in Lewiston, on Wednesday, November 11 at 6:30 p.m. Called "We Remember and Give Thanks," the service is open to all regardless of faith denomination or affiliation as area clergy join together to commemorate the brave men and women of our military in prayer and song.

This is the twelfth year that Prince of Peace Parish has offered this special evening of reflection honoring those who have served and are currently serving in the United States Armed Forces.

All active and inactive military members and their families are invited to attend. Active soldiers living in the area or home on leave are encouraged to attend in uniform.

Words cannot explain our gratitude to each and every veteran for their service in defense of our country or our special thanks to those who gave the ultimate gift to ensure our freedom. The entire community is invited to give thanks and remember!

Governor's Address: Trade Missions: Investing in Business and People

After spending a week in China and Japan with more than a dozen delegates, I am confident our business and educational ties are stronger than ever.

Dear Maine Taxpayer,

There is so much interest in Maine from China. We have real opportunities in medical tourism, attracting more students to study at our quality educational institutions and bringing new investments to our manufacturing sectors.

Individuals from Maine food companies, including Ready Seafood, Cozy Harbor and Maine Coast visited e-commerce companies to learn about China's online businesses and direct-to-consumer sales. I also met with seafood investors, who have a growing interest in Maine lobster. We attended a very popular lobster information session and State of Maine reception, which had more than 170

enthusiastic participants enjoying Maine delicacies and signature lobster dishes.

Education was an important aspect of our trip, too. Mt. Blue High School, the University of Maine and the University of Southern Maine were represented. Through meetings we discovered two Chinese institutions interested in expanding their partnerships in marine sciences and social work.

This is my fourth trade mission and while there is significant work advancing investment opportunities both home and abroad, these missions are about building relationships. And I believe we can do a better job at developing those connections.

The Maine Department of Economic and Community Development is researching ways we can offer exchange opportunities to Mainers. Our personal and professional relations with other countries are critical to the future. This is why I would like to see an educational tourism program created to help strengthen our connections with different cultures. The world's globalization is increasing rapidly through advanced technologies. However, education tourism programs offer hands-on experience and personal interaction, helping to develop more meaningful relationships.

While it is important to invest in Maine, it is equally important to invest in our people.

Thank You,
Paul R. LePage
Governor

Redzone

The expanded high speed Internet service in Auburn was privately funded by Redzone and is now in full commercial operation. The recent network launch follows Redzone's September announcement that network coverage had exceeded 100,000 Maine households. In expanding its 4G LTE Advanced broadband network coverage to Maine's fifth largest city, the company has reached another important milestone toward its goal of reaching 25% of Maine by the end of 2015 and over 90% of the state's population by 2018.

"We are very proud to bring the world's most advanced wireless broadband technology to the Auburn community," said Jim McKenna, Redzone Wireless, LLC President. "With its capable and motivated municipal leadership, Auburn is now better positioned from a technology perspective to drive economic growth and development."

"To compete and grow as a community in the 21st

Lewiston City Councilor Leslie Dubois shares a moment with the 106 third graders of Geiger Elementary School.

Lewiston Elks Lodge #371 participated in the nationwide Elks Dictionary Project again this year with the assistance of Lewiston City Councilor Leslie Dubois and her husband, Michael. The Lodge provided dictionaries to the third graders at Geiger Elementary School and the Central Maine Christian Academy in century, to attract business investment and talent, you need to be connected," said Auburn Mayor Jonathan LaBonte. "That used to mean just having access to ports, rail, air or highways. While Auburn still has some of Maine's most robust transportation infrastructure, this addition to our digital connectivity will continue to set us apart from peers in New England. We thank Redzone for their investment and welcome them to Auburn."

What's Going On

St. Dom's student published in "Young Words"

Saint Dominic Academy ninth grade student Emma Skelton of Auburn was recently published in "Young Words," a publication of the 2015 Young Authors Camp.

To further her love of writing, Skelton attended the camp, presented by the Maine Writing Project at the University of Maine at Orono, in July. The camp provides students in grades three through twelve with an opportunity to immerse themselves in the creative writing experience in separate groups for elementary, middle and high school students. Each group works with different teachers and explores new creative writing ideas.

