General Manager conducts town meeting

By Kelsey Reichenberg

Last Thursday evening, Ocean Pines Association (OPA) General Manager Bob Thompson conducted a town hall meeting. He opened the meeting with a PowerPoint presentation which covered topical items.

The first topic of discussion was the Yacht Club's recent financial success. The club had its largest net operating profit for the summer months in the history of the organization. The profits have increased $138,425 since this time last year. Thompson was also pleased to announce that the Yacht Club received the "Best Of" award in Metropolitan Magazine as the best wedding and banquet facility. In addition to the Yacht Club's increase in profit, aquatics in the community have also experienced an increase in revenue, due to a significant increase in the use of pools. The department has realized a $92,796 improvement over last year's number for the same time period.

There was much discussion about the community's transition from propane gas to natural gas. In response, Mr. Thompson talked generally of discussions between OPA and Chesapeake Energy, the parent company of Sandpiper Energy which is handling the community's conversion. He told attendees

VOLT loan informational session rescheduled

The Video Lottery Terminal (VOLT) small business loan information session has been rescheduled to take place at the Ocean Pines library on Friday, October 16 from 10 a.m. to noon.

Worcester County Economic Development (WCED), in partnership with the Anne Arundel Economic Development Corporation and Maryland Capital Enterprises, invites business owners and entrepreneurs to attend the session. VOLT fund managers will present the low interest loan opportunities that may be available to attendees to help them start or expand existing businesses. To qualify for a VOLT loan, companies must employ fewer than 500 employees, and their annual revenues must average $35 million or less over three years.

"VOLT loan funds are available to small, minority, and woman-owned businesses," WCED Deputy Director Merry Mears said. "Most Worcester County businesses meet at least the minimum qualifications for these funds based on the Maryland definition of a small business."

VOLT loan funds are generated from 1.5 percent of all Maryland casino yearly proceeds, as required by Maryland law. Fifty percent of these funds must be used within a 10-mile radius of Maryland's operating casinos, including Ocean Downs.

The session is free, but pre-registration is recommended. To register for the session or to learn more about the advantages of starting or growing an existing business in Worcester County, please contact Mears at 410-632-3112 or

The word "blaze" is generally associated with "fire". So "trail-blazer" should be someone who develops something new by destroying everything that is old. This however is not the origin of the expression. The expression came into being in the late 18th Century when the American settlers were pushing farther and farther west - towards Oregon, California, etc. Since they were exploring uncharted territory and didn't want to get lost along the way, they used to mark the trail that they had taken. One of the ways that they used to indicate the route they had taken was to remove the bark from some of the trees. This method of marking trees was known as "blazing." And since they were marking a trail, we get the expressions "blazing a trail" and "trail-blazer."

The balance of a good day

Have you ever had one of those days when you wake up in a happy-go-lucky mood expecting everything will come up roses only to find yourself constantly walking from one pile of manure to another? I mean that figuratively not literally, unless of course you happen to work or live that is stuck in a bucket, trips on a banana peel, tumbles backwards and hits his head on a ladder from which a bucket tips over and covers him in bright orange paint. There are days when I'm aglow in orange.

Why is it that the ratio of good things happening to not good things happening always seems to be off balance? For instance why can't I find a five dollar bill on the ground more often than I step in doggie nuggets? Why for every compliment I hear I hear five or six or more complaints?

Why is it that for each time I'm able to fuel my car under the canopy on sunny days, I find myself at the gas pump just outside the safety of the canopy on miserably cold and rainy days? Why? Why? Why?

It's as if some force has it out for me. The gods must perk up their spirits during boring days by deciding to pick on little old me; howling with delight I'm sure when because I hit every traffic light along the way, by the time I reach the store to buy aspirin for my throbbing headache, the store just closed.

There are days that despite my best efforts to walk on the sunny side of the street, I'm shadowed constantly by a rain cloud. And as added irony, I'm without an umbrella, raincoat or hat. I'm just a comic-tragic character for the gods' amusement.

