Bill Clinton dedicates 'Talking is Teaching' panels at Sollers Point Multi-Purpose Center

Bill Clinton stopped by Turner Station in conjunction with early education outreach efforts launched by the Clinton Foundation's "Too Small to Fail" initiative. He cut small pieces of the ribbon to give to each child at the event.

 Former President Bill Clinton stopped by the Sollers Point Multi-Purpose Center in Turner Station Monday, Oct. 30, to cut the ribbon on an education-themed playground.

Joining representatives from the Clinton Foundation's Too Small to Fail initiative, as well as Baltimore County Public Library (BCPL) officials, Clinton stressed the importance of new signs that were designed to raise awareness among parents about the importance of talking and reading to their children, as well as getting their children talking.

"The purpose of Too Small to Fail is to empower parents and caregivers to talk, read and sing with children from the day they are born to help them to build the framework on which they can become everything they ought to be," Clinton said.

The informative panels, which were placed as part of BCPL's participation in Too Small to Fail's "Talking is Teaching" public awareness campaign, include prompts to get children to talk about shapes, colors, numbers, feelings, the weather and a whole lot more.

"So many of the neural networks needed to support learning are formed by the time children are three years old,"

Clinton said.

The former president told the crowd of people gathered at the unveiling that he has long had an interest in early childhood learning, and that the extra year his wife, former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton, spent in law school studying early childhood development pushed his interest further.

Clinton told the crowd that the work being done by the Too Small to Fail initiative is to show that learning does not need to be restricted to the classroom. He noted that whether it is on a playground or on a bus, getting children talking about

Rosedale residents looking to resolve issues surrounding methadone clinic

- By Devin Crum -

The Riverside Treatment Services methadone clinic has operated at 8359 Pulaski Highway/US-40 in Rosedale for about the last year and a half. But residents living in the area are growing frustrated with the problems they see as related to the facility.

The Rosedale Community Association held a meeting on Oct. 18 to give residents and business owners a forum to air their frustrations and to try to devise a plan to address the situation.

One resident of Berk Avenue said at the meeting that it looks like "the walking dead" at 5 a.m. as patients are making their way down the street to the clinic. He also said he nearly stuck his finger with a discarded syringe buried in a pile of leaves on the street near his home as he was picking them up.

"That's what I put up with," he said. Kathy McCoury, of the Baltimore County Business Association, said she hears from a lot of the businesses in the area, including some of the nearby motels, that they do not support having the treatment center there because of what it draws.

"We're on a main highway, and there's no reason why we need one of these kinds of facilities on a main drag," she said, adding that she has witnessed two near-accidents there due to drivers exiting the facility. "It's just too busy of an area to have it."

One supporter of the clinic said a lot of the people receiving treatment at RTS go there and then go to work and do not stick around in the area.

Another supporter asked, "If not here, where?"

He said some of the people seeking treatment there are just trying to get help, such as a particular woman who is a wife and a mother. "Where would you suggest they go?"

To that, RCA President Russ Mirabile and other attendees replied that they should go to a hospital to receive treatment where they would not be a burden on area residents.

Capt. Chris Kelly, commander of the Baltimore County Police Department's Precinct 9 which services the area, remarked about the severity of the opioid crisis when he noted that as of the night of the meeting there had been 228 fatal overdoses in the county. He said 134 of those were fentanyl related and added that there had been 1,252 non-fatal overdoses in the county year to date.

Kelly informed the crowd that he is limited in what he can do as law enforcement to police methadone clinics because they are regulated by the Americans with Disabilities Act.

"There really is no difference, in the eyes of the law, between that and a dialysis center," he said.

Further, Kelly had concerns that excessive enforcement around the clinic and those who use it could be construed as harassment and interrupting the care of sick people.

"At a certain point, we could be liable for interrupting their care," he said.

The captain acknowledged that they have seen a few car accidents in the area of the clinic, and they do enforce impaired driving laws. But he admitted he did not know how methadone would show up for field sobriety or blood tests.

However, Kelly said they are increasing bicycle patrols in the area to help officers patrol the smaller side streets.

The residential side streets have experienced the problems because many people traveling to and from the clinic on foot must travel through the adjacent neighborhoods to make use of public transportation along Philadelphia Road. They must also cross the busy US-40.

There are no bus stops directly on Pulaski Highway in the area near the clinic, some residents lamented.

Baltimore County Councilman Todd Crandell (R-7), who represents the area, made mention of this during the County Council's meeting with state transportation officials on Thursday, Oct. 26, while discussing the state's Consolidated Transportation Program, asking why the buses only use Philadelphia Road.

A representative from the Maryland Transit Administration said while he did not know the definite answer, it could have to do with a lack of pedestrian structures or safe places for people to wait for a bus.

Crandell said not having a bus stop close to the clinic has led to other issues such as trash or other things making their way from the facility into the neighborhoods.

"Most of these patients are just walking down the street," he said. "Some of them are causing disruptions in neighborhoods where they've never had disruptions before."

The councilman acknowledged the need for such clinics. "However, they do have an impact," he said.

Asked what can be done to get bus stops strategically located nearer to such facilities, the MTA representative said the agency has actually consciously moved bus stops away from methadone clinics.

"That has to do with people falling into the roadway," he said. "In some respects you don't want bus stops right next to methadone clinics." He added there is a healthy balance they need to find.

At the community meeting, Mirabile said he disagreed with the police captain about the amount that could be done, noting that the ADA only covers the building which houses the clinic and the government cannot permit a nuisance that is detrimental to residents' quality of life.

"This affects our insurance premiums, property values, and we consider it a public nuisance to the community and a public safety issue as a result of the [ADA]," he said. "That act or any other act cannot disturb all of our quiet enjoyment and peace of mind."

Instead of working through elected officials and bureaucratic avenues to try

New site chosen to replace Fort Howard outpatient clinic

- By Devin Crum -

The U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs has selected a new location in Rosedale to replace its shuttered outpatient clinic at Fort Howard which closed last year.

The new clinic is slated to open in August 2018 in 12,000 square feet of leased space within the newly constructed Franklin Square Professional Center at 5235 King Ave., not far from Franklin Square Medical Center.