Emma Skelton

The high school group worked with their leader to decide what they wanted to talk and write about. A ceremony at the end of the camp allowed all students to share their work. The camp then selected certain pieces to be included in the published collection.

"We are very proud of Emma for being published," said St. Dom's principal Joline Girouard. "She is a great student and we are very happy to have her as part of the St. Dom's student body."

"Emma has been interested in writing since she was little," said her mother, Sarah Skelton. "But she really dove into it by fifth and sixth grade, when she had language arts teachers who inspired and encouraged her. She loved the camp for the opportunity it gave her to work with new skills and techniques each day."

A chapter of the National Writing Project and supported by the UMaine College of Education & Human Development, the Maine Writing Project has supported professional development for Maine educators and writing activity for Maine students since 1997. Each year, the project hosts a number of Young Authors Camps to develop the skills of young authors, who explore different writing genres, develop their writing skills, and celebrate and share their work with peers and mentors, all while having fun and making new friends.

Honor those who took an oath to defend our country

By Robert E. Macdonald
MAYOR OF LEWISTON

“Uncommon valor was a common virtue.” Thus spoke Admiral Chester Nimitz of the actions of Marines, Navy and Army personnel on the Japanese Pacific Island of Iwo Jima.

In the upcoming week, throughout the United States, we will be observing Veteran’s Day. We will honor those who took an oath to defend our country. Some experienced war; some did not. But all were ready to ride to the sound of the guns. Whether they saw action or not makes them no less a patriot.

The opening quote in this week’s column describes the actions of those on Iwo Jima. But it also describes the actions of our military in all our wars from 1775 to present.

In this day and age we turn on our TVs and computers and are brought to a faraway battle in which our military is currently engaged. Nightly newscasts repeatedly broadcast the action taking place on the ground.

Many of these broadcasts are preceded by a warning that what viewers are about to see may be upsetting. It is suggested to viewers that they may want to leave the room so as not to get upset at the carnage about to be shown. Military personnel engaging the enemy don’t have this luxury.

They are in the middle of this chaos in real time.

Mayor Bob Macdonald

Quiet is suddenly followed by intense terror, confusion and panic occurring all around them. At this point their training kicks in, allowing them to calmly and methodically respond to the chaos and danger surrounding them and allowing them to bring order back to the area.

But what about that which their training does not prepare them for? Sometimes they see small children, both dead and alive, their little bodies smashed and ripped apart. Because of the danger still present, our military personnel are often helpless to do anything for them. How long do you think it takes to remember their own children as they hear cries of pain?

You also see male and female civilians along with animals that have experienced a macabre death. Worst of all, one of your buddies, a friend alive several minutes before, is lying before you dead.

Missing from the TV

is the deafening noises, the nauseating smell of rotting bodies, the extreme heat and cold. You must cope with wounds, fatigue, hunger, thirst and the certainty that the following day you will be told to “saddle up” and do this all over again.

War can be accurately described as long stretches of boredom followed by extreme terror. That boredom can be worse than battle. Your thoughts focus on home. You wonder what family and friends are doing. You think of those comforts temporarily not available to you.

Your mind wonders, and you wonder what you would be doing if you were home. Some may wish they were back home working in that job they thought they hated.

There is no glory in war. In combat, you fight for one another. There are no heroes, only airmen, soldiers, coast guardsmen, marines and sailors. All gave their best, some gave their all. Medals do not bring your fallen friends back to life. If you are fortunate, you will return home whole in body. Rarely, if at all, will you return whole in mind.

When you put on your country’s uniform, you do so to repay the debt owed to our forefathers for the freedom we all currently enjoy—freedom that was paid for by their sweat and blood. It also is an investment in our children’s future.

Thank you for your service. Happy Veteran’s Day!

