Sixth grade student wins prestigious national STEM competition in DC

By William Bellou
Publisher

Nivedita Sanghavi, a San Jose sixth grade student, has won the prestigious ProjectCS GIRLS National STEM (Science Technology Engineering Mathematics) competition in Washington, DC.

Nivedita invented a system called Peer-to-Peer Emergency Response System (PePERS) for the nationwide 911 network which will save lives by reducing wait times while attending Evergreen Elementary School. Nivedita, who graduated from Evergreen Elementary School with the Presidential Honor Roll, will be attending Chaboya Middle School in the fall.

She recently presented her detailed invention to the San Jose fire department (SJFD) and it was met with rave reviews.

"I learned that success is not about the limelight that you get, but the impact you make in the world," said Nivedita. "I believe in making a positive change in people's lives using science and technology." Making positive changes in people's lives is Nivedita's goal in life, as she has her sights set on becoming a doctor or an architect.

ProjectCSGIRLS competition

ProjectCSGIRLS competition for Middle School Girls challenges participants in 6th-8th grade to build something using computer science and technology that can help solve an imminent social problem under one of three themes - global health, a safer world, or intelligent technology.

Judges select semifinalists, finalists, and national winners. All finalists are invited to Washington DC for the national gala.

Student run non-profit bridges gender gap

By William Bellou
Publisher

Code One Programming, a student-run nonprofit in Silicon Valley, founded to teach computer science and coding to students of all ages for free, will offer a five-day STEM course to girls ages 8-13.

High school senior Thenu Senthil and Sang Gi Kim founded the well-run organization and are running programs with Aarushi Karandikar, president of Leland Women in STEM (WiSTEM).

"We began running our organization with the help of a few friends from Leland robotics team Quixilver and WiSTEM last December," said Senthil. "As a member of both clubs, I witness firsthand how introducing young students to multiple facets of technology can open doors for them. It's the maxim of FIRST and WiSTEM to spread STEM to all."

Mission statement

Senthil said the mission of Code One Programming is to

Solar eclipse viewing area at Hogue Park

By Dave Cortese

President, Santa Clara County Board of Supervisors

Even though Santa Clara County won't be in the path of a total solar eclipse on Monday, August 21, we will get to view a partial eclipse, with about 75 percent of the sun being covered.

This is a rare and exciting event that you won't want to miss. But please make sure you have the proper glasses. Looking directly at the sun will injure your eyes. If you're looking through a telescope or camera, you will need a special filter.

There will be many areas for viewing in Santa Clara County, including San Jose's Hogue Park. The San Jose Astronomical Association is hosting a free viewing event from 9 a.m. to noon on Monday, August 21, at Hogue Park in West San Jose. RSVP at: sjaa.net/events/solar-eclipse-2017

To prepare for the solar eclipse, several local libraries are providing special presentations:

Dr. Andrew Fraknoi, astronomy professor at Foothill College, will lead a discussion from 2 to 3:30 p.m. on Saturday, August 12, at the Milpitas Library, 160 North Main Street, Milpitas.

The San Jose Astronomical Association will share information about the solar eclipse from 2 to 4 p.m. on Saturday, August 5, at Joyce Ellington Branch Library, 491 East Empire Street, San Jose. SJAA Solar Astronomers will have densely filtered solar telescopes in front of the library.

SJAA will also conduct a solar eclipse viewing workshop from 2 to 4 p.m. on Saturday, August 12, at the Bascom Branch Library, 1000 Bascom Avenue, San Jose.

And here's something you might not have thought about. In California, the eclipse will reduce solar energy supplies that help power the grid for more than two hours while the moon blocks the sun. The California Public Utilities Commission is asking all of us to conserve energy during the time the eclipse is expected to occur in California, from 9:02 to 11:54 a.m.

Seniors Network Summit

The Seniors' Agenda Network Summit will be 1 to 4 p.m. on Wednesday, August 30, at the Campbell Community Center, 1 West Campbell Avenue, Campbell. The topic will be "Reframing Aging," and the featured speaker will be Moira O'Neil, senior researcher and director of research interpretation and application at the Frameworks Institute.

Twice a year, the Seniors' Agenda brings nearly 200 professional, advocates and elected officials together to strengthen our community for older adults. The Seniors' Agenda is a project of the County Department of Aging and Adult Services. Click here for more information and to register for this free event.

