Pianist Jon Nakamatsu to perform at Bates

Classical pianist Jon Nakamatsu will perform at Bates College on Friday, March 27 at 7:30 p.m. Praised for his clean technique and deep musical intuition, Nakamatsu took the world of classical piano by storm when, over many more favored competitors, he walked away with the gold medal at the Van Cliburn International Piano Competition in 1997, becoming the first American to win the prestigious title in 16 years.

His triumph was a classic underdog story: A high school teacher, Nakamatsu had studied with one piano teacher since age 6 and had never gone to a conservatory or college to study music.

Named 1998's Debut Artist of the Year by National Public Radio, he has since recorded 12 critically acclaimed CDs with Harmonia Mundi USA. His 2007 collaboration with the Rochester Philharmonic on Gershwin's Concerto in F and "Rhapsody in Blue" reached No. 3 on Billboard's classical chart, staying on the chart for almost six months.

Nakamatsu's impressive repertoire ranges from Bach to present day composers. Whether playing solo or with an entire orchestra, he

Skelton, Taintor & Abbott expand litigation

Jon Plourde joins Skelton, Taintor & Abbott.

Skelton, Taintor & Abbott announces that Jon Plourde has joined the firm. "We are excited with this expansion of our litigation practice by the addition of Jon to our team," said Bryan Dench, chairman of Skelton, Taintor & Abbott, "and we will benefit from his municipal experience as well."

Plourde' s litigation practice will include commercial and business litigation; municipal and government law; construction; real estate; personal injury; medical malpractice; and products liability.

Prior to joining Skelton, Taintor & Abbott, Plourde was associated with another Maine law firm and interned with a real estate title company. He received his bachelor's degree in history from the University of Maine at Farmington, a master's degree in history from Syracuse University and his J.D. from the University of Maine School of Law. While in law school, he was a member of the Moot Court Team and the recipient of three scholarships from the Aroostook County Bar Association.

Pamela R. Rietschel, M.D. Pamela R. Rietschel, M.D., has joined the Sam and Jennie Bennett Breast ical Center. She has been co-medical director of the Breast Care Center since it was established, and recently accepted the role of its fulltime breast surgeon.

Rietschel has a diverse surgical practice background. She was most recently a member of the Central Maine Vascular Surgery practice surgical staff. In the 25 years she has worked in the Lewiston-Auburn area, she has practiced both general surgery, including breast surgery, and vascular surgery. She is now specializing in breast surgery at the Bennett Center.

"It is a pleasure to have Dr. Rietschel at the Breast Center as it will allow us to expand our services and continue to offer men and women with breast disease, including cancer, timely, efficient and compassionate care, extending from physical examination and treatment to follow-up care and survivorship," said nurse practitioner Kathi Varney.

"I am very excited to have the opportunity to focus my practice on the diagnosis and treatment of breast problems. I am looking forward to expanding the services of the Bennett Breast Care Center to our affiliated hospitals and to all the women in central Maine," said Rietschel.

Rietschel joined the Central Maine Medical Center Medical Staff in 1989. She has served as president and vice president of the CMMC Medical Staff, and as chief of the hospital's division of surgery. She holds bachelor's and master's degrees, and earned her medical degree from the University of Washington School of Medicine in Seattle, and completed residency training at St. John Hospital in Detroit. She is a fellow of the American College of Surgeons.

The Sam and Jennie Bennett Breast Care Center was established in 1997 to provide comprehensive breast care to women and men from throughout the central, western and midcoast region. The center offers a supportive and highly qualified team of experts that provides the complete spectrum of breast care services, ranging from early detection screening mammography to the latest advancements in the multidisciplinary care of high risk and breast cancer patients.

Schwindt-Brown joins CMMC

Kristen M. Schwindt-Brown, M.D.

Kristen M. Schwindt-Brown, M.D., has joined the staff and faculty of the Central Maine Medical Center Family Medicine Residency in Lewiston.

Originally from North Dakota, Brown completed her undergraduate studies at Lawrence University in Appleton, Wisconsin in 1997 and earned her medical degree from the Medical College of Wisconsin in Milwaukee in 2002. She served an internship and residency in pediatrics at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore.

Brown has held numerous clinical positions, working at the Kennedy Krieger Institute and the Greater Baltimore Medical Center, both in Baltimore, as well as the Madigan Army Medical Center in Tacoma, Washington.