Hospice Alliance honors AHCH staffers

The Home Care and Hospice Alliance of Maine, in conjunction with the Maine Hospice Council and the Center for End-of-Life Care, announced recently that it will honor two staffers from Androscoggin Home Care and Hospice with its 2015 awards. Receiving the Alliance’s Distinguished Service Award will be AHCH president and CEO Julie Shackley, and receiving its Home Care Volunteer of the Year Award will be AHCH volunteer Cindy Boyd.

The Distinguished Service Award is presented to the employee of any member home care and/or hospice agency who consistently demonstrates outstanding leadership qualities. Julie Shackley has served on the Home Care and Hospice Alliance’s Board of Directors since 2005. She was elected Board Secretary in 2007,

Julie Shackley

Cindy Boyd

Board Vice President in 2009 and Board President in 2011. For many years, she has been at the helm of the Alliance’s leadership when meeting with members of Maine’s Congressional delegation and during its annual “March on Washington.”

The Home Care Volunteer of the Year Award is presented to a dedicated volunteer who supports activities related to home care. Cindy Boyd began volunteering with Androscoggin Home Care & Hospice in November of 2011.

Since then, she has contributed in countless roles, visiting with patients and families, answering phones at Hospice House, helping the Marketing and Development Office with special events, sitting on committees, assisting in a special project as part of the agency’s M.O.D.E.L. Care program, and training to be part part of its Speaker’s Bureau. She does all this with an upbeat, positive attitude while maintaining a calming presence to those who are struggling.

CMCC student receives MEREDA scholarship

Jason Bryant of Buckfield, a second-year student at Central Maine Community College, has been awarded a $1,450 scholarship from the Maine Real Estate & Development Association for study during the current academic year.

Bryant, an honor student in the school’s business administration and management program, is one of eight Maine community college students to receive a scholarship from MEREDA this year. This is the third year the organization has provided scholarships for college students in Maine. Story and photos by Rachel Morin

“Whispers in the Dark,” a murder mystery by Vermont playwright Adam Phillips, made its debut at The Footlights Theatre in Falmouth and we, members of the Theater Group from USM's LA Senior College, were right there in the front rows. It was just before Halloween. The setting was a rustic cabin deep in the Maine woods. And wouldn't you know a raging blizzard outside knocked out lights and phones. The stage was dark. We heard the eerie whispering voices, chilling screams and the loud, crashing sounds. What more would add to the suspense? We soon learned an unidentified body lay on the kitchen floor! When the stage lights came on, we felt part of every scene as our seats were a foot from the stage. The Footlights Theatre is an intimate black box venue, seating 70 patrons in a three tiered stadium seating arrangement. Every seat provides a good vantage point so you don't miss a thing. With bated breath, at the edge of our seats, we watched scene after scene, depicting many twists and turns of the plot. We were truly surprised at the climatic ending when the “whodunit” was revealed. There was some levity in the play, however, as one cast member asked another character in the play, testing his lucidity, “Who is the Governor of Maine?” This brought a wave of laughter from the audience as the expected response came. Following the play, Director Michael J. Tobin came onstage to invite the audience to remain for a “Talk Back” session. This proved to be very interesting and provided new insights to the play. Just about everyone had something to say or questions to ask. It was unanimously agreed that the direction of the play and the acting by the cast members, Mark Calkins, Jackie Oliveri, Vicki Machado and Paul J. Bell were superb. It was soon time to head back to LA, but we stopped at Ricetta's for Italian fare and to review the play amongst ourselves. Over pasta and pizza, we said we would return to The Footlights Theatre in Falmouth as we loved the intimacy of the setting and their murder mystery plays.

YMCA names first Hall of Fame class

Next L-A Law event: “When The Data Breach Happens”

