On April Fool's Day don't trust anyone and believe nothing! Being gullible by nature, I have forgotten this advice on more than one occasion. I believe everything! This year, Easter falls on April 1st so get ready for the Easter Bunny to spread some mischief. You can start planning some epic Easter pranks: wrap grapes in chocolate candy wrappers, fill Marshmallow Peeps with hot sauce, super glue candy-filled eggs, or come up with your own idea. Make this year's candy-filled baskets ones they'll remember!

There are the fun pranks that make you laugh, like believing your sister won the lottery and is going to buy you a new car or a news reporter that says a bear was seen wandering down Rosedale Highway. Then, there's the not-so-funny ones that make you cringe. I remember playing an April Fool's joke on my mom that made her cry, and not in a happy, that-was-so-cool kind of way, but in a don't-you-ever-do-that-to-me-again way. I try to teach my kids that funny pranks are okay, but it's a learning curve. It's important to teach children the gravity of their jokes and to make sure they don't hurt anyone's feelings on this legendary prankster day.

After all, as parents, Dr. Kirk reminds us each month in his column that our children are adult(s)-in-training (AIT) and it's up to us to teach them how to become productive and compassionate members of society. In his article, "Just Say 'No'" on page 19, he writes about how consistency is key in raising children. If you say, "No," but then give in to their demands, you are teaching them that when you say, "No," you really mean, "Yes." He says the best thing you can do for your children is to teach them consequences for their actions and follow through it.

I can relate to this month's Humor at Home article, because like Tracie Grimes, I have redefined my own idea of a "clean" house since having my three children. In her article, "Cleanliness is in the Eye of the Beholder," on page 18, she writes about how life gets in the way of her desire to clean. She admits she's not on a Hoarder's level, but says she probably won't be winning any housekeeping awards.

April 22nd celebrates Earth Day and gives us a chance to appreciate the beauty all around us. In the article, "Kindness to the Earth," on page 23, you can learn about ways you and your family can take care of our planet. Some tips include saving water, throwing away trash, reusing items, and making sure you find time to enjoy being outdoors.

Also this month, mark your calendars in bright, bold ink for KCFM's Summer Camp and Adventure Fair on Thursday,

April 12 from 2 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. at the Westside Church of Christ, 7300 Stockdale Highway. To find out more about what you need to know to pick the best summer camp experience for your child, turn to page 13, and read, "How to Choose? Picking a Summer Camp Your Kids-and You-Will Love," by Kimberly Blaker.

This is a fun month where we start off with an Easter prank and end with a nod to Mother Earth thanking her for her abundance and wonders, all the while appreciating it all. Take the time to make memories with your children – put googly eyes on the food in the fridge or take a nature walk. We have a lot to cherish in our lives. Happy Spring!

Come say, "Hi!" at KCFM's Camp Fair! See more on page 12. See you April 12th!

Be S.M.A.R.T. to Keep Your Kids Safe

Our biggest priority as parents is keeping our children safe. In the past few years, accidental deaths by guns have risen tremendously in the United States, and according to stats by the Be SMART organization, nearly 300 children age 17 and under gain access to a gun and unintentionally shoot themselves or someone else each year. Even more disturbing, nearly 500 more teens and children die by suicide with a gun. In over 80% of these incidences, the gun was found in their home, according to beSMARTforkids.org. Their current research shows that nearly 1.7 million American children live in homes with guns that are not stored responsibly.

In early March 2018, these were just SOME of the headlines relating to accidental death and injury of children from guns:

“A 6-year-old girl was critically injured after her 11-year-old brother unintentionally shot her in the head with a handgun.” The children were unattended in the home, where several guns were not secured properly.

“A four-year-old girl was shot unintentionally when her 2- and 7-year-old brothers gained access to an unsecured loaded handgun in their family’s apartment.”

“1-year-old boy killed in accidental shooting.” He was shot by his 2-year-old brother.

To combat the number of injuries and deaths by gun amongst children, the BeSMARTforkids.org nonprofit organization was established to provide tips, tools, resources, and other information to help parents and caregivers keep their children safe. The BeSMART organization recognizes that the first step in reducing the number of injuries and death from guns is awareness about responsible storage. Storing guns responsibly can make a huge difference in reducing accidental injuries and deaths from guns.