Between 2005 and 2007, while at Johns Hopkins Hospital, she mentored and supervised pediatrics residents and other medical students from the hospital's associated medical school. She has also supervised residents and medical students from the Madigan Army Medical Center Pediatrics Department, as well as the Uniformed Services University of the Health Services in Bethesda, Maryland.

"Dr. Brown has a gift and great enthusiasm for providing care to young people," said residency program director Raj Woolever, M.D. "She is also focused on connecting with our community to help all kids maintain good health."

"Teaching the next generation of physicians to care for children is both a privilege and passion for me," said Brown. "It is essential to the health of our community that its youngest members get the care, advocacy and support they deserve."

Brown is certified by the American Board of Pediatrics and is a member of the American Academy of Pediatrics. In 2005, she contributed an article on pediatric dermatology to the 17th edition of "The Harriet Lane Handbook." In 2006, she was named pediatrics teacher of the year by the Johns Hopkins Department of Pediatrics.

CMMC created the Family Medicine Residency Program in 1978 to support the training of family physicians to provide skilled family doctors for the Lewiston-Auburn area and other areas of Maine. Many previous graduates of the program now practice in the Lewiston-Auburn area and throughout the state.

Rainbow Federal Credit Union's Mark Samson, Nicole Mailhot and Beth Wood spend the day among students and teachers at Longley Elementary School.

Rainbow Federal Credit Union has partnered with Longley Elementary School as part of its 2015 Social Responsibility Program. In this partnership, Rainbow FCU supports Longley's second grade classrooms in teaching the students about money, its value in life and the importance of saving.

On March 11, Mark, Nicole, & Beth visited Longley to meet with students in three second grade classrooms to present an Elmo video about the importance of saving money. Students also received a bank.

In turn, the students will visit the credit union from March 24-26 to observe operations, followed by a trip to Hannaford to learn about healthy food choices. They will spend up to $2.00 in coins they received from the credit union to buy healthy snacks, counting out money to purchase food.

The credit union will also support Longley on May 26-28 with three math events. These include talking with parents on how to help their child with math, visiting classrooms to learn from their children about math and finally to attend a math games afternoon to learn fun ways to do math with their child. The credit union will be funding a math bag for each student which will include math games and materials and a literacy book about a math concept.

Enough is Enough Downtown Lewiston is coming alive again

By Robert E. Macdonald MAYOR OF LEWISTON

The face of Lewiston is changing.

When I arrived in Lewiston in the summer of 1977, Lewiston was nearing the end of the mill era. A few years prior to my arrival, the federal government had come in, dangled large amounts of money and promised a new, utopian city.

Mesmerized by all that cash, the City Fathers bit. The promise of a shiny, new city did not materialize. Instead, the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) created what could be called a ghetto: houses in disrepair and streets strewn with trash calation of crime throughout the city. Robberies, burglaries, drugs and aggravated assaults rose. This was the result of criminals from out of state and those gaming the system among the local generational welfare population.

Couple this with high unemployment, and it is clear how we ended up with the moniker "The Dirty Lew." Lisbon Street, once a booming center of retail, restaurants and other types of businesses, started to deteriorate. Many bars and social clubs closed. The city was starting to resemble a ghost town.

Today, Lewiston is in rebirth. Like the Phoenix, we are slowly and steadily rising, rebuilding our city. Lisbon Street is coming partment. Under Police Chief Michael Bussiere, our city has seen a dramatic drop in crime. Although the crime statistics are not yet out, it appears that, thanks to our dedicated men and women in blue, crime is down somewhere between 20 to 25 percent from the prior year.

These results do not occur by accident. Operation Hot Spots and aggressive police work have made Lewiston one of the safest places to live in Maine.

Unfortunately, police officers' salaries have continued to fall behind many police departments throughout Maine. This has the potential, similar to professional sports, of luring experienced officers to better-paying departments. This could become expensive to taxpayers.

It costs $30,600 to train every new officer Lewiston hires. Each new officer must spend 18 weeks at the Maine Criminal Justice Academy. Upon graduation, the new officer is required to work under the supervision of a field training officer for the next three months before they are allowed to work alone.

If in the first five years a police officer leaves our police department to join another department, the department to which the officer is going must reimburse Lewiston a pro-rated amount of money covering the remainder of the fiveyear span.