The building is owned by the development firm Cignal Corp., the principal of which is Armando Cignarale. Cignarale expressed interest in taking over the redevelopment of the former Fort Howard VA hospital property - the former home of the outpatient clinic - during a community meeting in June 2016.

The Fort Howard clinic was prone to flooding from rain and high tides, according to a VA spokesperson, but originally closed on March 9, 2016, due to flooding from a broken water heater. Patients using the location were transferred to the Loch Raven clinic in Baltimore. The facility was closed for good after mold and other structural issues were found upon subsequent inspection.

At 50 percent larger than the Fort Howard location, the new facility will feature spacious exam rooms and comfortable patient waiting areas, the VA Maryland Health Care System announced last Wednesday, Oct. 25. They also touted its proximity to major highways, including I-95, I-695, U.S. Route 40 and Maryland Route 7, as well as mass transportation

- a feature lacking at the old location.

"One of the things with Fort Howard, besides it being an older building..., was that it wasn't as easily accessible to people using public transportation," said VA spokeswoman Ming Vincenti.

Additionally, she said, "There was one road in and one road out. So when that road flooded, it was no business for the day."

As one of six community-based outpatient clinics operated by the VA Maryland Health Care System, the Eastern Baltimore County VA Outpatient Clinic will also provide outpatient primary care services, mental health care, women's health care, social work assistance, preventive health and education services, various medical screenings and referrals to specialized services available throughout the health care system. The clinic, which will be open Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., will also feature a free weekday shuttle service to and from the Baltimore VA Medical Center.

Vincenti said a lot has been put into choosing the new location, which is right in the center of eastern Baltimore County and will offer readily available clinic appointments for veterans living in Bowleys Quarters, Carney, Chase, Dundalk, Edgemere, Essex, Fort Howard, Fullerton, Kingsville, Middle River, Nottingham, Overlea, Parkville, Perry Hall, Rosedale, Sparrows Point and White Marsh.

"So instead of it being kind of on the outskirts of one of those areas, it's smack in the center," she said.

The spokeswoman mentioned that a number of eastern Baltimore County residents who use VA services were choosing to go to the Loch Raven clinic rather than the Fort Howard location because of its inaccessibility.

"So when you think about driving downtown to go to that facility versus having one right in your own community or right down the road, that's going to make a big difference," she said.

Vincenti said the next 10 months will be used to get the new space set up for the health care system's needs and standards of care.

During the VA's fiscal year 2017, which ran from October 2016 to September 2017, the system determined that they saw 3,123 visits from 1,570 veterans who would have used the Fort Howard clinic had it been open.

When the new clinic is up and running, they anticipate nearly tripling those numbers with about 9,000 visits from 4,500 veterans coming twice per year to the facility.

Asked if there is a plan yet for the old building at Fort Howard, Vincenti said not at this point.

"We're focusing on getting a clinic back open for the veterans who were going there," she said.

Dreamers in Dundalk loses liquor license

- By Virginia Terhune -

Closed since April, the Dreamers Female Review adult entertainment bar on Old North Point Road in Dundalk could be up for sale soon after owners failed to pay their liquor license renewal fee of $1,500 and outstanding fines imposed by the county liquor board in February.

On Monday, the Board of Liquor License Commissioners denied a request by the owners to extend their liquor license due to financial hardship, citing lack of evidence to support the request.

The decision means the owners have lost the lucrative license unless they appeal to the Baltimore County Circuit Court and win a reversal or file for bankruptcy, which would put a hold on the board's decision.

The owners' attorney, David Mister, said they have defaulted on their mortgage and that there are judgments against them totaling more than $106,000. As of last week, they were working with a broker to sell the property, the business and the license to pay off the debt.

Dreamers was fined $4,000 in February for violating dancer dress codes and for drug violations. In addition to the fines, the license was also suspended from Feb. 15 through March 7.

The board previously fined the bar $2,000 for similar violations after a hearing on Dec. 19, 2016.

License holder Virginia Borsella said Monday that the financial problems were in large part due to the three-week suspension in February that temporarily closed down the business.

She also cited a decline in customers since the Bethlehem Steel mill in Sparrows Point closed down years ago and recent construction work on North Point Road that blocked customer access.

The president of the Wells-McComas Citizens Improvement Association, Robert Zacherl, disputed the latter claim. He also noted problems with drug violations and with patrons or possibly renters who appeared not to be sober, yelling and causing disruptions outside the bar.

"It's our opinion that the hardship is on the community," he said.

But the board was limited to considering only the circumstances that lead to the request for the hardship extension, according to commissioner Les Pittler.

Pittler argued that there was not enough evidence presented and that the license had expired because the 180-day period to file a request for hardship had ended.

Mister countered that the owners filed their renewal on time and that the license still existed but had simply not been issued as of May 1 because of the outstanding renewal fee and fines.

In other business, the commissioners dismissed charges made in a police report that Putty Hill Liquors on Belair Road had sold liquor to a minor.

The board took into consideration that the officer was not present Monday to testify which denied the defense a chance to cross examine, and that the owners had since started using a scanner to regularly check all IDs.

Planned medical marijuana store relocates within Dundalk

The former Burger King on Rolling Mill Road at North Point Boulevard is slated to be the new location for the cannabis dispensary previously planned for German Hill Road.

Colgate community meeting set for Saturday
- Article & photo by Virginia Terhune -
The group of investors that planned to open a licensed medical marijuana dispensary on German Hill Road in Dundalk has relocated to an alternative site in a more commercial area on North Point Boulevard.

The group is leasing a shuttered Burger King restaurant on Rolling Mill Road at North Point Boulevard near the Baltimore City line and plans to open in early December, pending a final inspection by the Maryland Medical Cannabis Commission.

Located near a car dealership, a self-storage business, a commercial vehicle repair shop and a bar, the dispensary project has the support of the nearby Colgate residential neighborhood.

"It's the first building to be renovated in more than 20 years," said Donna Metlin, president of the Colgate Improvement Association, who also cited the benefits of medical marijuana products to treat pain and chronic conditions.