Four members of the Lewiston-Auburn community - Col. James G. Bouchles, Pauline Bourgoin, Richard Kendall and Malcolm Philbrook - will be recognized at the inaugural YMCA Hall of Fame Celebration on Thursday, December 3 from 5 to 7 p.m. at Martindale Country Club in Auburn. Part of the Y's annual meeting, the event will feature local speakers and multimedia presentations, as well as opportunities for networking and to congratulate the inductees and their families. Admission is free and open to the public; donations in honor of the 2015 Hall of Fame class will be gratefully accepted. Due to limited space, registration is requested by November 23. To register, contact Victoria Stanton at 795-4095 or vstanton@alymca.org, or see www.alymca.org. The Hall of Fame was established this summer to recognize those who have made extraordinary and tangible contributions to the local community during the Y's 150-year history. The Hall of Fame selection committee, which received dozens of nominations from the local community, was chaired by Elizabeth Shea of Auburn. “It has been an inspiring and humbling process,” said Shea. “Thousands of local families across generations have benefited from the work of these four special people. We are thrilled to take this opportunity to recognize their great work.” Honorees Bouchles and Kendall, who passed away in 2015 and 2013, respectively, will be recognized posthumously. A businessman and former co-owner of Bee & Gee Sports, Bouchles served for 27 years on the Y board of directors, where he took a leadership role in fundraising. Kendall served two terms as president of the Y board and was recognized as Auburn's Citizen of the Year in 1986.

The Androscoggin Chamber of Commerce will host the next workshop in its L-A Law series, “When The Data Breach Happens,” on Tuesday, November 10 from noon to 1:30 p.m. in the Chamber's conference room at 415 Lisbon Street in Lewiston. Eisenstein has provided legal advice and counseling to companies about data breach response plans and their responses to actual data breaches. The Chamber's Legal Advisory Workshop Series runs through June 2016. All workshops will take place at the Chamber at 415 Lisbon Street in Lewiston. Upcoming sessions include “The Legal Environment of Business in Maine” on November 19 and “You're Hit by a Bus and in a Coma or Dead: Who Runs Your Business?” on December 3. The cost per session is $25 for members and $50 for non-members. APL spotlights Blue Star Flag Program

Auburn Public Library will continue to honor United States military members with an informational presentation about the Blue Star Flag Program on Thursday, November 12 at noon. Frank Roma, who coordinates the program for the City of Auburn, will provide an overview, including eligibility requirements.

The Blue Star Flag Program honors residents who are waiting for a loved one to return home from defending our nation's freedom. Family members of servicemen and women who are currently deployed overseas in combat areas are invited to receive a Blue Star Flag to hang at their homes as a symbol of support from the city for their service. Auburn residents who are parents or spouses of servicemen or women who meet the deployment criteria are eligible to receive a Blue Star Flag, to be presented to the family during an Auburn City Council meeting.

UU Auburn offers "Aging as a Spiritual Journey"

The Unitarian Universalist Church of Auburn will present "Aging as a Spiritual Journey: A workshop for Women" on Saturday, November 7, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. The workshop will look at the four goddess-based archetypes - maiden, mother, sovereign and crone - and how they help shape our life's journey.

UU chaplain D'Vorah Kelley from Keene, N.H., will facilitate the workshop, which will address such questions as: What gifts do we receive from each archetype? What are the fears, concerns, hopes and wishes we bring to this journey? What dreams are yet to be fulfilled? and How can we support each other as we travel through the stages?

The cost is $40 per person. To preregister, contact Anne Kinney at akinneyuu@twc.com. The church is located at 169 Pleasant Street (please enter on Spring Street) in Auburn. There is ample free parking and the building is wheelchair accessible. For more information, call 783-0461 or see www.auburnuu.org.

Diocese to sell Drouin Field to city

Proceeds from the sale of this property at 119 Walnut Street will go toward expanding the playing fields at St. Dom's Auburn campus.

The Roman Catholic Diocese of Portland has negotiated the sale of three acres of property, located at 119 Walnut Street in Lewiston, to the City of Lewiston. The purchase and sale awaits final approval by the city's planning board and the Lewiston School Committee.

Saint Dominic Academy currently uses the property, known as Drouin Field, for its athletic programs. Proceeds from the sale will go toward expanding the playing fields at Saint Dominic Academy's Auburn campus. Planning for a new athletic field will begin this fall, with construction expected to begin in the spring. St. Dom's anticipates that the new field will be ready for use by the fall of 2017. In the interim, the City of Lewiston has agreed to share the use of Drouin Field with the academy.

