Anyone can run for the Highway Superintendent! It must be in your heart to truly care about this job. You need the personality. Hardworking 24-7 management skills are a must. It's always family first. You need to call out your workers when necessary. The boss isn't always popular for this reason.

I don't make the rules, I enforce them. That's what I get paid for! It's not about the signs, last names! Sour grapes and empty promises.

CRASH WITH DEER KILLS LYNDONVILLE MOTORCYCLIST IN THE TOWN OF CARLTON

The Orleans County Sheriff's Office is investigating a fatal motor vehicle accident in the Town of Carlton. Shortly before 6:31 a.m. on Sun., Aug. 27, 2017, a motorcycle was traveling eastbound on Gaines Waterport Road (Route 279) and struck a deer. After impact with the deer, the motorcycle skidded approximately 200 feet on its side. The operator was ejected from the motorcycle.

William M. Carpenter III, of Lyndonville, N.Y., was pronounced dead at the scene by Coroner Rocky Sidari.

THAT TIME OF THE YEAR AGAIN

By Douglas H. Domedion

They will be gone soon!

They entertained us all summer with their beauty and maneuvers, but it is time to head south now. Many felt there were less of them this year especially in the beginning of May when they first started arriving. They were down a little at both camp and at home this year for me, but not much.

We have just the one species of hummingbird, the ruby-throated, in our area, but there are about eight other species that exist across the country. Sometimes it seems there is another species here when the male "flashes" that ruby throat patch which usually seems black until the light hits it just right.

In August there is usually an increase in their numbers at our feeders, and that is because the young have left the nests and are following their mothers to our feeders. These young hummers at first all look like females, the reason some folks think they have a sudden increase of girls, but the young males will quickly start to develop that ruby patch on their throats.

Most of the summer the males try to dominate a particular feeder by chasing the other hummers away. He has nothing to do with the raising of the kids and thus has nothing to do all summer, but eat, act tough and chase other hummers.

The female on the other hand has to build a nest, incubate and feed a family of usually two. She doesn't have the time or energy to try and outmaneuver a male around a feeder. Thus, I spread my feeders around the different sides of the house so the females have a better opportunity to feed.

However this all changes once the young "fly the coop" and follow ma to the feeders. Now instead of one bird to chase away, the male has three! He seems to give up on this dominance once the young show up as there is just too many to chase now. I believe his theory now goes to, "If you can't beat them, join them."

Hummers have one of the largest brains relative to its size in the bird world. They have the ability to remember where each flower is in their territory and how long it will take for it to refill with nectar after they have fed on it. It is thought they can remember where every feeder is not only in their summer territories, but also along their migration routes. For those of you who think you get the same hummers each summer you are probably right! These brains are also responsible for their quick and efficient movements we witness around our feeders.

These birds are a amazing not only for their ability to fly forward, backward, sideways and even upside down, but most of them make a migration to South America by flying across the Gulf of Mexico, a 500-mile trip that they do non-stop in about 20 hours.

Before this migration starts a hummingbird will put on an extra 25 to 40 percent of his body weight. This extra fat is needed in order to travel the trip across the gulf in one day. The amazing thing about this weight gain is that if a larger bird put on this much weight it would not be able to fly!

About the middle of August some hummers begin this migration and most will have gone by the middle of September, so enjoy these little "jewels" during their last days with us. There is a myth that leaving the feeders up will delay their migration, but that is not so. In fact, it is a good idea to leave one up until the first of October. On more than one occasion I have had a hummer visiting near the end of September so it may just help out that little guy who is running late. Just remember to keep the feeder fresh as you did throughout the summer.

On Sept. 30, the Bow Bending Believers will be having their annual 3-D archery shoot at the Yates-Carlton Sportsmen's Club at 12286 Lakeshore Road from 8 a.m. to noon. The cost for the unlimited shooting is $10 except those 12 years of age and under it is $5. There are 20 life-like targets which will help you with your archery skills at hitting that big buck this fall. Shooting at a bullseye is good practice, but shooting at life-like deer targets really shows you where you are at with your archery skills and are thus able to hone them even better. No crossbows are allowed.

For all you non-hunters, remember, the early goose season began on Sept. 1, so don't be concerned about the shooting you may be hearing and try not to interfere with their hunting, as they are doing us a great favor by trying to keep the ever-increasing resident goose population under control.
