Carson installed as president of Southeastern Baptist College

By Linda Cranford
The inauguration of the new president of Southeastern Baptist College was held Thursday night, August 3. Dr. Scott R. Carson was installed as the 15th president of the college. Carson is a native of Watertown, South Dakota, and spent his teen years in Mission, Texas. He and his wife, Linda, have been married for 39 years, and they have two adult children and four grandchildren. Carson entered the United States Army chaplaincy in 1986 and served on active duty as a chaplain for 30 years before retiring at the rank of Colonel in July 2016.
SBC former president Rev. Danny Pitts brought Carson to the college at the first of 2016 to serve as adjunct professor. Later in the year, Dr. Carson became academic dean. With the sudden passing of Rev. Pitts in December 2016, Carson was appointed interim president in January and elected president in May. Carson said God's plan for him to move to Laurel from his final Army post in Huntsville, Alabama, and begin the next chapter of his life in Mississippi was confirmed when he and Linda began looking for a home in Laurel. The two became sudden community celebrities and the confirmation was clear when they were chosen to be featured on one of the first season episodes of HGTV's "Home Town." During their 30 years of military life, the Carsons lived in several European countries including Afghanistan, Iraq, Germany, Italy, Belgium and France. Their experience living overseas influenced Linda's desire to have the small plain kitchen in their new home transformed into a warm French country chef's kitchen, and the living room and dining room updated to create a European atmosphere throughout the home.

During the inaugural ceremony, several platform guests presented remarks and encouragements to Carson and the college. The guests included Rev. Chris Floyd, chairman of the Inaugural Committee and member of the Southeastern Board of Trustees, who gave the welcome, and Dr. Gary McAllister, vice president for academic affairs at Central Baptist College in Conway, Arkansas, who gave the invocation. Other platform guests included Mississippi Lt. Governor Tate Reeves, Dr. Charley Holmes, president of the Baptist Missionary Association Theological Seminary in Jacksonville, Texas, and Chaplain Keith Wright, Lt. Colonel U.S. Army, retired. The colors were presented by the Laurel High School Jr. ROTC Color Guard, and Danny Holifield, Big Creek Baptist Church minister of music, sang the National Anthem.

During his remarks Reeves said,

“Southeastern Baptist College is blessed to have President Carson at this time; a man who knows how to visualize goals and enact a strategy to reach them. His years of service as a chaplain in the United States Army will be invaluable to this college. I have the faith that he and the faculty will continue to produce graduates who are God-fearing men and women who have the vision for the future to give themselves to their community.”

After reading Psalms 33, Dr. Holmes said, “Seventy years ago when the college was founded, no one had ever heard of Scott Carson. But these days were already planned in God’s providence. When Scott was born in South Dakota and then grew up later in south Texas, my guess is that he didn’t have a clue that one day in 2017 he would be here on this stage to be inaugurated as president of this college. Tonight he stands and will speak in a moment, not by his own will or his own mind, but by the providence and decree of God.”

Wright, who has been friends with Carson for over 25 years, introduced him and after describing Carson’s many accomplishments and awards, added, “Dr. Carson is truly a man of vision, a man of heart, and a man of character. He’s a man of distinction; as you can see he has served in many capacities and in many ways. He is a man that is consistent in his behavior, his love for God, and in the reading of His word. There is only one area of your life, Scott, which I’m a little concerned about, where you’re not very consistent, and that’s when we play golf!” After the laughter subsided, Wright continued, “He is truly a man of faith, and he has truly walked by faith not by sight.” To show his support for Carson and the future of Southeastern Baptist College, Wright, who has been a member of the Assemblies of God since age 17, presented Carson with a check for $500.

Rev. Matt Hudson, chairman of the SBC Board of Trustees and president of the Baptist Missionary Association of Mississippi, presented Carson with the Presidential Medallion.

During his address, Carson spoke of how he and Linda have met numerous people throughout Jones County and the Pine Belt who had either attended or taught at the college or who knew someone who did. “The school’s reputation is further reinforced by its numerous awards and recognitions,” said Carson, “including being rated among the top colleges and universities in the years 2013 and 2014, winning the Silver Award as a military friendly school in 2017, and among the top 25 online Bible Colleges in the nation for 2016 and 2017. And, of note, being the number one online Bible College out of hundreds of institutions across America for the year 2016.”