The progress our city is making is due in large part to our men and women in blue. We must find a way to ensure that this situation does not come about.

islature is a bill, LD 20, that would send back to the municipalities 50 percent of the revenue generated by the issuance of a traffic summons by the department. These funds could be dedicated to public safety (police and fire) in order to ensure a continuation of professional services. This money would also help offset any losses due to revenue sharing.

At the end of last week's column, I promised to keep you updated on two welfare bills currently before the Legislature.

I am happy to report that LD 398, a bill designed to bring municipalities in line with state and federal welfare laws limiting a person to a lifetime total of five years of benefits, has the support of the Maine Municipal Association.

APL features road trip across the country

Lewiston-Auburn Senior College instructor Alan Elze with Roberta Elze will present a road trip across the United States visiting some popular and lesser-known sites on Tuesday, April 7 at 2 pm., at the Auburn Public Library.

On this virtual road trip, attendees will visit a couple of Frank Lloyd Wright designed homes, including Fallingwater. Stops also include Scott's Bluff, Garden of the Gods and Great Sand Dunes National Park.

A ride on the Durango-Silverton Railroad is on the agenda—one of the most scenic short line railroads in the country. Mesa Verde, home of the ancestors of the present day Navahos, Four Corners and Monument Valley are scheduled, along with the North Rim of the Grand Canyon and Tuolumne Meadows in Yosemite National Park.

The trip will continue down the Pacific Coast Highway for some breathtaking coastal scenery. Lassen National Park and Mount St. Helen's National Monument are also on the trip.

The program is free. FMI, call 333-6640 ext. 4.

Bernheim takes honors in first Meatball Challenge

The competition was intense, but Bob Bernheim's German-style Swabian meatballs in barbecue sauce took the prize.

Almost 100 people attended the inaugural Central Maine Meatball Challenge, sponsored by Double Z Land & Livestock to benefit St. Mary's Nutrition Center of Lewiston, on March 8. Seven contestants entered the contest to crown the region's best meatball, with Bob Bernheim of China, Maine taking top honors for his German-style Swabian meatballs in barbecue sauce.

"When good food, good folks and a good cause mix, it's always a recipe for success," said Bernheim, a professor of history at the University of Maine at Augusta. "For my wife Patricia and me, it was an awesome way to spend a weekend." The event raised over $1,200, enough to sponsor the participation of one youth in the Nutrition Center's Summer Youth Gardener program. In addition to bragging rights, Bernheim won a $100 cash prize, a $50 Double Z Gift Certificate, and a spot on the March 18 menu of DaVinci's Italian Eatery in Lewiston, when the public was invited to dine on Bernheim's meatball creation. Davinci's donated a portion of the proceeds from the sale of the winning meatball dish to the Nutrition Center. "This has been a great opportunity for the teens in the Nutrition Center's Youth Powered Cooking program," said Sarah Ullman, the Nutrition Center's Youth Programs Coordinator. "They were able to work alongside chefs in the community to gain skills and confidence and to showcase their work. They're already looking forward to winning next year!"

Professionals representing various segments of the restaurant industry mentored the Nutrition Center's youth teams in creating meatballs for the contest. The Meatballers, a team of youth from St. Mary's Nutrition Center mentored by Chef Anthony Scherrer of Martindale Country Club, finished second in the contest with their all-beef meatball creation featuring a gremolata and Parmesan garnish.

Other contestants included Hawo Dakane, Elias Atkins, Fowsiya Muss, Mohamed Abdullahi, Everline Niragira, Ryan Marley, Doreen Simmons, Jennifer Gendron Carleton, Mollie Dumais, Cheryl Sampson, Joyce Levigne, Christine Doyle and Paul Drowns.

"The first Meatball Challenge was a great opportunity to celebrate all facets of the Central Maine food scene: farms, creativity, and community partnership," said Chris Abbruzzese of event sponsor Double Z Land & Livestock. "Thanks to the Nutrition Center, Electricity Maine for sponsoring the youth teams, and all our contestants for making 2015's National Meatball Day one to remember."

'Closer,' a British drama about love and rivalry, arrives on the Bates College stage

Bates College presents Patrick Marber's "Closer," a British play described by New York magazine as "a sad, savvy, often funny play that casts a steely, unblinking gaze at the world of relationships." Performances are at 5 p.m. Friday through Sunday, March 27-29, in Gannett Theater, Pettigrew Hall, 305 College St.

