VERSE OF THE WEEK - Proverbs 14:34

Righteousness exalts a nation, but sin condemns any people.

Crowds remember the sacrifices of local military members

There are many significant numbers related to this year's Memorial Day ceremonies held in many communities across Maryland, including those in Fort Howard and Middle River.

This year marks the 150th anniversary of the first official observation of Memorial Day, originally known as Decoration Day when it was proclaimed in 1868 by General John Logan to commemorate Union soldiers killed in the Civil War.

The nation also is observing the centennial of the end of World War I, then touted as "the war to end all wars."

Maryland has lost many of its sons and daughters to battle over the years, according to Dana Hendrickson, director of outreach and advocacy for the Maryland Department of Veterans Affairs.

Hendrickson, who spoke at Monday's Memorial Day service at Fort Howard Veterans Park, said 1,752 Marylanders died in WWI; 6,628 in WWII; 531 in Korea; 1,046 in Vietnam; and 142 in the global war on terrorism.

There are 151 names of all the local residents who served in the armed forces listed on the WWII monument that serves as the centerpiece of the annual Fort Howard ceremony.

But perhaps the most important number to those gathered in the tiny waterfront community was nine. Two founding members of Odd Fellows North Point Lodge 4 - Leopold J.H. Rogers and Joseph B. Beyers - lost their lives in WWI while seven area residents did not return home to their families from WWII.

In a poignant segment of the ceremony, Odd Fellows Lodge 4 Grand Noble Don Chaney tolled a bell for each name read out by Master of Ceremonies and fellow lodge member Dennis Brown: Sgt. Melvin Fryer; 2nd Lt. Kauko Leino; Pvt. Ernest V. Kessler; Pvt. Joseph M. Darchicourt; Pvt. Joseph Dudek; Sgt. William A. Weis Jr.; and Pvt. James H. Hubbard.

Many speakers reminded those in attendance that Memorial Day is much more - SACRIFICES on page 6 -

Hundreds gather to pay tribute to slain officer Amy Caprio

Sunday would have been Baltimore County Police Officer Amy Caprio's 30th birthday. She and her husband, Tim Caprio, had also been planning a Memorial Day weekend trip to celebrate their third wedding anniversary.

But instead of celebrating their love and looking forward to the years to come, the weekend was spent mourning the death of Caprio, whose life was tragically cut short on May 21 as she responded to a call for a suspicious vehicle in a Perry Hall neighborhood.

On Friday morning, Caprio was laid to rest. On Friday night, hundreds converged on Parkville High School for a candlelight vigil to honor her life.

While many are left questioning the senseless act of violence that ended a life too soon, Caprio's mother, Debbie Sorrells, pushed a message of love and service.

"Amy chose to go into this field. She wanted to be a police officer. It was her passion, her love, her dream," said Sorrells, fighting back tears. "She loved her work and she loved her network of family, friends and relatives, and the second family she had of police officers and firefighters."

"I don't even know how to begin to thank each and every one of you for all of your love, all of your support," Sorrells added.

As the sun went down, hundreds of people at Parkville High School lit candles and held up cell phone lights. A prayer was read and the Maryland 9/11 Rolling Memorial, a 500 pound bronze bell, was struck, its echo piercing the solemn silence.

Delegates Christian Miele and Joe Cluster, both representatives of the Perry Hall and Parkville areas, offered words of solace for the community at large. Miele gave thanks to the hundreds who attended, saying "our community is strong," while Cluster, the son of a former Baltimore County Police officer, expressed heartfelt empathy.

Residents of the Parkville and Perry Hall communities expressed their sorrow and respect for Caprio.

"I never got a chance to meet [Officer Caprio], but I'm thankful for her service," said Jacqueline Miller, a Parkville resident. "It's just tough to process that something like this could happen in our community."

A nearly four-year veteran, Caprio is the 10th Baltimore County Police Department member, and first woman, to be killed in the line of duty in the department's 144-year history.

On Friday, more than 1,000 people attended Caprio's funeral service. Along the way on I-95, crowds gathered on overpasses, draping blue and black cloth over the fences and hanging balloons in a show of respect. The procession to the funeral home stretched more than five miles.

"While her death is absolutely sickening, it's nice to see this type of response," said Nottingham resident Charles Herman. "We're stronger than this one act of violence. But you can't help but feel for the family and what could have been. So many lives were ruined and changed in an instant."

Four teens were arrested in connection with the killing of Caprio. Dawnta Anthony Harris, 16, was the first of the four arrested. He has been charged with first degree murder. Harris told investigators he hit Caprio with his car after she responded to Linwen Way in Perry Hall.

Eugene Robert Genius, 17, Derrick Eugene Matthews, 16, and Darrell Jaymar Ward, 15, have all been charged with first degree murder per the felony murder law. All are being held without bail at the Baltimore County Detention Center.

Baltimore County Chief of Police Terrence Sheridan said that Caprio was "the type of officer that you want to hire" and that she had a bright career ahead of her.

"She was the kind of officer that was going to go up in this organization," Sheridan told reporters at Franklin Square Medical Center.

Sheridan's words were backed up by Caprio's record on the job. In January, Caprio helped end a series of holiday package thefts, identifying and arresting two suspects who had stolen from more than 40 individuals. Included in the spree was the theft of a handmade quilt a Middle River grandmother had stitched for her granddaughter. Caprio's work earned her Officer of the Month for the Parkville precinct.