Talking about gun safety should be part of all regular safety discussions you have with your children, caregivers of your children, family members, and even places your children spend a lot of time, such as neighbors or friends’ houses.

Be SMART operates around the SMART framework developed by Moms Demand Action for Gun Sense in America to help parents and adults prevent child gun deaths and injuries. By following these five steps, we can protect kids.

- Secure guns in homes and vehicles
- Model responsible behavior
- Ask about unsecured guns in other homes
- Recognize the risks of teen suicide.
- Tell your peers to be SMART

General tips for parents for keeping kids safe and educating them:

- Children are curious and if they find a gun, they will likely try to play with it. “Out of reach” is not good enough and not responsible storage.
- Make sure your children cannot access firearms, by storing them locked, unloaded, and separate from ammunition.
- Have the safety conversation regularly. A study conducted showed that children who had only been warned about guns one time were just as likely to pick up a gun as children who had never been warned. Gun safety should be a regular part of safety discussions.
- BeSmart.org, aided by Marjorie Sanfilippo, Ph.D., professor and expert on children’s behaviors around firearms, developed some guidelines for talking to children about guns to help parents.

Tips for Talking to Young Children

- Make guns and the danger of them part of the normal safety conversation you have with your children.
- Use simple language
- Tell the children not to ever touch a gun, and to tell an adult right away
- Make sure they know they’ll never get in trouble for telling an adult they’ve seen a gun
- Have the conversation regularly

Tips for Talking to Adolescents

- Include it in regular general safety conversations about topics like drugs, alcohol, and drunk driving.
- Make sure they know to immediately leave any situation where there is a gun present
- Assume all guns are loaded, even if a friend says it’s unloaded or safe; and leave immediately
- Help your teen come up with strategies to get out of situations where there is a gun, like “My mom just texted and I need to go home”.
- Let them know it’s okay to ask about guns in places they frequent, but if they are nervous to ask, be willing to do so for them

Doctors and healthcare professionals can also play a role in this process.

World Health Organization Declares "Gaming" an Official Disorder

Have a tween or teen that is obsessed with gaming? The World Health Organization, the public health division of the United Nations, released a draft of the newest diseases in 2018, and "gaming disorder" is on the (unfinalized) list. WHO describes the "gaming disorder" as a "pattern of persistent or recurrent gaming behavior" online or offline.

The gaming disorder includes the following behaviors: "1) impaired control over gaming (e.g., onset, frequency, intensity, duration, termination, context); 2) increasing priority given to gaming to the extent that gaming takes precedence over other life interests and daily activities; and 3) continuation or escalation of gaming despite the occurrence of negative consequences."

The reason it made the list is that the WHO says people with the gaming disorder can see an impairment (to a significant degree) to their personal or professional lives, caused by neglecting their personal activities and responsibilities and the potential mental health consequences related to obsessive gaming. For teens and tweens, a decline in social and academic activities can occur.

In an interview with the BBC News Organization, Dr. Richard Graham, technology addiction specialist, approved of the decision to make this a recognized disease. "It is significant because it creates the opportunity for more specialized services. It puts it on the map as something to take seriously," he said. But he is also concerned it could lead to "confused parents whose children are just enthusiastic gamers."

Parents of teens and tweens who are enthusiastic about gaming should bring up any concerns to their child's doctor, follow screen time guidelines, and watch for signs of social deterioration due to over gaming.

Prebiotics and Your Infant's Memory

While the breast versus bottle argument is always ongoing, researchers agree that breastmilk contains enzymes and nutrients that should be mimicked in infant formula, to provide the best nutritional profile to bottle-fed babies.

Breast milk naturally contains prebiotics. You've probably heard of probiotics and how they contribute to gut health. Prebiotics are small, indigestible fiber molecules which help colonize healthy bacteria in the gut. Studies have shown that adding prebiotics to infant formula helps improve a baby's intestinal function and provide a defense against allergies.

