SO WHAT IS GOING ON OUT THERE?

By Douglas H. Domedion

Well, the weather sure has been playing havoc with the start of spring migration. The swamp finally opened up and we saw migrating birds moving in. Tundra swans were in larger numbers this year and I enjoyed several days of doing flight shots of them. They of course are a beautiful white bird we only get to enjoy for a short time in the spring as they are early to arrive and early to head farther north to the tundra area to nest. Their constant calling of "wow, wow, wow" often identifies them in the area from a long distance away. I was recently trying to photograph them flying by to their feeding areas northwest of our swamp area and it began snowing pretty good making visibility pretty poor. However, I was able to get some pretty good shots because their calling would alert me to their passing and I could then get ready to "get on them." Suddenly there they would be coming out of the snow close right at me giving giving me a short "window" to focus and shoot.

The snowy owl is not only beautiful, but big!

These tundra swans, formerly called whistling swans, nest in the tundra country up north and so we are just a stop over area for them. However, you want to take the opportunity to observe them when they arrive here as they don't stay long. This year there seemed to be many more than we usually get here.

Some woodducks have been spotted and the ring-necked ducks are arriving. Pintails are early, too and these early migrators seem to have move on with the coming of this recent stormy weather. However, there should be more showing up. Another pretty duck is the American widgeon that is now here. This year a couple of Eurasian widgeons have been spotted on the Tonawanda WMA near the Feeder Ditch off Route 77. It is a rare visitor to this area and is usually found in a flock of American widgeons and can be distinguished from the American with its grayer back and side and the reddish brown head on the male. The American of course has the greenish band running from ahead of its eye back down along the back and side of the head.

Turkey vultures have been arriving slowly and those here must be desperate for food with the winter weather still upon us.

Migrating Canada geese are starting to arrive to join our resident geese that always come back a little early as they don't travel to far away for winter.

Six pairs of our local eight nesting pairs eagles are incubating except one pair that is always later than the others and another who is trying to establish a nest on ringneck marsh on the Iroquois NWR, but is having difficulty doing so with folks walking down on the dike there now and earlier with ice fisherman out there. Last year they also made an attempt, but eventually gave up. This pair of eagles seem to be very sensitive to people walking around near by and it will really be too bad if they don't nest as the Ringneck Overlook is a perfect spot for the public to watch the nesting procedure. The distance to the nest is shorter than any other nest we have and there is no leaf interference from other trees like the others.

What about the snowy owls? They are heading north now too, but recently my owl trapping and banding friend was told of one near in Niagara County so he e-mailed me that morning and invited me along to trap it that evening. I checked the out the area for that bird as I was going pretty close on the way to my swan flight shot attempt that morning. I found no owl and passed that on to Dave. That evening I made a trip over there again in hopes of finding the owl or at least visit with my friend. I found the owl and called Dave and he related he just was around the corner and had been looking for it and was on his way. Apparently, the bird had been hiding when he searched that area (sometimes they just back up to a clump of rocks, a now drift or log pile and sleep during the day) because Dave doesn't miss a bird! Well, he set up his trap and in a short time he had him. My goal was to photograph the bird coming into the trap and the trap being sprung. With my camera being capable of shooting 10 frames a second I focused on the trap and just hit "machine gun" mode on the trap as he came. Suddenly the camera quit and when I looked it said "Card full"! What a dummy not to have replaced the card I knew was close to being full for this exciting event! Hopefully I will get invited again sometime, this time with a new SD card in the camera! My contact information is 585-798-4022 or woodduck2020@yahoo.com.

Tips on how to write CLASSIFIED ADS that sell!

- USE A KEY WORD. This immediately tells the reader exactly what you have to sell.
- Make your description CLEAR AND FACTUAL. State the year, make, model, color & size and tell what condition the item is in. Also, state the special features.
- 3 STATE THE PRICE. Successful classified advertisers have learned that the price in an ad helps increase the chances for results.
- 4 IF THERE IS A GENUINE SENSE OF URGENCY, say so. The words "We're moving," or "Must sell fast," suggest that readers respond immediately.
- 5 INCLUDE YOUR PHONE NUMBER. Classifieds get results fast and often generate immediate sales. If you cannot be available to answer the phone at all times, be sure to specify special calling times such as "after 9pm" or "before 11am."