"Drouin Field will continue to serve the children in the community as an athletic field, while all of our sports teams will be able to have practices and games at our Auburn campus," said Saint Dominic Academy president Donald Fournier. "This is truly a win-win for St. Dom's and the City of Lewiston."

Program spotlights control of A1C blood sugar level

While the American Diabetes Association recommends that those with diabetes maintain an A1C blood glucose level of less than 7 percent, about 40 percent of people diagnosed with diabetes have not achieved that blood sugar control target.

On Thursday, November 12 at 6 p.m., "A1C Champion" Carolyn Wright will discuss how those with diabetes can consistently keep their A1C level under control. Hosted by the Central Maine Endocrinology and Diabetes Center, the program is sponsored by pharmaceutical company Sanofi as part of the "A1C Champions" program to help people learn to successfully manage their own diabetes and then share that information and motivation with others.

Free and open to the public, the program will take place in Conference Room H on the lower level of the medical office building at 12 High Street, adjacent to CMMC, in Lewiston. Those planning to attend are asked to register in advance by calling 795-7520 and leaving a message with their name and phone number.

Garden project moves forward in Auburn

Community gardens provide many benefits: they foster community identity and spirit, reduce crime, provide nutritious food for people who need it, act as a sanctuary from urban life, encourage children to wonder and explore and promote healthfully exercise.

Last month, the Auburn City Council approved the use of a vacant lot on Webster Street for a community garden. The project is a partnership of the City of Auburn, St. Mary's Nutrition Center, University of Maine Cooperative Extension, and the Androscoggin Land Trust. Funding for the project so far includes a Community Development Block Grant, a Harvard Pilgrim Health Care Foundation grant, and a National Park Service community assistance grant.

Neighborhood residents came out to a recent Garden Open House to see the site and learn more. Those who sign up as gardeners will be assigned a 4' x 10' raised bed for the 2016 growing season. The goal of the project is to provide a safe and pleasant outdoor space for neighbors to gather and grow food.

Work on the garden will begin this fall with the installation of a fence around the garden area and the creation of accessible water sources. During the winter, the group plans to construct simple structures for the raised beds and a shed. In the spring, work parties will install the beds, paths, entry garden and irrigation. Other amenities, like benches and bulletin boards, will evolve with gardener input.

St. Mary's Nutrition Center, the lead partner on the project, promotes community health through organizing, advocacy and education across the Androscoggin County area. The Nutrition Center works to build a sustainable regional food system by involving those affected by inadequate food access as partners and by supporting area farms as an essential piece of the local economy. Core programming includes hands-on cooking, gardening and nutrition education for all ages; community gardens for over 120 low-income families; intensive job training programs for over 50

AREA supports school food pantries

AREA member Jean Roy presents a donation check to Montello Elementary School Principal Jim Cliffe.

Androscoggin Retired Educators Association members Jean Roy and Crystal Ward met with Principal Jim Cliffe of Montello Elementary School recently to donate $100 for the school's food pantry as part of the group's National Day of Caring project. Cliffe explained that the school's food pantry assists an average of thirty families on a regular basis and that, although Montello purchases supplies from the Good Shepherd Food Bank to get the most out of each dollar donated, funds from their original grant are nearly depleted. This fall, AREA has also made $100 donations to the food pantries of Edward Little High School and the Margaret Murphy Center for Children.

Department seeks to assist veterans with occupational licensing

In advance of Veterans Day, Governor LePage and Commissioner Anne Head are reminding veterans about an ongoing initiative of the Department of Professional and Financial Regulation to make occupational licensing in several professions quicker and easier for those with relevant military training and experience.

In 2012, Governor LePage signed Public Law Chapter 603 to ensure that veterans are given full credit for applicable military training and experience when they apply for an occupational license from the Department's Office of Professional and Occupational Regulation. In 2013, the Governor signed Public Law Chapter 311, which builds on the 2012 measure.

"The people of Maine are tremendously grateful to those who have served," said Governor LePage. "We have a responsibility to recognize their skills and to assist them in obtaining the credentials needed for good jobs. Veterans have much to offer businesses and organizations throughout Maine and our economy needs their contributions."