Now, a new study is showing that prebiotics may also improve memory function. Previous studies have provided evidence that gut health has an impact on brain function, as well. This study was done on piglets because the brain development of pigs is more similar to humans than other animals are. Piglets were given a novel recognition test, in which they were given a new toy and a toy they had played with before. Piglets that received prebiotics spent more time playing with a new toy than piglets that didn't, showing that the piglets recognized the toy as new, an indication that learning and memory were improved.

Researchers were also curious about whether prebiotics had a positive effect on behavior, but this was not borne out in the study.

Junior Achievement Helps Local Students Master Finance

By Andrea Rose

Junior Achievement volunteers share financial tips with local students

Students across Kern County are getting lessons that will help carry them through life, thanks to Junior Achievement of Bakersfield.

Junior Achievement (JA) Bakersfield offers a variety of in-school programs designed to inspire and empower more than 4,000 young people through entrepreneurship, workforce readiness and entrepreneurship education.

Business leaders, educators and other volunteers partner with the local schools to deliver classroom-based programs to students in kindergarten through grade 12.

Yes, you read that right—even kindergarten students get lessons in financial management.

“A lot of what young people need to know should start at home, but a lot of parents don’t know how to manage their own money, so they’re not gonna share that with their children,” explained Kathleen McNeil, district manager of Junior Achievement of Bakersfield. “We tell them to get a good education and a good job, but if we’re not telling them how to manage the money they are making from that job, it could be for naught.”

Springtime is when the programs gear up, with JA Economics for Success at Freedom Middle School and JA Personal Finance at South High School.

Each program is led by trained volunteers from the business community.

“At the middle school and high school levels, we do what we call traditional delivery. A businessperson goes into the classroom and provides instruction on the topics,” McNeil explained.

When April rolls around with Financial Literacy Month, registration gets underway for JA’s sixth annual Stock Market Challenge held in October at CSUB.

The signature fundraising event is a virtual investment competition for Kern County middle and high school students, offered at no charge to students.

“It’s an amazing event,” McNeil said. We recruit instructors from middle and high schools. It primarily is business or economics teachers. We’ll partner with a teacher and usually what happens is they’ll bring their entire class with four or five students per team.

“The first half of the day is “Investing 101” and they get an overview of the stock market—why it exists, why it operates, how it benefits businesses and shareholders.”

“A lot of what young people need to know should start at home, but a lot of parents don’t know how to manage their own money, so they’re not gonna share that with their children,” explained Kathleen McNeil. “We tell them to get a good education and a good job, but if we’re not telling them how to manage the money they are making from that job, it could be for naught.”

McNeil said the afternoon is set up like a trading floor. “The students strategize. It’s very competitive,” she said.

Teams that finish with the highest portfolio net worth are deemed the stock market champion.

But the learning isn’t limited to secondary students. In May, JA Day will be held at Hort and Stella Hills. Each classroom is matched with a trained volunteer to deliver five back-to-back lessons and activities during the first half of the school day.

“We’re teaching kids about jobs, business and money,” McNeil said.

And even the littlest learners can benefit.

“In first grade, they learn the difference between needs and wants,” she explained. “We are very conditioned to spend. You think of money, you think ‘What am I gonna buy?’ Let’s rethink that.”

Money management is really not a difficult concept to teach if you make it relatable.

“I tell the kids, ‘What do you think when you hear about a movie star or professional athlete that says they’re broke?’ You think they have millions of dollars, how can that be? But whether you have a million or a hundred dollars, if you spend it all, you’re broke.”

McNeil said teaching the basics at a young age is critical for a variety of reasons.

“We met with Cal State-Bakersfield... the powers that be that build prisons look at third grade math scores to determine how many prisons to build,” she said. “Up to third grade, you are learning to read. When you get to third grade, you are reading to learn. We have to reach them young. High school is too late.”

McNeil said the learning is sequential.

“Each year, it’s building on what they learned the previous year. Our goal is to have a long-term relationship with each school site.”

Not only do the students reap the rewards, so do the volunteers.

“It’s an opportunity for our volunteers to be a mentor and a role model in the classroom and share their work,” McNeil explained.

“We always need volunteers,” McNeil said. For more information on Junior Achievement, visit www.jabakersfield.org. “The work we do is really important. Our volunteers are valuable. It’s not just going in and reading a storybook,” McNeil said.