The STREAM & LAKE MAP OF NEW YORK resembles another mapknown to Pennsylvania anglers as the "Lost Stream Map."

MAP

It was completed in 1965 after I a 30 year effort by Howard Higbee, a former Penn State Professor.

Professor Higbee painstakingly plotted by hand, the location of 45,000 miles of streams onto the map. It sold extremely well - until the printer declared bankruptcy and hauled Higbee's work to the landfill.

But reprints were impossible because the maps were printed in non-photographic blue. Higbee was even offered $400 for one of his last maps. And state agencies were forced to keep their copies under lock and key.

Then, at the age of 91, Howard

Challenging Facts for the Village of Albion

The latest census shows the median household income is $29,392 in the Village of Albion and $48,731 in Orleans County. The 5,962 residents of the Village of Albion are estimated to have a poverty level of 27.4%.

County tax rate: $9.86 - same for everyone Town tax rates: $2.75-$3.27 inside village $4.82-$4.96 outside village Village tax rate: $17.76

THE VILLAGES ARE POORER THAN THE COUNTY, but our residents have double the taxes. This makes no sense and is unsustainable.

Opportunities

Two CGR studies were performed that showed significant opportunities for savings without loss of services.

• A 2017 CGR study, "Reimagining Law Enforcement in Orleans County", showed an option for lowering village property taxes by 40%.

• A 2009 CGR study "Consolidation Study for the Village of Albion, Town of Albion and Town of Gaines" showed possible savings of 20%.

We must be transparent and engage the community on opportunities to be more efficient and fair to the tax payer.

Fighting for

Village Residents

- Make it easy to contact village officers to share your views
- Drive collaboration to maximize efficiency and reduce layers of duplicative government
- Work for equity in lowered taxes
- Actively pursue all available grant opportunities
- Support local businesses
- Build relationships with state and local governments
- Village residents should only pay extra when we get extra

If the village tax was the lowest tax instead of the highest we could reverse the trend of people moving out of the village.

Diesel Technology teacher Ed Wallace was recently gifted with a heavy-duty diesel truck from the University of Northwestern Ohio (UNOH). He will use this to train his students at the Orleans Career and Technical Education Center. The university is known worldwide as being a leader in training for automotive, diesel and high-performance industries in Lima, Ohio.

"We have a recruiter from UNOH that comes in to talk to the students, his name is Pat Dixon," says Mr. Wallace. "One day I was talking to him about how I would be able to get some used training equipment from the college for my class after they were done with it. He got back to me and said they have two diesel semi-trucks that they would be willing to donate. He sent me photos, I looked at the trucks and after discussion with our Principal, Dr. Weyrauch, and we decided one of the trucks fit our criteria. It's newer a 1999 Freightliner with a Cummings M11 diesel engine. The truck was in very good shape."

In order to get the truck BOCES had to be willing to go get it. Mr. Wallace and craft committee advisor, Randy Librock from Relco Systems, towed the truck back from Ohio to the Orleans Career and Technical Education Center. "This has been a huge asset to the Diesel Technology Program. Our class has been able to use it for training on: air brake systems, steering and suspension, and diesel engines," says Mr. Wallace. "I would like to say thank you to UNOH because they understand the value in student education and training at the high school level. I am very appreciative for their help and support of my program."

Working with Property Managers

Prospective real estate investors who hope to buy, hold and rent out their investment properties should first interview potential property managers before buying homes. While it's possible to find property managers willing to manage singlefamily homes or duplexes, the financial resource Bankrate.com notes that many property managers prefer to manage large apartment complexes instead. Managing properties is hard work, and without skilled property managers on their side, real estate investors may become overwhelmed by the responsibilities of taking care of their real estate investments while simultaneously trying to maintain their own residences. Before buying investment properties, prospective real estate investors should interview various local property managers or property management firms, inquiring about their fees and what is included in those fees. If the cost of hiring property managers drastically cuts into the profits investors hoped to make off their investment properties, they might be better off looking to invest their money in areas other than real estate. Prospective investors can compare the potential return on investment after the cost of property managers has been factored in to the return they might get from more traditional investments to determine if investing in real estate is a sound financial decision.

