- By Devin Crum -

Since beginning their work to beautify and revitalize the Eastern Boulevard corridor in Essex in the late summer, the Eastern Baltimore County Task Force has already seen some signs of life that they attribute to their efforts.

The task force, a committee of the Chesapeake Gateway Chamber of Commerce, has been working for the last several months to address issues they see as hindrances to a healthy local economy, and they started small by focusing primarily on aesthetics.

Starting at the Back River bridge, members of the task force worked with the Maryland State Highway Administration to clean out the storm drains along the bridge. Many of the drains had been clogged with dirt and other materials to the point that grass and large weeds were able to grow up from them, according to task force member Cliff O'Connell.

And after first being told it would not be done, O'Connell, an area business owner, said they are working on getting the bridge walls repainted to look better.

"If a car hit it there would be a black mark on it and if they plowed the roads the salt would chip the paint off," he said. "That was the initial story they gave us. But we didn't like that and we've moved on, so we are going to get those walls painted."

To address issues of overflowing trash from the cans along the boulevard's streetscape, O'Connell said the county's Bureau of Solid Waste, which handles trash pickup, has agreed to put new liners in the cans that are missing them to help contain the garbage.

"And we're in the process of working with the tenants and landlords to do something about their trash," he said, "because we have rat issues bad along the boulevard."

Business tenants often use the streetscape cans, which are meant for smaller pedestrian trash, for their bulk business trash rather than getting dumpsters, leading

Cub Hill Road neighbors challenge subdivision plan in Parkville

- Article & photos by Virginia Terhune -

Neighbors fear the addition of 19 houses on the top of a wooded hill in Parkville could worsen already hazardous winter driving conditions in their neighborhood along narrow and winding Cub Hill Road.

Planned is a one-street subdivision on the former Hunsberger tree farm, which sits on a steep hill bordering the older neighborhood of 22 houses across from St. Demetrios Greek Orthodox Church.

Nearly half a dozen local residents living on the affected Flagstone Drive and Southwest Road raised questions about additional traffic from the project that would double the size of their community during a three-hour development plan hearing on Friday, Dec. 29.

They also questioned the proposed entrance off Flagstone Drive; a retaining wall along Cub Hill Road, which is a county-designated scenic byway; plans for storm water runoff; and the requirements for street lights.

Administrative Law Judge John Beverungen opted to continue the hearing on another day to allow more time for county departments to review the plan and share their opinions with residents.

Several county reviewers said at the hearing that parts of the plan were incomplete or currently unacceptable, including landscaping for a 10-foot-high, concrete retaining wall to be built along Cub Hill Road.

A previous developer had planned a subdivision with three fewer houses and an access road off Cub Hill Road, but the redevelopment of the tree farm was later taken over by the current developer, listed as Cub Hill Development LLC in care of Bel Air-based Timothy O'Shea.

Land records show that the LLC bought two half-acre lots on Flagstone Drive last July not owned by Hunsberger. The intent, according to a representative of the developer, was to build a house on one of the lots, which has been cleared of vegetation. But then the project was expanded to include the adjacent 10 acres of Hunsberger farmland.

The second lot on Flagstone Drive includes a house that will be razed to create the entrance to the proposed subdivision, which residents said would be better located off Cub Hill Road per an earlier development plan for the farm.

Hazardous driving conditions

A traffic engineer for the developer said a one-day, peak-hour study on Dec. 12 of vehicles going past the Flagstone / Cub Hill intersection was within acceptable levels and that site distances were adequate.

Residents said driving is already hazardous, especially during icy winter weather, due to a sharp curve on Cub Hill Road and the generally hilly local terrain that drains into the nearby Gunpowder River.

Residents reported cases of cars and delivery trucks sliding down Flagstone Drive toward Cub Hill Road, and one long-time resident said he fears a driver leaving the subdivision could slide into his house across from the proposed entrance on Flagstone.

Another resident said during the summer she has personally cut back overgrown vegetation blocking the view of oncoming traffic on Cub Hill Road for drivers turning left out of Flagstone Drive.

Residents also note that the proposed subdivision is within the traffic shed that includes the routinely congested intersection of East Joppa Road and Perring Parkway which funnels traffic onto the Beltway.

Residents said a county official told them that the intersection is rated F, which means a development plan within the shed can be approved but that building permits cannot be granted until improvements are made to the intersection.

The developer's attorney, Timothy Kotroco, disputed the F rating, saying a traffic shed map approved by the County Council rates the intersection as an E, which would allow building to go forward.

Kotroco said he is applying to the county Planning Department for a reserve capacity use certificate that would allow building permits provided it does not generate more than 103 peak-hour vehicle trips per day.

Retaining wall, other issues

The plan also calls for a 10-foot-high concrete retaining wall between Cub Hill Road and five lots along the northeast end of the subdivision.