To be sure though there are days when more good fortune shines my way than not. And I'm not talking about winning a lottery or anything like that. It can be as unspectacular as the day I found three dollars in my pants pocket, made it through a usually congested intersection without waiting, was served fries that were actually still hot and was told by the auto mechanic that the problem with my car was a quick fix and there would be no charge. That may not sound like a good day to most but everything is relative I guess. Any day you can squeeze in a little good fortune while the gods are distracted is a good day.

I had one of those days not long ago. Things were going fine until just after 11 a.m. one Saturday morning when in very quick succession the laundry room closet door broke, the shade on a bedroom lamp came undone, my car tire picked up a nail and it was discovered that we were out of bread. Now maybe this doesn't sound like an overwhelming course of events. Each situation taken alone is a minor annoyance quickly remedied. However, when everything happens in the span of just under a half hour it's a logical reaction to believe that somehow, somehow you're cursed. That's how I felt. But then again I have a persecution complex that is easily inflamed. Who said that?

When a succession of unfortunate occurrences take place I'm reminded of the circus clown who while attempting to free his foot

'The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-Time'

"No one can truly understand the depth of another person's suffering."

Masterpiece Theatre Grantchester Series

Wellington was dead and Christopher Boone was holding him so the policeman thought he killed the dog. Christopher said he did not and Christopher does not lie. "I like Wellington and I just wanted to say hello but I didn't know someone had killed him." But the policeman grabbed Christopher and the boy hit him and he held on. Christopher immediately began screaming because he feels pain when people touch him. And that's how Christopher wound up in jail.

Thus readers begin with the opening scenario of Mark Haddon's novel "The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-Time," a story narrated by Christopher, a 15 year old boy who is different. At no time in this book does the author refer to Christopher as having autism nor does he profess in interviews to be knowledgeable about the condition. He merely describes the boy's innermost feelings, interactions with people and details and draws graphs of the boy's structured reasoning, which borders on mathematical genius. Readers may afford their own conclusion as to Christopher's diagnosis. According to a recently published book "Neurotribes: The Legacy of Autism and the Future of Neurodiversity" by Steve Silberman, the disorder was not formally recognized and named until the 1940s.

After explaining the situation to the police, Ed Boone drives Christopher home. On the way he tells his father he is going to find out just who did kill their neighbor Mrs. Spears's dog. After all Sherlock Holmes is his favorite detective and Christopher knows how to apply proper reasoning just like the great man did. Ed severely admonishes him to "keep his nose out of other people business" but Christopher begins to question the neighbors anyway. It is like pulling on that wayward thread on your sweater when all of a sudden the whole garment begins to unravel. Christopher discovers things not meant for him to know and Mr. Haddon allows us to see how the boy's mind accepts, interprets and ultimately misunderstands the information. It leads him to journey on his own to London where he becomes terrified of the subway trains and rides on an escalator for the first time in his short life.

As Christopher enumerates the points of his reasoning Mr. Haddon weaves the story so it is hard not to feel empathy for the boy. And his reasoning can be so simple. He tells us why red is his favorite color and yellow is not. So therefore it is logical to put red coloring in yellow food so he can safely eat it. Lest you think this is a joke, be reminded that Christopher does not tell jokes.

What is interesting about Mr. Haddon's writing is that you feel not sorrow as much as you feel an ache to understand this boy. He then turns around and puts you in the parental shoes. You feel the frustration that at times leads to the intense anger that besieges them and maybe gives reasoning, right or wrong, as to why they act as they do. I applaud Mr. Haddon for being able to burrow so deep into his readership's mind that we can learn over the space of a very personal story to feel compassion for Christopher as well as for his parents. These are all hurting people.

