Prayer to the BLESSED VIRGIN
 (Never known to fail). O Most Beautiful Flower of Mt. Carmel, Fruitful Vine, Splendor of Heaven, Blessed Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. O Star of the sea, help me and show me here in, you are my mother. O Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succor me in my necessity (make request). There are none that can withstand your power. O Mary conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3 times.) Holy Mary, I place this cause in your hands (3 times). Say this prayer for three consecutive days. You must publish it and it will be granted to you. Grateful Thanks.

Prayer for the BLESSED MOTHER
Remember, O most gracious Virgin Mary, that never was it know that anyone who fled to thy protection, implored thy help and sought thy intercession was left unaided. Inspired with this confidence, I fly unto thee, O Virgin of virgins, my Mother, to thee I come, before thee I stand, sinful and sorrowful. O Mother of the Word Incarnate, despise not my petitions; but in thy clemency hear and answer me. Amen.
My prayers have been answered.

The Active Consumer

Making The Humane Choice When You Shop

(NAPS)—Some 10 billion animals are raised on our nation's farms and ranches, yet the vast majority—almost 90 percent—are not provided animal-centric welfare standards beyond the industry standards offered by trade association guidelines and retailer-imposed audits. And very few producers are audited by independent third-party certifying organizations to verify that humane standards are met.

With prompting from the American people and non-profit organizations focused on animal welfare, this is changing. A recent survey of 6,000 people revealed that more than nine in 10 of those polled (94.9 percent) said they were very concerned about the welfare of animals in U.S. agriculture. Consumers' increasing awareness of and demand for humanely raised food are also matched by their willingness to back their ideals with action: More than three-quarters (75.7 percent) of the survey respondents said they would agree to pay more at the cash register for humanely raised meat, dairy and eggs. It appears that when it comes to improving the treatment of America's farm animals, consumers are literally putting their money where their mouth is.

To provide for the welfare of animals and meet the demands of today's enlightened consumers, a number of certification programs have arisen to set basic humane standards and oversee that they are followed. In 2000, American Humane Association, which was founded in 1877 around the issue of farm animal protection before expanding its mission to include children and all animals, created the first third-party farm animal welfare certification program. Based on the internationally accepted "Five Freedoms," the "American Humane Certified"™ program convened leading animal science experts, veterinarians and practitioners, and developed more than 200 scientifically based, species-specific standards covering everything from food to living conditions, humane space requirements and the expression of natural behaviors. Some 1 billion animals are now covered by this program alone, as well as 90 percent of the cage-free eggs sold in the United States. Still, this accounts for only a small fraction of the animals in the nation's agricultural system, and animal advocates continue to push for more protections and better standards for all those involved in America's food production.

"Ensuring the humane treatment of farm animals truly is one of the remaining frontiers in animal welfare," says Dr. Robin Ganzert, president and CEO of American Humane Association. "Fortunately, more and more people are looking for humane food choices that are in line with their values, and we encourage the more than 95 percent of Americans who do choose to eat eggs, meat, poultry and dairy to seek out humanely raised products and set a humane table for their families."

"Ultimately, Americans will exercise their right to eat what they want," says Michelle Ganci, national director of the Humane Heartland™ farm animal welfare program. "But no one has the right to treat animals inhumanely. We believe that all animals—those in our homes, those in service to our country, and those raised on our farms and ranches—are entitled to humane treatment, and we're encouraged to see that more and more Americans agree with us and are looking for humane food choices that make a difference to them, their families, and the 10 billion animals relying on us to do the right thing."

A New Test Aids In The Battle Against Prostate Cancer

(NAPSA)—A new type of test for prostate cancer is designed to improve on existing methods, and that's good news for men about to undergo testing—and those who love them.

It is estimated that one in four men with an initial negative prostate biopsy actually have cancer. This is cancer that is hidden from existing forms of testing. This is further complicated by the fact that it can be difficult to identify prostate cancer through PSA testing alone.

The new test, called ConfirmMDx for Prostate Cancer, was created to address this dilemma. The test can help distinguish, at the genetic level, patients who have a true-negative biopsy from those who may have occult, or hidden, cancer.