Scenic road regulations require that the area between the wall and the road remain undisturbed and that area would be maintained in the future by the subdivision's homeowner association, according to county officials.

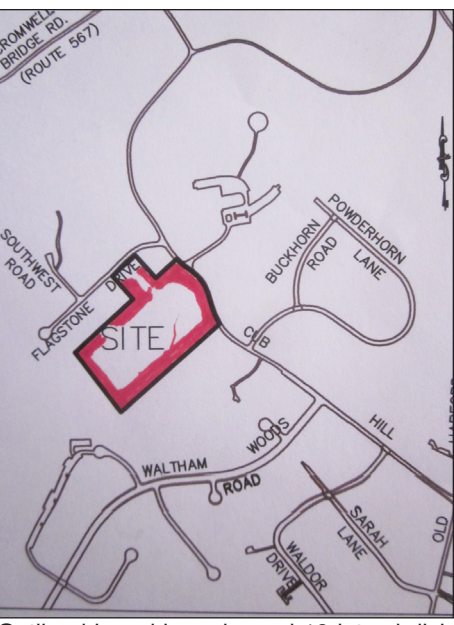

They also said efforts would be made to color the wall to blend in with the surrounding vegetation, but that a landscaping plan has not been completed.

Also still outstanding is an answer about whether an existing 27-inch storm drain pipe under Cub Hill Road at Flagstone Drive is large enough to accept overflow runoff from the subdivision's planned on-site drainage system.

If it is not, runoff can be diverted to wooded undevelopable areas on the southwestern end of the subdivision site, according to Kotroco.

Residents are also concerned about the addition of street lights, which they say will diminish views of the nighttime sky, which Kotroco said could be mitigated by applying to the county for a waiver.

He also said that the developer plans to pay the county $47,300 in lieu of providing required open space, which is allowed under county regulations.

Outlined in red is a planned 19-lot subdivision near the corner of Cub Hill Road and Flagstone Drive in Parkville.

Baltimore County accepting nominations for Woman of the Year

The Baltimore County Commission for Women is accepting nominations for its 2018 Woman of the Year and Young Woman of the Year awards.

Now in its 36th year, the awards program honors women for their outstanding contributions to the community.

The deadline for nominations is Friday, Jan. 12. Honorees will be notified after selections are made, and the awards will be presented in March.

Female residents of Baltimore County who have made significant, unique and lasting contributions to their community, workplace or school to further the interests of women and families are eligible for the Woman of the Year award. Nominees for Young Woman of the Year must be high school seniors in the county who have made contributions to their community.

Previous winners and elected officials are not eligible to be nominated.

Eastern Baltimore County has enjoyed great representation in this program over the past decade.

In 2017, east side women swept the awards, with Perry Hall resident and Angel Park founder Kelli Szczybor being named Woman of the Year; then-Parkville High School senior Nhu Dang receiving the Young Woman of the Year title; and Toni Torsch, founder of the Daniel Carl Torsch Foundation, receiving the LaFrance Muldrow Making a Difference award.

Dundalk residents Carla Crisp, Irene Spatafore and Gloria Nelson were named Woman of the Year in 2007, 2012 and 2013, respectively.

For more information, or to request nomination forms, call Nancy Surosky, 410-887-2450.

Nomination forms can also be accessed online at www.baltimorecountymd.gov/Agencies/women/nominate.html.

trash to build up quickly and visibly.

Speaking of visibility, the overgrown trees along the streetscape which were planted long ago and never properly maintained have been removed by the county's Department of Public Works where requested, allowing people to see the obscured businesses that many may not have known were there.

"Almost all of the trees are gone now," O'Connell said. "It has definitely changed the look of the boulevard."

Additionally, he said there were 13 places along the streetscape where trees had been planted but died, yet the hole still remained, posing a tripping or other injury hazard. Those holes have all been temporarily filled in with asphalt to prevent injury to pedestrians.

Some of the tree holes will have smaller trees planted back in them, O'Connell said, while others will have large flower pots placed over them for a more manageable aesthetic accent. Similar flower pots can be found in places like the Dundalk Village Shopping Center and other business districts around the county, and they hope to pay for them through a community reinvestment grant from Baltimore County.

The task force is still working to address issues like replacing the broken benches along the streetscape, cutting back vegetation grown in alleys, repaving alleys and using county Code Enforcement to influence people to remove graffiti or abandoned vehicles from their properties.

O'Connell stressed that they are trying to work with property owners to fix the problems rather than simply pushing for fines or other penalties right away, asking nicely or giving warnings first.

Perhaps most encouraging, though, is that they have noticed some businesses along the boulevard sprucing up their business frontages by adding new awnings, planting fresh flowers in flower boxes and cleaning up their façades.

"So just by us doing some minor improvements, already some of the business owners and tenants are jumping in to do things," O'Connell said. "That's what we hoped for."

