Answers on pg. 6

At The Corral Gate

What do kids do when they live in the Rocky Mountains in Colorado? Is life much different there for Texas kids? Not really. During my first trip ever to the Centennial State, I reunited with 3 grandchildren who moved there this past summer to Grand Junction. The word "junction" is an old-fashioned word, so I wondered how the town earned the name. It's partly because of its situation at the junction of two rivers, the Colorado and the Gunnison, also because the Colorado River was once known as the Grand River. Within the city, the Colorado River appears as a playfully moving stream. However, as it runs alongside I-70 between Denver and Grand Junction right across the Continental Divide, it displays a mightier personality with occasional rapids. Coming across those passes, the scenery is breathtaking with aspens a shimmering golden yellow, snow on the slopes at Vail, and every vista looking like a calendar scene of Indian Summer.

Two of my daughters, Jessica and Angela, both moved there with their husbands and children. My 18-year-old granddaughter Samantha took the trip with me. Some of our excursions included fishing for trout, hiking up a mesa and enjoying the eclectic fun of downtown Grand Junction. In neighboring Fruita, the kids attend a Montessori school. Back at the house, we constructed a Halloween House (similar to a gingerbread house) and spent LOTS of time on the trampoline.

I scheduled the Fall trip in part with the birth of a new grandbaby, but his arrival did not coincide with my week in Grand Junction. I guess I'll just have to meet Remington Barnes at Thanksgiving!

I admit, Texas looks a little drab now compared to what I experienced out west. But, there's truly no place like home! Til next week, let's bloom where we are planted and count our blessings to be living in the wide open freedom of the United States!

Colorado, a western U.S. state, has a diverse landscape of arid desert, river canyons and snow-covered Rocky Mountains, which are partly protected by Rocky Mountain National Park. Elsewhere, Mesa Verde National Park features Ancestral Puebloan cliff dwellings. Perched a mile above sea level, Denver, Colorado's capital and largest city, features a vibrant downtown area.

The Territory of Colorado was organized on February 28, 1861, and on August 1, 1876, U.S. President Ulysses S. Grant signed Proclamation 230 admitting Colorado to the Union as the 38th state. Colorado is nicknamed the "Centennial State" because it became a state a century after the signing of the United States Declaration of Independence.

TRAVELS WITH CROCODILE LYLE

Tumbleweed Smith

Tumbleweed Smith

When he's not tending his store on Route 66 in Amarillo, Crocodile Lyle is probably taking some New Zealanders along America's Main Street.

"I've been a Route 66 guide for several years. I rent a bunch of Mustang convertibles in Chicago for my groups from down under and we travel the whole length of the highway, from Chicago to San Diego. It takes about three weeks. I tell 'em stories along the way and some of them are true."

Crocodile was a scout leader for thirty-five years. A scout gave him the nickname Crocodile and it stuck. His real first name is Bob. He is an ex-Marine who saw duty In Viet Nam. He grew up in the panhandle town of Booker where his dad had a car dealership.

"It's in the northeast corner of the panhandle. It's three miles from Oklahoma and forty-five miles from Kansas. It's not really the end of the earth but you can see it from there."

When I visited him in his store and studio in the old San Jacinto district I told him it was hard to find a parking place nearby.

"There's one reason for that," he said. "It's Route 66. There's a lot of antique shops around here and locals come down to go to the junk stores. One of them told me he buys junk and sells it for antiques.

There are four art galleries down in this area." Crock is an artist.

"Well I'm an abstract expressionist. That's my first choice. I do landscapes, still life, figure studies, but my first love is abstract. And I make mosaics from paint chips off the cars at Cadillac Ranch. My latest claim to fame is making jewelry out of those paint chips. They're four or five inches thick and I thin them down. They fall off on the ground. Kids knock them off 'cause they crawl all over them and the wind blows them off. I just pick them up and recycle them. They estimate nearly a million people a year go out there and spray paint the cars. It's weird, man. I mean people from all over the world come to Amarillo and one of the rules is you've got to go to Cadillac ranch. And they're on motorcycles, in Mustangs, Corvettes, and old cars. They're out there." He's been making the jewelry nearly three years.

"It has put me on the map. I now have it in thirty-three states, eight European countries, Canada, China, Japan, Australia and New Zealand. I make rings, bracelets, necklaces, earrings and all kinds of stuff. I'm not getting rich but I'm paying the rent."

He used to write about Route 66 for a monthly publication. One story was about him and his son riding their motorcycles the entire length of the highway.