It is worth noting when readers recognize a book that makes the quantum leap from the children's fiction side of the library over to adult fiction. It happened with J. K. Rowling's and her Harry Potter series and with Markus Zusak with "The Book Thief." And now it has occurred again with British author Mark Haddon's novel "The Curious Incident of the Dog in the Night-Time." The book garnered further attention when it was crafted for the stage in England and then crossed the pond to the New York stage where it won several Tony awards this June. I must say here that I had the good fortune to be treated to attend the play on Broadway this summer. I was so impressed by the presentation that I immediately had to read the book, which is equally as commanding and thus recommended here.

Completed - After more than a year of work and a decade of planning, the Bishopville pond project is now complete. The pond, before restoration, had a spill way that prevented fish from the St. Martin River reaching and spawning upstream. Now, with the spill way gone and "fish ladders" installed, fish and eels can swim further upstream, spawn, and return to the river. Maryland Coastal Bays and Maryland Department of Natural Resources played a major part in making the new pond come to completion. Members of the Bishopville community, DNR, and MD Coastal Bays helped celebrate the ribbon cutting. Worcester GOLD to host golf tourney

Worcester County GOLD (Giving Other Lives Dignity) will hold its inaugural 18-hole golf tournament on November 6. The event, in a scramble format, will be held at the "must play" Rum Pointe Seaside Golf Links near Assateague Island.

"This is an exciting venture for GOLD," said event co-organizer, Mary Burgess. "Golf tournaments are noted for raising funds and awareness for good causes. There is no better cause than helping local families and children in need."

The 18 holes of fun will begin with registration at 10:30 a.m. and a shotgun start at 11:30 a.m. The $100 per player fee includes 18 holes, a cart, and box lunch. Desserts, awards, and Lucky Ticket Auction will follow immediately after the tournament. Mulligans will be available for $1 each per golfer at registration. "A 50/50 raffle will be available for anyone feeling particularly lucky that day," said Terri Bradford, event co-organizer.

Awards include Winning Team; second and third place winners; longest drive for male and female players; and closest to the pin for male and female players. The first golfer who makes a hole-in-one on the designated hole will be the winner of a car sponsored by Pohanka of Salisbury.

Sponsorship opportunities for the day include platinum, gold, silver, and bronze. Hole and cart sponsorships are available, as well as business card advertising. To participate in the tournament or take advantage of one of the sponsorships, visit GOLD's website: www.worcestergold.org. The deadline for registration is October 30.

Among the tournament prizes will be nights at local hotels, gift certificates to various restaurants, rounds of golf at area courses, and a host of other outstanding prizes.

GOLD Board President Carol Jacobs expressed her thanks to those who have already signed on to be involved. "This golf tournament will assist GOLD in providing for those less fortunate in Worcester County. Last year, nearly 5000 acts of kindness were extended to local families and children in Worcester County through GOLD."

For additional information about the tournament, contact Mary Burgess at 443-880-3740 or marybinoc@aol.com or visit the GOLD website at www.worcestergold.org.

That's how my garden grows...

By Betty McDermott

Hello Fellow Gardeners,

September offered us a welcome relief from the heat of summer and now we can enjoy more of the same this month. Although fall is here, I am still picking beautiful, red, ripe tomatoes. My "Sweet Million" cherry tomato plant continues to produce many clusters of sweet tomatoes. It is not unusual to pick as many as 20 to 30 tiny tomatoes at a time. This Sweet Million tomato plant was given to me as a gift from a local greenhouse owner and he asked me to try it. Well, it has been a very prolific producer of tiny tomatoes for the past three months and it is still going strong. It truly is "the gift that keeps on giving." If you are a lover of sweet, cherry tomatoes, then this is the plant for you.

This month brings with it many chores before frosts and very cold weather arrives so let's get right to them.

It is time to clean up your garden beds in preparation for winter. Your summer annuals are probably still doing well but when the first frost comes, they will be done. This is a good time to plant asters and winter pansies.

If your perennials have grown too large, now is the time to divide them and transplant those divisions.

It is time to cut back the dead blossoms on your hydrangea plants. Cut those branches back just above a new outgrowing bud as this will be the new growth and blossom for next year.