Further, a Code Enforcement sweep and subsequent notifications have resulted in much of the accumulated graffiti being removed by property owners.

"I'd say 60 percent have fixed their graffiti issues,"

O'Connell said. "It's amazing the difference already with the graffiti that has been [removed]."

He explained that they want to make the area look more presentable to try to take advantage of the recent uptick in economic development in eastern Baltimore County and possibly entice people to want to move into some of the vacant buildings in the area.

Sam Weaver, another area business owner and task force member, said the biggest thing community members can do is to be their eyes and ears.

"If you see something wrong, take pictures of it," he said, and notify himself, O'Connell, any member of the Back River Restoration Committee or county Code Enforcement. "Until people care about this neighborhood and start doing something about it, it just isn't going to change."

HEADING FOR TROUBLE

The "head gasket" is positioned between the engine block and cylinder heads, where its job is to seal the cylinders; preserve engine compression; and prevent oil, fuel, or coolant leaks. When a gasket ruptures, symptoms include coolant mixing into the engine oil, oil leaking from the engine, or an engine misfire, depending on where the break in the head gasket occurs. If the oil mixes with the coolant, their cooling and lubricating properties can be compromised to the point where the engine will fail. An early sign of this problem is contamination that looks like milk chocolate on the oil dipstick. These and other signs should prompt an immediate check by an auto technician.

If you are experiencing any of these symptoms, our ASE-certified technicians can perform a compression test to detect whether any leakage is occurring. If repair is needed, we are fully qualified to fix it right so you can get back on the road as quickly as possible. When it comes to maintenance and repair for your car or truck, let our experienced staff take care of it for you. Please call today if you have any questions, or if you would like to schedule an appointment.

Open Mon.-Fri. 7:30-5. We fix check engine lights!

HINT: While the head gasket is a relatively inexpensive part, the labor involved to replace it can be costly.

Motorcycle advocates to push for change to 'helmet law' during legislative session

- By Devin Crum -

The Baltimore-Harford chapter of ABATE of Maryland, Inc. plans to focus its efforts during the upcoming 2018 General Assembly session on making wearing a helmet a choice for motorcyclists in the state rather than a requirement.

In previous years, ABATE - which in Maryland stands for A Brotherhood Against Totalitarian Enactments, although the acronym has different meanings in other states - has had to fight against a lot of different legislation proposing what they saw as unfair regulations on motorcyclists, according to Jay Hidden, the chapter's legislative representative.

For example, in past legislative sessions, Hidden noted, bills have been proposed to make it illegal for anyone under 12 years old to ride a motorcycle, even as a passenger. Another sought to increase the fine for exceeding the speed limit by 40-plus mph from $500 to $1,000, but only for those on motorcycles. Both bills were sponsored by representatives from Prince George's County.

But more recently, the organization has heard complaints from members that they have not accomplished anything with regard to the state's helmet law.

The federal mandate that states must have a law requiring helmets for motorcyclists in order to receive highway funds was the main reason ABATE chapters sprang up around the country decades ago, Hidden said. And ever since that mandate was overruled by the courts, advocates have pushed to have Maryland's law repealed, or at least modified.

As a result, the organization will push for passage of the "helmet modification law," called so because it would modify the law and "'helmet repeal law' sounds like we want to outlaw helmets," Hidden said. "We just want it to be a matter of choice."

"I try to explain to legislators that if I'm riding across the country and come into a state that doesn't require a helmet, I'm going to leave the helmet on," he said. "But when I stop, get a room then go to get something to eat, if the restaurant is three blocks down the road, I don't want to put the helmet on, especially if it's 95 degrees outside."

Motorcycle advocates often argue that the efficacy of helmets is questionable, citing that they impair riders' hearing and peripheral vision, according to Hidden. In addition, safety testing on helmets is typically done at what he said is the equivalent of riding at 13 mph. Advocates question how safe they really are and how they will perform at higher speeds.

People on both sides of the issue use numbers from Michigan, Hidden said, because it is the most recent state to repeal their helmet requirement.

Advocates of helmets point to an increase in total motorcycle fatalities since that repeal. But opponents of the laws say the increase in ridership following the repeal, which is far greater, means that the percentage of fatalities among riders has actually gone down.

Because of these discrepancies, however, Hidden believes insurance rates provide better insight into the reality of the issue.

In the course of his research, Hidden said, he contacted insurance companies in Delaware, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana, Virginia and West Virginia to compare rate quotes for himself. He said he chose those states because they are on similar latitudes with Maryland and there is less weather variation as a factor.

He found that, on average, states without helmet laws had rates that were $16 per month cheaper than those with the requirement.

"That's counterintuitive," Hidden admitted. "But these are numbers that insurance actuaries - people who are paid a lot of money to look at a lot of factors - came up with."

He said that the lower insurance rates could be because people ride more cautiously when not wearing a helmet.

