NEW COUNTRY CLUB GOLF COURSE WILL OPEN SOON

C. J. Alden, president of the Painesville Metallic Cycling club, and also president and general manager of the Painesville Country Club, gave a detailed description to the Kiwanis Club members of their Thursday noon day luncheon of the new country club and Painesville's new golf course. This was the first time that any information relative to the new club and course was made public.

Mr. Alden began his talk by pointing out to the Kiwanians how things have changed and are changing. He said the first suggestion that the first user of a ball club was Adam Thompson of Cleveland, Ohio, in December, 1842, less than 170 years ago. At that time the ball club was looked upon somewhat as the game of golf was regarded only a few years ago. Mr. Alden told how at first golf was considered the recreation for millionaires only, but today times and conditions have changed so that the game of golf is now the favorite sport of all classes, rich or poor, he said.

Two years ago this new golf course was started. Mr. Alden said the hardships encountered building and improving the site, which is located in a beautiful spot 100 feet above the level of Grand River, just south of Riverside Drive, one-fourth mile south of the County Infirmary. Water is the most necessary thing in the building of a golf course, and there was no city water available. It was necessary for the organization to provide their own water system. Taking the water from the city for pumping facilities and for the water course was piped for the course.

The new course will be ready for opening in about two weeks, according to Mr. Alden, and he says that in just a short time it will be in keeping with every golf course in this vicinity. He said that they used the utmost care in building the course, the fairways and greens.

What is Regenerative Medicine? Non-surgical treatment provides relief for chronic pain

By Reuben Gobezie, MD

Regenerative medicine offers new hope for chronic pain. The treatment activates your body's own stem cells to heal bone, muscle, joint, soft tissue and nerve injuries.

The treatment is non-surgical and utilizes a concentrated sample of your own stem cells or blood platelets. We all carry these stem cells in our blood and bone marrow that act as the body's "repairmen." When stem cells are concentrated and injected into a joint with arthritis or another form of pain, the body restarts a new healing response. In the case of arthritis, it's possible to stimulate the growth of new cartilage in joints.

For many patients, regenerative medicine has allowed them to avoid surgery or stop pain medications. The procedure is performed in one office visit and patients return to normal activities in a couple days. Most patients find their mobility is greatly improved and that pain relief can last up to eight years.

Cleveland Shoulder Institute offers a "Five Week Interval Golf Program

Though golf is considered a moderate risk activity, an in-depth look at golf reveals that overuse and poor technique can result in serious injury. While the golf swing may appear to be a relatively simple move, it requires a synchronized effort of muscle strength, timing and coordination to generate high club-head speeds.

Golf injuries originate either from overuse or from a traumatic origin and primarily affect the elbow, wrist, shoulder and the lumbar area. With shoulder injuries, the lead shoulder, or the left shoulder in the right-handed golfer, is particularly vulnerable to injury. Common shoulder problems affecting golfers include rotator cuff tears, long head of the biceps tendon injuries, subacromial impingement, acromioclavicular arthrosis and glenohumeral instability.

Most patients sustaining a golf related shoulder injury will respond to nonsurgical treatment, such as rest and a physical therapy program including muscular strengthening and flexibility; a pre-game warm-up routine; and the adjustment of an individual's golf swing to meet their physical capacities and limitations through properly supervised golf lessons.

At the Cleveland Shoulder Institute, we highly encourage the adoption of our "Five Week Interval Golf Program." This is a structured progressive rehabilitation program aimed at accelerating the return to play golf for our patients who suffered a shoulder injury or after undergoing a shoulder related surgery. This program is comprised of a set of several swings using different clubs performed three days a week, for four weeks. By the fifth week, our patients can enjoy a game of nine holes. For a copy of this golf interval program, visit <https://tinyurl.com/golfrehab>.

Golfers who fail to respond to nonsurgical treatment options can often return to competitive golf after appropriate surgical treatment. For more information on shoulder anatomy, disease, surgery and management, please visit: cleveland-shoulder.com.

Dr. Gobezie is founder/director of The Cleveland Shoulder Institute, GO Ortho and Regen Orthopedics.

For more information, visit cleveland-shoulder.com, regenorthopedics.com or godoctornow.com.