"I think it's a real asset for Colgate," said Metlin, who has invited representatives of the Health for Life dispensary, affiliated with CGX Life Sciences, to speak at a community meeting set for Saturday, Nov. 4, from 2 p.m. to 3 p.m. at the St. Peter Evangelical Lutheran Church, located at 7834 Eastern Ave.

Project Manager Julie Winter said she will make a presentation and answer questions about the dispensary, one of nearly 100 expected to open around Maryland under a law that allows the growing, processing and sale of medical marijuana to registered users.

The parking lot has been repaved, landscaping is complete and a new roof and HVAC system will be installed in the building, according to Winter.

Work has started on the interior renovations and the dispensary hopes to open by the pending deadline set by the commission.

"We'll be fixing the inside and the outside over the next six weeks and hope to be ready by the Dec. 9 date," Winter said.

In the meantime, the German Hill building and property are set to go up for sale next week, she said.

Neighbors of dispensaries are often concerned about security, parking and customers who use such facilities, which are sometimes confused with methadone clinics.

Metlin said she is impressed with the level of security required in the dispensary, ranging from surveillance cameras, a vault to store products and a secured vestibule where customers must present identification before entering.

"It's tighter than Fort Knox," she said.

Winter said she is also working with Metlin to schedule a job fair to help fill 30 to 40 positions with preference given to local residents and veterans.

Needed are people with experience working in reception areas, pharmacies or holistic centers as well as managers with retail experience, she said.

The Health for Life dispensary is one of six pre-approved dispensaries in eastern Baltimore County under regulations that allow two dispensaries in each state senatorial district.

Also located in District 6, which includes

Dundalk and Essex, is the Charm City Medicus dispensary farther south at 717 North Point Blvd. in a commercial center across from Eastpoint Mall.

Renovations are under way and the site is expected to open soon, pending final inspections by the Maryland Medical Cannabis Commission.

CGX initially bought a two-story brick building next to the Speedy Mart convenience store on German Hill Road but was denied requested relief from parking and landscaping requirements by a county administrative law judge.

The group appealed the decision and a hearing was set for Oct. 18, but it was canceled after the group found what it saw as a more suitable location on North Point Boulevard.

In addition to limited parking and other site constraints, the group was dealing with opposition from the Berkshire Community Association because of its proposed location next to residences, a park and a daycare center.

"It was smack in the middle of our neighborhood," said Nora Baublitz, president of the BCA, which like Colgate supports the alternative site in the more commercial area off North Point Boulevard.

Tradepoint open house offers information on new tenants, MTA line

- By Marge Neal -

the expectation to be operational by May 1, 2018, according to Gilbert.

The industrial center's FedEx Ground distribution center has been fully operational for about three months. A building is under construction on a parcel that company officials refer to as "TPA5," and Tradepoint officials are in the final stages of negotiations with what Gilbert would refer to only as "another blue-chip company."

"Expect more information on that later this year," he told the crowd.

The company is also building several "speculative" buildings without specific tenants in mind. One "spec" building is a warehouse and two others are "port-centric" which can accommodate bulk marine-related commodities.

The spec buildings would allow companies to make a quick move without waiting for custom construction, and they are versatile enough to meet the needs of the kinds of companies Tradepoint is trying to attract, Gilbert believes.

He also told the crowd the company was able to rezone a portion of land closer to the beltway and Bethlehem Boulevard to allow for retail space. He told the crowd the first retail tenant has been signed, but would say only that it is a well-known name in the convenience store/fueling industry. Again, he said more details would come later in the year.

Tom Hewitt, director of the Maryland Transit Administration's Office of Service Development, gave an update on a proposed bus line to serve the Tradepoint campus.

He said his office has been working on a bus route with Tradepoint officials for about two years.

"This is a major opportunity to get workers to the job opportunities here," Hewitt said.

The main trunk of the proposed route will run from the Johns Hopkins Bayview Hospital campus to Tradepoint via Eastern and Dundalk avenues, Dunmanway, Peninsula Expressway and Bethlehem and Sparrows Point boulevards, according to maps handed out by MTA.

Two options of the route are being considered, with one offering an alignment with Boston Street. Public hearings - including one at the North Point Library from 5:30 to 8 p.m. Wednesday, Nov. 15 - will be offered for bus riders to weigh in on the two options.

Hewitt said he expects the new bus route to go live Feb. 4.

Tradepoint officials said that, currently, more than 800 employees are working for about 75 tenants. They anticipate having more than 2,500 workers on site by the end of 2018, which would equal the number of steelworkers employed when the plant closed for good in 2012.

their surroundings can work wonders for their development.

Sollers Point is the 83rd playground to receive the panels, which were funded in full by the Foundation for Baltimore County Public Libraries. BCPL becomes the first public library to partner with the Too Small to Fail initiative.

"The Foundation for Baltimore County Public Library views reading as a critical and fundamental tool for all ages," said Greg Jones, president of the Foundation's board of directors. "Supporting early learning is a natural first step."

The library foundation also committed $12,000 to expand the program, with both Storyville at Rosedale and Storyville at Woodlawn being underwritten by the foundation.

"This project is yet another example of our wonderful foundation supporting Baltimore County Public Libraries' most important priorities," said BCPL director Paula Miller. "We are proud to be the first public library system to install these panels, which facilitate conversations between children and their parents and caregivers."

Clinton stressed during his remarks that no child should be at a learning disadvantage due to economic issues, whether they live in rural or urban areas.

"You can never know what's in the head of a child. You can do a lot to make sure whatever they imagine, they live," Clinton said in his closing remarks.

Clinton's visit to Dundalk was a bit of a surprise to Miller and others. They knew that the Clinton Foundation would be coming for the event, Miller said, but it was unclear whether or not the former president himself would be joining. Last week, a team was sent out to Sollers Point to scout the location, hinting that the former president might stop by.

After remarks were given, Clinton, Miller and Jones posed for a ribbon cutting with a number of children. After the initial ribbon cutting, Clinton stayed a bit longer to cut off individual pieces of the ribbon for each child present to have as a keepsake.