"I know when I'm not wearing a helmet, I tend to be a little more cautious," he said. "It's a subconscious thing."

Hidden also believes states that offer choice do a better job with safety training as a requirement for a motorcycle license, which he thinks is the best way to address the issue.

"The way to keep someone's head intact is to not throw it down on the pavement in the first place," he joked, adding that he would like to see better motorcycle awareness training for drivers as well.

Hidden said they plan to introduce this year's bill through a Prince George's County delegate who sits on the Environment and Transportation Committee.

Weir promises to take care of local issues in 7th District

- By Marge Neal - candidates registered with the Maryland State Board of Elections to run for the seat.

Weir said his motivation for running is simple.

"Since the last election, none of the local issues are being taken care of," he said. "It seems like all the politicians are interested in is Tradepoint [Atlantic]; everyone wants to send taxpayer money there and everyone wants to take credit for the jobs being produced there."

Weir is more concerned about "crumbling infrastructure, out-of-control development," taxpayer money being given to developers to help pay for private projects, and what he sees as the destruction of the county's Department of Recreation and Parks.

"What has been done to our rec and parks department is horrible - they've destroyed that department," Weir said of county administrators.

"I want to restore Rec and Parks to what it once was," Weir said. "The staff has been cut to practically nothing, everything is being done by outside contractors and Property Management makes all the calls, not the rec and parks staff."

He is concerned that the North Point Government Center is being neglected, with no work being done on the building even though it is still in use by several local recreation council programs.

The sale of the building and much of its land to a developer was hotly protested by the community, but Baltimore County Executive Kevin Kamenetz closed Eastwood Elementary School and put the government center on the market, despite community opposition to both proposals.

Eastwood was closed as a school to house the Dundalk Police Precinct after it vacated the government center.

The final sale of the property was halted by Gov. Larry Hogan because county officials did not get permission from the state to sell the land that was bought with funding assistance from the state's Program Open Space fund.

"Because that building has been so neglected, there's no doubt the community needs a new building there," Weir said. "But I'd like to see a recreation center there with no retail or commercial space - just a rec center and athletic fields like exist there now."

Weir said that, because of the watering down of the joint use agreement between Rec and Parks and the public school system, indoor recreation space is at a premium and a new center would be heavily used.

"I'd like to see a center with two soccer rinks, a 1,000-seat theater, a wrestling center and other spaces that area rec councils all could use," he said.

He is also concerned about the proposal that a private contractor take over the management of Eastern Regional Park's fields in Chase. He said that Rec and Parks officials were not in on the decision-making process; Property Management staff members facilitated the request made by a developer to run the facility.

"They want to charge Rec and Parks to use facilities they already paid for," Weir said, expressing concern that rec councils would have to pay exorbitant fees to use the fields.

Weir said if voters send him to the council, he will fight for improved infrastructure and other local issues, work to restore the recreation and parks department to more viable levels and, perhaps most importantly, listen to his constituents.

"This district needs a local politician to return phone calls, handle local issues and be responsive to residents' concerns and needs," he said. "And I'm prepared to be that guy. I'm a dirt-on-the hands guy; I'm not a suit-and-tie guy."

As of Tuesday, neither Crandell nor any potential Republican challengers had officially filed to run. The deadline to file is 9 p.m. Feb. 27.

Parkville takes Dundalk Holiday Tournament championship

- By Patrick Taylor -

The Dundalk Holiday Tournament is easily one of my favorite events of the year to cover. In my opinion, there's no better way to spend the holiday break than with two days straight of non-stop basketball. While this year's tournament didn't have the draw of a Perry Hall/Patterson clash like last year, there were still plenty of great contests and moments.

It would take up too much space to go over each game individually, so let's take a look at the winners and losers of the Dundalk Holiday Tournament.

Winners

The biggest winner of the tournament has to be Parkville, who was the only east side team to actually win their division title. The Knights (4 - 1) opened up the tournament with a contest against Owings Mills. Only, using the word contest might be a bit much. There was never really a question about who was going to win with Parkville holding Owings Mills to below ten points in each of the first two quarters. Meanwhile, Parkville couldn't be stopped offensively. At the half, the Knights controlled the game with a 43 - 18 lead, and ultimately finished with a 91- 60 victory.

Sophomore Jordan Strickland and seniors Cameron Crowe and Jamal Johnson proved to be too formidable for the undersized Owings Mills to handle. The Knights consistently exploited the size advantage they had, pounding the low post and grabbing offensive boards as they came.

Things got a bit trickier for Parkville in the championship matchup against Towson. While Owings Mills was rolling out small guards and small forwards were occupying the power forward and center positions, Towson has a lot more height. They're also able to play a much physical style.