The wind caused some problems for those looking to honor Officer Caprio, so many turned to using their cell phones.

County passes FY19 budget, but Republicans' attempts at cuts rejected

- By Devin Crum -

The Baltimore County Council last Thursday, May 24, passed the Fiscal Year 2019 budget after using the meeting to also appoint Don Mohler, the longtime chief of staff under the late County Executive Kevin Kamenetz, as the new county executive.

The nearly $3.3 billion budget, as it has done now for more than 25 years, managed to again hold the line on property and income tax rates.

"This means though, that once again, we are striving to provide our residents with the services they need and deserve, but with limited financial resources," said Council Chairman Julian Jones in his Budget Message. "Fortunately, the county has maintained its Triple-A bond rating, which will allow us to borrow funds at the lowest interest rates for projects that are necessary to improve facilities and infrastructure, and enhance the quality of life for our residents."

Jones continued that one area where the county has been able to leverage its bond rating and financial might to its advantage is in public education.

Indeed, the FY19 budget focuses heavily on education with roughly half of the county's total spending going to the school system. And while none will be spent in this fiscal year, the budget anticipates another $835.5 million to be spent on capital projects in schools over the next six years.

Included in those capital projects on the east side of Baltimore County are a combined $44.6 million for an addition at Red House Run Elementary School in Rosedale and the new elementary school to be built on Ridge Road in Fullerton; $98.8 million for full rebuilds of Dundalk, Berkshire and Colgate elementary schools in Dundalk; and $103.6 million for a planned new Nottingham middle school at Nottingham Park and an addition to Pine Grove Middle School in Parkville.

In addition, Orem's Elementary in Middle River will get $746,000 for a roof replacement and McCormick Elementary will get $517,000 for a chiller replacement.

Outside of school-related spending, Councilman David Marks said his Fifth District did not receive much capital funding in this year's budget. However, he explained it by stating that his district has been "very fortunate" over the last seven years receiving extensive funding for things like many new parks and schools.

In District 6, Councilwoman Cathy Bevins' aide, Jim Almon, said the budget provides funding for several projects such as $800,000 for turf fields at Overlea High School and $4.3 million for construction of the remaining planned extension of Campbell Boulevard in Middle River.

The budget also shows $5.035 million in state aid for construction of capital renovations and additions to buildings at CCBC Essex.

"The county has program funded $12,318,000 in FY2020 [for that project] and there was a prior authorization of $23,601,661 for miscellaneous capital renovations," Almon said.

Councilman Todd Crandell's Seventh District fared similarly to Marks' district in that it will see a lot of school-related funding, but little else of note in the next year's budget.

But not all was as jovial in the passage of the budget as it has been in years past.

Before the budget's final passage, the three Republicans on the council - Marks, Crandell and Wade Kach (District 3) - attempted to cut several items from the budget by introducing amendments.

First, the minority group tried to cut $14 million from the STAT program in county schools which seeks to supply each county school student with technological devices like laptops and tablets.

Marks questioned the efficacy of the STAT program while stating that "$14 million is roughly the cost of half of a small elementary school."

Next, the Republicans sought to cut a $4 million increase in the county's funding of its Section 8 housing program.

"Buried in the Fiscal Year 2019 county budget was a line item for over $4 million in increased Section 8 funding," Crandell said in a statement. "While the reasoning for the increase was explained as being necessary to stave off higher rent costs, it could also be used to expand the program."

Both attempted cuts failed with 3 - 4 votes along party lines and the funds remained in the budget.

"Additionally, during budget deliberations, I motioned for a $3 million cut in the fund that pays the $30 million commitment to create more affordable housing in Baltimore County," Crandell said. "This too failed along party lines."

Crandell stated that the high amount of Section 8 housing in his district when he took office was a major concern for the communities he represents, and it remains so, leading him to vote against the county's HOME Act in 2016 which would have forced landlords to accept Section 8 vouchers.

Due to a legal settlement between the late county executive and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, that bill is required to be submitted again in the future, "and I will vote against it every single time," Crandell said.

"I cannot allow this issue to threaten our progress," he continued. "I will always vote against the expansion of this program and its detrimental effects to our communities."

Marks agreed, stating that the legal settlement with HUD targets communities like Perry Hall, which he represents, and he believes an influx of Section 8 residents could destabilize the communities.

"I will continue to fight any oversaturation of Perry

While Republicans Todd Crandell and David Marks voted to cut some items from the budget, Cathy Bevins, a Democrat voted with the majority to kill the measures. File photo.

Hall's neighborhoods with Section 8 housing," he said.

In recent months, the council's three Republicans have expressed concern that agreements and initiatives pushed by Kamenetz would push the county to - and potentially beyond - its financial limits.

Marks said this budget it balanced and maintains the fiscal solvency of the county.

"But the council is going to have to make some important and difficult decisions in the next few years" to keep it that way, he said.

He added though that the county government is still running with a budget surplus, and if a favorable county executive is elected and works well with Gov. Larry Hogan, that could mean more financial contributions for the county from the state.

More than just holding the line on taxes, Councilman Kach proposed a one-cent decrease in the county's property tax rate, which was similarly rejected by the Democrat majority.