Clinton joked in the beginning of his remarks that the children present were thinking "when are all of these old people going to shut up so I can go play on the playground?"

to find a solution, Mirabile suggested the community should hire a zoning attorney to litigate the issue in court.

"This will take action immediately," he said. It will not have to wait a year or two years.

"All we're asking them to do is let them go some place where they won't bother all of us," Mirabile said.

State Delegate Robin Grammer (R-6), who also represents the area, said he has been working on the issue for about a year and researching what other states have done or tried to do.

He said these types of facilities operate under a "very loose" regulatory framework, and they are not required to inform the community when they come in.

"What we're essentially seeing is they're going in without any warning, without any notice... and you really start to see a lot of community problems that you can't control," Grammer said.

The delegate opined that they should be required to be in more of a "protected" space and that an "isolated" space where there is no residential would be best.

He noted that several states have passed bills to try to regulate where these centers can be or apply a state regulatory framework for them.

"And every single bill that we found has been overturned in the courts because these are considered protected by federal law," Grammer explained.

Methadone clinics are licensed and regulated federally through the Drug Enforcement Agency and the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration. And while SAMHSA has in place rules that the centers must adhere to, they also have broader "guidelines" under which they operate.

"But the guidelines aren't binding," Grammer said, adding that they include things like putting in place policies and protocols to prevent the types of issues communities have experienced.

He noted that he has also consulted with the National Conference of State Legislators to see what information they can find, and he hopes to introduce legislation in the 2018 General Assembly that would "make certain requirements" of the state's Behavioral Health Administration regarding the clinics.

"But it seems that our options are very limited without having someone from our federal delegation sponsor a change to federal law," Grammer said, which he acknowledged would be difficult in today's political environment in Washington, D.C. "I'm still looking for options here, but we may have to get our congressional delegation involved on this one."

Del. Bob Long (R-6) said he has met with the owners of RTS and found the meeting productive.

"RTS has committed to work with the community," he said. "RTS wants to be good neighbors and encourages Rosedale residents to report any problems."

"The most important goal is to keep our neighborhoods safe and clean," Long said.

Police snag bank robbers after brief pursuit

Baltimore County and Baltimore City Police Officers worked together to apprehend two bank robbers following a brief pursuit on Oct. 23.

County officers saturated Belair Road in the Perry Hall and Overlea areas after receiving a call for a bank robbery that just occurred at SunTrust Bank, 8704 Belair Road in Nottingham around 11:50 a.m.

The first arriving officer broadcast a description of a male suspect who had entered the bank and displayed a note to the teller along with the suspect vehicle, both caught on bank surveillance video, leaving the scene on Belair Road toward Baltimore City.

Officers from the White Marsh Precinct, positioned around Belair Road near Baltimore City, observed a vehicle matching the description of the suspect vehicle traveling southbound on Belair Road near Baltimore City. The officers initiated an investigative traffic stop on the vehicle, which immediately began to flee into Baltimore City. City Police were notified and quickly came to the assistance as the pursuit ended when the suspect crashed into a civilian's vehicle, who suffered minor injuries, in the intersection of Federal Street and North Broadway.

Two suspects fled from the crash on foot. A female passenger was apprehended near the crash scene by Baltimore County and Baltimore City officers. She is identified as Crystal Lynn French, 33, of the 100 block of Rebel Road in Grasonville.

The driver of the vehicle fled on foot into an alley and a resident's yard, failing to comply with all of the officers' verbal commands and resisting arrest once he was apprehended. He is identified as Matthew Dale Bush, 38, of the 2600 block of Porter Road in Bear, Delaware.

Both suspects were briefly hospitalized with minor injuries. Both are charged with robbery and theft. Bush is additionally charged with resisting arrest. Both are held without bail at the Baltimore County Detention Center.

Holiday crime prevention tips

During the holiday season, shoppers may be so busy that they fail to be aware of their surroundings. Careless or unaware shoppers are easy pickings for purse snatchers and street robbers. Follow these tips to keep you and your possessions safe during the holiday season:

- Don't flash large amounts of cash or offer tempting targets for theft such as expensive jewelry or clothing.
- Carry a purse or shoulder bag close to your body, not dangling by straps. Put a wallet in an inside pocket of your coat or front pants pocket.
- Always walk and park in well-lit areas. Park close to the entrance of the store or mall, if possible. Even outside of the mall, stick to well-lit, well-traveled streets, walkways and parking areas for walking and parking.

Scammer uses MSP number for credit card recording

Maryland State Police are warning the public about a reported telephone scam in which the caller cloned a state police number for a recording call offering credit card services.

A woman from Baltimore County called the Maryland State Police Monday afternoon and reported she had received a call in which the caller ID on her phone showed "Maryland State Government" and the number 410-653-4241, which is a number for the Maryland State Police Office of Media Communications. However, when she answered the call, it was a recording to offer credit card services.

The Maryland State Police have no connection to any credit card company and would never solicit such information or services over the phone from any citizen. Anyone who receives such a phone call should hang up and then contact their local state police barrack. Callers may remain anonymous.

Current crime trends

- Since Sept. 20, there have been eight residential burglaries within the Mansfield Woods and Essexshire communities in the Essex Precinct that appear to be related. Cases occurred between 4:30 a.m. and 8 p.m. Rear doors and windows were entered in four cases. Unlocked doors or unknown means were used in three cases. A window was pried in one case. Items taken include game systems, electronics and safes.

- Since Aug. 28, there have been 12 residential burglaries in the Seven Courts area in the Parkville Precinct that appear to be related. Eight cases occurred between 7 a.m. and 11 p.m. Other cases occurred during mid-morning or late-night hours. Entry was made through rear windows or doors. In three cases, a safe was attacked or taken. Other items taken include jewelry, personal identity items, video game systems, credit cards, money and a TV. Attached garages were entered in two incidents. Anyone with information should call the police.