Directed by Kati Vecsey, senior lecturer in the Bates theater department, "Closer" is performed by a rotating cast of 12 students from Vecsey's advanced voice and speech class. While four students perform, the other eight manage the backstage work, props and lighting.

Premiering in 1997 and perhaps best-known for its 2004 film adaptation starring Julia Roberts, Jude Law, Clive Owen and Natalie Portman, "Closer" is set in London and examines human relationships through a raw yet humorous portrayal of a love quadrangle.

The play focuses on the complex relationships among four lovers: Dan, Larry, Anna and Alice, as they swap partners over a period of years. Written during a period in British drama referred to as "in yer face" theater, the play features blunt, explicit language

"I'm interested in the human psyche and personal relationships, because that is what life is about. It's about how we relate to people," said Vecsey, who is the vocal director for Bates theater department productions.

The production was chosen as an exercise for the voice and speech class because the key to the characters lies in the language. Vecsey notes every character has a one-on-one scene with every other character, thereby revealing personalities in depth.

Admission is free. For more information, call 786-6161.

Student choreography front and center in Bates College Dance Company performances

Showcasing pieces choreographed and performed by students, the Bates Dance Company's annual spring concert takes the Schaeffer Theatre stage in performances April 3-6.

The company presents two different programs over the four nights, one on Friday and Sunday and the other, Saturday and Monday. Program A is performed at 7:30 p.m. Friday, April 3, and 2 p.m. Sunday, April 5. Program B is performed at 5 p.m. Saturday, April 4, and 7:30 p.m. Monday, April 6. Schaeffer

The concert series comprises 16 pieces from 58 performers. While the student choreographers come from three dance courses (Dance Composition, Advanced Composition and Senior Thesis), the dancers represent a diverse selection of the Bates student body, coming from all walks of campus life. The performances, too, are diverse, spanning styles from hip hop to theatrical comedy.

Three dance majors will present their senior theses: Isaiah Rice of Charlotte, North Carolina, Tomisha Edwards of Memphis, Tennessee and Anna Lanoue of Newton, Massachusetts. Edwards and Lanoue will be showing their pieces during the Friday and Sunday performances, and Rice's thesis will be part of the program on Saturday and Monday.

Lanoue, who is also a psychology major, uses dance to examine the relationship between mental illness and the arts in her thesis piece. Inspired by the many brilliant artists who have struggled with debilitating conditions but nevertheless created beautiful and meaningful work, Lanoue explores how extreme emotions and mental illness are expressed through the physical body and can shape movement.

Author Jean Flahive of South Portland will be the featured speaker at USM's Lewiston Auburn Senior College's "Food for Thought" luncheon at 11:30 a.m. on Friday, April 10.

With a lifelong interest in the Civil War and Maine history, Flahive will speak about her most recent novel, "Railroad to the Moon, Elijah's Story." Set in post-Civil War Maine, and using historical realities, her novel weaves a tale around Oren Cheney, founder and first president of Bates College, who helps runaway slave Elijah fulfill his dream.

While Cheney's public life is most visibly associated with the founding of Bates College, Jean will focus her remarks on Cheney's life-long commitment to the abolition of slavery and his remarkable role, as highlighted in the novel, in securing access to education for emancipated slaves in Maine and beyond.

Noted Maine author Jean Flahive to appear at L-A Senior College "Food for Thought" luncheon.

The author will share her personal experience as a writer of historical fiction and how her research led her to Oren Cheney, who she describes as one of Maine's forgotten heroes. In her historical novels, she has a penchant for researching the lesser-known historic details and facts, weaving them into her story, thereby fleshing out and enhancing her historical figures.

Flahive is a former dean of students at Central Maine Community College, a former trustee of the University of Maine System, and has worked as a grant writer for numerous municipalities and nonprofits.

She's the author of "Billy Boy, the Sunday Soldier of the 17th Maine' and a co-author of "Remember Me, Tomah Joseph's Gift to Franklin Roosevelt," which won the Moonbeam Gold Award for Best Multi-Cultural Children's Picture Book in 2009, and also a coauthor of "The Galloping Horses of Willowbrook, which was a finalist in the 2012 Maine Literary Awards.

Senior College, now in its 17th year, presents the monthly 11:30 a.m. luncheon program in Function Room 170 at 51 Westminster St.

The cost, which includes lunch, is $7 with advance reservation or $8 at the door. Reservations must be made by noon on Wednesday, April 8, by calling 753-6510. Any late callers will be considered "at the door."