The passing of a great friend: Pat Dando

Pat Dando's untimely passing on Sunday, July 16 was a huge shock.

Pat was a great communicator and worked tirelessly to make things happen.

Her dedication to San Jose as a City Councilmember was unwavering. She enjoyed communicating to the community through her regular weekly Times Media column and interviews.

After serving on the San Jose City Council, she was appointed president of the San Jose Silicon Valley Chamber of Commerce. Following her retirement from her work at the Chamber, Dando devoted more time to her family, especially her beloved grandchildren. She also devoted time to civic and community work.

Pat was truly an effective City leader, especially the community she loved so deeply, Almaden Valley.

Silicon Valley has lost a great leader. —William Bellou, Editor

Tips for cooking a great steak every time

By Sean Eastwood
Times staff writer

Cooking a great steak seems like it should be easy; but sometimes the results are less than favorable.

Unless you're a beef rancher, a good steak can be pricey, so you don't want a disappointing outcome. You really only need a few ingredients. And the basic steps couldn't be simpler: Just toss the meat in the pan, flip it once, cook it until it reaches your desired doneness, and viola!

In reality, home-cooked steak often ends up tasting bland, tough, or both because of just a few mishaps. But it doesn't have to be that way.

Here are some tips for a great steak:

1. If you want a great tasting steak, look for tender cuts with a good amount of fat marbling, like filet mignon, New York strip, T-bone, or rib eye. That way, your steak will be moist and flavorful.

2. A steak needs to be seasoned in advance. Adding a salt and fresh cracked pepper to both sides of your steak at least 30 minutes before cooking gives the seasoning a chance to get absorbed into the meat, resulting in juicier, more flavorful meat.

3. Make sure you blot the raw steak with a paper towel to get rid of any residual moisture. This will ensure that the outside of your steak gets crisp and caramelized.

4. Do not use lightweight, nonstick skillets. Steak needs plenty of heat, so use a heavy-duty cast iron skillet to help form deliciously crisp outer crust.

5. Make sure the pan get hot enough. A screaming hot cooking surface is essential in order to achieve a crisp, caramelized crust. If there is not enough heat, your steak will steam instead of sear.

6. Always use a meat thermometer. It's difficult to tell whether a steak is done just by looking at it, so forget the visual cues and use a simple meat thermometer. Cook your steak to 140°F for medium-rare, 155°F for medium, and 165°F for well done. (Note: the steak will continue cooking and reach its final cooking temperature while it rests.)

7. The most common mistake everyone makes is cutting into your meat the minute you pull it off the pan or grill. This will result in all the flavorful juices spilling out of your steak and onto the plate—leaving you with a sad piece of meat. Always let a steak rest for 5 to 10 minutes so that the juices will make their way back to the center of the meat, and you'll be rewarded with a moist, mouth-watering steak and be well on your way to becoming a professional chef, at least in the eyes of your family and friends.

ProjectCSGIRLS currently reaches more than 3,500 middle school girls in 40 states. More than 700 middle school girls from 35 states participated in the 2017 ProjectCSGIRLS Competition, the fourth annual competition.

Background on Nivedita winning entry

The United States offers its citizens one of the most modern emergency response systems in the world. Typically users across the United States invoke emergency response services by dialing 9-1-1 on their phones.

The 911 calls are routed by the phone service providers to the nearest 'Public Safety Answering Point' (PSAP). The PSAP is a service which collects the information from the distress call and in turn alerts the proper emergency responders and agencies such as the police, fire department or emergency medical services (EMS).

In recent times these crucial emergency systems and services have come under tremendous pressure due to the following

- Higher volume of 911 calls coupled with growth of overall population.

- Declining funding from cash-strapped local counties and states.

- Higher budgets needed to modernize legacy PSAP and 911 call systems

An estimated 240 million calls are made to 911 in the U.S. each year. In many areas, 70 percent or more calls are originated from wireless devices. This mind boggling volume of calls stretches the emergency systems to the brink that ultimately pushes up the time it takes to respond to incoming requests. It is estimated that 15 percent of 911 calls are made for non-emergencies. While average 911 response times are heavily disputed, the American Police Beat estimates the average response time for an emergency call at about 10 minutes. Imagine not being able to receive critical care or first aid during a time of emergency. Those precious minutes spent waiting for First Responders to arrive on the scene could be the difference between life and death.