How to Choose?

Picking a Summer Camp Your Kids—and You—Will Love

By Kimberly Blaker

Whether you're looking for enrichment for your child, a way to keep your child occupied and supervised while you work, or a short reprieve from parenting, there's a summer camp out there that's just right for every family.

THE BENEFITS OF SUMMER CAMP

Summer camp offers plenty of benefits, and many kids thrill at the idea of going away to summercamp. But for some kids, particularly those who are shy, introverted, or homebodies, the thought of going away for a night, let alone a week or more, can be cause for considerable anxiety. For kids who are adamantly opposed, forcing summer camp on them may not be in their best interest.

But for kids who are more than eager – or at the very least willing to give it a shot without too much fuss – summer camp offers lots of opportunities kids aren't likely to experience at home or anywhere else.

If you're not familiar with the benefits, summer camp:

- fosters independence
- is a place to develop new and lasting friendships
- helps kids develop new skills
- leads kids to discover new interests and hobbies
- provides the opportunity for creative expression
- gives kids a break from being plugged-in
- offers daily exercise
- improves their self-esteem

- teaches kids to work with others
- makes kids feel part of a community
- prevents or reduces summer learning loss

GETTING STARTED IN YOUR SEARCH

Before you begin looking into summer camps, first create a list of the criteria you're looking for. Here are some initial things to consider:

- What is your budget for summer camp?
- What is the purpose of sending your child to summer camp?
- Do you want a resident (overnight) or a day camp?
- Are you looking for a short-term (week or two) or summer-long program?
- Do you want a camp that's very structured or one that provides your child lots of freedom and choices?
- What are your child's interests, such as a particular sport, hobby, or other interest?

Once you've narrowed down some of the criteria, you can begin your search. You can visit www.summercamps.com where you can search by zip code or category. Also visit local camp fairs, such as the 22nd Annual KCFM Summer Camp & Adventure Fair (see opposite page for info).

The American Camp Association (ACA) accredits summer camps, so www.acacamps.org is another excellent place to look for a camp. The ACA educates camp owners and directors in health and safety for staff and campers as well as program quality. It then accredits camps that meet the organization's standards.

NEXT STEPS TO FINDING THE PERFECT SUMMER CAMP

Once you've selected a few summer camps that meet your primary criteria and that fit your child's interests, share the choices to see what excites your child. Let your child know up front that you still need to thoroughly investigate the camp(s) before making a final decision. But do keep your child's choices in mind to ensure your child gets the most out of summer camp.

Once you and your child have narrowed the list to a manageable selection, you'll want to investigate the camps further. There are several things you'll want to consider.

What are the staff's qualifications?

Many summer camps use teens to staff the camps. Teens make excellent mentors and can bring liveliness to summer camp programs. However, the programs themselves should be developed by professionals and have professional oversight to ensure kids are getting the most from the camp programs.

How does the camp ensure your child's safety?

Find out what kind of safety training the camp provides its staffers. Also, is there staff on hand at all times that knows CPR? What are the camp's procedures in the event your child becomes ill, has an accident, or there's an emergency?

What is the daily schedule for campers?

Ask for a daily itinerary, so you know your child will be getting everything you and your child anticipate from the program.

What are the rules?

Each camp has its own set of rules. So, find out whether your child is allowed to call you. If it's a summer-long residential camp, can parents come and visit? Can your child bring along a cell phone or electronics? Also, how much money should your child bring, and how is your child's money managed?

Summer Adventures START HERE!

From sports to science and everything in between, Kern County is home to summer camps for all ages, interests, and budgets. Check out some of our recommendations below, and let the summer fun begin!

American Kids Sport Center

NW: 3622 Allen Rd. • SW: 4401 Ride St.
Bakersfield, CA
(661) 589-2100
<http://www.aksc.com>

Mike Williams,
Owner

American Kids Sports Center (AKSC) has been a staple of children's sports and fitness for 34 years in Bakersfield. Local owners Mike and Sheri Williams developed AKSC with Kern County families in mind. Growing up and raising their own families in Bakersfield, shaped their mission of Building Healthy Kids. Our programs are diverse and for all ages (we start them as young as 6 weeks old). AKSC offers all levels of sports from competitive to recreational and just plain old fun! Our facilities are state of the art, with an indoor pool, in-ground trampolines and tumbling pits, spring floors, air conditioned facilities and spacious parent viewing areas.