Precinct 12/Dundalk

Second Degree Burglary: Officers from the Dundalk precinct were called to the 7100 block of Holabird Avenue on Oct. 26 shortly before noon. Sometime between 6 a.m. Oct. 24 and 11:45 a.m. Oct. 26, Holabird Liquors was burglarized for a second time by an unknown suspect. The store suffered a fire on Oct. 23, and the windows were boarded up and the doors secured by padlocks. The victim was unsure if anything was taken. Between 10 p.m. Oct. 23 and 8:56 a.m. Oct. 24, an unknown suspect entered Holabird Liquors through a boarded up door. The suspect stole cash, 100 packs of Newport Cigarettes and a bag of jewelry.

First Degree Burglary: On Oct. 23, Baltimore County police were called to the 500 block of 4th Street. Between 10:30 a.m. Oct. 23 and 11:48 a.m. Oct. 27, an unknown suspect entered the vacant house, then stole electrical wiring from the basement and the attic.

Attempted Second Degree Burglary: At approximately 4:10 a.m. on Oct. 19, officers from the Dundalk precinct responded to a burglary call in the 400 block of North Point Boulevard. At 4:07 a.m., the victim saw two unknown suspects in a lot near some stored dirt bikes at Baltimore Towing. One suspect displayed a gun and threatened the victim with bodily harm at which time the victim fled into an office. The suspects fled the lot and ran towards a cut in the fence. Anyone with information regarding this incident is urged to contact the authorities.

Police searching for woman missing from Essex

Baltimore County Police are searching for Helen Maxine Augustus, 86, of the 900 block of Ashbridge Drive.

Helen Augustus is an African American female, 5'2", and 136 lbs. She has brown eyes, gray hair, and no teeth. Helen Augustus has been missing since Oct. 22. She was last seen on that date at around 6 p.m., in the area of Ashbridge Drive in Essex.

Helen Augustus may be suffering from a cognitive disorder, making it imperative that she is located.

If you have seen Helen Augustus or have any information on her whereabouts, please contact police immediately at 410-307-2020.

Perry Hall routes Parkville to keep hold of postseason spot

There is just one weekend left of regular season football, and there are plenty of teams in the mix for postseason berths. Two of those teams - the Parkville Knights and the Perry Hall Gators - faced off last weekend with both looking to pick up a big win.

Unfortunately for the Knights, it was the Gators who came to play on Saturday, winning with a score of 48 - 0. The win keeps Perry Hall just above Merghenthaler Vo-Tech (Mervo) in the 4A/North region, while the loss from Parkville drops them from third place to fourth in the 3A/North region.

The Gators were once again led by quarterback Tyler Holley, who has put together one of the finest seasons in recent memory at the helm. Through nine games, Holley has amassed a staggering 2,897 yards on the season. He has thrown for 2,300 yards and 28 touchdowns while adding 597 yards and 10 touchdowns on the ground. In total, Perry Hall has put up 395 points on the season, the second highest total in the Baltimore area, trailing only Broadneck.

To be honest, I had very high hopes for the contest between Perry Hall and Parkville and was slightly disappointed that it turned into a route. The teams matched up fairly well, with Perry Hall heavily reliant on their offense and Parkville known for their smothering defensive play.

But Perry Hall managed to do what they have been doing all year, which is to put up points early and often. Holley threw for multiple touchdowns and added one on the ground to give Perry Hall a nice cushion, and from there the defensive unit handled things.

A lot of praise has to go to the secondary unit in this game. Whether it was Darren Bennett, Josh Addo, Josh Harrison or Willie Byrd, the Gators seemed to always have someone stepping up to make a play.

Parkville's offense revolves around bruising running back Adam Bigelow, and if you neutralize him you neutralize essentially the entire offense for the Knights. Bigelow is a monster of a back, oftentimes the biggest body on the field, which means defenses really need to hone in on him and keep him limited. And that is exactly what the Gators did.

More often than not they had at least one member of the secondary breaking to the line of scrimmage, essentially overcommitting on the run. With Parkville's offense missing a passing game, the Gators were willing to test the Knights.

Bigelow did break off a few nice runs throughout the game, but by and large he was held in check. And when the Knights moved away from feeding him the ball, it was often disastrous. Perry Hall managed to get pressure on almost every dropback Parkville had last Saturday.

The play of the game came early in the first when Harrison made his way into the backfield on a play action. The play action was slow to develop and Harrison was quick off the left edge, getting into the backfield and laying a hit on the quarterback from behind. The ball popped out and Harrison scooped it up, returning the fumble about 50 yards for the touchdown.

While Holley had a great game, the offense got a nice boost from running back Tyrese Jenkins. Jenkins scored a touchdown in the first to give Perry Hall the lead, and added a second in the fourth just for good measure. Throughout the game he proved to be deadly on screen plays, picking up first downs at will. With Parkville having to be wary of Holley's arm, a lot of space opened up at the line of scrimmage and in the flats. And it was not just Jenkins who did work out of the backfield. Jarrett Gasque took a screen early in the second from inside his own five and broke multiple tackles on the right side of the field before burning his way to the endzone.

The strong work done by Perry Hall's backs was somewhat surprising given how dominant Parkville's defensive line has been all year. But they have largely been strong on simple run plays. The Gators ran multiple plays with both Gasque and Jenkins offset from Holley, making matchups a nightmare for Parkville's beefy line.

The 48 - 0 win represents one of the best team wins the Gators have had all year. They very clearly game-planned well, capitalizing on every opportunity that came their way. They close out the season with an easy contest against Catonsville, but a win is likely necessary to secure a postseason berth. Even with a win, Mervo might still edge out the Gators for the final spot, but they will have an extremely difficult contest against Edmondson this weekend. It would be a shame if Holley and company did not get to make a run for a title, but, as Bruce Hornsby told us all, that's just the way it is.

Around the league

Chesapeake High School continued with their stellar season, picking up a 14 - 8 win against Western Tech on Saturday afternoon. The win puts the Bayhawks at 8 - 1 on the year, and they have essentially sealed third place in the 1A/North region, though a win against Hereford in the regular season finale on Nov. 4 could bump them up to second. Chesapeake will host Hereford at 2 p.m.