The proposed decrease would have amounted to about $7 million less revenue for the county, according to Marks. However, he said the cuts they proposed previously, which had amounted to nearly $30 million, would have covered the loss.

"So anyone who thinks [Republicans] are being fiscally irresponsible is mistaken," he said.

New Light Lutheran to offer street-side prayer to busy commuters attendance.

But while formal church attendance decreases, the need for spiritual guidance and advice remains constant, King believes.

The first drive-through offering was held May 3, to coincide with National Day of Prayer, according to King, and about 25 people stopped for a few minutes of prayer and spiritual contemplation.

Local residents and commuters can next avail themselves to mobile prayer on June 7, with sessions from 7 to 9 a.m. and 4 to 6 p.m. Church members will stand at the corner of Dundalk and Pine avenues with signs directing drivers to the church's parking lot at that corner.

Taking a page from the "Ashes to Go" book, a Dundalk minister has decided to break down the physical walls of the church a little more by offering "drive-through" prayer during the months of June and July.

Ashes to Go is a national movement that provides the disposition of ashes on Ash Wednesday on street corners and in parking lots in an effort to provide church services to an increasingly busy population.

"We didn't know what to expect the first time we offered Ashes to Go," the Rev. Kristi King, pastor of Dundalk's New Light Lutheran Church, told the East County Times. "In addition to offering ashes, we asked people if there was anything we could pray for."

King said those private moments with local residents who opened up and asked for prayer were "holy moments" that made her question why such an outreach service was offered only once a year.

The pastor and church members put their heads together and came up with the idea of offering drive-through prayer services during the summer months when vacation plans and other family commitments can mean a drop in church

"We encourage people to pull into the parking lot as opposed to just pulling off to the side of the road so we can spend a few minutes with them without being hurried or worried about traffic behind them," King said. "The prayer encounters are not long, but we want people to get as much time as they feel they need."

King said she is humbled with people trusting her by opening up with some of the most intimate or painful things going on in their lives.

"Life tends to stay on the surface and people say they're OK when asked," King said. "But when you dig a little and people begin to trust you, they'll share the things that are causing them concern."

A five-minute encounter during a mobile prayer service might be just the thing to get someone over an emotional hump, and King said she and New Light members are honored to provide that service.

"We're all carrying around so much inside of us, and we want to tell people, 'You are not alone, we're here for you if you need us,'" King said. "God is present here in the midst and we're all here in this together, so let's pray together."

Volunteers placed American flags on the graves of all of the veterans buried at Holly Hill. Photos by Devin Crum.

Oddfellows North Point Lodge 4 Grand Noble Don Chaney rings a bell as the names of WWII casualties are read.

Women from the Charles Evering VFW Auxiliary placed carnations on the monument for each fallen soldier.

Trail Life Scout Donnie Grubbs saluted the monument after laying a memorial wreath in front of it.

than the now-commercialized weekend that unofficially kicks off summer, inspires retail sales and gives people a day off from work and an excuse to throw a party.

"We gather here today because we know the true reason for Memorial Day," Hendrickson said in her remarks.

She encouraged the audience to maintain the faith, honor the lessons and remember the dead.

"These are real people with real stories with real families," Delegate Robin Grammer said of the names etched on the WWII monument. "We will always remember them."

Will Feuer, a candidate for Board of Education who represented Delegate Ric Metzgar, spoke of everyone loving freedom but "not everyone is willing to sacrifice their lives for that freedom."

Wars end lives and leave broken families in the wake of those deaths, he said.

"We don't know them all but we owe them all," Feuer said of the war dead.

Penwood Christian Church pastor Don Warner took a minute to recognize his father, Donald E. Warner Sr., whose name is on the monument.

"We call him the last man standing," he said, choked with emotion as he talked about the sacrifices of community members. "He'll be 92 in three months."

Fran Taylor, who is a member of the Todd's Inheritance Historic Site - a volunteer group that oversees the operations of the historic Todd homestead, spoke of the historical significance of North Point Road, which saw the deaths of many local militia members during the War of 1812's Battle of North Point.

North Point Road is "a road that has witnessed celebration and a road that has witnessed sorrow; a road that has witnessed victory and, thank God, in 1814 witnessed defeat," Taylor said. "It is a road to nowhere and a road to everywhere. It is our Star-Spangled Banner Historic Trail."

The Odd Fellows have been holding the annual remembrance ceremony for 73 years, ever since a door-to-door collection campaign raised enough money to have the monument erected in front of the land that once was home to Fort Howard School.

The current veterans park was created when the school was torn down.

A few miles away in Middle River, Holly Hill Memorial Gardens was packed with hundreds of visitors in attendance at the annual Memorial Day ceremony surrounding the Lamky Luther Whitehead Veterans Memorial.

"This is the way to celebrate Memorial Day," said LLWVM foundation President Tony DeRuggiero, "to give honor to those who made the ultimate sacrifice, their life, for our country."

A light mist fell during the somber ceremony, which consisted of prayers for those lost and their families, and recognition of the fallen.

The veterans monument lists the names of some 150 soldiers from eastern Baltimore County who have perished during the course of their service in conflicts including WWI, WWII, Korea, Vietnam, and Iraq/ Afghanistan. As each name was called aloud, a bell tolled and women from the Charles Evering VFW Post 6506 Auxiliary placed a white carnation on the monument in their memory.