We offer a multitude of camps with different flexible scheduling options. Our EPIC! Sports Day camp is all summer long, and allows children to try all the different activities we offer at AKSC. Campers participate in team building, arts and crafts, games, science, engineering and don't forget the sports! Your camper will be ready to hit the hay when they get home! This camp is our most popular and so enroll early.

Our Ninja Camp program is built around our fun and exciting Ninja Zone program! With constant motion and ninja skills we guarantee that your camper will love it. Students will learn the art of movement using gymnastic, parkour and martial arts technique. Its an all day obstacle course! Maybe your student is the next American Ninja Warrior!

Next is our Tumbling Camp, one of our most sought after skill building camps for cheerleaders, gymnasts and tumblers alike! Camps are organized according to your tumbling skills to create the best learning environment for all athletes.

Use this summer to build your skills and impress your coaches this fall with everything you learned here at AKSC! Visit us at www.AKSC.com.

Gabe Woodward,
Founder &
Olympic Medalist

BSA is a trusted local Swim School and Swimwear Store founded by Bakersfield native Olympian Gabe Woodward & his family. We set out to lower drowning rates, but our passion far exceeds ordinary water safety. BSA is a place where children learn to swim and families make lasting memories! We're about building character through hard work & commitment, challenging swimmers daily, and encouraging local families to live healthy and active lifestyles.

Learning to swim is important for all ages. We offer a range of levels, from infants to adults, with group lessons available for varying swimming abilities. Starting with basic familiarization and water safety, then learning new skills and techniques, gradually building on confidence to progress until our swimmers are competent at all strokes. Our goal is to provide a platform for swimmers to follow their path 'from infants to Olympians,' offering a bright & happy future. Visit BSA today!

Cleanliness IS IN THE Eye of the Beholder

"My garage is so clean, you can eat off the floor," I overheard one woman telling another over coffee not too long ago. I discreetly looked in the direction of the voice because I needed to make sure I knew what the woman looked like; I never want to make the mistake of inviting her over to my house. Or even give her a ride in my car.

My husband used to call me a "neatnik." That was way back in 1988 BC (Before Children). I used to spend hours upon hours scrubbing, scraping, mopping, dusting, and making beds before and after going to work, and even after the first three kids I'd get the house all neat and tidy while they were in school. But when the fourth one came along, I found that I had to change my definition of clean drastically or be in a constant state of angst and overload. Where once I would shudder at the thought of dusty light fixtures, now I just keep them turned off until I work up enough energy to clean them.

I guess that as the years have passed, and the duties of mothering and running a household (not to mention working a full-time job) have left me burning the candle at both ends, I've lost my will to clean. Don't get me wrong; I'm not on the level of any of those folks you see on a show like Hoarders. I do have my standards. For instance, if walking across the kitchen floor feels like a walk on the beach, it's probably time to get out the ole vacuum. If the papers I'm grading stick to the kitchen counter, it might be time to give the countertop a good "once-over" with a rag and good dousing of "Daily Granite." And even though I won't be winning any awards from the American Cleaning Institute, I do pride myself on the fact that I take the trash out often enough to keep the house from smelling like a landfill, and get the laundry washed, folded and put away before everyone runs out of clean underwear (most weeks, anyway).

As far as those who have garage floors clean enough to eat from go, I'm thinking they must live alone, don't have pets, and never serve food or drink when entertaining. Let's face it, about five minutes after any life form walks through the door, your floors will be soiled with dust, dirt, food particles, and anything else it/he/she has on the bottom of its/his/her feet.

So, when it comes to housework, do yourself a favor and reevaluate your definition of "clean." Also, keep these words of the great Erma Bombeck in mind: "My theory on housework is, if the item doesn't multiply, smell, catch on fire or block the refrigerator door, let it be. No one cares. Why should you?"

