Sam Tatum with Frank Teiman and Sheriff Lewis Tatum

At the monthly meeting held in the Sheriff's Courtroom, Hopkins County Sheriff Lewis Tatum presented his father Sam Tatum and three others with certificates for 30 years of service in the Hopkins County Sheriff's Posse organization. Sam Tatum, Roger "Tex" Maynard, Earl Martin and Billy Wayne Orr are remaining active charter members who were present at the Posse's inauguration in October 1987. Posse Captain Frank Teiman assisted Tatum in presenting other Anniversary certificates to Posse members Gary W. Moon, Joe Hooten, Lisa Hooten and Steve Huffman. Currently, there are 22 active volunteer members serving as a support force for the Sheriff's Department. A special feature of the meeting was a presentation by Texas Ranger John Vance. Vance is from Hopkins County and is part of a Ranger team responsible for a 24-county region of Northeast Texas.

Here's a special reminder about major Western entertainment coming to Sulphur Springs on April 7 at 7pm. Robert Joe Vandygriff, known in Western circles as RJ, will present his "The Cowboy Ain't Dead Yet" award-winning one-man show in one appearance only at the Hopkins County Civic Center. RJ is a Roxton native who at one time lived in Sulphur Springs and formed a country band in the 1980's. He worked the rodeo circuit, wrote chart-topping country songs, produced shows for major Nashville artists and landed a recurring character role in "Walker, Texas Ranger". His CD "The Cowboy Ain't Dead Yet" earned the #1 position on Western Music charts in 2011. Touring nationally, he has been honored by the Academy of Western Artists and National Cowboy and Western Heritage Museum in Oklahoma City. You will laugh, cry and want to get up and dance during his historic/dramatic/comedic presentation for all ages. Tickets are $30 from any Pilot Club member or at PayPal@sspilotclub.org

GLIDERS PROVIDED A ONE WAY TRIP TO THE BATTLEFIELD

Tumbleweed Smith

Tumbleweed Smith

Seven thousand volunteer glider pilots were a vital part of the US Armed Forces during World War Two. Most of them were trained at South Plains Army Air Field in Lubbock.

“The gliders were a delivery method for groups of men or heavy artillery or equipment that couldn’t be dropped in by parachute. The advantage was that you could deliver them to one location. Paratroopers are really effective if you want to spread them out over a mile or so, but with gliders you could get them in a specific landing point.”

Sharon McCullar is curator of the Silent Wings Museum located near the Lubbock airport. The museum used to be in the metroplex but was relocated to Lubbock.

“There’s a C-47 in front of the museum. It was the main aircraft used to tow the gliders into combat. They were towed to 600 to 800 feet then released from the tow plane. They would be in the air for about 30 seconds before landing. Most of them sat in the landing zone and that’s where they were left.”

Twelve thousand gliders were manufactured, some on the Ford assembly line in Detroit. They were used in Europe and the Pacific. In March of 1945 many of them crossed the Rhine River at Wesel, Germany.

“It was the largest airborne glider operation of the war. A little over a thousand gliders crossed in a single day loaded with men and material.” Gliders were extremely light, made mostly of canvas that covered a steel frame. But they could carry 15 men, jeeps, huge cannons, even a bulldozer.

“They were built to be as light as possible with a structure as sound as possible. The seats are honeycombed plywood, like laminated plywood, and the floor is also kind of a laminate. So it’s as strong as it can be but as light as it can be because they’re really expendable. We have a restored glider on display.”

Some of those glider pilots are still around. “The World War Two Glider Pilots Association will have its annual reunion at the museum in October of this year.”

The museum has videos showing interviews with World War Two glider pilots and crews. It also shows gliders landing, some of them crashing down. In wartime German troops erected tall poles to prevent the gliders from landing.

The Silent Wings Museum has events all during the year including Veterans Day, D-Day (June 6) and Spirit of ‘45 Day (second weekend in August). Admission is free on those days with ceremonies to honor veterans. The museum now has an exhibition commemorating the 15th anniversary of the loss of the Space Shuttle Columbia, which exploded over East Texas in 2003. Two asronauts from West Texas were on that mission: Willie McCool and Rick Husband.