The monument's outer circle of stones also lists approximately 625 names of those from the area who have honorably served, according to DeRuggiero, and seven names were recently added to those stones. Those names were called as well and those individuals recognized.

LLWVM foundation member Shirley Robinson also recognized local Gold Star Mothers - those who have lost a son or daughter in combat - through the reading of a statement from local veteran Delmar Dixon.

The statement described how veterans often try to forget the horrors of war after they return home.

"But there is one person who will never forget that veteran, and that is a Gold Star Mother," the statement read. "She will always remember the day when she received the telegram from the war department, when she received the knock of the chaplain on her door. That dreadful moment will remain in her heart for all the days of her life."

Robinson also took a moment to pay respect to Baltimore County Police Officer Amy Caprio, who a week prior had become the first ever female officer to be killed in the line of duty in Baltimore County, and just the 10th in BCoPD's 155-year history.

"It was a different kind of uniform, it was a different pair of boots, it was a different gun strapped on the side of her hip," Robinson said. "But she swore to do her duty to God, country and her community. She swore to serve and she swore to protect, and she swore to do those things with her very life."

As musical instruments and folding chairs were packed up and as thoughts inevitably went to the remainder of the day and countless family outings planned for those many traditional Memorial Day picnics and cookouts, the words of one speaker came to mind - a reminder from Abraham Lincoln's Gettysburg Address, given on the occasion of the Nov. 19, 1863, dedication of the Soldiers National Cemetery:

"It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us - that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion - that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain - that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom - and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth."

Patapsco HS student helps create winning ice cream recipe

- By Marge Neal -

TIC Gums' Texture Innovation Center in White Marsh.

TIC Gums sponsors the program's $500 fee for each participant and also gave a home ice cream maker to each student who completed the five-week course.

"Year over year, this program has meant so much to TIC Gums and our mission to educate the public about food science," Tim Andon, TIC business development manager and a Cornell graduate, said in the statement. "We want to make kids excited about the food industry and inspire them to ask more questions and discover a potentially unknown passion."

Wooten is already familiar with his own passion for the food industry. He is enrolled in the culinary arts program at Sollers Point Technical High School, in addition to his regular academic program at Patapsco.

He found out about Ice Cream University by way of a flier distributed at Sollers Point, and with straight A's and a keen interest in the culinary arts, decided to apply.

"It was originally only open to Harford County students and then when not enough students applied, they opened it to Baltimore County," Wooten told the East County Times. "I was excited to go."

The first few weeks of the program were dedicated to scientific principles of foods, such as "emulsions,

Projects funded statewide for better boating access, navigation and safety vessel for use by the organization.

"Boating is a cherished way of life in our state, both as an industry and for recreation," said Governor Larry Hogan. "We are committed to expanding opportunities for our citizens and visitors to appreciate all that our waterways, coastal bays, the Chesapeake Bay and the Atlantic Ocean have to offer, and these grants will allow even more Marylanders to make memories out on the water."

Funded projects include the dredging of local and federal navigation channels, maintaining public boating access facilities, improving and upgrading existing infrastructure such as bulkheads, parking, piers and ramps, and purchase of rescue equipment for emergency and first responders.

"Boating is a way of life in the Old overrun calculations, ice crystal formation and statistical know-how for tracking and maintaining quality," according to the statement. Subsequent classes concentrated on flavor selection and inclusions such as nuts, chocolate and fruit and the program ended with students presenting their flavors and marketing/branding plans.

"Every week, we experimented with two different recipes," Wooten said. "My team worked on a spicy chocolate recipe and the berry and green tea recipe but we dropped the chocolate idea when we couldn't get the spices right."

The three-man team tweaked the berry/green tea concoction each week until it was "just right."

A panel of judges, which included a pastry chef, TIC Gums and Broom's Bloom employees and other food specialists sampled each contending ice cream and judged the branding plans before declaring the winner on May 5, according to Wooten.

"I was very surprised that we won," the student admitted. "I have anxiety and I was so nervous after the competition that I left the room for a little while and came back to find out we had won."

Sandy Skordalas, chairperson of Patapsco's social studies department and the school's debate team coach, said she wasn't surprised to hear that Wooten was on the winning team.

"I'm not familiar with his culinary skills but I can tell you he's a great young man and very responsible," she told the Times. "He was a great debate team member known for his ability to defend an argument; he was always well-prepared."

Besides bragging rights (and the personal ice cream maker), the students will get to see their winning recipe mass produced and offered on the menu at the Bel Air dairy.

The winning ice cream makers are scheduled to visit Broom's Bloom to make the first batch of the award-winning concoction on June 4, according to Janey Wolff, who oversees ice cream production at the dairy and served as a judge in the contest.

Asked if she voted for the winning entry, she said yes.

"All the judges voted for the winner, it was unanimous," she said. "We also take in to consideration their Power Point presentations and this was the sure winner."

The three students will make the first 2.5 gallon box of the frozen treat and then dairy workers will make several more boxes to ensure enough is available to the general public, according to Wolff.

"If everything goes according to schedule, we expect to debut the ice cream that weekend after June 4," Wolff said. "It's a good ice cream, you can taste each flavor and it's just a really good combination."