Just Say "NO"

A mother was picking up her son's toys and claiming, "I will be throwing all these toys out in the trash." Her son glances over at her and says, "Come on Mom. I'll get them in a minute." The mother responds with, "All right, but last time, I had to nag you all day just to pick up some toys." Her child glances at her with a smirk and returns to his iPad game. Mother walks off in a huff, talking under her breath. "These kids never listen to me." A father tells his child he is not taking him to soccer practice today because he hasn't cleaned up his room yet. His child begins the begging process, the whining course of action, the "I promise" to do it later routine. Dad finally retreats and says, "Okay, but you'd better do it when you get back from soccer." The child smiles as he is putting on his soccer leggings.

What might be considered here is the long-term effect of what your child is learning. You say "NO" but eventually you mean "YES." You think you are saying NO to your child. But, he remembers from past encounters that if he cries, promises, or whines, his parent eventually relents, backs down, and gives in. What happens when other people in your child's life say NO? Will your child respect that person's authority? Will your child recognize, whether he is fifteen or twenty-five, that what the adult says is the rule?

Your child is actually considered to be an adult-in-training (AIT). Your parental duty is to prepare your AIT child for the complex and oft time difficult world in which we live. When you decide to say NO, mean it. Your job is to assist your child in learning that should she want something, then she should learn to comply with authority figures. When your child's boss says, "Sure you can have Monday off, just make sure all your work is completed first," the boss means it. If your child has not learned to comply with authority, she may try to take advantage of what she thinks she can and leave work on Friday without finishing all her work. She figures she can show up on Tuesday and explain why she could not get it all completed. What the boss may say to her first is, "You're fired."

Perhaps missing a soccer game or losing iPad privileges until all work is completed will allow your 9- or 10-year-old child to begin to realize how the real world works. Then, he can actually respect what you are saying to him, which is: Do your job first. Do it well. Then, you can have other privileges. Having your child catch onto this truth will help him be more successful as he responds appropriately to boundaries that people set for him. Be here at 8:00 sharp! Be sure to clean up the back stockroom as well. Count the money twice and then deposit it all before closing the office. Take a one-half hour lunch break. Your child's future success will likely depend on your ability to effectively instruct him about how the world really works.

The mother who puts up the iPad until she views her child being respectful is doing her job as a training parent. The father who continues to watch golf and does not take his child to sports because of the child's unwillingness to be respectful is doing the right thing. Say NO to your child and mean it. Allow your child to see and experience the consequences of her behavior. These parental techniques may help her to be able to say YES to the work world and end up being successful...something we all want for our children.

COOKIES FOR ALL

Hit a Home Run with these Allergy-free Sugar Cookies!

Lauren Cook loves to bake. "I've baked my whole life," she said. Her cookies have become sought-after not only among friends and family, but by everyone who is lucky enough to sample one. (Just look at those decorations! They look as great as they taste!) As her family circle expanded to include a variety of dietary challenges—like her cousin, Lindsay Cook, who's vegan and couldn't come for Thanksgiving—Lauren, a kindergarten teacher at Zepher Elementary and local CSUB graduate, decided to tweak her recipes to be allergy-friendly.

"My mom, Cherie Payne, and sister, Morgan Demkey, have severe food restrictions and allergies," she said. "I felt bad bringing over cookies for everyone that they couldn't eat. I started researching ways I could substitute in allergy-free ingredients so they could have them too."

Allergy Free Sugar Cookies

Recipe courtesy Lauren Cook | Makes 2 Dozen

Ingredients:

- 1 c. vegan butter (Lauren uses earth balance soy free)
- 1 c. sugar
- 2 oz. vegan cream cheese (Lauren uses Kite-Hill for soy free)
- 1 tsp. vanilla extract
- 1 tsp. almond extract
- 1 1/2 tsp. baking powder
- 1/2 tsp. salt
- 1 egg

(for egg free mix 2 Tbsp. of water, 1 tsp. of vegetable oil, and 2 tsp. of baking powder in a separate bowl)

- 3-4 cups all-purpose allergy free flour blend (3 cups brown rice flour, 1 c. arrowroot flour, 1/2 c. white rice flour, 1/2 c. tapioca flour, and 2 tsp. xanthan gum. You should mix this beforehand.)