Keeping in the 1A/North region, Overlea stumbled on Friday evening, losing to New Town in a tight contest by a score of 25 - 24. The loss halts the three-game win streak the Falcons had going into the New Town game and puts them in a must-win situation this weekend, though that should be no struggle against a winless Owings Mills team. Overlea will travel to Owings Mills for a 6:30 p.m. kickoff on Friday.

MAKING TOO MUCH OF AN EFFORT

If it takes more effort to steer your vehicle than you previously noted, the loss of power assist may be due to lack of steering fluid pressure. Locate the reservoir to check the level of the steering fluid. If the level is low, it is important to find out where the fluid is leaking. Because many newer vehicles have undercarriage pans that catch leaking fluid before it hits the garage floor, it may be necessary to enlist the help of an experienced auto technician to find the leak. If the loss of power assist is not caused by leaking fluid, it is necessary to put the vehicle on a lift to look for binding components.

The loss of power assist, whether caused by leaking power steering fluid or some other source, is an annoying problem that is unlikely to go away on its own. If you have checked your power steering fluid and can't identify the source of the issue, let our ASE-certified technicians help. We can diagnose the problem and get your steering operating smoothly again. Please call us to schedule an appointment.

Open Mon.-Fri. 7:30-5. We fix check engine lights!

HINT: If the wheels can be moved from one end of the steering range to the other smoothly when the vehicle is on a lift, the problem is likely to be in the steering assist system rather than physically binding components.

Airbound Trampoline Center celebrates grand opening at Freestate Sports Arena

- Article & photos by Devin Crum -

The new Airbound Trampoline Center held its grand opening celebration last Saturday, Oct. 28, inside the building at Freestate Sports Arena in White Marsh.

If you haven't heard, Airbound is the newest high-flying, high-energy, jumping good time in the area, complete with foam pits, slam dunks and even an Ultimate Ninja Warrior course.

Just about any way you can imagine jumping on - or off of - a trampoline is available at Airbound. Try out new tricks while launching yourself into the foam pit; challenge your opponents' speed and agility, as well as your own, with a game of jumping dodgeball; channel your inner NBA Jams with Slam Dunk Basketball; test your ninja skills on the Ultimate Ninja Warrior course; or just enjoy some good, old-fashioned bouncing on the level and slanted trampolines.

Of course, Airbound is for adults and children alike, so parents are welcome to enjoy the fun with their kids. And while Saturdays may be the most popular day to go, you will want to check out all of their special programming during the week as well.

According to Airbound's manager, Adam, Mondays are Family Nights and Air Fit fitness classes are held Tuesday evenings and Sunday mornings. On Wednesdays and Saturdays they hold Little One Leap for toddlers, and Thursdays are Parents' Night Out when parents can drop off the kids to jump for two hours. That package includes a meal from Freestate's Sports Café.

They also have Middle School Madness on Fridays from 7 - 9 p.m., followed by High School Hop from 9 - 11 p.m., along with DJ glow nights on Saturdays from 8 - 11 p.m.

Freestate Director Eric Erhardt anticipates lots of parties on the weekends. "That's going to be heavy party time," he said.

And while walk-ins are welcome anytime, Airbound does have a capacity of 75 people at any given time. So you may have to wait until space opens up if you have not reserved your spot in advance.

The good news, though, is that you can book time slots before you go by calling or simply booking online at www.airboundtrampolinecenter.com, and pricing is based on time blocks of 30, 60, 90 and 120 minutes.

"Say you want to secure a jump time for 12 o'clock," Erhardt said. "You go online, you buy a ticket and you can jump at 12 o'clock." He added that online bookings will already be in the system when the guest(s) arrive.

"It's a fun, fitness atmosphere, there's music, there's lights, it's colorful, it's filled with energy and it's good for all ages," Adam said.

And if you get tired of jumping or just need a break, check out the Autosport Simulator Speedway just a few feet away. This complete racing experience features a full motion simulator with real feel tactile feedback to deliver the feeling of being in an actual racecar from the safety of a video game chair.

Baltimore Humane Society's PETS OF THE WEEK

GRACE

Hey, I'm Grace and I was a staff favorite at my previous shelter and have quickly become a favorite here. My winning personality and sweet disposition will hopefully make you want to come in and meet me. I've been told I'm an energetic cutie who loves to play with any toys available. Carboard enrichment toys are lots of fun, too...gotta' love those tasty treats inside. I'm very loving and enjoy the company of my humans, but do prefer to be the only pet in the home. I come with some post adoption training support and am currently offsite in foster to get a head start in my training! If you are interested in meeting me please give us a call at 410-833-8848 ext 2. My adoption fee has been sponsored by a generous donor!

MAE

Marvelous Mae coming to you from my temporary home at BHS. Are you looking for a "velcro" cat that will follow you all around the house? Then I'm your girl!!! I've been told that I am the sweetest cat ever. So I'm hoping that helps me get my forever home. I am a fan of comfy bedding, lots and lots of affection, and food! Sound like the feline friend for you? If yes, then come out and meet me today!

The adoption fee is sponsored and free for Grace and $50 for Mae.

BUSINESS MATTERS

Up to five racers can all race together on the same course to challenge each other for the trophy.

Erhardt said one of the great things about Freestate Sports Arena overall is that there are a lot of different things for people to do there. And just because you go for one thing does not mean you are tied to just that one thing.

Be sure to test out the new race simulator between jumps and challenge your friends to see who is the best.

"So if someone comes in for one of our [sports] leagues and they want to go over [to Airbound] without setting a time, they can just go over there and jump," he said. "They can go race in the simulators, they can come and rent one of our fields, we have roller hockey leagues, soccer leagues - a lot of different things for people to do here."

Guests can also book private parties for any aspect of the facility, from Airbound to the raceway, to soccer or basketball parties, you name it. This also includes laser tag and bounce house parties, as well as bubble ball.

During bubble ball, players wear big bubble suits and play soccer, but they can run into and bounce off of each other to add to the fun. The suits are similar to large sumo wrestling suits sometimes seen at carnivals or other events, according to Erhardt.

"It's kind of like that except you're in a bubble," he said, adding that it has also been popular for adult parties.

The Ninja Warrior course is sure to test your agility and strength.