Broom's Bloom Dairy is at 1700 S. Fountain Green Road in Bel Air. Call 410-339-2697 to check on the availability of Farmer's Flight.

For his part, Wooten said he plans to continue experimenting with original ice cream recipes and expects to get good use out of his new ice cream maker.

"I guess my family will come to expect homemade ice cream," he said with a chuckle.

Some of the Waterway Improvement funding will be used to repair and rehabilitate boat launch facilities in Dundalk. Courtesy photo.

Simple ways to improve your car's fuel economy

With gas prices on the rise, motorists should be looking at ways to improve their car's fuel economy. While there's little drivers can do to reduce the cost of a gallon of gas, there are ways they can make the gas last a little longer.

- Don't break the law. Obeying the speed limit might save your life, and it can also save you money. Typically, fuel economy decreases rapidly as a car reaches and surpasses 60 miles per hour. According to the U.S. Department of Safety, drivers can assume that each five miles per hour they drive over 60, they are paying an additional $0.26 per gallon for gas.

- Empty the trunk. Though it might be more convenient to keep your golf clubs in the trunk of your car, extra and unnecessary cargo in a vehicle's trunk drastically reduces fuel economy. An extra 100 pounds in a vehicle can reduce miles per gallon by as much as 2 percent, so keep a trunk free of items that aren't absolutely necessary.

- Stop idling. Many people let their car idle for several minutes on cold mornings. But today's newer vehicles don't really need to idle to warm up, and idling can be very taxing on fuel economy. Depending on the size of the car, idling can use between a quarter to a half gallon of fuel per hour. If you still insist on letting the vehicle idle, a few seconds of idling should be enough to warm the engine up.

- Embrace cruise control on long drives without lots of stopping and starting. Maintaining a constant speed, which a vehicle does when drivers utilize cruise control, can help save fuel, as it's less taxing on an engine to continue at one speed then it is to constantly switch back and forth between high and low speeds.

- Inflate the tires. Poorly inflated tires lower gas mileage and also pose a safety hazard. The DOE notes that properly inflated tires can improve gas mileage by as much as 3 percent. Ideal tire pressure is different for each vehicle, so check your vehicle's owner's manual for recommended tire pressure. Some vehicle manufacturers also include the recommended tire pressure on the vehicle itself, be it in the driver's side door jamb or in the vehicle's glove compartment. Tire pressure printed on the tire's sidewall might not be the ideal tire inflation for your particular vehicle, so always adhere to the manufacturer's recommendation instead.

- Drive the car you need, not the car you want. Drivers who truly need to save money at the pump should consider the type of vehicle they're driving, and whether it's the car they need or the car they want. For instance, office workers who own a pick-up truck but don't use it to haul items might want to consider a smaller vehicle that gets better gas mileage.

STRAIGHT TALK

If you drive over poorly maintained roads and/or have hit a pothole or two, it is a good idea to have your vehicle's wheels aligned. Not only can this procedure ensure that your automobile will drive straight and smoothly, but it will also help prolong the life of your tires, improve handling, and even help save on fuel. One way to tell if a vehicle is in need of an alignment is to check tire wear. If tires are wearing unevenly across the tread, it's time for an alignment. Other signs of needing a wheel alignment include the vehicle pulling to the right or left and a steering wheel that is not centered when driving straight.

Few of us make it past the bumps and potholes of life without the occasional need to visit the doctor, and for your car, that's us. If your vehicle is no longer traveling down the road on a straight path, consider our shop. We're skilled at diagnosis and we're knowledgeable fixers of the myriad problems that can bring your car to a halt at the most inopportune time. Let us do what we do best - call us when you need us for routine maintenance or suddenly needed repairs.

Open Mon.-Fri. 7:30-5. We fix check engine lights!

HINT: It is a good idea to have your vehicle's alignment checked every 6,000 miles or so. At the same time, wheel balancing is also suggested, if a vibration from the road is transmitted to the steering wheel.

Pause for the Pledge

- By Delegate Ric Metzgar (R-6) -

Cliff O'Connell, owner of Cliff's Hi Tech, and his employees donated their time and equipment to remove the 20' x 30' American Flag from Trinity Temple Interfaith Church at 914 Essex Avenue off North Marlyn Avenue in Essex.

The flag needs repair due to the high winds which the community sustained earlier this year. Once the repairs are made, Cliff's High Tech will raise the American Flag at Trinity Temple in time for the Annual Pause for the Pledge on June 14 at 6 p.m. which is hosted by Delegate Ric Metzgar (R-6). Everyone is asked to arrive early and bring lawn chairs and bottled water.

The community is invited to attend and recite the Pledge of Allegiance at promptly 7 p.m.

Veterans organizations, Jr. ROTC, and other musical groups and performers who would like to participate in the ceremony please call the District Office at 410-622-5323.

A Baltimore County hero

- By Johnny Olszewski Jr. (D), candidate for Baltimore County executive -

Last week, a Baltimore County police officer died in the line of duty as she responded to a burglary in progress. It's heartbreaking that she died while working so diligently and honorably to keep our communities safe. She is a hero, putting her life on the line and working hard every day to protect our neighbors. As the brother of a police officer in Baltimore County, my heart breaks for the officer's family. I'll be praying for them, the police department and the Perry Hall community.