These new laws provide the Department with greater flexibility in evaluating and crediting military experience toward license and continuing education requirements. It should also assist veterans and spouses by permitting them to acquire a license by endorsement if they hold a comparable license in another state for the remainder of the term of that license or until a license is obtained in Maine.

In addition to more flexibility, the laws signed in 2012 and 2013 have led to a concerted effort by the Department to inform veterans of the changes. The next informational event will take place on Tuesday, November 10 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. in the Androscoggin Room at the Department of Professional and Financial Regulation, located at 76 Northern Avenue in Gardiner. For more information or directions, call 624-8605.

Veterans are encouraged to contact the Department before applying for licensure. Military documentation that may be needed includes a copy of a DD Form 214 (Report of Discharge) and a copy of DD Form 2586 (Verification of Military Experience and Training, VMET). For more information about applying military training and experience toward occupational licensing requirements, call Catherine Carroll at 624-8605 or visit the Department's homepage at www.maine.gov/pfr.

"This Department is fully committed to evaluating and crediting military experience whenever possible and appropriate," said Commissioner Head. "Veterans are encouraged to attend the November 10 event or to contact the Department anytime to learn more about how we can help them."

Oak Hill Drama Club presents "Arsenic and Old Lace"

This Oak Hill High School Drama Club production runs Friday through Sunday, November 6 through 8.

Oak Hill High School's "Little Theatre in the Woods" will present the classic comedy "Arsenic and Old Lace" for three performances, November 6 through 8, Friday and Saturday at 7 p.m. and Sunday at 2 p.m. Written in 1939, the play is a farcical black comedy revolving around the Brewster Family, allegedly descended from the Mayflower but now composed of insane homicidal maniacs.

The hero, Mortimer Brewster, played by Nik Peterson, is a drama critic who must deal with his crazy, homicidal family and local Brooklyn police as he debates whether to go through with his recent promise to marry the woman he loves, Elaine Harper, played by Angelique James.

Mortimer's family includes two spinster aunts, Abby (Michaela Gervais) and Martha (Cassandra Lovell), who have taken to murdering lonely old men by poisoning them with home-made elderberry wine laced

Couples will be elbowing

each other all evening as they recognize themselves on stage.

Sexy and fast-paced, this show is definitely for adults but will have audiences laughing and giggling like kids. Friends of Pettingill concert will spotlight family ties

This concert will mark the singing debut of Alyssa Breau, whose parents are both accomplished musicians. Her father, Denny, is an acclaimed guitarist, while her mother, Ann performed and recorded with the neo-classical jazz duo Silverwood in the late 1970s, is a former member of the Auburn Community Band, and still frequently performs with husband Denny at concerts and social venues. Denny says he’s looking forward to this opportunity to perform publicly for the first time with their daughter, who he says will wow the audience with her beautiful voice.

Debbie Morin and Kathy Haley are well-known in Central Maine, not only as members of the iconic band Good and Plenty, but more recently for their sell-out shows with the Girls of L/A. Today Debbie performs with her band, Cheyenne, while Kathy is a pianist and organist for school and church music groups. Their daughters, Shawna and Brooke, are following in their mother’s footsteps. Shawna spent several years as a member of Portland’s Tony Boffa Band, while Brooke writes and performs her own music, which can be heard on ReverbNation and regional radio stations.

Called “The Apple Doesn’t Fall Far from the Tree,” the event will feature a roster of well-known Maine musicians performing with their talented children.

Breau, himself the son of RCA Victor recording artists Hal Lone Pine and Betty Cody, will be joined on stage by his daughter, Alyssa, a vocalist. Others scheduled to perform include saxophonist Mike Atkinson with his daughter, Annelyse, a vocalist; vocalist and pianist Kathy Haley with her daughter, Shawna Haley-Bear, a vocalist; vocalist Debbie Morin with her daughter, Brooke Morin-Lachance, a vocalist; pianist Mitch Thomas with his daughter, Hayden, a vocalist; and guitarist Ron Vachon with his grandson, Justin Lindsay, a guitarist.