Directions:

1. In a large bowl mix together the butter and sugar until its light and fluffy, about 3 minutes. Add in the egg (or egg replacement) and mix until incorporated. Add in vegan cream cheese and mix for about 1 minute. Scrape down the sides and add in vanilla and almond extract and mix.
2. Add baking powder and salt and mix. Slowly add flour mixture, 1 cup at a time, until you are able to create a ball of soft dough.
3. Divide the dough in half and wrap each half in plastic wrap and refrigerate for 12-24 hours.
4. When you are ready to use the dough allow 1-2 hours to thaw slightly, but still be cold.

5. Roll your dough on a floured surface about 1/4 - 1/2 inch thick and place on a parchment paper lined cookie sheet.
6. Bake at 350 for 10-12 minutes.

BAKING TIP: when rolling and cutting your dough, you want your dough to be chilled. This keeps your cookies from losing their shape in the oven.

For the Frosting:

- 3 Tbsp. aquafaba (the brine from a can of chickpeas)
  - 2 oz. vegan cream cheese
  - 1 Tbsp. vanilla extract
  - 4 - 5 c. powdered sugar
  - about 1/4 c. water
1. Whisk the aquafaba until it begins to foam. Add in the cream cheese and the vanilla extract and mix together, about 1-2 minutes.
  2. Slowly add in the powdered sugar, one cup at a time, scraping the sides after each mix. The amount of powdered sugar and water will depend on the consistency you want your icing. If you need it stiff for details, add more powdered sugar. If you need it thinner to fill in large spaces, add more water.

NOTE: You should allow frosted cookies at least 12-24 hours to set and stiffen before stacking or packing them. Cherie said cookies like the baseball can take up to three days to frost because her frostings, depending on how each is used, have different consistencies. So you have to wait for each layer of frosting to dry before applying the next layer.

Get creative with decorations to make these cookies perfect for ANY occasion!

Kindness to the Earth

KIND IS THE NEW COOL

Brought to you by:

April 22nd is Earth Day this year! There are many ways to celebrate this unique holiday, but we don't have to limit kindness to our planet to just one day out of the year. The Earth is a pretty popular place to live; literally everyone we know lives here! This month, let's explore the symbiotic relationship between us and the planet we call home.

The Earth Takes Care of Us

You probably think of fruits and vegetables when you think of food coming from the Earth. However, the produce section isn't the only thing for which to be thankful for our planet. All kinds of ingredients in your favorite foods are first grown from the Earth. Even junk food relies on many ingredients that are grown from good ol' soil. Basically, if you're a fan of food, you're a fan of the Earth.

Ever thought about the air you breathe? You probably know that our planet's trees, among other green plants, produce much of our oxygen. What you might not know is that half of our planet's oxygen is actually produced via our oceans! Tiny phytoplankton produce as much oxygen as the trillions (yes, trillions) of trees on our planet.

The least we can do is return the favor, right?

How Do We Take Care of the Earth?

Earth may be covered mostly with water, but that doesn't mean water is unlimited. It's easy to get carried away with our water usage, but there are a few ways we can keep it in check. Make sure you turn the faucet off when you're brushing your teeth, don't dilly-dally in the shower, and embrace new technologies that are more efficient with their water usage. Some home irrigation systems send a notification to your phone when it's raining, and give the sprinklers the day off.

Like any home, Earth looks best when it's nice and clean. One of the most impactful ways we can keep Earth clean is by being responsible with our waste. Littering isn't as commonplace as it was in decades past, but just throwing away our trash isn't reducing the amount of trash on Earth — it's just moving it to a designated place. Going the extra mile means finding ways to reuse common items in our lives, rather than going the "quick and disposable" route.

Taking care of the Earth doesn't have to be boring. Find a reusable water bottle with a design or pattern that says something about yourself. For years, we've all been walking around with the same cups and bottles from the same places and companies. It's time to express ourselves! Generations of people have packed their lunches in brown paper bags, but now is as good a time as any to find a reusable lunch pail! Are you making a trip to a store to buy something? Bring a reusable bag that is comfy to carry around and makes you smile every time you see it. If that means drawing a big, funny face on the side of it, then so be it!