Freestate is also available for team building activities, corporate events or even school field trips in addition to parties for birthdays or other occasions.

Airbound Trampoline Center and Freestate Sports Arena are located at 5811 Allender Road in White Marsh. See their ad on page 2 of this issue for more information, and contact them at 410-335-6400 or visit www.freestatesports.com.

Nursing is one of the fastest-growing and longest-running occupations in the United States and Canada. The New England Hospital for Women and Children, established in 1862, was the first nursing school in the United States. The first formal nursing training program in Canada was established in 1874 at the General and Marine Hospital in St. Catharines, Ontario. The American Nurses Association was started in 1898. The Canadian Nurses' Association, formerly the Canadian National Association of Trained Nurses, was developed in 1907. These associations are national professional associations representing the hundreds of thousands of nurses across the country and are instrumental in legislative policy and the influences of health care on nursing professionals today.

10 reasons to quit smoking right now

Quitting smoking can greatly improve smokers' long-term health and can begin paying off almost immediately.

Smoking is a leading contributor to many diseases and harms nearly every organ of the body, according to the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention says smoking causes more deaths each year than HIV, alcohol use, illegal drug use, motor vehicle injuries and firearm-related incidents each individually. Smoking accounts for 90 percent of all lung cancer-related deaths and increases the risk for coronary heart disease, stroke, and cancers almost anywhere in the body.

Nicotine is a toxic, colorless or yellow liquid that is the chief active constituent of tobacco. Because nicotine is addictive, people who want to quit smoking must recognize they will need to overcome their addictions en route to getting healthier. As nicotine levels decrease, the body will eventually recover from withdrawal symptoms and begin to feel better.

The following are 10 reasons to quit smoking today:

1. Financial savings: The cost of a pack of cigarettes varies depending on where you live, but the cost savings of quitting can add up quickly. In America the average price of cigarettes is $5.51, according to Fair Reporters, based on cigarette prices across the United States. Many states fall between $6 and $8 per pack.

2. Cleaner teeth: Smoking can stain teeth, so quitting smoking can prevent future smoking-related stains.

3. Greater lung capacity: Many people find their lung capacity improves by as much as 10 percent within nine months of quitting. Within one to nine months of quitting, coughing and shortness of breath decreases.

4. Better circulation: Blood flow improves when smokers quit smoking, which can mean fewer feelings of "pins and needles" in extremities.

5. Improved fertility: Nonsmokers often find it easier to get pregnant because the lining of the womb is stronger and sperm is more potent. Quitting also can reduce the chances of birth defects or miscarriage.

6. Blood oxygen improvement: Within 12 hours of quitting, blood oxygen levels return to normal and carbon monoxide levels will drop to normal, offers the quitting helper QuitSmokingSupport.com.

7. Coughing decreases: Chronic cough due to tobacco smoke irritation, and damaged cilia in the lungs can abate over time, says the Mayo Clinic. The cilia can recover, regaining mobility, and mucus production begins to return to a normal level as well.

8. Better sense of smell and taste: The Cleveland Clinic says that smoking can damage the nerve endings in the body, including those involved in taste and smell. People who quit may begin to taste flavors and experience aromas better than they did when they were still smoking.

9. Improved aroma: By quitting smoking, smokers will no longer have the odor of cigarette or cigar smoke clinging to their hair and clothing. That can make them smell more pleasant to themselves and others.

10. Longer life: Quitting significantly improves smokers' chances of living a long, healthy life.

Which of These Neuropathy Symptoms Do You Suffer From?

If you Suffer from a Single One of these Torturous Symptoms - Numbness, Tingling, or Sharp Nerve Pain - THEN THE FACTS BELOW MAY BE THE MOST IMPORTANT YOU HAVE EVER READ IN YOUR LIFE!

Neuropathy affects every part of your life - walking, sitting and even sleeping.

Maybe you've had multiple tests, only to find out no one has any idea what you have. Maybe you've even been put on a drug with heavy side effects.

Do you have any of the following symptoms...

- Pins and needles feeling
- Numbness in the hands or feet
- Tingling or burning sensations
- Weakness in the arms or legs
- Sharp shooting or burning pains

If so, you may have a condition called peripheral neuropathy.

My name is Dr. Dennis Travagline, clinic director at Perry Hall Chiropractic & Physical Therapy. I've been helping people with neuropathy and nerve problems for more than 15 years.

More than 20 million Americans suffer from peripheral neuropathy, a problem caused by damage to the nerves that supply your arms and legs.

This painful condition interferes with your body's ability to transmit messages to your muscles, skin, joints or internal organs. If ignored or mistreated, neuropathy can lead to irreversible health conditions.

Why not get help by those trained to correct the major cause of peripheral neuropathy?

Data from the National Board of Chiropractic Examiners' Job Analysis of Chiropractic lists arm and leg neuropathy as the second most common nerve problem treated by chiropractors.

Often neuropathy is caused by a degenerating spine pressing on the nerve roots. This can happen in any of the vertebral joints from the neck all the way down to the tail bone.

The Single Most Important Solution To Your Neuropathy

By using gentle techniques, I'm able to release the pressure that has built up on the nerve. This allows the nerve to heal and the symptoms to go away.

Numerous studies have proven chiropractic's effectiveness in helping nerve conditions...

"Manipulation [chiropractic adjustments], with or without exercise, improved symptoms more than medical care did after both 3 and 12 months."

- British Medical Journal

Patients showed an 85.5% resolution of the nerve symptoms after only 9 chiropractic treatments.

- Journal of Chiropractic Medicine 2008

With chiropractic care, patients had "significant improvement in perceived comfort and function, nerve conduction and finger sensation overall."

- JMPT 1998

"Significant increase in grip strength and normalization of motor and sensory latencies were noted. Orthopedic tests were negative. Symptoms dissipated." - JMPT 1994

What these studies mean is that with chiropractic care, you could soon be enjoying life...without those aggravating nerve problems.

