At The Corral Gate

We are still a fairly ag-based community. Look at all that's going on around here this week under the full moon!

Harvest Moon...this usually occurs in September but sometimes it's in early October like this year....it will appear to be full for up to 2 days before and after October 5. Way back when, farmers could see to harvest their fields into the night when skies were clear enough. Imagine having to make hay while the sun shines and when the moon shines, too.

4H Week Oct 2-8. A 4H proclamation read by County Judge Robert Newsome on the steps of the courthouse, with 4H'ers, leaders and families gathered around.

The enrollment drive is on, so if you've been thinking about 4H for your youngsters, make contact now with the Hopkins County Agrilife Extension office in Sulphur Springs at 903-885-3443. There is a club nearby just waiting for you to join! Interesting...in 1914, the Extension Service was organized, and 4H was one of their first across-the-nation programs to help improve agricultural production of food and forage by teaching youngsters better ways to farm. The same year, the 4H clover symbol was adopted.

The Hopkins County Hay Show and Breakfast will be held on Thursday October 5, at 7am at the Extension office. In previous years, it was always held at the Ag Workers Building in City Park. That building is now gone. Hay producers have already submitted samples of their hay which will be graded by analysis from Northeast Texas Farmers Co-op. After that, judges will declare the winning producers from 1-10. We've raised lots of hay this summer!

Trent Loos is coming to town for a big event in downtown Sulphur Springs on Friday, October 6. This Nebraska farming journalist, radio host and touring speaker will talk to beef producers and the public at 4pm at the Cattleman's Classic meetings inside the Hopkins County Courthouse, and will address the crowd at 7:15pm as part of the Ribeye Roundup. Anyone can attend the producer meeting, and anyone can watch the steak cooks at work, and everyone can be on hand for the Stoney Larue concert at 8pm. The only thing you CAN'T do is enjoy a ribeye plate, BECAUSE ALL, EVERY LAST ONE OF THE DINNER TICKETS ARE SOLD OUT!! That makes NETBIO and the planning committees very happy, but it will be hard to have to turn hungry people away when they smell steaks on the grill. This year, plan to dine at one of our downtown restaurants and next year, beef lovers, please purchase your tickets early! It will be an excellent way to celebrate and enjoy BEEF DAY IN HOPKINS COUNTY!

Country entertainer Stoney Larue will be in Sulphur Springs as featured act for the October 6, BEEF DAY festivities. Stoney is a Texan by birth (Taft, Texas 1977) but raised in Oklahoma. He now makes Buffalo Valley, Oklahoma his home. He is described as an American music artist in the Red Dirt and Texas Country Music genres. Admission to his 8pm concert is free! Thank you Northeast Texas Beef Improvement Organization (NETBIO) and the sponsors who are making some history with this over-the-top Cattleman's event.

The annual Indian Summer Day at Heritage Park which shares billing with the John Chester Dutch Oven Cook-off, October 7. Even Saturday morning October 7, is not too late to enter...just bring your ingredients, your cooking paraphernalia and your $25 entry fee and be there early, by 7am to set up. And don't forget your helper....it's a 2-person team. And there are some nice prizes for best bread, best meat, best veggie and best dessert. The Choctaw Indian Dancers will be there, too...think they can make it rain?

We have received 45 inches of rain for 2017 so far. That's the annual average. Besides rain dances, prayers for precipitation are a good option. Til next week, I'll watch and wait at the dusty corral gate!

Seven Dead Puppies

Tumbleweed Smith

Tumbleweed Smith

Carl Prewit has taught English and coached tennis at the same high school for thirty-one years. He lives in Portland, near Corpus Christi and rides a bicycle all over the Texas coast. He collects stories about his family and is beginning to put them in a book.

"One of my favorite stories is one titled 'Seven Dead Puppies.' It occurred while I was growing up in Rule, near Stamford, where everybody knew everybody and their kids. They also knew which dog belonged to whom. We always had dogs and we had a dog named Rosie who had seven puppies.

"Dad worked in the oil field so Mom and the other ladies in the neighborhood played Canasta probably every two weeks or so. They'd meet at each other's house. When my mother was hosting the group it was my job to watch my little four-year-old brother and his friend, who was also four years old. His mother was one of the Canasta players.

"So I'm supposed to be watching these two little kids. It was summertime and I didn't want to have to do that. So I ignored them for a little bit. That's when they pulled a tub up and filled it with water. It wasn't long before they had all seven of Rosie's puppies in the water. I don't know if they were baptizing them or what. They didn't really know what they were doing. Anyway, these little puppies were drowning.

"My mother and another woman came out and saw what was going on. I've gotta tell you my mother was one resourceful person. She never never never gave up on anything or anybody. I had trouble with math in school and she stayed up till midnight with me showing me how to do those problems.

"Anyway she dashed outside and took those puppies out of that tub and got some towels and started drying off these little puppies. They rubbed their stomachs and even gave them artificial respiration, but got no response. The little dogs appeared to be dead.

"Finally, talking about my mother never giving up, she ran into the kitchen and we heard her banging around in there and I knew I was not going to survive this because I didn't do my job.

"She came out with two big aluminum platters like you put pizza on. She put four on one, three dead puppies on the other one and went into the kitchen with that big porcelain gas oven, pulled open the door, cranked up the pilot light and put those puppies in there. She pulled up a chair and sat down in front of that stove and waited.

"One of those puppies we thought were dead started wagging its tail. Then the others slowly began to show signs of life. They all lived. Every one of those puppies lived. We gave them all away except for one that we kept. He was the runt and grew up to be a fine pet, despite getting a shaky start at life."

Many of my pieces are heirlooms from loved ones. I can recall the exact place where I bought them with the fondest of memories. I love the treasure hunt!