It's shocking when news like this comes to our front door. It rattles a community because we don't imagine that "it could happen here." Nobody imagined that entire neighborhoods would be locked down until nightfall or that thousands of our young students would be kept inside schools, safe but away from their families. We're left wondering if we could have stopped it and what we can do in the future.

I want to thank the dedicated public servants who protected us May 21. The first responders who took the call, the law enforcement officers who secured the area, and the educators who stayed with our children, taught them, and helped keep them calm. We're indebted to them for keeping us and our children safe in a time of panic.

There are heroes who heal us, protect us, and strengthen our communities every day. It's important we recognize them not just now, but always. Yesterday, we lost one of those heroes - far too early. Together, let's pray for a safer future for all of us in Baltimore County.

Szeliga offers condolences, demands action

- By Delegate Kathy Szeliga (R-7) -

Perry Hall resident Delegate Kathy Szeliga, shocked by last Monday's tragic slaying of Baltimore County Police Officer First Class Amy Caprio, offered condolences to Officer Caprio's family, coworkers, and friends. "Words cannot express the heartbreak we feel for the Caprio family and the law enforcement community," said Szeliga. "Bravely protecting the residents of Baltimore County, Officer Amy Caprio made the ultimate sacrifice as her life was taken by criminals while she was protecting people in Perry Hall."

Delegate Szeliga's son and his family live just one street from where Officer Caprio was run down by four violent juvenile criminals from Baltimore City. "Parents and families of Perry Hall lived in a state of terror Monday while SWAT members were combing through neighborhoods and all schools and homes were locked-down," said Delegate Szeliga. "Law enforcement, schools, and the local community were vigilant in protecting people from further harm by the four dangerous criminals who fled the scene. These criminals must be held accountable, for killing Officer Caprio, burglarizing, and terrorizing the entire Perry Hall community as they hid from police and were loose in the area for hours after running down Officer Caprio," Szeliga demanded.

Dawnta Harris, age 16, has been charged as an adult with first degree murder in the death of Officer Caprio. According to media reports, this was far from Harris' first brush with the law. Over the last six months Harris stole cars in December, January and February. He was sent to a juvenile facility in March, from which he escaped, stole another car, and was subsequently arrested in the City. He has been on house arrest since April with a monitoring bracelet, but left his home sometime in mid-May. On the day he murdered Officer Caprio, he and three other teens were stealing valuables from homes in Perry Hall. The Baltimore Sun reported that, at his preliminary hearing on Tuesday, District Judge Sally Chester referred to Harris as a "one-man crime wave." On Wednesday the three teens that were with Harris were charged as adults with murder and burglary.

"There is a lot of talk about violent crime rates dropping in Baltimore City. But you have to wonder are the crimes really being prevented or just exported to other jurisdictions", said Szeliga. There have been a series of violent carjackings in Baltimore County in recent months, including one involving a pregnant teacher who was repeatedly punched in the face while yelling to her assailants that she was pregnant. In each of these cases these juvenile offenders had gone on crime sprees in the County with several of them already having records of convictions in Baltimore City.

Delegate Kathy Szeliga is calling for Baltimore City and Mayor Catherine Pugh to immediately address the dangerous and growing problem created by violent juveniles who have been committing crimes in the City and surrounding area. "Mayor Pugh, States Attorney Mosby, and the judges that adjudicate these cases must start holding these criminals accountable. It is infuriating when people discover they have been victimized by criminals with lengthy records, regardless of their age," Delegate Szeliga said emphatically.

Fire in Dundalk leads to police-involved shooting

Baltimore County Police and Fire units responded to a fire in the 300 block of Pine Street in Dundalk, on the morning of May 23, which resulted in a police-involved shooting.

A woman in the home called 9-1-1 at approximately 8:22 a.m. reporting a fire in an upper floor room where her adult son was located, and indicated that he was refusing to come out of the house. Two officers were first on the scene and took the woman to safety while they entered the home to help the man.

Engine 7 from Essex was the first fire unit to arrive on the scene, finding smoke showing from the roof. They called a working 1-alarm fire at 8:28 a.m., then heard a gunshot inside the home approximately a minute later. An injured was seen fleeing the home, running almost two blocks before being stopped by police and medics in the area of Pine Street and Sollers Point Road, where he was treated and transported to a local hospital for further treatment and evaluation.

The officers first encountered the man on the stairway to the second floor where the fire was reported. While attempting to force the man to leave the home, one of the officer's firearms discharged, striking the man in the arm. He fled the home and down the street where he encountered additional officers who apprehended and restrained the man so he could be treated by medics.

The cause of the fire and the shooting remain under investigation. The officers were wearing body-worn cameras which will be reviewed as part of the investigation. One of the officers was transported to an area hospital for treatment while the other was treated by responding medics and released.

Current crime trends

Since May 5, there have been four residential burglaries in the Essex Precinct that appear to be related. Unlocked doors were entered in two cases. Rear door glass was broken in two cases. A purse, a wallet, money, TVs, laptops, game systems and jewelry were taken.