How To Find Out If This Will Work For You

R.I.P. costume designer John Mollo

- By Teddy Durgin -

The original "Star Wars" in 1977 was such an interesting collaboration of artists and budding artists. Many of the special effects technicians hired for the film had little to no experience in the movie biz. There weren't the umpteen FX houses there are now. If you look at old pics of those guys and gals building model X-wing fighters and filming the Death Star trench, they're basically hippies... really, really young hippies. Meanwhile, illustrator Ralph McQuarrie came to the project after serving a number of years for Boeing, drawing diagrams of jumbo jets and other aircrafts for the company's manuals. Director-producer George Lucas thought McQuarrie could bring some real-world designs to the various spaceships he had in his mind, but just couldn't distill onto a page.

And then there was John Mollo, who became the film's costume designer. Had Mollo spent years designing suits and gowns and uniforms for other sci-fi and fantasy flicks? Heck, no! He was a historian who had authored several books on military uniforms. He had been an assistant on one film, "Barry Lyndon," but Lucas was more intrigued with his knowledge of armor and Army hardware. There were many variations of Darth Vader in the pre-production process leading up to the motion picture that would change an industry. But it was Mollo who combined a Nazi helmet, a World War I gas mask, a monk's cloak and a black motorcycle suit to finally create one of the iconic costumes in film history. He took the rest of McQuarrie's concept images and turned them into wearable costumes, everything from the stormtroopers to the Rebel pilots to the basic looks of characters like Han Solo and Luke Skywalker.

Mollo passed away last week. But his contributions to the movies will live long beyond his memory. If Mollo had only done "Star Wars" (or, for the purists, "Episode IV: A New Hope"), he would be legendary. But he would return for "The Empire Strikes Back," crafting everything from Boba Fett's costume to the Empire's snowtroopers. He would only serve as costume designer on a total of 17 feature films. But some of his credits are off-the-charts cool.

After "Star Wars," for instance, Ridley Scott tapped him to design the costumes for the crew of the Nostromo for a little movie he was directing called "Alien." Mollo would work on one other science-fiction film, 1981's "Outland," before setting his sights almost exclusively on historical and period dramas - everything from "Greystoke: The Legend of Tarzan" to "King David" to "Chaplin."

He was nominated for two Oscars in his career, and he won both of them. The first was for "Star Wars," the second was for "Gandhi" in 1982. By then, he had massive budgets to come up with whatever period-exact costumes scripts called for. But back filming the original Skywalker adventure, prepping it in 1975 and filming it in 1976 - he had a relatively meager budget of just $90,000.

I know this past week we lost two artists who were "bigger" than Mollo, and they deserve our remembrance and respect, too. I loved Robert Guillaume on "Benson" when I was a kid. The man broke barriers, had impeccable comic timing and was an amazing singer (on stage, he replaced Michael Crawford when his run was up as the title character in "The Phantom of the Opera"). And speaking of music, Fats Domino's tunes are legendary from the rock n' roll era. And I always loved when one of them would make their way into a movie. But Mollo had the most direct impact on me. Heck, my Halloween circa 1979 would have been totally different. I was Vader that year! Good memories. John Mollo was 86.

'Thank You For Your Service' brings war back home

- By Teddy Durgin -

For a guy who likes to work some humor into his reviews... folks, I got nothin' for you on this one. Set in 2007, "Thank You for Your Service" is a good, solid flick about three soldiers returning home from war in Iraq and trying to assimilate back into civilian life. But their experiences in the war zone have changed them too much, and they each have some serious problems once back in the states. Fortunately, the movie doesn't have any serious problems. Oh, I have a few nitpicks, but nothing major. If you're looking for entertainment or a happy flick... uh... this ain't it. But if you want something with substance, heft and some really solid acting, this is worth seeing.

Miles Teller follows up his harrowing firefighter movie last week ("Only the Brave") with a harrowing soldier film this week. Truth be told, neither film is as outright harrowing for the audience to sit through as that awful "Fantastic Four" movie he starred in a couple of years ago. But, Miles-y, go easy on yourself... and us, buddy. How about a rom-com, next? Or maybe a cheesy holiday flick where you get to save Christmas?

At any rate, Teller plays Adam, a sergeant who made a bad call on one of his final missions that resulted in a man getting shot in the head by a sniper. He then compounded that bad call by agreeing to sit out the next mission. When that caravan returns to base, the officer who took his place comes back fatally wounded. It's a one-two gut punch that takes a while to land, because Adam still has men to command and time left to serve. But back in the states, it eats at him until he finds himself in the front seat of his truck, shotgun in mouth.

Meanwhile, Army specialist Tausolo "Solo" Aieti (Beulah Koale) has also returned and is looking forward to starting a family with his young wife (Keisha Castle-Hughes). He sees the supportive spouse that Adam has and his two beautiful kids and he wants that. But he soon feels the effects of PTSD. He's haunted by the mission that Adam wasn't on, but should've been. Solo comes to feel enormously compelled to return to Iraq and rejoin his men. When that proves impossible, he starts to crave hard drugs and even contemplates a life of crime.

The third Johnny to come marching home is infantryman Will Waller (Joe Cole), who seems the most happy-go-lucky of the trio. But he returns to nothing. His fiancée has moved out, she's left an empty apartment with no electricity and even cancelled their debit card. He sleeps on the floor at night with a gun by his head. He knows he needs to see her one more time just to ask "Why?"

The film doesn't let its characters or the audience off easily for long stretches. But even with this grim material, I kept expecting the movie to push further into darker territory, and it just didn't. There is a middle stretch that is highly unnerving and effective, with scenes like Solo imagining a fallen war buddy in a mall food court walking towards him screaming and Adam making love to his wife (Haley Bennett) and hallucinating that she gets her head blown off during intimacy.

Having seen similarly themed films like "The Deer Hunter," "Born on the Fourth of July," "The Hurt Locker" and going all the way back to "The Best Years of Our Lives," this movie isn't in their league. But there's no denying that Teller, Koale, Bennett and Cole summon some of the rawest acting of their young careers. I was with their characters all the way. Even comedian Amy Schumer is effective in a small role as a widow trying to find answers. While I can't assign adjectives like "great" or "exceptional" to this film, I can use "effective" and "emotional." Most viewers probably won't want to go any deeper. And that's OK. Baby steps, America.