The Ritual of Spring Cleaning

Spring cleaning is a ritual that many people participate in as the last vestiges of winter disappear. Spring cleaning is a time to open windows, deep clean rooms and closets and take down and launder window treatments and linens. Others use spring cleaning as a time to sort and donate or discard clutter that might have accumulated over the winter. Even though spring cleaning seems like a modern invention, the act of spring cleaning is believed to have originated centuries ago. Some say that the ancient Chinese cleaned in preparation Master for their New Year as they hoped to wipe away any bad luck Into and misfortune from the previous year. Similarly, the ancient Hebrew practice of thoroughly cleansing a home before the springtime feast of Passover may have evolved into the Center at the 4-H Fairgrounds. spring cleaning we know today. Another possible connection is the tradition of "shaking the house clean" in Iran. I celebrate Now Rouz (Persian New Year) with many di rituals, one of which involves buying new clothes and cl every corner of the family home to signify renewal.

Exploring Careers in Philanthropy

The growing number of nonprofit organizations and other philanthropic groups has made opportunities for careers in philanthropy more plentiful. Those with professional business experience or even students right out of college often find opportunities within organizations geared to giving back.

CAREER

According to Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis, there are more than 1.4 million nonprofit organizations in the United States alone. These organizations need dedicated staff to run their operations, and employees of such nonprofits often find there are several advantages to working for charitable organizations.

• Happier work environments: Working in philanthropy means improving other people's lives. Employees may be happy in their positions because they realize their work is part of a larger effort to help the less fortunate. The nonprofit sector will attract other like-minded people, and working alongside people with similar interests can make for a more enjoyable workplace environment.

• Diverse responsibilities: Nonprofit operations are generally smaller than many other companies, and employees often find themselves with diverse responsibilities and more direct access to management and other decision makers. People interested in dabbling in various parts of a business may find the often intimate nature of the nonprofit sector an ideal fit.

• Opportunities for travel: Some nonprofits offer the chance to work outside of the country. Nonprofit organizations who work across the globe may help build homes or schools in less developed countries or establish arts and education programs in countries where such opportunities are lacking. A job in the nonprofit sector may allow people to experience new cultures and opportunities that may never present themselves in the private sector.

• Growth opportunities: Wearing a variety of hats, as many nonprofit employees do on a regular basis, allows those working at nonprofit organizations to build their resumes in ways not available to men and women working at more structured companies.

People who work in the nonprofit sector often find that their careers are rewarding for a variety of reasons. \blacksquare

BY NATHAN D. PACE Attorney at Law

A DURABLE POWER OF ATTORNEY FOR HEALTH

A living will is a legal document that allows people to state their preferences for end-of-life treatment. Because technology advances so quickly, however, a living will may not be able to predict which treatments you would or would not want years in advance. In addition, many people change their minds about which end-of-life treatments they want, and their wishes may no longer be reflected in their living wills. With all this in mind, a better option may be a durable power of attorney for health care. This legal document, drafted with the help of a lawyer, gives the person of your choice the right to make medical decisions for you in the event that you cannot make them for yourself.

Today, all states have provisions for some form of health care directive, allowing individuals to exert control over their lives and estates in the event they become incapable of making their own health care decisions. For more information, please call the Law Office of MACK & PACE. Our areas of specialization include living wills and trusts, small business, mortgages and foreclosures, powers of attorney, probate and estate law and vehicle and traffic law. We provide you with personal interaction not found in larger firms

(585) 798-1000 534 Main St., Suite 6 Medina, NY 14103

HINT: Typically, a durable power of attorney is given to a spouse or adult child, but does not have to be a family member.

The Security and Law Enforcement students at the Orleans Career and Technical Center have been receiving training on how to defend themselves using some new equipment.

Teachers Steve Browning and Dudley Gilbert had two of their students suit up in a RedMan instructor suit so that the rest of the class could practice defensive tactics. The suits enable the volunteers to sustain blows, without injury, from a plastic baton or with hands as they engage with their classmates in the use of force exercises.

Some of the students were timid about striking back at the students in Redman suits, but with the encouragement of their teachers and classmates discovered the best way to defend themselves and keep the upper hand in case of an attack.

Mr. Browning and Mr. Gilbert demonstrated using batons and verbal commands on how to reduce the chance of escalation during an arrest or confrontation. They stressed how important it is to practice fast decision making and being aware of what maneuvers their opponent is making so they can counteract against aggressive behavior. "If our students pursue a law enforcement career they most likely will encounter this type of scenario on the job," said Mr. Browning. "As officers they will not only have to protect themselves, but those they serve."