Parkville and Towson slugged it out for four quarters, with Parkville ultimately ending up the victor by a score of 72 - 70. The game was back-and-forth throughout, with over 20 lead changes. In crunch time, Parkville relied on the aforementioned trio. Strickland hit a couple big mid-rangers in the final four minutes to keep pace with Towson, while Crowe repeatedly gave his team second-chance opportunities.

With seconds left to play and the score tied, Strickland found his way to the foul line. While only a sophomore, Strickland had the composure of a veteran, nailing both of his chances to give Parkville the win.

Chesapeake is a bit of a mixed bag, but I ultimately decided to include them in the "winners" category. Sure, they lost bad to Dundalk (which I cover later), but Dundalk is a very strong side and the Bayhawks never stood much of a chance. The Bayhawks are too young and raw to really do much this season, but in the consolation matchup against Reginald F. Lewis, Chesapeake dug deep and secured their first win of the season - and a glimpse of the future. This team will likely terrify opponents next season, with only two seniors graduating and a lot of height. This season is all about growth, and the win against Reginald Lewis was a nice first step.

Finally we come to Kenwood's Pharaoh Walker. Walker couldn't drag his team to a championship appearance, but he certainly did everything he could, and along the way he solidified himself as one of the area's top players. Throughout the tournament, Walker showed a lot of versatility. Against Woodson, a game Kenwood lost 68 - 66 - he got in rhythm with an early three before adding a two on a nice drive and three more just before the end of the first quarter.

While Walker's first half consisted largely of deep shots, in the second he primarily did his damage in the paint. And this is the real beauty of his game. He's such a pure shooter that you have to commit to him every time he gets the ball around the arc. But once he establishes the shot and commitment from the defense, he has the athletic ability to beat you off the dribble. And that's exactly how things have played out for him all season. He finished both games of the tournament with over 20 points, and he really just made it look easy.

The only criticism I have of Walker is that he disappears for long stretches. Against Woodson, the disappearing act came at the worst time - the fourth quarter. Walker notched a couple assists as the Woodson defense started playing better team defense and committing to shutting him out, but if Kenwood is going to win games consistently, Walker needs to be shooting.

Finally, we come to our last "winner" of the group, which isn't actually a person but rather a type of play - the buzzer beater. Good Lord, it was like Dundalk's gym turned into a video game or something. Essentially every game had one, with some having two or three. The buzzer beaters were often inconsequential, but there's nothing quite like the rush you get watching a team run the court in less than five seconds to hit a three or runner as the horn sounds.

Losers

The Dundalk Owls are the first loser on the list. Their inclusion here is solely because they suffered their first loss of the season at the hands of Southwestern. The Owls kept things close up to the half, trailing Southwestern by six as they entered the third quarter. But the Owls simply couldn't buy a bucket in the third quarter. They eventually ended up losing by a score of Junior guard Michael Johnson, who has been Dundalk's main scoring threat this season, was largely kept in check. And while Dundalk has shown great ability all season to find points when their top scorers go missing, Friday night's contest against Southwestern was a bit different. Everyone went cold in the third, which unfortunately can happen from time to time. The good news is this is only Dundalk's first loss, and it was a bit of a fluke. They certainly won't be kept in check like that often.

Patapsco was another loser in the Dundalk Holiday Tournament, with the Patriots losing to Edgewood by 25 in their opening contest and Digital Harbor by 30 in a consolation match that did little to console Patapsco.

Since opening up the season with a big win over Sparrows Point, the Patriots have absolutely flatlined. They're currently on a five-game skid with their closest loss being a 13-point difference against Towson. This is a team largely comprised of juniors, so they need a bit more time to grow together. Hopefully they can get their act together with conference play looming.

Police seek public's help identifying burglary suspect

On Nov. 26, unknown suspects burglarized a house in the 1900-block of Edgewood Road in Parkville. During the burglary, suspects stole the victim's purse and other personal belongings.

Detectives have determined that just after the time of the burglary, the victim's credit card was used at a 7-Eleven store located in the 1300-block of Taylor Avenue in Parkville. Surveillance video shows a white male, 5'09" to 5'10" in height, medium build, wearing a Baltimore Orioles baseball hat, burgundy hooded sweatshirt with yellow and gold company lettering, dark pants, and tan boots using the credit card inside the store. Police are seeking the public's assistance in identifying this man in order to determine his possible involvement in this crime.

If you have any information about this man or the burglary, please call Baltimore County Police at 410-307-2020.

Metro Crime Stoppers, an organization that is separate from the Baltimore County Police Department and Baltimore County Government, offers rewards for information in connection with felony offenses. Tips can be called in at 1-866-7LOCKUP.

Police seek public's help in finding missing Parkville man

Baltimore County Police are asking for the public's assistance in locating James Patrick Thompson, missing from the Arizona Avenue area of Parkville.

Thompson was last seen in April of 2017. His family reported him missing in November when efforts to contact him yielded no results and they became concerned for his welfare.