Since May 1, there have been five motor vehicle thefts within the Dundalk Precinct that appear to be related. Thefts occurred between 6:35 p.m. and 10:41 a.m. In two cases, keys were left inside the vehicles. In one case, the vehicle was left running with keys in the ignition and the doors unlocked. In another case, all keys were accounted for, but the vehicle doors were unlocked. In the last case, a Honda motorcycle was taken by unknown means.

Police investigate fatal motorcycle crash

On May 27 at approximately 01:55 a.m., Baltimore County Police responded to a crash near the intersection of Pulaski Highway and Middle River Road in Middle River. The investigation revealed that a 2014 Toyota Corolla was exiting the parking lot of Mo's Seafood located in the 9700-block of Pulaski Highway when a Toyota crossed over the eastbound lanes of Pulaski Highway and then made a left turn, entering the first westbound lane of Pulaski Highway.

At that time, a 2005 Harley Davidson motorcycle was traveling westbound on Pulaski Highway and struck the rear of the Toyota. The operator of the motorcycle was transported to University of Maryland Shock Trauma where he was pronounced deceased at 3:26 a.m. The operator of the Toyota was transported to another local hospital with minor injuries.

The driver of the motorcycle was a 54-year-old man from the Essex area. His name will be released after notification of next of kin.

Essex woman indicted for bankruptcy fraud

On May 22 a federal grand jury indicted Patricia Mulford, age 66, and Joseph Mulford, age 67, formerly of Berlin, Maryland; and Maria Denise Gangler, age 62, of Essex, on charges of conspiracy to commit bankruptcy fraud, bankruptcy fraud and tax evasion.

According to the four-count indictment, from July 2011 through November 2017, the Mulfords and Gangler committed bankruptcy fraud by knowingly and fraudulently concealing their assets from their creditors and trustees in bankruptcy proceedings. The assets concealed by the defendants consisted primarily of proceeds from the sale of approximately $375,000 in foreign real estate, namely their interests in a property at Sueno Escondido Estates in Costa Rica. The defendants converted proceeds from the real estate sale into cash stored in a safe deposit box and bank accounts held in relatives' names. The Mulfords also reinvested proceeds in a second property in Costa Rica and failed to disclose their ownership of that property. The defendants' bankruptcy fraud caused their creditors to suffer losses of more than $350,000.

The Mulfords and Gangler face a maximum sentence of five years in prison and fines of up to $250,000 for the conspiracy, bankruptcy fraud, and tax evasion offenses. An initial appearance for the defendants has not been scheduled at this time.

Catron is a three-sport varsity athlete who maintained a 3.92 unweighted grade point average. He will attend Georgia Tech University.

The scholarships are given in honor of the late Mildred H. Murray, former BCPS coordinator of physical education and athletics. She dedicated 43 years to promoting excellence in athletics and academics throughout the county. Congratulations to both winners.

BCPS begins to celebrate newest graduates

Over the next two weeks, thousands of Baltimore County Public Schools seniors will walk across the graduation stage and into their future.

Nearly all of the graduations, with the exception of Battle Monument's, will be held either at Towson University's SECU Center or the Retriever Activity Center at the University of Maryland Baltimore County. All graduations held at those two locations will be live-streamed for viewing on the BCPS website at www.bcps.org.

"I cannot wait to shake the hands of every one of our graduates," said BCPS Interim Superintendent Verletta White. "I am so proud of the extraordinary young men and women we have been honored to teach. They are bright, curious, creative, hard-working, and absolutely ready to take on the challenges of college and careers. Our commencement exercises will celebrate all that they have achieved and will honor the teachers, principals, parents, and school system administrators and leaders who have contributed to their education."

New episode of 'Parent University' focuses on system's restorative practices

The newest episode of "Parent University," now broadcasting on BCPS-TV and available online, explores how Baltimore County schools are working hard to improve school climate and ensure that students feel comfortable and able to learn - a model called "restorative practices."

In the episode, viewers will learn that students who have a sense of belonging in school perform better and show more academic and social growth. Through restorative practices, BCPS educators can focus on building relationships with students and fostering healthy school climates.

The show features a roundtable discussion among parents and educators who have worked with concepts in restorative practices, including Dr. Melissa Lembo-Whisted, executive director of academic services for BCPS, and Darrielle Sarnovsky, a Grade 3 teacher at Norwood Elementary School in Dundalk. Two other Norwood parents - Abu Rojas and Tallesha Sanders - also join the discussion.

Discussion during the episode also revolves around issues relating to bullying, independence for students, and how restorative practices introduces non-confrontational strategies for defusing conflicts in the classroom. More information about school climate is available online. The International Institute for Restorative Practices is also a useful resource.

The Parent University show is hosted by Sue Hahn, a program specialist in the BCPS Office of Family and Community Engagement. Now in its fourth season, "Parent University" provides educational content for parents and caregivers as well as fun and family-oriented field trips and events available in the greater Baltimore County area.

The show is one facet of the larger Parent University, which offers in-person workshops throughout the community as well as online resources and videos to meet the unique needs of families with school-age children.

BCPS-TV, the school system's television station, produces a new episode of "Parent University" roughly every two weeks during the school year. The show is available online and may be viewed at 5 a.m. and 7 p.m. daily, and 12:00 p.m. each day except Sunday. BCPS-TV may be found on Comcast Cable Channel 73 and Verizon FiOS Channel 34 in Baltimore County.

