LONG'S HEARING IS THE PLACE TO GO.

Missy will do the very best for you. She "listens" to you. She is extremely knowledgeable about hearing problems. She will test you and make sure you get the right product. My product (which I didn't think I wanted after doing research before I went in) is amazing. It does fit above my ears, but I can wear my glasses with them. You can't tell I have hearing aids from looking at the front or the side of me! The controls are easy to use. And they have a built in "automatic" phone detector, so using the phone is easy now. The Aids are easy to put in and take out. I am amazed and extremely happy.

~ Judith Ann from Evart

I WOULD CHECK OUT
LONG'S HEARING IN CADILLAC OR HOUGHTON LAKE.

I went to Cadillac and I am very glad now that I have to tell my wife to turn the TV down also I can hear the beautiful birds sing. What a blessing and I didn't have any insurance. I want to thank Long's Hearing.

Four Symptoms of a Sick Cooling System

Knowing the symptoms of a sick cooling system are critical to your spring and summer driving plans, since cooling system failure is a leading cause of vehicle breakdowns. The most noticeable symptoms are overheating, leaks, a sweet smell of antifreeze and repeatedly needing to add coolant.

The primary job of the engine's cooling system is to remove the heat that is generated during the combustion process. The coolant temperature can be well over 200 degrees and that heat has to go somewhere, otherwise engine components are going to start failing. The key parts of the cooling system remove the heat from the engine and automatic transmission and dispel it to the air outside. The water pump circulates coolant through the engine. The coolant absorbs heat and returns it to the radiator where heat is dissipated. The thermostat regulates the coolant temperature to keep it consistent for efficient engine operation.

A major factor that affects the replacement of cooling system parts is the frequency of regular maintenance, such as coolant changes. Motorists should consult their owner's manual for specific recommendations about how often to change antifreeze and flush the coolant system. A coolant flush and fill is basic to cooling system maintenance as new antifreeze helps the engine run cooler and a flush removes dirt or sediment that could damage other cooling system parts.

The coolant level should be checked regularly at the reservoir and motorists are reminded to NEVER open a hot radiator cap. If the coolant is low, a 50/50 mix of approved antifreeze and distilled water should be added.

Motorists can also do a visual inspection of hoses, belts and the radiator to help identify cooling system problems before they escalate. Radiator leaks, bulging hoses or frayed and cracked belts are clues that the cooling system is in need of maintenance.

Additional signs of cooling system problems include the vehicle temperature gauge rising near the danger zone, coolant leaks, steam or hissing sounds under the hood or the distinct smell of an engine that's running hot.

Time to Change Your Vehicle's Cabin Air Filter

The cabin air filter helps trap pollen, bacteria, dust and exhaust gases that may find their way into a vehicle's air conditioning and heating and ventilation systems. The filter also prevents leaves, bugs and other debris from entering the heating, ventilating and air-conditioning (HVAC) system. The cabin air filter should be replaced every 12,000 to 15,000 miles, or per the owner's manual A dirty or clogged cabin air filter can cause musty odors in the vehicle and cause contaminants to become so concentrated in the cabin that passengers actually breathe in more fumes and particles when riding in the car compared to walking down the street. A restricted cabin air filter can also impair airflow in the HVAC system, possibly causing interior heating and cooling problems, important for staying comfortable this winter. Over time, the heater and air conditioner may also become damaged by corrosion. Most filters are accessible through an access panel in the HVAC housing, which may be under the hood or in the interior of the car. An automotive service technician can help locate the cabin filter and replace it according to the vehicle's owner manual. Some filters require basic hand tools to remove and install the replacement filter; others just require your hands. Filters should not be cleaned and reinstalled; instead, they should be replaced.