Do not cut back or prune your roses as this should be done only in February or March when the new buds are evident. It is fine to dead head the spent blossoms but wait until spring to prune.

Don't forget to bring in your tender house plants if you put them outside this summer but first you must bug proof your plants. Hose them off with a light spray before you bring them indoors, or you may be bringing in insects and critters you don't want inside your house. Remember to do the underside of the leaves and branches as you hose them down.

It is bulb planting time again. Here are a few pointers on planting bulbs such as tulips, daffodils, narcissus and jonquils. Plant bulbs by mid to late October as they will establish faster and bloom earlier. Additionally, the soil still retains some summer heat which will foster their establishment. Place your bulbs in groups, not singly or in rows; group odd numbers for a more natural look and try to cluster the same colors together to create a more impressive look. Bulbs should be buried at a depth of at least twice their height. The bottom of the bulb should be in firm contact with the soil or else it will not root properly. Add a bulb fertilizer and mix with a little soil before placing the bulb in the hole. Plant bulbs in well-drained soil; do not plant in very wet or moist soil as the bulbs may rot. Do not buy bulbs and leave them in poor storage conditions for long periods of time; try not to plant them too late in the fall. The larger the bulb, the larger the flower in spring. Don't skimp on cheap bulbs. Did you buy those gorgeous chrysanthemums this fall, like I did? Well, here is a tip on saving those gorgeous plants for another year. Just remove them from the container, dig a big hole in a spot where they will receive some sun and plant them in your yard. Make sure you dead head the blossoms and water them well. Next year you will have new chrysanthemums to enjoy all over again. Good Luck!

Well, I must tell you that my interesting and beautiful hummingbirds have left my feeders and gone south to warmer climates. I miss them very much as they were so entertaining. I even found a container of nectar left in my refrigerator which I did not get a chance to use. I think they were here until the second week of September. I have washed all the feeders and stored them away for another year. Now it is time to get out the hanging bird seed feeder, and enjoy the change of scenery.

Have a wonderful, restful October and enjoy all October has to offer.

Its loveliness increases"*

Fenwick Wine Cellars has a bit of everything

Growing up on a farm that grew apples, peaches, cherries, and grapes, Adrian Mobilia would one day parlay this knowledge and experience into cated us that the Fredonia wine is a good introductory red for red wine novices. She was right that it was very light and tasty. For more seasoned red wine drinkers, the Merlot is Katie's personal favorite with its light chocolate finish. Katie also mentioned that the winery holds "Sip and Scoop" events with their neighbor, The Blue Scoop Ice Cream Shop, where they pour their wines atop favorite ice cream flavors. One example is to pour the Concord wine atop Blue Scoop's Peanut Butter ice cream. As Katie describes, "It's like a decadent peanut butter and jelly sandwich and is just delicious."

exploring their attractive gift shop. Chief among the gift ideas you will find are uniquely-shaped bottles in such shapes as a Lighthouse, a Pirate Ship, a Christmas Tree, and a Heart in a beautiful array of colors. Adrian and his father discovered these bottles several years ago, and the bottles filled with Fenwick Wine Cellars wines make terrific gifts.

Stop into Fenwick Wine Cellars to see all that this local winery has to offer. You can savor a Vin-o-Slush or sample a variety of their tasty wines and even take home a specialty-shaped bottle as a gift or a special memento for yourself. It's an outing you'll be pleased to make again and again.

making excellent wine. His thriving business, Fenwick Wine Cellars in Selbyville, Delaware, still buys fruit juices made with 100% fruit from his family's farm in Pennsylvania located along the shores of Lake Erie. As a fourth-generation farmer, Adrian not only learned about working with grapes firsthand, but he also studied horticulture at Penn State and how to run a business through his MBA degree from the University of Buffalo.

white wines we tried, Reflections, the Niagara, and the Riesling were my favorites. They had just the right amount of sweetness to be refreshing, yet were also crisp and fruity. Niagara is the winery's best-selling wine with customers describing it as taking a grape off the vine and popping it into your mouth. The Steuben wine with flavors reminiscent of strawberry was also very nice; I took Katie's wonderful suggestion to sample it with a slice of buffalo wing cheddar cheese made by Chesapeake Bay Farms in Berlin. It was scrumptious; the spiciness of the cheese was cooled down beautifully by the Steuben's sweetness.