"I want to help reduce the stress on the overburdened emergency response services and in turn decrease the time it takes for emergency services to arrive when a 911 call is made," said Nivedita. "To solve this problem, my invention allows a 911 call initiated via a smartphone will be routed to a conventional PSAP as well as the PePERS system, which utilizes a nationwide network of smart phones providing identifies of other users in need of emergency services. The advantage of this system is the ability to rush aid to victims before conventional First Responders arrive at the scene."

PePERS will not solve or provide for every type of emergency, however PePERS provides immediate First Aid for as many emergencies as possible, therefore:

- Saving lives by reducing the amount of time it takes for a 911 caller to receive help. This will especially be the case in rural / less populated areas.

- Reducing the amount of time spent by conventional First Responders on non-emergency calls.

- Increasing awareness of local emergencies to a wider audience and by building a community of users who care for each other in times of crisis.

- Preserving scarce First Responder resources at the state and the county level that can be diverted to better use.

Nivedita's hobbies, interests

Nivedita's hobbies and interests include - building Legos (she is a master builder), swimming, playing the piano, taekwondo (brown belt), taking care of her two guinea pigs, and traveling with her parents.

Background on ProjectCSGIRLS Competition

Founded in 2013, Project CSGIRLS Competition is a national 501(c)(3) nonprofit working to close the tech gender gap through running a national computer science competition for middle school girls and workshops around the country. The competition and workshops challenge girls to be makers and use tech to develop projects with social impact, empowering them to pursue technology and confidently step forward into a field as male-dominated as computer science, speaking to their desire to create social change, and providing them with a network of like-minded peers, mentors, and professionals to help support and grow their ideas.

Ozharvest in Sydney, Australia features a pay-what-you-can model of commerce.

'Pay-what-you-can' supermarket concept may possibly take root in Silicon Valley

By William Bellou
Publisher

A new food market, Ozharvest Market, has opened to distribute rescued food at no charge in Sydney, Australia.

Food is sourced from the excess of major supermarket chains and approved caterers, food trucks and restaurants.

Customers pay on a merit system, paying what they can, in an effort to reduce the billions of dollars in food discarded each year. Volunteers stock the shelves while employees are positioned at check-out registers.

The market provides food from blemished apples to frozen sausage rolls as well as other items such as sanitary products, even toothpaste and shampoo, which would otherwise be thrown out by traditional food stores.

Food waste has become a global problem with an estimated third of all food produced worldwide ending up in garbage bins. It is believed that if we could save that food from being thrown away we would have enough to feed more than three billion people, which could end world hunger.

A group of local entrepreneurs is exploring the idea of opening a "pay-what-you-can" supermarket in Silicon Valley.

Editor's note: Watch for an upcoming article this fall about the planning stage of a "Pay-what-you-can" food market in San Jose.

offer valuable education for free to as many people as possible. "We have taught more than 12 classes (for which we have now amassed over 200 sign ups from our community), reached 400 people with our website in just one month, and have been publicizing through our Facebook page, which has now made our organization known to nearly 5,000 people."

Over the last few months, Code One Programming has written its own original curriculums, reached out to multiple venues, and has held free and easily accessible workshops -- on topics such as "Visual Programming" and "Java for Kids," as well as newer "Artificial Intelligence" and "Natural Language Processing" sessions. These workshops are in addition to the organization's own "AP Computer Science Summer Preparatory Course," all in an effort to teach STEM courses for free, classes that would normally cost hundreds of dollars-- because as Kim puts it, "something so important as education is not something that should be limited by cost."

Girls' Tech Week

Girls' Tech Week, which starts Aug 7, will introduce girls to STEM at the Rose Garden Library in a five day program. The program will begin with an introduction to FIRST Robotics with a presentation and robot demonstration conducted by Quixilver 604. Over the next three days, the girls will learn how to program and construct robots using the EV3 Lego Robotics kit in a comprehensive workshop. On the last day, students will participate in virtual reality demonstrations.

Girls' Tech Week is led by female mentors from WiSTEM who aim to share their passion for technology with their students. "In just a few days we've received emails and sign-ups from many parents," said Karandikar. "Everyone is excited to take part in our five-day program and we are expecting a large turnout for our pilot workshop."

STEM workforce today

Today, women make up half of the world's workforce, but less than a quarter of the STEM sector -- a surprising statistic, considering that women in STEM outearn their counterparts in other fields by 33 percent.