Lastly, take some time to appreciate the Earth outdoors. It's actually good for you! In 2016, the University of Derby found that interacting with nature every day for 30 days resulted in, "increases in happiness, health, connection to nature and pro-nature behaviours." From lowering hypertension to improving general mood, there's a multitude of reasons to spend time interacting with our Earth. Show kindness to the Earth, because it shows kindness to you!

This month's Random Act of Kindness challenge is: use a reusable water bottle. And remember, "Kind is the new cool!"

SEND US YOUR EVENTS!

Our daily happenings section is dedicated to bringing the most current events to you, but in order to do so, we need your help! You can submit your calendar events online at kerncountyfamily.com by putting your mouse over Calendar on our website's menu bar and clicking the pull down tab, "Submit Calendar Event." Please submit calendar events by the 10th of each month prior to ensure we have enough time to consider your event. We are happy to have your events as part of our Daily Happenings section and best of all, it's FREE! All events are printed well in advance of distribution each month and are subject to change. Please contact the event coordinator ahead of attendance for dates and times.

Youth & Rotarians
Collaborate for Business
Leadership & Ethics
Conference Bakersfield

On Tuesday, March 13, more than 170 selected area high school students attended the Business Leadership & Ethics Conference at Hodel's Country Dining. The conference, now in its 32nd year, provides students the opportunity to interact with businessmen and women from the Bakersfield community and to explore the leadership qualities and ethical practices they will need in their careers.

"This annual event allows students to refine their leadership and decision-making skills under the guidance of respected local business leaders. Together, we are developing tomorrow's leaders."
- Vickie Spanos, Director of Instructional Services.

KHSD Event structure calls for participating high school juniors to collaborate with Rotarians and KHSD representatives in roundtable discussions of various scenarios involving leadership characteristic and ethical practices. Bakersfield Police Department Chief, Lyle Martin, was the afternoon keynote speaker and more than 28 Rotarians participated. The conference is co-sponsored by area Rotary Clubs and the KHSD.

DID YOU KNOW?

29% of nearly 7,000 college students surveyed them stimulant meds (like some drugs used to treat ADHA) boost grades. They don't. But misusing them can raise blood pressure and heart rate as well as hinder sleep, and is linked to drug and alcohol abuse. Remind your kid that even if the pills seem harmless, there's zero payoff and some risky side effects.

Kern County Education Update

Career Technical Education Center at Independence: Groundbreaking

The groundbreaking ceremony for the Career Technical Education (CTE) Center at Independence was held on Monday, March 12, 2018, at 3:30 p.m. at 7301 Old River Road, the SW corner of Old River Road and Berkshire Road.

This center will provide an educational environment that is unique, inspiring and incorporates state-of-the-art industry-specific resources. This high tech facility is designed to facilitate the learning of academic and technical skills with a commitment to a continued partnership between schools, industry partners, and our community to ensure that Kern High School students are prepared to succeed in the workplace and at the post-secondary level. The CTE Center at Independence was made possible through the passage of Measure K, a general obligation bond passed by Kern County voters in November of 2016.

- Guest speakers included:
- Dr. Bryon Schaefer, KHSD Superintendent
  - Phillip Peters, President, KHSD Board of Trustees
  - Aaron Falk, District Representative for Congressman Kevin McCarthy's Office
  - Dr. Scott Cole, KHSD Deputy Superintendent of Business
  - Dr. Dean McGee, Associate Superintendent of Educational Services and Innovative Programs
  - Brian Miller, Principal, CTE Center at Independence

MINUTE

WAY TO FOCUS

If you have an important task to complete-whether it's filing your taxes or sending a critical email- skip the coffee and try some exercise. Ten minutes of moderate to vigorous movement (like walking at a brisk pace up a slight incline) immediately helps improve your attention and decision making ability, according to a study in the journal Neuropsychologia. Experts think this burst of exercise might improve activity in brain structures important for concentration. On top of that, regular fitness promotes overall health, so make walking or cycling a daily habit-your body and mind will thank you.

Sudoku

Level: Beginner

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve: the number 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. Figure out the order the numbers will appear by using the clues already provided in the boxes.

The more numbers you name, the easier it gets!

What's the Difference?

There are four things different between picture A and picture B. Can you find them all?