This can help urologists rule out prostate cancer-free men from undergoing unnecessary repeat biopsies and help them to rule in high-risk patients who may require repeat biopsies and potential treatment. The ConfirmMDx report provides "mapping" of test results to help guide the urologist on a follow-up biopsy.

All of this was welcome news to Brian and Sabrina Wagner. Now in their mid-40s, they were married in 2012 and settled down to life in Ft. Worth, Texas.

Because Mr. Wagner's father had been treated for prostate cancer in his mid-50s, his wife pushed him to get a PSA blood test—even though he was younger than the age at which most experts recommend regular PSA testing.

So it was cause for immediate concern when his first PSA test came back at 8.2, well above the usual result for a man his age. A follow-up test confirmed the result, and that prompted his urologist to recommend a prostate biopsy, in which tissue samples are collected from the prostate. The samples are then examined in a pathology lab for signs of cancer.

A new test for prostate cancer can help distinguish, at the genetic level, patients who have a true-negative biopsy from those who may have hidden cancer.

Despite Mr. Wagner's higher-than-normal PSA count, the biopsy samples showed no signs of cancer. Suspecting that an infection had caused the high PSA, his urologist gave him two cycles of antibiotics. Still, his PSA count rose, and one year later, he had a PCA3 test. This urine test has some utility in helping to detect disease, but it, too, came back negative for cancer.

By the following spring, Mr. Wagner's PSA had more than doubled to above 18. Concerned about that increase, Mrs. Wagner continued to do her research. She discovered information online about ConfirmMDx for Prostate Cancer.

Mr. Wagner's ConfirmMDx test results came back, and unfortunately, they confirmed the Wagners' fears: Mr. Wagner had prostate cancer. But at least now they knew the nature of his condition and what could be done to treat it. The ConfirmMDx test had given them the essential information that all the other, earlier tests had not.

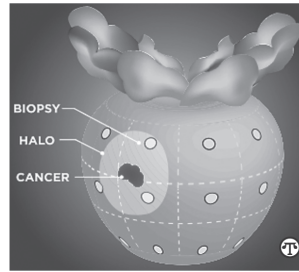

One additional benefit of the ConfirmMDx test is that it provides "mapping" of the methylation hot spots to help guide the urologist on a follow-up biopsy. The test recommended the doctor focus on the top right side of Mr. Wagner's prostate.

Another piece of good fortune came shortly afterward, when a friend recommended a urologist who specializes in robotic, nerve-sparing prostatectomies (removal of the prostate). Mr. Wagner had the procedure in July, and lab tests confirmed there was cancer in about one-third of the gland.

Mr. Wagner reports that he feels as healthy and strong after the surgery as he did beforehand. "I feel fine now," he says, pointing out that he was able to return to work just two weeks after the operation. Shortly after surgery, Mr. Wagner was scheduled for radiation treatment and was considering chemotherapy as a precautionary measure.

In the meantime, the Wagners have high praise for the ConfirmMDx test and their caregivers. They have also become outspoken advocates for having men and their families do the kind of research that helped the Wagners find guidance from the ConfirmMDx test.

For more information about ConfirmMDx, talk to your urologist or visit www.mdxhealth.com.

Schedule New Year DIY Resolutions

Q. You've mentioned before that certain home-repair tasks should be handled during specific seasons. I can understand not wanting to fix the roof in cold weather, but shouldn't house damage be addressed immediately? — Cliff in Mobile, Alabama

A. While many home-maintenance tasks are better performed at specific times of the year, you're right — damage should be repaired as soon as possible, particularly to a home's exterior. That certainly means a DIYer may find himself or herself tacking down a replacement shingle in frosty weather, or carefully thawing an ice dam that threatens to destroy a gutter.

But, say that several damaged shingles need to be replaced, or the gutter is in good shape but just needs some cleaning and a patch or two. More extensive maintenance and repairs should take place in warm months, so that patching material and roofing cement can cure properly.

That's why now, at the start of the new year, is a good time to rough out a home maintenance calendar. It doesn't have to be precise — you don't have to block out exact days (unless you want to) — but breaking down certain tasks by month, quarter or season can really keep your maintenance on track.

January and February, with cold temperatures, dormant plants and few holiday get-togethers to worry about, are good months to reorganize the workroom or garage, sharpen tools and mower blades, and draw up a budget for maintenance or improvement projects.