Registration open for middle, high school summer Math Academy

Baltimore County Public Schools students recommended to take Algebra 1 in Grade 8 or Grade 9 during the upcoming school year can register now to participate in a free summer Math Academy to help develop or maintain algebra readiness skills.

Seats are limited for this free program, and enrollments will be accepted on a first come, first served basis. Transportation will be provided as necessary.

The program will be offered at various middle and high schools across the county from July 9 - Aug. 3, from 7:30 - 11:30 a.m. or 7:45 - 11:45 a.m. each day. (Exact time depends on the Math Academy site. Information will be provided later).

At the Math Academy, students will participate in a research-based, blended learning mathematics program designed to meet the specific needs of individual students. Each day will include four hours of mathematics instruction in which students participate in whole-class, small group, and individual learning opportunities designed to develop students' mindset, confidence, and beliefs about doing mathematics as they strengthen their understanding of key concepts and skills from prior grades to build their readiness for algebra.

Parents/guardians interested in registering their children for the Math Academy should either complete the form available online and return it to their child's school counselor or directly contact their child's school counselor. The form must be submitted or the contact must be made with the school counselor by Thursday, May 31.

Registered students will receive a confirmation letter detailing the Math Academy site they have been assigned to, the exact time for the Math Academy at that site, and whether BCPS transportation is available.

Rockin' on the River set for seventh installment

- By Patrick Taylor -

The seventh installment of Rockin' on the River, the east side's biggest concert event of the year, is set for Sunday, June 3.

Once again being held at Conrad's Ruth Villa in Middle River, this year's event promises to be the best one yet, according to Don Crockett, who heads up the event each year.

"This is the best slate of bands we have put together over the last seven years," said Crockett. "Of course everyone knows Kanye Twitty, The New Romance and Awaken by now, but this year we added two newcomers with Damn Connellys and Red Dirt Revolution. And those guys will blow your mind."

While Damn Connelly's and Red Dirt Revolution may be new to Rockin' on the River, they're certainly won't be new to many in attendance. These two bands have been building up hype over the last few years and Crockett is excited to bring them to Rockin' on the River for the first time.

"The energy that the guys from Damn Connellys bring is just contagious. These guys are just wild," said Crockett. "And Red Dirt Revolution is one of, if not the, best country acts going in Maryland."

Crockett promised that there will be music there for everyone, from pop and country to classic rock, folk and more.

This year saw the sold out event raise ticket prices for the first time, jumping from $10 to $15 after a few sponsors dropped out. But according to Crockett, the minor price hike didn't deter sales in the least.

"I had people telling me I should jack the price up to $20, but we want to keep it reasonable," said Crockett. "We're not trying to gouge anyone. We're just trying to put on a fun show and raise some money for good causes in the area."

A bulk of the donations have historically gone to businesses that work on the water, like the Back River Restoration Committee, while the remainder is divvied out to different charities throughout the rest of the year. In years past, donations have been made to Shop with a Cop and to provide books for children at Franklin Square Medical Center.

"We do like to keep things focused on the water, because without that we wouldn't even have a Rockin' on the River," said Crockett. "If we spend so much time enjoying everything our waterways have to offer, it only makes sense to give back and make sure they are healthy."

Gates for Rockin' on the River open at 11 a.m. and things kick off at noon, running until 5:30 p.m. The event will be emceed by DJ Jon Boesche, and DJ Big George will also be in attendance.

Rob Baier (left) and his band Kanye Twitty performed at last year's Rockin' on the River. Baier has been a staple of the event, performing in each installment.

This year, 2,700 people bought tickets for Rockin' on the River, with tickets selling out in less than two weeks. No tickets will be sold at the door.

"These things fly fast," said Crockett. "It's amazing, you talk to people and they view this weekend as a holiday."

As always, food and alcoholic beverages will be provided for sale. No alcoholic beverages, food, pets or coolers are allowed on the premises. This applies to those entering the premises from boats.

While politicians have almost always attended, Crockett wanted to emphasize that no campaign literature is allowed to be given out at Rockin' on the River. "Everyone needs to leave their R's, D's and I's at the door," Crockett said.

This year there will also be a table set aside for the Marine Trade's Association to raise funds for their annual fireworks display.

Crockett said he's looking forward to this year's installment, offering thanks to those who have made the event the juggernaut it is.

"I just want to say thank you to Rob Baier, Sam Weaver and Fred Conrad, all of whom make this event possible," said Crockett. "And the same goes for our wonderful group of sponsors and the fans who buy the tickets each year."

EYORE
I bet you thought Eeyore looked a little different... Well, I'm the canine version! I have quickly become a staff favorite because it's so easy to fall in love with senior dogs like me. I'm laid back and sweet and lead a pretty simple life. Just give me shelter, love and plenty of attention and I will be yours forever. In my previous home I lived with a female dog and was said to be happy and vocal. If you would like to meet me please visit soon.

ALLEN
Hello world! My name is Allen and I'm here at the Baltimore Humane Society in hopes to find a new forever home. I'm a very sweet boy who likes to lounge in my cat bed and get attention. If you're looking for a sweet cat, come in and meet me soon!

The adoption fee is $50 for Eeyore and $50 for Allen. For more information visit www.bmorehumane.org.