Thompson is 35-years-old, approximately 5'10", 180 pounds, has close-cut blonde hair or may have a shaved head, and blue eyes. He has both a lip and eyebrow piercing in which he usually wears hoops. He is known to frequent the area of Elrino Street in Baltimore City, has previously stayed in motels along the Route 40 corridor and may be in the company of his ex-wife, Heather, whom police have also not been able to locate.

Anyone with information should call the police at 410-307-2020.

Police identify suspect in St. Helena Mini Mart robbery

Due to information from the public, County Police have identified the St. Helena Mini Mart robber. Police received information identifying the man responsible for the Dec. 26 robbery. Shane Reed Woodall, 26, of the 6500-block of St. Helena Avenue in Dundalk, has been charged with armed robbery, robbery, and theft less than $100. He is currently being held at the Baltimore County Department of Corrections on denied bail status.

Just before 7:30 p.m. on Dec. 26 officers responded to the report of a robbery at the St. Helena Mini Mart, located in the 200-block of St. Helena Avenue in Dundalk. The suspect entered the store, threatened the owner, and demanded cash. After taking money from the register, the suspect fled from the store in an unknown direction.

Baltimore County Police subsequently sent out a release, asking the public for help. The Police Department thanks those who shared this information and to those who assisted in the identification of Woodall.

MSP Trooper breaks record for number of DUI arrests

A trooper has made Maryland State Police history by breaking the record for the number of DUI arrests made in a year.

For the past four years, Trooper First Class Anthony Wallace has made at least 100 DUI arrests each year, thus breaking a statewide record for the Maryland State Police. Prior to 2017, TFC Wallace and one other trooper on the SPIDRE team were the only ones who had surpassed 100 DUI arrests for three consecutive years. He hit his 100th DUI arrest in Baltimore County over Christmas weekend.

TFC Wallace makes on average, 120 to 140 impaired driving arrests annually as a member of the State Police Impaired Driving Reduction Effort, or SPIDRE team.

The SPIDRE team is deployed in areas of Maryland with high crash rates involving impaired drivers. The goal is simple - to find and arrest alcohol- or drug-impaired drivers before they cause crashes.

Precinct 11/Essex

Attempted Second Degree Burglary: Baltimore County Police were called to the 300 block of South Marlyn Avenue on Dec. 28. Sometime between 8:30 p.m. on Dec. 27 and 9:30 a.m. on Dec. 28, an unknown suspect attempted to enter the N'Style Studio LLC by prying the front door open. No entry was made.

First Degree Burglary: On Dec. 26, shortly before 4 p.m., officers from the Essex precinct responded to a burglary call in the unit block of Cedar Drive in Middle River. Sometime between 6:40 a.m. and 3:40 p.m., an unknown suspect broke into the victim's apartment by unknown means and stole cash.

Robbery: Shortly before 7 a.m. on Christmas morning, officers responded to a robbery call in the 9500 block of Pulaski Highway in Middle River. At 6:40 a.m., an unknown armed suspect entered the Carroll Fuel gas station and demanded the clerk open the cash register. The suspect took cash from the register and also took the clerk's purse. The suspect then fled on foot. Some of the clerk's belongings were later recovered.

Second Degree Burglary: Baltimore County Police were called to the 600 block of Nannette Lane in Middle River on Dec. 25. Between 3 and 5 a.m., an unknown suspect gained entry into the detached garage by prying open the lock of a garage side door. A dirt bike was stolen.

Attempted Robbery: On Dec. 24, officers from the Essex precinct responded to a call in the 2900 block of Eastern Boulevard in Middle River. At 6:34 p.m., the suspect lunged at the victim with a knife and cut him after demanding money. The suspect was arrested at the scene.

Jerry's Childrens Fund says 'thanks' for holiday donations to needy

Thanks to all who donated this year; it was the best year we have ever had. The caring people from Dundalk, Edgemere, Essex, Overlea, Perry Hall and other places stepped up again.

We were able to give to approximately 152 children, many gifts to each one. It could not have happened without you who donated. Each of you should be happy and proud that you made a big part of a child's Christmas.

Thanks especially to Danielle, Bonnie, Shirley and my sister, Terry, for their personal help.

I was out looking for families that we could help Christmas Eve and Christmas morning. I was able to find about 25 children at the last minute. And the looks on their faces when I told them what we do were priceless.

As one mother said, "God works in mysterious ways."

I have already started buying for next year since the day after Christmas, and we will continue the whole year until next Christmas.

You can call me at 443-895-8137 if you want to help.

I hope you all had a Merry Christmas and have a happy new year.

- Journal of Chiropractic Medicine 2008

With chiropractic care, patients had "significant improvement in perceived comfort and function, nerve conduction and finger sensation overall."
- JMPT 1998

Did you know?

