At The Corral Gate

This week's article is all about people I've recently met, talked to or snapped a photo of. Amazing that people will let you take their picture if you just ask them! Once in a great while I run into somebody who's unsporting enough to not want their picture taken, but it's quite seldom.

In walking downtown Sulphur Springs, I ran into my cute friend Gina just coming out of her storefront on Connally Street, and we laughed and chatted about what we're each up to these days. Then up walks the barber Don Deaton and I said "Hi Don", and Gina said "Hi Daddy". Daddy? Turns out that Don is Gina's dad and she told me she was practically raised on Connally Street. Well, I guess she was! Her dad's Deaton Barber Shop was right next to the Mission Theater, and I can just imagine the fun she must have had hanging out downtown back in her childhood, only a few short years ago! And, if you haven't seen Don Deaton lately, he still looks the same. Hasn't aged a bit. Even though Deaton's and the Mission are both gone from the scene, Don's still barbering on Mondays at Briley's Barber Shop just across the square on Jefferson Street.

This local pastor is putting on his second "Fruit of the Spirit" Awards Banquet this Saturday September 16 at the Sulphur Springs High School. He will present nine specific spiritual awards to deserving individuals who serve their community. A tenth award will go to a local media organization which has served the community continuously for seventy years, since 1947. It's address is 1230 on the AM dial, if that gives you any clue!

Pastor C.J. Duffy of Colorblind Ministries

The Hopkins County Healthcare Foundation is a separate entity from the local hospital, but serves it through fundraising efforts. Last year's Lights of Life campaign raised $ for an Anti-Gravity Treadmill for patients who cannot bear weight on their legs to get exercise, as well as a "Giraffe" Omni Bed for preemies and newborns born earlier than 32 weeks, so that they can stay near home and family during their first crucial weeks of life. These two additions to Christus Mother Frances Hospital have proven indispensable. The 2018 goal is $400,000 and the wish list includes eight carefully selected items. Plan to go to the Lights of Life Style Show sponsored by Lou Nell's Fashions and the Lights of Life Gala in January 2018. Your ticket purchases and personal donations make these important purchases possible.

Carrie Crowson, owner of Lou Nell's Fashions and Meredith Caddell, Executive Director of the Healthcare Foundation

The successful Quilt Show held in Sulphur Springs each September is not the only accomplishment of this talented visionary. Billie Ruth Standbridge helped form the Lone Star Heritage Quilt Guild about 20 years ago, and it's annual Quilt Show event brings in hundreds of visitors each September.. "B.R." is also responsible for getting momentum started to form the Sulphur Springs Downtown Business Alliance. She remains an active member of both organizations. Meet her at the Quilt Show on September 15 and 16, 2017 at The Roc.

We are blessed with record-setting weather and surrounded by great friends and neighbors. I often wonder why folks want to live anywhere else besides Northeast Texas! Til next week, I'll see you around town, and watch for you at the Corral Gate!

A BOOK ABOUT THE BALLOON LADY

Tumbleweed Smith

Tumbleweed Smith

About fifteen years ago I had a call from a woman who was writing an article for a major magazine about Mrs. Constance Wolf of Bluebell, Pennsylvania. In 1961, Mrs. Wolf set a number of world balloon records when she stayed aloft for some forty hours on a flight that originated in Big Spring. She said her mission was to take the record of women's free balloon flight away from the Russians. I was news director of a radio station in Big Spring then and accompanied her ground crew on that adventure and reported on the progress of the flight to the nation.

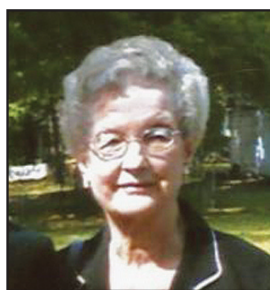

What got people involved in following this 56 year old grandmother was the fact that we in the ground crew never saw her balloon after it left Big Spring, even though we were reporting on sightings we picked up from airports, news media and law enforcement agencies in Texas, New Mexico, Kansas and Oklahoma. We were watching the clock and late in the flight I reported, "if Mrs. Wolf is still in the air, she has broken the Russian record." The uncertainty of whether Mrs. Wolf was still up there became a major story and attracted listeners and readers across the USA. It was the biggest story I've ever covered. She landed safely in a field near Boley, Oklahoma and broke the Russian record by four hours. Mrs. Wolf and I corresponded by mail until her death.

A few weeks ago I received a call from that same woman who had contacted me years ago. She is Jeanne Marie Laskas, who has written books that appear on the New York Times bestseller list. She wrote the book CONCUSSION about football injuries, which was made into a major movie starring Will Smith. She has won numerous writing and journalism awards for her work that has appeared in Esquire, The New Yorker, the Smithsonian, GQ, the Washington Post Magazine and others. She heads up the writing program at the University of Pittsburgh. She is writing a book about Mrs. Wolf. She previously wrote a book titled THE BALLOON LADY AND OTHER PEOPLE I KNOW.

She sent two researchers down to interview me and to look at the material I have about Mrs. Wolf and her flight. One of them recorded my every word from hello to goodbye. Since the book will have an accompanying audio feature, the girl with the mike and recorder had me read some of the reports that I had sent to the station during the flight. They had me take them to the former Hamilton Flying Field, the place where the balloon launch occurred and to the site of the motel where Mrs. Wolf stayed.

I didn't know it at the time, but Mrs. Wolf was extremely prominent in Philadelphia society. She and her husband, an attorney who was a general in the armed services, had lavish parties on their estate. Occasionally they would require guests to arrive in their airplanes. Mrs. Wolf's balloon was used in the movie AROUND THE WORLD IN 80 DAYS. Among other honors, she was the first woman to fly a balloon over the Alps. The researchers said I was the only person they had interviewed who actually knew Mrs. Wolf. They brought with them copies of letters I had written to the woman balloonist over the years. I still have some of her letters to me.