March through early May get busier: late pruning of shrubs and trees needs to be done before the last frost. Garden soil needs to be turned, fertilizer put down and lawns' bare spots reseeded. Exterior damage that didn't need immediate attention should be repaired now. Air-conditioning systems need their annual check-up by a professional.

The hot summer months, June through early September, are prime time for both exterior and interior maintenance and repair. Painting and remodeling are easier with the windows thrown open to allow fresh air in. Roofing cement cures properly. Balance all this with regular lawn care, and it's a busy time.

By late September, heating-system inspection and chimney cleaning need to be scheduled or completed — ahead of the inevitable rush that comes during the first big cold snap. Gardens are harvested and lawns prepared for the cold months. Up north, it's time to put away lawn-care tools and set out marker stakes to keep plow trucks from churning up the lawn edges.

Home-improvement stores often offer seasonal maintenance tips, and your computer's office software may include a maintenance calendar template to help you get organized.

So, while you're making more detailed resolutions to take care of yourself and your family as the year begins, remember to make plans to take care of your home, too. The best New Year to you all.

Old Magazines

Q. I have some Life magazines from April and October of 1945 and two National Geographic magazines from 1922. — Norma, Wolf Point, Montana

A. Your Life magazines might be fun to read, but the ones you have are worth only about $10 each, and that is assuming they are in good condition. There are always exceptions, such as issues that covered historic events or desirable covers. (Think VJ-Day and Marilyn Monroe covers.) National Geographic magazines, even early issues, are difficult to sell. Most of the ones I have seen in shops are priced in the $5 to $10 range.

Q. I would like the value of the following items: sleigh bells, Mickey Mouse pop-up book, old cigar clipper and a "naughty Nellie" boot remover. — Carol, Surprise, Arizona

A. To get an idea of values, I recommend you contact dealers in your area. You are near Phoenix, which has dozens of excellent dealers. Free appraisals are offered each Saturday from 10 a.m. until noon at one of the later antique malls, Antique Trove, 2020 N. Scottsdale Road in Scottsdale.

I have some thoughts about your boot remover. I suspect it is probably a reproduction, since thousands have been sold in shops and at malls in recent years, all repros and most man-

Year's end is neither an end nor a beginning but a going on, with all the wisdom that experience can instill in us.
 - Hal Borland

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) That lower-than-acceptable performance you're getting from others in your group might be the result of miscommunication. If so, correct it before serious problems arise later on.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) An unexpected situation could call for a change of plans. If so, you might feel that this is unfair. But it's best to make the needed adjustments now. There'll be time later for rescheduling.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) The new year brings opportunities you might want to look into. Some might be more interesting than others. But take time to look at all of them before you make any decisions.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) It's a good idea to be careful about expenses until you've worked out that pesky financial problem. You might find it advisable to get some solid advice on how to proceed.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Romance looms large over the Leonine aspect. Single Lions looking for love should find Cupid very cooperative. Paired Cats can expect a renewed closeness in their relationships.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Making contact with a former colleague might not be high on your list of priorities. But it could pay off personally as well as professionally. Avoid bringing up any negatives about the past.

HALL RENTAL: VFW Post 9404, 29 South Main Street, Coventry. Call 828-9705 for a quote or we will negotiate a price based on your needs.

Hard work spotlights the character of people: some turn up their sleeves, some turn up their noses, and some don't turn up at all.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) A personal relationship could face added stress because of a situation involving someone close to both of you. Be supportive and, above all, try to avoid playing the blame game.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might well find some lingering uncertainties about a decision. If so, take that as a warning that you might not be ready to make that move yet. More study would be in order.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Music is a dominant theme for Sagittarians right now, and it should remind you to make a greater effort to restore some much-needed harmony in that very special relationship.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Although family matters might demand much of the Sea Goat's attention this week, you'll want to try to make time to handle those all-important workplace situations as well.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A recurring unresolved issue might need to be revisited before you can move forward. Consider asking someone familiar with the situation to act as an impartial counselor.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Ignore pressure to make a decision. Keeping your options open is still the wisest course, at least until you're sure you've learned all you need to know about the matter at hand.

BORN THIS WEEK: You're capable of great loyalty to those around you, which is one reason you can count on devotion from friends and family.