Carson said he felt unworthy to assume the reins of the college with its outstanding accomplishments but added, “I have learned over my 30 years of military ministry that if the Lord has bestowed on me a mission, then I must move out and draw fire, as they say in the Army. I have no choice but except the responsibility and put forth my best efforts in serving the Lord in whatever capacity for which he has called me, for the Scriptures have promised that I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me.”

Carson laid out his goals and vision for the college. “Our immediate short-term goals are to develop strategic partnerships by networking with business and community leaders to help increase our visibility and our financial viability. We will establish a dynamic advertising campaign that will enable us to recruit more students both inside and, important to the future of this institution, outside of the Baptist Missionary Association of Mississippi.”

“Our mid-term goal is to apply for and to achieve accreditation from the Southern Association of Colleges and School (SACS), enabling SBC to become a true center of academic excellence, not only for the BMA of MS but also for Jones County and the state of Mississippi with credits transferrable to nearly all state and secular colleges and universities. And, we will endeavor to maintain our good standing of accreditation with the Association of Biblical Higher Education (ABHE).”

“Finally, these steps will lead us to our long-term goal of Southeastern Baptist College becoming the college of choice in Mississippi, throughout the South, and nationwide where we will be a leader in conservative Christian academia and a major positive influence upon the culture of the United States of America. I want to emphasize that, as we pursue these goals, the faculty and staff, including myself, will uphold the highest standards of Christian ethics, conservative Biblical morality, personal integrity and institutional financial responsibility, while always remaining laser focused upon the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ as revealed in God’s Holy and inspired Word of God.”

The benediction was given by Dr. Phillip Attebery, dean at Baptist Missionary Association Theological Seminary in Jacksonville, Texas, and a reception followed.

Ellisville Public Library Courtyard named after Tim and Patricia Waldrup

By Linda Cranford

A ribbon cutting and unveiling ceremony was held at the Ellisville Public Library Thursday morning, August 3, to reveal the naming of the new gazebo and courtyard area in front of the library the Tim and Patricia Waldrup Courtyard – after the former mayor and his wife.

Present Ellisville Mayor Lynn Buckhaults performed the unveiling ceremony and as soon as he called the Waldrups up for the ceremony, the secret was out and the Waldrups were surprised.

Immediately following the unveiling Ellisville Alderman Aaron Heidelberg exclaimed, "It's amazing how we can get a woman to work on her own area," referring to Mrs. Waldrup working diligently on the project, not knowing it was to be named after her and her husband. Heidelberg and his wife, Linda, who is on the Library Board, came up with the idea for the gazebo and courtyard. Mrs. Heidelberg and Mrs. Waldrup, with the help of others, made it happen five months later. Buckhaults thanked Mrs. Waldrup for all she has done for the City of Ellisville over the past several years.

With the humor that everyone has come to expect and love from former Mayor Waldrup he said, "You know, Rex Wilson was probably right when he told me, 'you never would have been mayor if it hadn't been for your wife!'" As the laughter subsided, he said, "I appreciate it and it's an honor." Pausing for a moment, he added, "At least it's not on a tombstone."

Fighting back the tears, Mrs. Waldrup thanked everyone and said, "I guess I'll have to maintain it."

Waldrup was instrumental in helping to get the funds and grants to build the new library in 2009. He said, "When it was completed, there was no money left, all the funds were depleted." Laurel/Jones County Public Library Director Mary Louise Breland added, "We had no money to buy furniture or shelves to put books on."

Waldrup and Breland said many of the ladies in the community got together and organized the Friends of the Library and within two weeks raised over $70,000.

"It was a wonderful thing to have this library built," said Breland. She said that for many, many years they only had a small space inside City Hall for a library. "It was like a closet," exclaimed Breland. "We never really dreamed that we would be able to get this."

Mrs. Waldrup and the Ellisville Garden Club with the help of several children planted the flowers. She said that Missy Garrett and she looked all over the country for the right gazebo; then he had to be made handicap accessible.

Laurel/Jones County Programing and Public Relations Manager Michelle Anderson Jones said the children at the library will help maintain and keep seasonal flowers in the area.

Kids need help too.

Adults like to think of childhood as a carefree time full of play and enjoyment, but that's not true for all kids. Children are susceptible to the same emotional health issues and mood disorders that can impact adults.

As many as one in five children and adolescents may have an identifiable disorder that requires treatment.

Psychological therapy can help with many of these issues. Therapy for kids can aid children who have such problems as anxiety, depression, bipolar disorder, attention deficit hyperactivity disorder (ADHD), and conduct disorder.