"Factors that contribute to the discrepancy between women and men in STEM include gender stereotyping and a lack of female role models," said Kim. "As a team, we are here to step in and bridge the gap by inspiring girls to get involved in STEM using an immersive, hands-on approach that makes STEM fun."

A mother of a past participant says, "Our son has always had an interest in coding and robotics. Attending these classes has given him an opportunity to learn in a very warm and encouraging environment. Interacting with older students who have similar interests has really helped him feel comfortable and look forward to learning. He always looks forward to the next class. It's fantastic to have access to this kind of educational environment and staff."

Dreams do come true

By Kevin Larsen
Times staff writer

This is a true poignant story about love and a boy's dream which continues to make a difference in people's lives.

The beliefs of the Hassan family nurtured the wonderful dream that was sparked by their son, Omar, who gave us all the gift of inclusion.

This nonprofit company that started in 2013 reflects the caring actions of a loving and supportive family. Five years later, Omar's Dream Foundation continues to carry the message and becomes more vibrant with each passing year.

Omar's imagined bridge of technology

Omar, taken ill, at a young age spent long periods of time in and out of hospitals where he would miss his school and friends. He missed being a kid! He did not want to miss any significant time in education, social relationships and wanted to move forward with other students in class.

Faced with isolation of six months for a treatment, he thought of a technology bridge and conceived the idea of using computers and tablets as a communications device to remotely connect with school and friends. Omar had a plan to attend his fourth-grade class, remotely via video conference. Five years ago, technologies like face time, skype, cloud sharing and Wi-Fi connectivity were uncommon.

He asked if cameras could be set up at his school so that he could continue his classroom experience and quest for knowledge. His parent's listened carefully to their son's request and with the support of the class teacher turned his dream into a reality. The young boy decided to break down physical walls and use the internet to connect with the outside world once again.

Dreams do come true!

According to Jamila, Omar's mother, Omar's teacher and classmates saw him online every day.

"He participated in math, science, and history lessons, writing workshops, read-aloud sessions, and book discussions. He even participated in music lessons. Imagine a music lesson with 32 children playing their recorders in San Jose and one at the Lucile Packard Children's Hospital in Stanford — but they are all playing together online. Omar was also able to attend assemblies, as his teacher brought her laptop and put it on a chair in the front row so he could participate."

He taught us by his actions that dreams can come true, you must be positive and work hard towards achieving the objective.

According to Omar's Dream Foundation, School-aged children who are hospitalized or under a physician's care long-term due to health conditions can quickly fall behind in their studies and feel isolated from their classmates and teachers. These children will greatly benefit emotionally by maintaining regular contact with their school friends and teacher(s) through Omar's Dream Program.

While many hospitals offer on-site access to state-mandated education programs, Omar's Dream Program allows hospitalized students to continue education with their own home school with familiar classmates and educators. With such sustained contact, when the time comes to reintegrate the student with his or her class, the integration is smooth.

Omar's Dream Foundation making a positive contribution

Omar lost his battle to Leukemia in April 2012 but his vision is fulfilled by the foundation whose mission is to bring normalcy into the lives of kids who are facing health related challenges.

Omar's Dream Program is currently running in three hospitals, Lucile Packard Children's Hospital, Santa Clara Valley Medical Center and Good Samaritan Hospital. The foundation also supports number of individual students recommended by various schools.

Over the years, many kids have benefitted from the program and the Foundation is continuing to look at avenues to reach as many children as possible.

You can "run strong" in the Omar's Dream Run

Each year in October, the Foundation, organizes a charity fun run at Hellyer Park in San Jose to raise funds to support the program. Attendance at the run continues to grow with every passing year. It is a family oriented event with exciting atmosphere. You can register in August to join the 5th annual Omar's Dream Run in October by going to the website. Don't be surprised to see many city officials and others panting as you briskly pass them by.

Omar Dream Run benefits hospitalized and medically supervised children to attend school and stay connected with their teachers and classmates. The event will be held on Sunday, October 15 at 10 a.m. at Hellyer Park in San Jose.

To learn more about Omar's Dream Foundation, a dream fulfilled and given as a gift to other children today, by going to www.omarsdream.org. This nonprofit organization is a humanitarian organization that is here for all. A world Omar would have wanted!

You can volunteer, donate, and become a sponsor.