Meet Brayden!

In March of 2015, Brayden, an otherwise healthy and rambunctious toddler, became suddenly ill from a mid-gut volvulus (a twisting of the small intestines onto the large intestines which in turn cut off the blood supply to both the small and large intestines) and was diagnosed with intestinal failure/Short Bowel Syndrome. He has had several life saving surgeries and has lost all of his small intestines and half of his large intestine. Despite these challenges Brayden has survived and thrived with his loving family at his side.

Join us for this event and offer your donation to support the Austin family. 100% of the donations will go towards the mounting expenses and bills they have acquired during this incredibly challenging journey.

Program to explore Freeport shoemaking history

Freeport Historical Society will offer an illustrated talk on the town's shoemaking history on Monday, November 9 at 7 p.m. at the Freeport Community Library.

The illustrated presentation by FHS Collections Manager Holly Hurd accompanies the current exhibit "Cobblers to Capitalists: Two Centuries of Freeport Shoemaking," which she curated.

Hurd will give an overview of the history of shoemaking in Freeport from the late 1700s through the 20th century. Refreshments will be served.

Shoemaking was an important industry in Freeport for more than a hundred years, with the first case of shoes made in North Freeport in 1869 and the last case of shoes manufactured in the village by Eastland Shoe in 2001. This program will highlight the development of shoemaking in Freeport from the early itinerant cobblers who custom-made shoes at people's homesteads to the village shoe shops that grew into assembly-line production of shoe parts in a factory setting.

More than 30 different companies settled in Freeport over the course of a century, and just 60 years ago, ten factories employing about 1,000 people were operating in the town! Come learn about the roles of E.B. Mallet, L.L. Bean, Frank and Clarence Small, and the Davis Brothers in an industry once prominent in town but virtually invisible today.

Admission is $5 for the general public and free for FHS members. In case of snow, the event will be rescheduled; day-of calls for confirmation are encouraged.

For more information or to reserve tickets, call 865-3170 or visit www.freeporthistoricalsociety.org.

Pioneering economist to discuss racial differences in police use of force

Roland G. Fryer Jr., is the Henry Lee Professor of Economics at Harvard and the 2015 recipient of the John Bates Clark Medal, an honor in the field of economics considered second only to the Nobel Prize.

A Harvard economist known for pioneering research into racial inequality will discuss "Understanding Racial Differences in Police Use of Force" on Sunday, November 8 at 7:30 p.m. in Bates College's Olin Arts Center at 75 Russell Street in Lewiston.

The speaker, Roland G. Fryer Jr., is the Henry Lee Professor of Economics at Harvard and the 2015 recipient of the American Economic Association's John Bates Clark Medal, awarded annually to an American economist younger than 40 who is judged to have made a significant contribution to the field of economics. It's an honor considered second only to the Nobel Prize in economic science. Fryer's talk is open to the public at no cost, but tickets are required from rolandfryer-atbates.eventbrite.com.

The AEA praised Fryer for being "bold and fearless" in his use of economic theory and new data, lauded his "creative and entrepreneurial edge" and credited him with producing "the most important work in recent years on combating the racial divide, one of America's most profound and long-lasting social problems."

High-profile incidences of police use of force since August 2014 have intensified the national dialogue about race and police work. In his Bates address, Fryer will explore, through data from several cities and counties, whether there are racial differences in police use of force. He'll discuss the preliminary analysis of the research and factors that may account for any racial differences in varying levels of force.

In a 2011 interview with WBUR-FM, Fryer explained that he seeks to do "whatever it takes to understand root causes of disparity in America. I wake up every day . . . [wanting to] understand, how can we make it such that everyone in America has a shot at the American dream?"

Fryer, whose work has been widely cited by media outlets and in congressional testimony, combines economic theory, empirical evidence and randomized experiments to help design more effective government policies. When he was 30, he was the youngest-ever African American to receive tenure at Harvard, and he received a MacArthur Foundation "genius grant" in 2011.

