Users of statins, widely prescribed for prevention of cardiac disease, have a 27% lower risk of contracting a Staphylococcus aureus (S. aureus) bloodstream infection outside of a hospital, according to a new study in Mayo Clinic Proceedings. Researchers report that statin use, especially among elderly patients with preexisting chronic conditions such as diabetes, kidney, or liver disease, may be protective against this serious bloodstream infection. As the western world's population is aging and more people live with chronic medical conditions, any potential preventive effect of statins could have important clinical implications. S aureus is a bacterium that can colonize skin. It has the propensity to cause serious infection which can be fatal if the bacteria disperse into the bloodstream.

The overuse of antibiotics has left some doctors questioning whether to give such drugs to children diagnosed with uncomplicated staph infections. Such infections often occur on the skin and look like a pus-filled bug bite. A new study published in the journal Clinical Infectious Diseases indicates that prescribing antibiotics-in addition to lancing and draining staph-infected areas-reduces the risk of recurrent infections. Staph may become life-threatening when it enters the bloodstream, bones or organs through skin-to-skin contact or by touching a contaminated object. When an infection turns serious, health-care workers typically give patients intravenous antibiotics. However, some health-care workers have hesitated prescribing antibiotics for children with minor staph infections because of increasing antibiotic resistance. The most common such strain is know as methicillin-resistant Staphylococcus aureus, or MRSA, which may cause pneumonia, severe organ damage and death. The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reports that 11,000 adults and children die annually of MRSA infections.

Honesty and Integrity Matter

Every plausible lie contains a kernel of truth. My opponent knows that and has based his entire campaign on cherry-picking half-truths with the sole intent of misleading Cullman County's voters.

It is disheartening that someone who says he wants to be a judge would so disrespect the office, the legal system itself, and the people he claims he wants to serve. Every competent lawyer knows we are both bound by the Judicial Code of Ethics. I will continue to honor it, yet my opponent seems determined to ignore it.

Clearly, my opponent is desperate to be elected to something ... anything.

Voters Consistently Rejected Him When He Ran On His Own Merits For:

- District Judge ➤ Circuit Judge
- Member of the House of Representatives, District 9
- Member of the House of Representatives, District 11

I have kept my promises to you that I would be fair, honest and use my experience to be a judge you can be proud of. I will always honor the Judicial Canons of Ethics and Code of Professional Responsibility. I will also never attempt to mislead you or deceive you to get votes because honesty and integrity matter.

Sincerely,
Martha E. Williams

Re-Elect!

"If" the Holy Father, the Holy Son (the Holy Word) and the Holy Ghost loved sinners, the devil would be included; for, whoever sins is of the devil (1Jn 3:8-9). There is a wide gulf (Luke 16:19-31) between unknowing sin and willful sin (2Pet 2:21, Heb 10:26-31). Twisted teachings: Christ was manifested to destroy sin and said sin no more, yet many so-called Christian churches teach all sin is forgiven. Some say they cannot out-sin God's love and claim to be under grace, not law. Then pray for forgiveness for transgressing the law (sin) which they claim not to be under (1Jn 3:4)! But the churches always want tithing, yet some say those who try to obey the Holy Law are trying to buy salvation. So Be It!

CAROL BERRY FOR JUDGE

CULLMAN COUNTY PROBATE COURT

COMMITTED TO COMMUNITY
DEDICATED TO PROGRESS

There's three things I've been focused on throughout this whole campaign:

The first of those is being accessible to the people. There's no way for us to address the concerns of our community without knowing their needs. We must be accessible.

Second, I would like to put my experience to work for the citizens of Cullman County. I will streamline the office, restore relationships, and provide training and quality leadership to staff. I believe my years of business management would not only be an asset to this office, but would bring the positive change that is desperately needed.

Third is this: The state has taken its hands off of mental health in Alabama, and we must address from a local level the crisis that we now find ourselves in. We must come together as a united community with an open mind. Cullman's suicide rate has not only risen, but doubled — from 15 people in 2016, to 30 people in 2017. It is time to educate and take action.

I HUMBLY ASK FOR YOUR VOTE

People of the City of Cullman

are you aware that the city inspectors, that ride around the streets looking for some little thing they consider against city ordinance, all reside outside the city of Cullman in the county? This is against the law everywhere but Cullman. People in the county have no authority over the city but even in the catastrophic hail storm damages in Cullman they are riding the streets leaving letters that you can't rebuild the building in the same place where it stood for years. This is the reason all shops, stores and businesses have closed and left, because these city ordinances and the extremely high licenses and cost to do business here. (I have had two inspectors to tell me that is the reason they live in the county). We need to wake up!