According to the American Heart Association, half of the men who die suddenly of coronary heart disease do not exhibit symptoms. The AHA also says that between 70 and 89 percent of sudden cardiac events occur in men. Both of those factors only highlight the importance men must place on protecting themselves against heart disease. The AHA notes that the steps that can help men reduce their risk for heart disease vary depending on their ages. For example, men in their 20s can make sure they exercise regularly, avoid smoking and schedule routine wellness visits with their physicians. Men in their 50s may need to be more diligent in their efforts to prevent heart disease, especially if they have already been diagnosed with conditions such as high blood pressure or diabetes. More information about combatting heart disease can be found at www.heart.org.

Teddy's 10 most anticipated films of 2018

- By Teddy Durgin -

Happy new year, dear readers! As we close the book on 2017, it's appropriate to look ahead to the next 12 months and all of the movies that will be hitting theaters. It doesn't look to be the most... uh... original year. But there is some excitement to be had. Here goes:

1) "Solo: A Star Wars Story" (May 25) - Look, if they're going to keep making one new "Star Wars" movie a year, I'm sorry. Whatever it is... it's gonna be my most anticipated flick for that calendar year.

2) "Avengers: Infinity War" (May 4) - This is what all of the Marvel movies have been leading up to since "Iron Man" debuted in 2008. It's a two-parter, with the second one due in the summer of 2019.

3) "Incredibles 2" (June 15) - Pixar really shouldn't have waited 14 years between films to bring this second installment to the screen. In that time, there have been three friggin' "Cars" movies! I've always thought this was the animation studio's greatest sequel property, the one with the most story possibilities.

4) "Fantastic Beasts: The Crimes of Grindelwald" (Nov. 16) - I really enjoyed the first "Fantastic Beasts," particularly the time period, setting and the casting. In this one, Jude Law is added to the cast as the young Albus Dumbledore.

5) "Jurassic Park: Fallen Kingdom" (June 22) - I put this high on the high list for one big reason... Jeff Goldblum's return as Dr. Ian Malcolm!

6) "A Wrinkle in Time" (March 9) -- I love that director Ava DuVernay is following up "Selma" with this intriguing fantasy adventure about a trip through time to find a missing scientist. I love that a studio had faith she could make such a leap and gave her a nine-figure budget.

7) "Chappaquiddick" (April 6) - I'm actually surprised it took Hollywood this long to make a movie version of the infamous 1969 incident in which Ted Kennedy's (Jason Clarke) life and political career took a turn after his involvement in a fatal car accident that claimed the life of young campaign strategist Mary Jo Kopechne (Kate Mara).

8) "Black Panther" (Feb. 16) - The early teasers for this film were so cool. Much better than the more recent CGI-stuffed trailer that hulks up the action. I don't need to be sold spectacle and pyrotechnics.

9) "Ready Player One" (March 30) - OK, this looks stuffed with CGI effects, too. But, hey, it's Steven Spielberg. And he's returning to direct a sci-fi fantasy flick after getting all serious on us with prestige films like "Lincoln," "Bridge of Spies" and "The Post."

10) "Holmes and Watson" (Nov. 9) - It stars Will Ferrell as Holmes and good buddy John C. Reilly as Watson. Does it have my interest? Indubitably, my dear readers. Indubitably!

'Darkest Hour' sheds light on pivotal moment in history

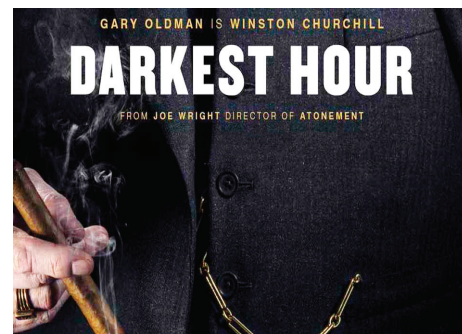

- By Teddy Durgin -

"Darkest Hour" is an interesting film to review. I really liked it. But the main reason I really liked it is because it served as such a good companion piece to another better film: Christopher Nolan's amazingly harrowing "Dunkirk" from earlier this year. If that film had one glaring flaw - and I seem to recall mentioning it in my original review - it's that it plopped its audience down into a major historical event without providing much context or background. Now, I knew what the significance of Dunkirk was to England, to World War II and to history itself because I'm a well-read man (not really). But if I didn't know my history, I probably wouldn't have appreciated the movie nearly as much.

"Darkest Hour" provides the context and background that is missing. It shows what's happening back on the homefront. It explains why those thousands and thousands of troops were trapped, left at the mercy of the Third Reich, seemingly abandoned by their country. It shows the reasons why a historic rescue had to be mounted by private yachtsmen and anyone with a boat and able to sail to that under-siege French beach. Most of all, it shows the early days of Winston Churchill's time as British Prime Minister and the course changes and decisions he made that would ultimately save our world from fascism and tyranny.