Fryer's best-known research to date seeks to address racial disparities in student success. Fryer has shown that while black and white children start out with equal potential for succeeding in school, black children overall fall behind over time - and discrimination is less

New event to take bite out of cancer

Star and his human mom, Cynthia Johnson, have signed up for Bark for Life of Androscoggin County on Sunday, November 15.

Cynthia Johnston and her dog, Star, are helping to put a leash on cancer by joining the inaugural Bark for Life of Androscoggin County. Pets and their humans are invited to participate in this non-competitive walk on Sunday, November 15 from 10 a.m. to noon in the Petco parking lot, 105 Mt. Auburn Road in Auburn, to raise money to support the lifesaving mission of the American Cancer Society.

"So often our dogs help us through life's challenges, whether by guiding the blind, watching over our children, or supporting those who are impacted by cancer," says Johnston. "Bark for Life offers an irresistible way to partner with your canine best friend for a vital cause while making new friends, both canine and human."

Participants, event volunteers and vendors are needed for this fun-filled day. For more information, contact Lisa Dunham, American Cancer Society community manager for the event, at 373-3703 or Lisa.Dunham@cancer.org, or see relayforlife.org/barkan-droscogginme.

New website provides health care quality, cost comparisons

The Maine Health Data Organization has launched a new health-care transparency website that consumers can use to compare the average cost of over 200 medical procedures at more than 170 healthcare facilities in the state. They can also use the site to compare quality ratings for many facilities. The site is available at www.CompareMaine.org.

The Maine Health Data Organization is a state agency that collects healthcare data from insurance companies and stores them in a highly secure All-Payer Claims Database. This database is the source of the cost information for Compare-Maine. The quality ratings on the site come from Consumer Assessment of Healthcare Providers and Systems surveys administered by the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality, the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services, and the Federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

The MHDO also convened a consumer advisory group over 18 months ago to provide feedback to the agency on the content, design and functionality of the new website.

"This launch is the culmination of an enormous effort," said Lisa Harvey McPherson, Chair of the MHDO Board of Directors. "Grant funds from the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services made the new website possible. MHDO created the website in collaboration with researchers from the Human Services Research Institute, NORC at the University of Chicago, and web designer Wowza."

"CompareMaine differs from other healthcare transparency tools in a few key ways," said Karynlee Harrington, Acting Executive Director of MHDO. "The first difference is the scope of the site's coverage. Compare-Maine displays the average costs for more than 200 health care procedures. Users can compare costs by facility - including hospitals, surgical centers, diagnostic imaging centers, labs, and clinics - and by health insurance companies in the state of Maine.

"Second, the site is one of only two state sites that present quality ratings alongside cost information. These ratings show how patients rank their overall experience and how Maine hospitals compare on keeping patients safe."

"We look forward to people visiting the new site and providing us with feedback through the on-line survey form," concluded Harrington. "We will be updating the cost information on the site twice a year; the quality data will be updated accordingly and we will make other updates as needed."

"In Maine and across the nation, there can be large differences in the cost and quality for the same health care service," said Governor LePage. "You may pay a lot more for the same procedure depending on where you go. I hope that by making this information available, consumers and employers will be positioned to make better informed decisions."

MTU presents Heritage Policy Center CEO

Maine Taxpayers United will hold its annual meeting on Wednesday, November 11 at the Ramada Conference Center in Lewiston. Matthew Gagnon, CEO of the Maine Heritage Policy Center, will be the featured speaker. Also speaking will be Professor John Frary of Farmington, Director Emeritus of MTU and a columnist whose writings appear in Central Maine newspapers. The gathering will also recognize the dedication of our veterans.

The Maine Heritage Policy Center is the Portland-based organization sponsoring "A Maine Revival," an initiative enthusiastically supported by Maine Taxpayers United that calls for a "Reduction of the Tax Burden," a "Reasonable Regulatory Climate" and a "Prudent and Thrifty Government."

A social hour will begin at 6 p.m., followed by a buffet dinner and then the program. Tickets are $30 and the public is cordially invited. For more information or to make reservations, contact Jack Wibby at 657-7737 or jwibby@maine.rr.com.