The notion of running a winery first came to the family on the Pennsylvania farm. The family had been selling their grapes to Welch's for three generations and as wineries began to gain popularity, the family decided to keep a portion of their grapes to see what they could do with them. The winery took hold, and young Adrian took notice.

Adrian opened his winery, located at 38016 Fenwick Shoals Boulevard in Selbyville in January 2010 with three local grapes grown on the vineyard grounds – the Niagara, Concord, and Chambourcin. Harvesting is done from mid-August through September and bottling is done on-site. Tastings are offered Sundays - Thursdays from 12 noon - 6 p.m., on Fridays from 12 noon - 7 p.m., and on Saturdays from 11 a.m. - 7 p.m.

Another hit with customers particularly on a hot day is Fenwick Wine Cellars' Vin-o-Slush that uses red and white sangria to make a wine-slushy drink similar to an adult Slurpee. These Vin-o-Slush concoctions have become so popular that they are now packaged into convenient make-at-home pouches sold for $11.99. All you need to do is add the wine and stick it in the freezer for three to four hours. An additional offering at Fenwick Wine Cellars is a Party Package for large group sizes. Everyone gets a gourmet cheese plate, wine tasting, a private bartender, a keepsake wine glass, and free transportation to and from the winery within a 20-mile radius. The packages are popular with bachelorette parties and other special events.

Wolnik is crafter of the month

The Pine'eer Craft Club of Ocean Pines has selected Jane Wolnik as the October Crafter of the Month. Jane has been a member of the crafters group for about six years and enjoys a variety of artisan and craft projects. She likes to focus her items around seasons of the year and upcoming holidays. Currently she has small quilted bags for sale in the club's Artisan Craft & Gift Shop located at the entrance of White Horse Park. The bags have a multitude of uses and are created using Halloween and Pink Ribbon themed materials for October. Among her other creations for sale in the gift shop are quilted table runners, crocheted scarves, and beaded bracelets. Jane serves as treasurer for the Pine'eer Craft Club and is also a member of Quilters By The Sea and a volunteer at the AGH Thrift Shop.

Jane Wolnik

The Artisan Craft & Gift Shop operated by the Pine'eer Craft Club is located in White Horse Park, directly opposite to the main entrance of the Ocean Pines Community Center. The shop is now open weekends year round and the fall hours are Saturday 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. and Sunday 11 a.m. to 3 p.m.

For more information about the Pine'eer Craft Club contact President Sharon Puser at 410-208-3032. The crafters meet on the third Thursday of each month in the Ocean Pines Community Center at 9:45 a.m. for refreshments and a 10 a.m. business meeting. A monthly craft follows each meeting.

Fire safety - The county commissioners present Worcester County Fire Marshal Jeff McMahon with a proclamation recognizing October 4-10 as Fire Prevention Week and October as National Fire Prevention Month in the county. This year's theme is Hear the Beep Where You Sleep. Every Bedroom Needs a Working Smoke Alarm. "Half of all home fire deaths occur between 11 p.m. and 7 a.m. when most people are asleep, and maintaining working fire alarms in every bedroom, outside each sleeping area and on every level of the home plays a key role in reducing home fire deaths," Worcester County Fire Marshal Jeff McMahon said. Learn more about fire safety at www.nfpa.org.

Respect - Showell Elementary third graders, Peyton Redmond, Jada Donahue, and Addison Conley, learned about treating others the way you want to be treated by using toothpaste. They learned that just like toothpaste, after saying something unkind, the words are out there and you can't take them back. The girls in Heather Hand's class tried many different things to get the toothpaste back in the tube, but they were not successful.
