FINDING AUTHENTIC HAPPINESS

What is the thing you desire most in life, for yourself, your children and grandchildren? The answer heard most often is an overwhelming, "HAPPINESS!" This is our fundamental drive as far back as the writing of our country's constitution. We have an unalienable right to, "Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness". Where some of the inconsistency of opinion arises is the definition of happiness. Many associate happiness with smiling or laughing. Due to the misconception of what happiness encompasses, positive psychology has coined the term "well-being" or "authentic happiness". According to Positive Psychology, authentic happiness and well-being consist of many facets and have been explained using the acronym of "PERMA" (positive emotion, engagement, relationships, meaning and purpose, and achievement).
 •Positive Emotion does not always equal smiling, laughing and cheerfulness. It also embraces emotions such as security, comfort, gratitude, contentment, and interest. Many look to outside conditions as the cause of positive emotion; however, research has shown quite the opposite. Positive emotion begins from within and can actually have a positive effect on the outside conditions.

 •Engagement is about flow; being one with the music, time stopping, and the loss of self-consciousness during an absorbing activity. Engagement is different, even opposite, from positive emotion. If you ask people who are in flow what they are thinking and feeling, they usually say, "nothing." One needs to deploy his or her highest strengths and talents to meet the world in flow. There are effortless shortcuts to feeling positive emotion but there are no shortcuts to flow.
 •Relationships which are positive can be the number one generator of ultimate well-being and are a support network nurtured through giving and receiving. Humans are socially programmed and work hard to find and build relationships with other people. We affiliate and attract different people at different stages of our lives. Cultivating positive relationships can sometimes seem like a challenge, however, there are many tools available to develop and enhance personal and professional relationships.
 •Meaning and Purpose can be achieved in belonging to and serving something that you believe is bigger than the self. Humanity creates all the positive institutions to allow this (e.g. religion, family, political party, charities). Human beings have an intrinsic urge for meaning and purpose in life.

 •Achievement is described as a way of reflecting on the attempts of doing something and the degree in which it provides a positive sense of accomplishment. It is important to acknowledge your own goals and your own accomplishments, rather than comparing yourself to what others have accomplished or achieved.
 These constructs of well-being and positive psychology coincide with the principles and philosophy of positive living and practical spirituality. These same constructs and principles have been taught by Unity for several decades.
 Unity of Reading will be devoting every Sunday morning in September to providing tools for exploring and acquiring authentic happiness and well-being. We invite you to join us and look forward to seeing you! (Please see our ad).

"IS THIS THE RIGHT ADDRESS?"

People often ask me, "What good is physical therapy?" Or, "I have done PT before but it did nothing." My answer to those questions is, "Well, you probably didn't receive the correct approach to address your needs." And, you must find and see the correct physical therapy provider, not just do physical therapy.
 Too often, the approach of physical therapists is a generalized approach, which tries to treat all body regions with the same protocol. The correct approach is actually identifying what the factors are that contributed or caused your specific issue. If someone comes in with knee pain, why is that? Was it something that was acute, along the lines of a car accident, slip and fall, etc.? Or, is it specifically from a repetitive stress issue at work where you perform the same task everyday, thousands of times? When it is something easy like that, then, yes, natural healing time and reducing pain is your best friend at that moment.

But, what if this thing crept up for a few months now, and is really beginning to affect your quality of life? This is where a highly trained DPT (Doctor of Physical Therapy) consults with you to address YOUR specific issues, not hand you a bunch of exercises you need to perform 3 times a week for 12 weeks. What needs to be addressed is the cause of your issue. Addressing that cause, and then correcting those problems with treatments that will strengthen or reduce stress and strain to that affected area.
 One of the missions of the governing body of physical therapists, called the American Physical Therapy Association (APTA), is to deliver the best treatments to those who are seeking our services. We accomplish this goal by treating without a referral in the state of PA, and we are trained to examine your specific issues and create a treatment program that helps you, not a thousand of other people who are "sort of like you." Your issues are what's paramount and it is our job to make sure that happens. So, come and see me if you need some help. I can at least guide you in the right direction if you and I feel something is not right and needs further medical attention. Thanks for reading!

 Sincerely, Robert Gieringer, PT, DPT, OCS, SCS, COMT, FAAOMPT
 Bob received his Doctor of Physical Therapy degree from Arcadia University. Bob is a Certified Orthopaedic Manual Therapist, as well as a Board Certified Clinical Specialist in both Sports and Orthopaedics. Bob is a recent Fellow of the American Academy of Orthopaedic Manual Physical Therapists, which credentials graduates of an accredited post-doctoral program in Orthopaedic Manual Therapy. Bob specializes in the treatment of neck and back pain. Bob believes in an intensive hands-on approach to treating his patients, emphasizing both corrective manual techniques and exercises to facilitate the changes in patient response during each session.