Gary Oldman plays Churchill. The performance is everything you've read and heard from reviewers who got to see the film earlier than I did. And the makeup job is seamless. This film WILL win Oscars in both the Lead Actor and Makeup categories, and deservedly so. It's one of those rare instances on screen where the acting and the look are so spot-on, you forget you are watching an actor you've seen many times before and just completely buy that this is the real historic figure, doing his real historic deeds.

Is the film a bit talky? Oh, more than a bit. This and "Dunkirk" could not be any more different in pace and style. This is a movie a la "Lincoln" where it shows a man under extreme pressure having to summon every bit of political savvy he can muster in order to do what he believes is right, all the while the weight of history weighs heavier and heavier on his shoulders. Oldman does it with a fascinating mix of bluster and self-satisfaction. He also exhibits some good humor, particularly in the film's quieter moments with his wife, Clementine Churchill (Kristin Scott-Thomas).

Criticism? Basically, it's the same one I had with other films that feature outsized lead performances, whether it be "There Will Be Blood" and Daniel Day-Lewis or "Malcolm X" and Denzel Washington. So much emphasis is placed on the main "character" that no one else is really allowed to emerge and share in the spotlight. You could have made a whole movie just on the Churchills' marriage, Oldman and Scott-Thomas are that good together. Similarly, there is a potentially GREAT subplot involving Churchill's initially strenuous relationship with King George VI (Ben Mendelsohn) that had enough crackle to have also been a whole movie.

I felt a bit frustrated when the film would move away from these different pairings to give Oldman another scene where he gets to rise up and make a fiery declaration for two or three minutes. The best scene actually happens late in the film when Churchill decides to step out of his chauffeur-driven car in traffic, wander down into the London "underground," board a subway car and interact for the first time with "the people." It's a complete fabrication. It never happened. But as a "movie scene," it got Churchill out of the stuffy corridors of power and into a place where he and other people talked with each other and not at each other. It's a great scene allowed to go on for several minutes, with moments of humor, sadness, self-discovery and, ultimately, purpose.

Ultimately, my purpose will be to see "Darkest Hour" again someday... as a double bill with "Dunkirk."

Obituary Correction Policy

No newspaper blunder is more certain to upset someone than a mistake in a loved one's obituary. Unless an error made it difficult for readers to identify the deceased, no obituary will run twice in full; however, a corrected version of a flawed obituary will be mailed promptly if requested by any immediate family member.

All published obituary corrections will be as brief as possible.

Talk to us today about the benefits of pre-planning final arrangements.

Knowing that our children and grandchildren won't be left with the financial and emotional burdens that come with planning funeral arrangements gives us peace of mind.

Pre-planning gave us the opportunity to make important decisions about our wishes together, and make a difficult time a little less stressful for each other and the people we love.

Still Is.

We're not a big impersonal corporation headquartered in a far distant city or even foreign country.

We're a family. And, like you, we make decisions that suit our community...not necessarily someone else's.

We think that makes a great difference in the care and service we offer the families who come to us.

Prayer to St. Peregrine
 "The Cancer Saint"

O GLORIOUS wonder-worker, St. Peregrine, who suffered so patiently with incurable cancer in thy leg and then was healed miraculously by a touch of Our Lord's divine hand, I beg of thee to obtain for me deliverance from the infirmities that affect my body (especially....bladder & kidney) , if this be God's Holy Will.

Obtain for me also a perfect resignation to the sufferings it may please God to send me, so that, imitating our crucified Saviour and His sorrowful Mother, I may merit eternal glory in Heaven. Amen.
 St. Peregrine, pray for us.

Baltimore Humane Society's PETS OF THE WEEK

GRACE
Hey, I'm Grace and I was a staff favorite at my previous shelter and have quickly become a favorite here. My winning personality and sweet disposition will make you want to come in and meet me. I'm told I'm a cutie and full of energy. I love to play with all toys including cardboard enrichment toys... gotta love those tasty treats inside. I'm very loving, enjoy the company of humans, but do prefer to be the only pet in the home. I come with some past adoption training support and am currently offsite in foster to get a head start in my training! If you are interested in meeting me please give us a call at 410-833-8848 ext 2. My adoption fee has been sponsored by a generous donor!

ROGUE ONE
Any Star Wars fans out there? Rogue One here! I'm a lovely little lady in search of my forever home. If my gorgeous looks don't make you want to instantly adopt me, surely my spunky personality will do the trick! Since I have been here at BHS all of the staff members can't stop talking about how unique I am. You can generally find me hiding behind my cat bed, but that's just because the shelter environment is making me very nervous. Once you get to know me and I have a chance to warm up to you, you'll see just how wonderful I am. Come in to meet me soon!

The adoption fee is free and sponsored for Grace and $50 for Rogue One. For more information visit www.bmorehumane.org.
